MESSAGE OF CITY'S MAYOR

Full Text of His First Formal Communication to New Common Council.

HIS RECOMMENDATIONS.

He is Greatly Pleased With the Present Municipal Conditions, Especially as to the City Finances—Changes in Terms of Office—Other Suggestions.

The following is the full text of the annual message of Mayor O. L. Jenkins presented at the first meeting of the Common Council for 1902, last evening:

To the honorable Common Council of the city of Plainfield.

Gentlemen:—The fiscal year ending at noon today has been the most prosperous year in the history of the city. When the Common Council of 1901 entered upon the work of that year, there was found a debt of $9,000, representing money borrowed for the general fund in anticipation of the collection of taxes. At the beginning of the year before, the amount previously borrowed, and then unpaid, was $26,000, and the year before that, $30,500. This Common Council will find the general fund entirely free from all floating debt, and in place of a debt, a balance of $17,657 in cash. The condition of the special funds is entirely satisfactory.

Taxes.

While this admirable condition of the city's finances is highly gratifying, it is important not to lose sight of the fact that the present surplus is in large part due to the success attending the city's efforts in collecting arrears of delinquent real estate taxes under the Martin Act, and that the future increment from that source in our annual revenues will necessarily be less than heretofore, hereby necessitating greater caution to keep liabilities within the limit of appropriations. There still remain large amounts of unpaid poll and personal taxes collectable under the statute put in force by this city during the last year under warrants issued by the collector and enforceable by seizure and sale of the personal property of delinquents, or in default of such property, by imprisonment of the delinquent. Directly and indirectly, it is believed that an amount of not less than ten thousand dollars has in this way been realized through the efforts of the collector during the last year. This statute should be vigorously enforced.

Of the twenty years arrearages of real estate taxes, re-adjusted by the Martin Act Commissioners, the city has collected all but $13,000 and for these uncollected taxes, the city holds certificates of sale. These certificates entitle the city to take possession and collect the rents from the property in question, and with that end in view notices have already been served. The city is also entitled to deeds in fee simple for all the property subject to payment of re-adjusted taxes, and I recommend that the Common Council direct the collector to give notice that deeds will be executed and delivered to the city for all such properties on which the re-adjusted taxes shall remain unpaid on the first day of February next.

School Taxes.

The embarrassment which has arisen in consequence of the declaration by the Court of Errors and Appeals that the School Law Revision of 1900 is unconstitutional, has happily been avoided in this city by reason of the wise measures adopted by the joint action of the Board of Education and the Common Council. Until the court shall have decided the application for the re-hearing of the cases in which the opinion in question was rendered, or the Legislature shall have taken action in the premises, it is necessary to deal with the delicate situation with the utmost prudence. So far as moneys are needed for the current expenses of the schools, there would appear to be no reason why school taxes should not be ordered, assessed and collected during the present year on the same plan which was adopted in 1900 and 1901.

Sewerage.

The city has been fortunate in having the assistance of thoroughly competent men, local and otherwise, in dealing with the difficult problem of sewage disposal, and owing to their united efforts, the result of last year's work is confidently believed to be the inauguration, at moderate cost, of a system which represents the latest discoveries and improvements in the matter of sewage disposal which are known to science.

Water Supply.

On the second day of May next, the contract with the Plainfield Water Supply Company, under which the city is now supplied with water for fire protection purposes, will expire. Strenuous efforts have been made on behalf of the city by the appropriate committee of the Common Council and other city officers, to induce the water company to make more favorable terms at the expiration of the present contract, both with respect to the public water supply and the terms under which water shall be supplied to private consumers. The Mayor has been kept advised of the progress of the negotiations, but since they have not been concluded, and those members of the Common Council who have been acting for the city in the premises are members of the present Common Council, it is not deemed wise that the particulars of the demands made by the city, or the reply of the water company should be made known until the committee shall submit its final report to the Common Council.

For the present, it must suffice to say that no effort has been spared to induce the Plainfield Water Supply Company to accede to the reasonable demands of the city, and that the city has been fully advised as to its rights and as to the several methods available to enable the city to build or acquire a system of water works of its own.

Fire and Police.

The departments of fire and police have proved themselves highly efficient so that there would seem to be no demand for any important change in either department.

In the police department, a change in the title of the officer now known as "captain" seems desirable in order to give that officer equal rank with the corresponding officer in the police departments of other cities of the State. It is not a matter of vital importance, but experience has shown that greater weight would be given to his official communications addressed to corresponding officers elsewhere, if his titular designation were the usual one of "chief."

I recommend, therefore, that the ordinance and rules and regulations of the department be amended accordingly.

Street Improvements.

A full and detailed report of the committee on streets was submitted to the Common Council on the thirtieth day of December last. For several years past this department of work has been conducted economically and well. I am opposed, however, to the method of providing funds for the improvement of streets by the issue of bond, even though of the most temporary character, and the appointment of commissioners except in those rare instances in which no other method is feasible.

Changes in the Law Governing Elections and Terms of Office.

The Legislature of 1901 enacted a general law concerning elections and the terms of city officials, which repeals all inconsistent provisions of the city charter and city ordinances. The city election for the present year having been held in conjunction with the State election in November last, it is not necessary to allude further to the alteration in the time and manner of holding the election. There are other far reaching changes brought about in this city by the act referred to.

The terms of office of all city officials now holding office (except justices of the peace) are, by the act, extended for the greater part of the year beyond the time for which such officers were elected or appointed, the words of the act being, that the term of every such officer "shall be and hereby is extended from the time when his term would otherwise expire until 12 o'clock noon of the first day of January next succeeding the date at which his term of office would otherwise expire." In this city, the term of elective officers now in office "would otherwise expire" on the first Monday in January, (that is, for this year, January 6) and the term of appointive officers now in office "would otherwise expire" on the first Monday in February. The term of the former are, therefore, extended one year lacking six days, and the terms of the latter are extended nearly eleven months. All these officers will, by force of the statute, continue in office until noon of the first day of January 1903, without further action by the Mayor or Common Council.

It will remain for the Common Council to consider whether the ordinances of the city shall be amended so as to conform to the statute. As it is possible that the next Legislature

AWAITED NEW YEAR IN PRAYERFUL MOOD

Watch Meetings Were Held in Several of the Local Churches.

TRINITY ENDEAVORERS.

THE METHODIST CHURCHES UNITED AT VINCENT CHAPEL.

Another Service Was Held at Grace Episcopal Church—With Prayer and Song the New Year Was Welcomed.

The watch-night service held at Trinity Reformed church Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society was largely attended by Endeavorers from the various societies, as well as the home society. The service was a deeply spiritual one in which all joined heartily. M. Seymour Purdy, of New Brunswick, was in charge of the service.

After a brief song service led by Joseph D. Moon, Mr. Purdy offered prayer and read the Scripture lesson, St. John xix: 13-22. Mr. Moon then sang a solo, accompanied by Miss Randolph on the piano.

Mr. Purdy took occasion to make some remarks of a helpful and interesting nature. He referred to the past year and selected a verse from the Scripture lesson "What I have written I have written," as the basis for his talk. These were the words of Pilate, in reply to a request from the Jews to change the wording of his statement: "Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews."

Mr. Purdy spoke of the many lost opportunities during the past year to work for Christ and of the influence lost. Then referring to the new year he offered some very helpful suggestions to the Endeavorers. He urged them to put forth every effort to serve Christ and to live the kind of a life He would like. He impressed upon all the necessity of accepting every opportunity to do good and to lift high the banner of the cross.

At the conclusion of Mr. Purdy's remarks there was a season of prayer, during which several supplications were offered. This continued while the New Year was ushered in by the ringing of the church bell by Harry Crawford. After an earnest prayer by F. H. Andrews, there was the singing of a hymn, the dismissal with the Mizpah benediction, followed with a hearty exchange of "A Happy New Year" by all present.

The Methodists of the city and borough, comprising the congregations of Grace, Monroe Avenue and the First M. E. churches, united in a service, Tuesday evening, at Vincent chapel. It began at 9:30 with a song service in charge of Rev. G. W. Gardner and was followed by a service lead by Rev. G. W. Smith. He spoke briefly on an appropriate subject.

After a fifteen minute social intermission a love feast was held which continued until 11:55. The old year was watched out with a consecration service at which Rev. G. W. Smith was in charge.

A watch service was held at Grace Episcopal church New Year's eve. The vested choir under the direction of Mrs. William A. Freeman, the organist, rendered some appropriate hymns and Rev. Erskine M. Rodman delivered some timely remarks. When the midnight hour arrived the congregation spent the few moments in mediation and prayer.

ATHLETIC EXHIBITION.

Given at the Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium New Year's Afternoon.

Under the direction of Physical Director Heywood an athletic entertainment was given at the Y. M. C. A., yesterday afternoon. The pupils gave an exhibition of the Roberts home bell exercise. Later they did some clever work on the apparatus, starting with the low bar. Illustrations of the method of high diving was the last feature of the gymnastic exercises.

The leaders, corps rendered valuable service. The members of this corps were Arthur Denton, Paul Whitall, Walter Cahoone, Charles Zimmer, and Herbert Brokaw. A basket ball game, between the Leaders and a picked team, was the concluding event. The score was 6 to 3 in favor of the picked team.

Master Chester Dunn, of North Branch, Somerset county, spent New Year's Day with his young friend, George Webster, of Duer street.

RECEPTION AT HOPE CHAPEL

ANNUAL AFFAIR HELD AT CHAPEL YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Entertainment Was by Professional Talent—Refreshments Served by Endeavorers.

The members and friends of Hope chapel were extended a reception, yesterday afternoon, similar to those held on New Year's day since the chapel's organization. It lasted from 4 until 7 and was very largely attended.

Entertainment was provided by Lester and Decker, professional artists, of New York. They occupied the attention of the gathering for nearly two hours with laughable monologues, songs and instrumental selections. They were encored many times.

At the close refreshments were served by a committee from the Christian Endeavor Society, composed of Matthew Sweeney, chairman, the Misses Laura Hangliter, Carrie Konzert, Marion Porter, Mabel Firstbrook, Ella Edmands, Mary Tripney, Emma Foster, Belle and Jessie Slorah and Fanny Cose.

The entire affair was in charge of a committee composed of G. Stuart Simons, Mrs. Robert Hangliter, Miss Randolph and John Doull Miller.

A RECEPTION TO THE PASTOR

WAS GIVEN IN CHAPEL OF FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Arranged by Ladies' Aid Society For Rev. Charles E. Herring Yesterday.

One of the pleasant affairs of yesterday afternoon was the reception given in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church to Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor, by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church. The reception was largely attended by members of the church and congregation and there was a cordial and happy exchange of greeting between pastor and people.

Mr. Herring was assisted in receiving by his sister, Mrs. Francis Hastings Flannery, of New York. In one of the class rooms there were very pretty decorations. Mrs. F. W. Williams and Mrs. Clarence E. Bond poured coffee and cocoa. Mrs. Edgar Williams was chairman of the affair, and assisting were Miss Julia Williams, Miss Clara VanFleet, Miss Mabel Conover, Miss Gertrude Hazeltine, Miss Josephine Morrison and Miss Linda Morrison.

A feature of the reception, which lasted from 4 to 7 o'clock, was a programme of instrumental selections on the piano and several mandolin solos by R. Wilson Derby.

ANNOUNCED AT TEA.

Local Society Heard of Engagement of Miss Efner Strong and Irving W. Clark.

A charming New Year event was the tea given, yesterday afternoon, by Mrs. William Seymour Tyler, of West Eighth street.

The real secret of the gathering was disclosed when, from a beautiful "heart," made of paper, were distributed slips of paper announcing the engagement of Miss Harriet Efner Strong and Irving Wayne Clark. Mr. Clark is a senior at Princeton University and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Clark, of Central avenue. Miss Strong is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Strong, of Central avenue.

Mrs. Tyler was assisted in receiving by Miss Strong, Miss Bertha Clark, Miss Helen Clark, Miss VanBoskerck and Miss May Evans. Mrs. Edward M. VanBuren and Miss May Evans were in the dining room and poured. There were nearly seventy-five young women present.

PROGRESSIVE GAMES.

The Misses Blimm Gave a New Year's Eve Party to Friends.

The Misses Blimm, of Somerset street, entertained a number of their friends New Year's eve. Progressive games were played.

The first prize for the women was won by Miss Sadie Brown. It was a Renaissance lace collar. Raymond Smith won the first men's prize, a Greek ornament, while the booby prizes were won by Mrs. Maurice McGrath, of New Brunswick, and Arthur Knoll, of Elizabeth. One was a match safe and the other a frame for a picture.

After the games refreshments were served. Then followed dancing until the small hours of the morning.

—This evening Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will have a Christmas tree and install officers.

MERRY WELCOME FOR SOCIETY'S NEW YEAR

In Fantastic Garb the Smart Set Greeted New Year at the Casino.

WAS A GREAT SUCCESS.

TWO ORCHESTRAS AND ELABORATE DECORATIONS AIDED EFFECT.

It Surpassed Any Previous Efforts—Fine Costumes—Some of the Best of Them—Others Who Were Present.

A show of dazzling brilliancy greeted the observer at the Casino at the moment the old year was ushered out and the new one born. A cosmopolitan crowd, representing a multitude of ages, had suddenly halted from a grand march and two orchestras, the one string and the other brass, played 'Auld Lang Syne." A bell tolled twelve strokes and as the last was sounded the figures 1901, in electric effect over the stage, suddenly changed and 1902, instead, shone brihgtly. "There Will be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" was played as the throng proclaimed the birth of the new year.

The affair was the masque ball, looked forward to with eager expectency by the society folk of this city and the immediate vicinity. It was one of the series of the Casino dances and the committee on arrangements had cleverly planned to make it the major attraction of the season. Society had turned out en masse and, in the strikingly original costumes, had contributed a scene which surely surpassed anything of a like nature given at the Casino for some years at least.

One of the unusual features was the profuse decorations, which of course were in keeping with Yuletide, Great streamers of greens were suspended from the centre of the ceiling and caught up about the four sides of the walls, which was also adorned with a multitude of masque faces. Pounds' combination orchestra was a happy arrangement and enhanced the delightfulness of the affair to no mean extent.

It was, indeed, amusing to see a typical circus clown waltzing about the floor with a spiritual looking nun and even more laughable was the appearance of wild eyed Chinaman with a meek, bashful quakeress. Some of the costumes which arrested the attention were: Colonial matron, Mrs. Lemuel W. Serrell; French maid, Miss Elsie Martin; squaw, Mrs. Clifford M. McGee; Spanish woman, Mrs. T. Day; Quakeress, Mrs. J. R. Blake; nun, Mrs. Frederick W. Yates; winter, Mrs. L. G. Timpson; trained nurse, Mrs. George P. Mellick; music, Miss Hammond; shepherd, Miss Ida Borsum; Colonial matron, Mrs. Lewis E. Waring; summer girl, Mrs. J. B. Drayton; queen of hearts, Miss Harriet Goddard; postal girl, Miss Long; Venetian girl, Miss Waring; stars and stripes, Mrs. R. H. Depew; Quakeress, Mrs. E. T. Barrows; Indian, Mrs. E. T. VanBuren; French maids, Miss Aynne McCready and Miss May Evans; English hussar, L. G. Timpson; Chinese mandarin, Elliot T. Barrows; sailor, Dr. Charles C. Davis; Chinaman, A. L. Henry Depew; Chinaman, Frederic W. Goddard; policeman, Henry Finch; monk, George P. Mellick; Chinaman, Dr. Thomas Davis; Uncle Sam, W. R. Cock; Zulu warrior, Raymond A. McGee; clown, Augustus R. Fisk; disguised as a student, Charles W. Fisk; clown, Marion S. Ackerman; Indian, Howard Huntington; Chinaman of the sixteenth century, L. W. Serrell.

Leading the grand march were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis G. Timpson, Thomas R. VanBoskerck with Mrs. Edward M. VanBuren were second and they were followed by Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Barrows. The bell used to toll the midnight hour was brought from the old mill at Feltville, now Glenside Park, which is the property of Marion S. Ackerman. The caterer for the affair was Steward Ivamy.

Among the others seen gliding about the floor were the Misses Whiton, Kellogg, Conklin, Hammond, Cock, Otterson, Johnson, Davis, Rushmore, Thayer, Stiger, Monson, Davis, Agnes Minford, Helen F. Bushnell, Ida C. Borsum, Rosabel Schroeder, A. Martinsen, Elsie Burke, Maud VanBoskerck, Florence L. Huntington, Adelaide Elsberg, Edith Clapp, Mary B. Barrows, Frederick W. Yates, Laurens H. VanBuren, George P. Mellick and William R. Cock, and on the latter were Lewis G. Timpson, Lewis E. Waring, Thomas R. VanBoskerck, H. Reeve Stockton and Rutherford M. Shepard.

NO MORE ROOM.

Woodhull & Martin's Efforts to Increase Size of Store Failed.

To meet the needs for an increasing business, Woodhull & Martin have for some time past been endeavoring to get more room in the Babcock building. Several plans have been discussed, but after an exhaustive study of the matter the firm was obliged to give up the idea of securing more room.

An attempt was made to secure the postoffice, but this failed. Since another effort was made to get the W. C. T. U. rooms and make an opening that would connect the carpet department with the main store. This plan also failed, as the postoffice officials object to having the light shut off from their department. The firm's plan included the removal of the household department to the first floor.

OPEN HOUSE.

Warren Engine Company Gave an Entertainment and Oyster Supper.

Warren Engine Company held "open house," New Year's eve. There was a good sized crowd present to enjoy the occasion. Two vocalists and a guitar and a mandolin player, calling themselves the Black Diamond Quartette, furnished most of the fun. Before midnight an oyster supper was served. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Charles Stahl, William Debele and J. Higgins.

Complimentary Remarks.

The visit of Company K to Trenton last week was the occasion for many complimentary remarks from officials of the National Guard as well as people in general. Besides having the largest number of men out the company made the best appearance and was told so by the battalion officers.

Missionary Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church will be held in the church parlor tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. There will be a meeting of the executive board at 2:30 o'clock at the same place. A full attendance of members is desired.

—Neuman Brothers offer special prices to purchasers of large lots of their celebrated White Label canned vegetables. The quality of the goods is unexcelled.

NEW COUNCIL BEGINS WORK

B. Frank Coriell Chosen As President and Appointed His Committees.

MAYOR'S MESSAGE READ

Big Batch of Petitions Was Received by the Council—Most of Them Relate to Taxes—Organization Was Perfectly Harmonious—Committees.

After an exchange of New Year greetings, Plainfield's Common Council for 1902 assembled last evening for the first time. At this time an organization was effected and a good start in the year's business begun. All of the members were present except Mr. Mellick. These included B. Frank Coriell, Frank DeW. Randolph, Edward E. Pray, Leslie M. Daniel, Jan vanHerwerden, Ralph I. Tolles, James F. Buckle, William L. Gloak, Robert L. Lee and Clarence L. Murphy.

The meeting was called to order by City Clerk James T. MacMurray. After the roll call he asked the members who they would have for president. Councilman Lee announced the name of Councilman Coriell and by a unanimous vote he was chosen for the position. Councilmen Pray and Murphy escorted the new president to the chair. Then followed the re-election of W. V. Mundy as janitor.

Mr. Lee moved that the rules of order for 1901 be adopted for 1902. He then gave notice that he would, at the next meeting, move that the rules of order be adopted as the by-laws of the Council for the coming year.

President Coriell at this time announced his committees for the year, and in doing so, said that so far as possible he had tried not to disturb the committees too much. He said that owing to the fact that Mr. vanHerwerden would be in Philadelphia a great deal this year, where he will be engaged in business, he had given the chairmanship of the finance committee to another member.

The committees, as announced are as follows:

Finance, George P. Mellick, Leslie M. Daniel, Robert L. Lee, Clarence L. Murphy, Ralph I. Tolles; streets and sewers, Ralph I. Tolles, Leslie M. Daniel, Robert L. Lee, Edward E. Pray; fire and buildings, Robert L. Lee, George P. Mellick, James F. Buckle, William L. Gloak, Jan vanHerwerden; police, James F. Buckle, William L. Gloak, Frank DeW. Randolph; lights, Jan vanHerwerden, Leslie M. Daniel, Frank DeW. Randolph; alms, Frank DeW. Randolph, Edward E. Pray, Ralph I. Tolles; licenses, William L. Gloak, James F. Buckle, Clarence L. Murphy; auditing, Clarence L. Murphy, Edward E. Pray, George P. Mellick.

Next in order was the reception of the annual message of Mayor O. L. Jenkins. This will be found in full in another part of the paper. After its reading copies of it were ordered printed for the members of the Council.

In the way of petitions the new members cannot complain. The first meeting brought to light a large batch. The one referring to municipal water works was referred to the committee now having the renewal of the water contract in charge. Among the petitions were a number complaining about being assessed for dogs which they do not own. J. A. Cullinane, of Prescott place, was one of these. J. A. Layton objected to a personal tax of $200 for 1898, also a poll and dog tax. He never owned a dog and as a soldier claimed exemption.

Nelson and Wm. N. Runyon, counsel for F. C. Langhorne, asked the Council to return $13.49, which had been paid twice as personal tax in 1897. The same counsel representing Mrs. Sprague, of Putnam avenue, claimed that more feet of property than was owned had been assessed, and a proper settlement was asked. J. A. Harkness asked to be relieved of a $300 personal tax, which he claimed he does not owe. P. Guinee was another complainant against a dog tax, claiming he does not own one. W. T. Banks asked to have $11.60 returned to him. This amount in tax he paid in error, he claimed. Harry C. Bush asked for exemption from a dog tax, claiming he never owned a dog.

E. D. Fluck asked the Council to return to him fifty feet of property in the West End which was sold under

One Minute Cough Cure is sure cure for coughs, croup and throat and lung troubles. An absolutely safe cough cure which acts immediately. The youngest child can take it with entire safety. COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants.

Don't wait to "put on the gloves" with another fellow, put them on yourself right away. All kinds and shapes as well as prices at J. R. Blair's, the men's furnishing store, Park avenue.

This is the season of the year when the student begins to think of returning to his studies. Of course he burns the midnight oil and what is more preferable to burn it in than one of those student lamps that J. W. Gavett sells. He has them in several sizes.

One's health is to be preserved at all cost. If you are so unfortunate as to be ill you surely want pure drugs. These you will find at L. W. Randolph's prescription pharmacy on West Front street. He also sells delicious soda water and Huyler's confections.

To properly start the new year one should have a pair of comfortable shoes. If the present street railway service continues much walking will be necessary. A happy suggestion is that you go to A. Willett & Son, "around the corner," and prepare for all emergencies.

"Everyone to their notion," said the old woman as someone kissed a cow. Not this kind of a notion, but all of the right kinds can be found at Putnam & DeGraw's dry goods store. They have a full line of seasonable goods and the firm knows how to treat its customers right.

Making a resolution and keeping it are two different things. It's quite hard to stick by a determination sometimes. There's an exception to the rule when it comes to dealing at Smalley Brothers', North avenue meat market. It's hard to "break away" when you once trade with these butchers.

Plainfielders may suffer some inconveniences at the hands of certain corporations, but when it comes to marketing they have no complaint. People in the Park say that it's very handy to be able to buy their vegetables and fruit at W. W. Dunn's grocery, corner Duer street and Lincoln place.

Have you seen W. W. Warnock's display of confectionery. It is one of the most complete in the city and embraces the celebrated "Bell" chocolate. They are packed in one and two pound fancy and unique boxes. He sold hundreds of them during the week before Christmas and has just received a fresh consignment.

John Powers, the Somerset street druggist, does not claim that his celebrated Digestive Tablets will relieve the suffering of the man who swallows tacks and cut glass. Nevertheless he warrants the remedy for all ills caused by food not being properly digested. Try it for yourself—not the glass, but the tablet.

Of course you like good groceries. Not the last season's dusty shelf variety but fresh, wholesome staples that will give entire satisfaction. Then why not give your orders to Callahan & Son, the Richmond street grocer. Their store is always well stocked with seasonable goods and then the prices. A comparison with those of other firms will be sufficient.

LITERARY.

Are England, Scotland and Ireland, destined, ultimately, to become a part of "The United States of America and Great Britain?" is the startling inquiry which Wililam T. Stead makes in the January Cosmopolitan. He has been one of the prophets of Great Britain, and has, at all times, been able to see in advance of his contemporaries—as events have proven. He has been studying the new conditions brought about by the industrial combinations and reaches the conclusion that England and the United States are destined to be more closely united and that as soon as the English people wake up to the absurdity and general uselessness, as has been shown in the Boer War, of a king and aristocracy, the trend will be immediate in the direction of a union with the people of the United States. However much one may differ from Mr. Stead, his speculations will be found vastly interesting. He is the first British subject who has had the courage to suggest such an outcome.

Don't Live Together.

Constipation and health never go together. DeWitt's Little Early Risers promote easy action of the bowels without distress. "I have been troubled with costiveness nine years," says J. O. Greene, Depauw, Ind. "I have tried many remedies but Little Early Risers give best results." L. W. Randolph.

THE COMING YEAR.

"Forgetting those things which are behind—press forward."

May the new year bring to thee
Days so bright and glad,
That the past shall banished be,
Ne'er to make thee sad.

With the thought—"what might have been,
Or "what's been amiss,"
Let the old year buried lie—
Daily better this.

Ages long the world has lived,
Years have come and gone;
But the mortal without faults
Has not yet been born.

Try to do some deed of love,
Say kind word or smile;
God will bless thee from above,
Watching all the while.

Man will reckon thee as friend,
Brother or kind neighbor;
Then heart and hand to others lend,
Laugh and sing and labor.

may, during the early months of the present year, make some further changes in the law, I suggest that the introduction of any ordinance respecting the matter referred to would better be deferred until the Legislature shall have adjourned.

Election for Mayor.

The act as it now reads, would continue my own term of office to the first day of January, 1904, and since I desire to enable the voters of this city to decide for themselves whom they will select to be their mayor from the expiration of the term for which they elected me, I respectfully suggest that your Honorable Body endeaveor to have the act amended so as to make it lawful for the city to hold an election for mayor in November next instead of one year later as provided by the present law.

Last Year's Work.

Full reports of the several committees of last year's Common Council and the several administrative officers of the city brought down to the close of the year 1901, and now on file, render it unnecessary at this time to call your attention to any further public matters. That the record of the year 1901 has justified the expectations expressed in my inaugural message, that the high character and prestige so long established for the administration of the public affairs of this city would be maintained, is indeed most manifest. The way is now clear, during the next twelve months, to surpass that record and bring all departments of public work to a higher plan than ever before. Your obedient servant,

Olin L. Jenkins, Mayor.

BEYOND DOUBT.

These Facts Must Convince Every Plainfield Reader.

That which follows is the experience of a resident of Plainfield. Incredulity cannot exist about the statement because it can easily be investigated.

Mrs. I. L. Holmes, of 442 West Second street, says: "I used several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills for backache and derived more benefit from them than anything else. Before I tried this remedy I was bothered almost constantly with a severe pain across the small of my back, so bad at times that I thought I must give up. If I sat down and got up or was lying down and attempted to rise quickly or retained one position for any length of time, sharp, acute pain always followed. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for such troubles and went to L. W. Randolph's drug store and got a box. They helped me from the first and I improved right along under the treatment."

OFFICERS FOR BARBERS.

Local Journeymen Barbers Have Chosen Officers for Local Union.

At a recent meeting of Local Journeyman Barbers' Union, No. 315, the following officers were elected and installed: President, H. G. Wentrick; vice-president, J. C. Powers; recorder, W. A. Stills; financial secretary, William B. Emmons; treasurer, Albert Braun; guide, Harry Dorsey; guardian, Walter R. Welsh; trustees, W. B. Emmons, chairman, George Griffin and Albert Braun.

A committee of three was also appointed to make arrangements for an oyster supper to be given the journeymen barbers on January 9.

Big Attendance.

Despite the inclement weather of last Sunday there were 162 officers, teachers and pupils in attendance at the session of the First Baptist church Sunday-school.

UNDER FUSION RULE.

Tammany Steps Down and Out In Greater New York.

DEVERY IS PROMPTLY DISMISSED.

Police Deputy Protests at Commissioner Partridge's Action and Breaks Down—Comptroller Grout Begins Well.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—In the presence of friends who packed the room to its utmost capacity Mayor Seth Low took his seat as the chief magistrate of Greater New York in the city hall at high noon yesterday.

The ceremony of the transition from a Tammany to a reform administration occupied about fifteen minutes. Brief and simple as it was, it was none the less very impressive.

Mayor Van Wyck turned over the office to Mayor Elect Low in a brief speech. After responding in a few well chosen words Mayor Low remained standing in front of his desk while the men he has appointed to office and many other citizens crowded up to shake him by the hand and wish him well. Besides the crowd that filled the room, several persons waited outside somewhat impatiently for an opportunity to greet the new mayor.

So great was the crowd that Mayor Low had to defer swearing in the men appointed to office by him until later in the afternoon. The mayor was in the best of good spirits and seemed greatly pleased at the reception he was receiving. Before he left the city hall to return to his home Mayor Low received many telegrams of congratulation.

Inside and out the city hall presented a holiday appearance. Above the dome the nation's flag was waving, and the official flags of the municipality hung in festoons on each side. A wealth of beautiful floral offerings for ingoing and outgoing officials were displayed in the building.

William S. Devery, protesting to the end, was promptly removed from his position as deputy police commissioner. It was one of the first official acts of John N. Partridge, the new head of the police department.

During a protest which Mr. Devery made against his removal his voice was broken, and his entire frame trembled violently. He was all but overcome by his emotions, and tears came to his eyes and rolled down his cheeks.

After being deprived of his position he at once offered his services to Colonel Partridge for any police work that the new commissioner might see fit to assign him.

As he took his departure from the office he shook hands with all the attendants and in a voice husky with emotion bade them goodby. Tears fell from his eyes as he passed out the door.

After Devery had left Commissioner Partridge held a routine session for business with Chief Clerk Kipp. He decided to remove the two women stenographers employed in the police department, one in Manhattan and one in Brooklyn. He then ordered the transfer from the central office squad of six men who have been on Commissioner Murphy's staff.

Comptroller Grout has already abolished the places of three clerks in his office, as follows: James Eagan, warrant clerk, salary $1,000; James Helion, disbursing clerk, $1,150; John T. Birmingham, disbursing clerk, $2,000.

Mr. Grout said that he had abolished these places in order to bring the cost of the office within the appropriation. The amount thus saved is added to nearly $16,000 saved by reductions in salaries.

Serious Coasting Accident.

LENOX, Mass., Jan. 2.—D. Raymond Noyes, a freshman at Yale, was severely hurt while tobogganing coasting here. While riding at great rapidity he was thrown forty-eight feet. He was picked up unconscious and remained in that condition three hours. The physicians say there is no concussion of the brain, but they fear other complications. Noyes' home is in St. Paul, Minn.

MASTER'S SALE.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY

Between the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, complainant, and John A. Doty and Minnie his wife, and William G. Chittick, Junior, defendants.

Fieri Facias, for sale of mortgaged premises, returnable February term, nineteen hundred and two.

MICHIGAN MEN WON.

Californians Badly Beaten at Football.

NEW YEAR'S GAME AT PASADENA.

Seven Thousand People Witness the Game, at Which Stanford University Players Lost by a Score of 49 to 0.

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 2.—By the decisive score of 49 to 0 the Michigan university football team yesterday defeated Stanford university. The score is quite in proportion to the general superiority of the eastern men at the game of football. It does not, however, tell the story of Stanford's desperate but futile efforts against defeat. Michigan's superior knowledge of the game showed in every play.

At kicking, general team work, running, tackling and bucking the line the Michigan men excelled. Perhaps the strongest feature of their playing was the phenomenal punting by Sweeney. Michigan's right end. In every exchange of punts Sweeney lost ground, which she could not regain. In the first half Stanford showed well for the first twenty minutes, forcing Michigan's line for small gains and holding her opponents when they went against her line.

The second half was an exhibition of fast football. Michigan hit Stanford's line in the middle, and then went around the ends. They advanced, then, fifteen and twenty yards on a play, on fake passes, fake kicks and every other known football device. In fact, so fast and fierce was their play that Stanford was bewildered. Once or twice again the Californians held the conquerers for downs, but the arrested progress of the Ann Arbor men was extremely brief. Again and again Snow, for Michigan, went over the line for touchdowns and Shorts kicked goal until forty-nine points had been scored. The brightest star in Michigan's ranks was Snow at full back, though he scarcely eclipsed Sweeney and Hernstein. Traegor for Stanford played a brilliant game, his tackling being one of the features.

The day was perfect, though possibly a trifle warm for football. The field upon which the teams met was as smooth as a floor, but very dusty. The crowd numbered about 7,000.

Choate Leaves Law Firm.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—After a continuous service of nearly half a century in the law firm of Evarts, Choate & Beaman, Joseph H. Choate has withdrawn and temporarily at least will discontinue the practice of law. Mr. Choate communicated his intention to his associates some time ago, giving as his reason that his duties of state as embassador from the United States to England has prevented his active participation in the affairs of the partnership for the last two years and that these duties would consume so much of his time for several years to come that it would be impossible for him to pursue his law practice. Another reason recited was that the recent deaths of William M. Evarts, Charles C. Beaman and Prescott Hall Butler would necessitate a change in the firm name.

Notable Golden Wedding.

BATH, N. Y., Jan. 2.—The largest social function held here in years was the reception last night at the home of George H. Parker in honor of the golden wedding anniversary of his parents, Professor and Mrs. Zenas L. Parker. Six hundred and fifty invitations had been issued. Previous to the reception the youngest grandson of Professor Parker was christened at the Presbyterian church in the presence of the deacons, elders and a few invited guests. Professor Parker is the principal of the public schools in Corning and Bath. He served three years as school commissioner and six years as county treasurer. He is eighty-three years old.

Large Live Stock Shipments.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 2.—A remarkable increase in live stock shipments is shown in the annual report of the cattle inspector of this port, just issued. In 1900 the grand total of cattle, sheep and horses shipped from Portland to the United Kingdom was 32,636, while the total for the season of 1901 is 100,889. The largest single item of increase was American sheep, the 1901 shipments being 44,964 as against 2,859 in 1900. A big increase in Canadian cattle and sheep also is recorded, cattle shipments being 21,433 against 7,898 in 1900 and sheep shipments 15,064 against 5,897 in 1900.

Ice Racing Season Opened.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Jan. 2.—The ice yacht racing season opened at Orange lake yesterday with a contest for the challenge cup of 1888. The ice was in fine condition, and the wind blew fair from the northwest. The race was sailed over the regular ten mile course, and only two boats were ready to enter. They were Robert Kernahan's Troubler and H. C. Higginson's Cold Wave. The Troubler won in thirty minutes.

Danger From Flood Passed.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 2.—The Tennessee river flood is receding. The highest stage reached was 40.8 feet. The river is falling at all points above Chattanooga and began to fall here about midnight. But little damage has been done here by the flood.

Robbed While at Dinner.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Jan. 2.—While the family of Senator J. Henry Cochran were at dinner last evening burglars entered the house and stole diamonds and jewelry valued at $6,000. The police are at work upon a clew.

A LARGE RECEPTION.

Over 8,000 Persons Shake the President's Hand.

NO ONE IS DENIED ENTRANCE.

The Throng at the White House Was Greater Than For Many Years — Diplomats Keep Open House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—President Roosevelt's first public reception was attended, much more largely than any New Year reception in a number of years. In all 8,100 persons filed through the White House and shook hands with the president. Mr. Roosevelt on being apprised that the crowd in line outside the White House was unusually large gave orders that the gates should not be closed until the last person desiring to do so had an opportunity to pay his respects. The reception began promptly at 11 o'clock, and it was 2:30 o'clock before the last person in line had been presented to the president and a quarter of an hour later before the reception came to an end. The weather was delightful, being clear and crisp, so that no hardship was suffered by the throng that waited for hours before admission to the White House. The reception was in every way successful, the attendance not only being large, but the decorations really beautiful, the arrangements perfect and the president in excellent spirits.

To each person he extended a cordial happy new year, and Mrs. Roosevelt was equally pleasing to each of those who filed past the line in the blue parlor, where the receiving party stood. Miss Alice Roosevelt was conspicuous among those assisting at the reception. A party of her young girl friends, by invitation, also participated in the function.

The president rounded out a very busy day by visiting the new National theater at night to witness Francis Wilson in "The Toreador." It was strictly a family party, the president being accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt and the children. The capacious theater was crowded to the walls.

Although there was no general reception by the members of the diplomatic corps, some of them kept open house and entertained a large number of callers. Particularly was this the case with the legations from the orient, the Chinese, Japanese and the Korean ministers being "at home" to those who came.

The Chinese New Year does not occur until about a month from now, but Mr. Wu, following the practice of the country in which he is stationed, participated in the festivities of New Year's day and, assisted by the members of his suit, received many callers at the handsome home of the legation on Q street. Minister Wu always gives his friends a cup of tea, and many of them enjoyed his hospitality yesterday.

Minister Takahira of Japan and his wife celebrated New Year's day as they would at home, where the European calendar is used and where the New Year is the greatest event of the season. The members of the legation joined in the festivities.

At the Korean legation New Year's day was observed much the same as in this country. A dinner was given in the evening and was attended only by gentlemen, there being no women among the household.

New Code For District of Columbia.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—A new code of laws for the District of Columbia went into effect yesterday. The code is not a complete body of laws for the government of the District, the old Maryland statutes, the common law and the statutes of the United States applicable to the District and acts of congress relating to the District remaining in force, except where inconsistent with the new body of laws. The code was passed at the last session of congress. The feature of most popular interest is a section prohibiting the granting of divorces, except for infidelity, divorces no longer being procurable for desertion, drunkenness, cruelty and other offenses against the marital relation for which a divorce formerly might be secured.

Electric Merger Denied.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—One of the officials of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company says the published report that George Westinghouse and J. P. Morgan are arranging a plan by which the Westinghouse company and the General Electric company are to be merged with a capitalization of $50,000,000 has no foundation, so far as he is aware.

THE NEW YEAR.

The opening of the second year of the Twentieth Century finds Plainfield one of the best governed cities of the east. The annual reports of the various city officials, which were presented to the retiring Common Council of 1901, show that the city affairs are, at present, in a highly satisfactory condition. It is a known fact that the men who are in charge of the administration of municipal affairs are of unquestioned integrity and that they are conducting according to their ideas of the best interests of the common wealth. While they are all liable to make mistakes, these mistakes will be in judgment.

During the last twelve-month, a number of important things have happened in Plainfield. The coming year promises to be even more eventful for Plainfield. As far as the city, itself is concerned, the present policy of administration will undoubtedly be continued. The year will probably see the start of the long talked of High School which is needed to adequately complete the local school system. It is an assured fact that Muhlenberg Hospital is to have new and up-to-date quarters.

Changes and enlargements in the trolley system will undoubtedly attract considerable attention during the year. The new management is now in complete control of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company and promises improvements. There is promise of a line to South Plainfield before summer. All sorts of rumors concerning projected lines about this part of the State are rife and there is no telling what may develop. Certain it is that the year of 1902 is going to see a general extension of the rapid transit through the suburban and rural districts of central and northern New Jersey.

A number of changes have been inaugurated by the New Jersey Central with the beginning of the new year. Some are satisfactory to the public and others are not. There has been much complaint about that company's service of late but the railroad officials promise an improvement in the near future. It will be royally welcomed. There have been important changes in railway circles of late and the new year may see more which will directly concern the New Jersey Central.

Summed up, the past year has been a prosperous and generally satisfactory one for Plainfield. There is prospect that the coming one will be even more eventful while, at present, there is nothing in sight to check the continued prosperity.

The holiday trade is over and the local merchants are beginning to take account of stock. It is not the season, however, to stop advertising. There are many careful buyers who are looking for bargains after the holidays and the merchant who calls attention to those he has to offer is going to get the trade.

The full text of Mayor O. L. Jenkins' message to the new Common Council, which was read at last evening's session, appears in today's Daily Press. It reviews the local situation briefly but comprehensively and will be read with interest by all who are interested in municipal affairs.

New Year's Day is always an important one at the Young Men's Christian Association and the young men of the city find numerous attractions there during the day. This year was no exception and hundreds of men and boys visited the association building during the day.

In devious ways did the people of Plainfield see the old year out and the new year in. Of chief importance were the watch night services in the three of the local churches and the bal masque at the Casino where the society folk greeted 1902 in strange and wonderful guise.

The holiday in Plainfield was a pleasant one despite the fact that the mercury was quite low. It was too bad, however, that the cold wave came too late to make good skating for the holiday.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Senator Charles A. Reed's gunning expedition in the Jersey political preserves was even more successful than his hunting trip in the south. His blunderbuss brought down more game at one discharge than did his double-barrelled shotgun.—Newark News.

MET HIS FRIENDS.

Annual Reception of Rev. Dr. Richards at His Home Yesterday.

A delightful New Year's Day reception was that of yesterday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock given by Rev. Dr. and Mrs. William R. Richards, of East Front street, for the members of the Crescent Avenue church and congregation. This is an annual event.

Dr. and Mrs. Richards were assisted in receiving by Mrs. H. A. Schuyler, Miss Mellick, Mrs. D. N. VanVliet, Mrs. William A. Garrigues, Mrs. George S. Underhill and Mrs. J. H. Manning. Mrs. Joseph O. McKelvey and Mrs. William H. Murray presided in the dining room and poured, while those asssting were the Misses Lovell, Richards, Kirby, Goddard, Rockwell, Patten and Burke.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Demick, Somerville, Ind. "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." You don't live by what you eat, but by what you digest and assimilate. If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food. You don't have to diet. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

Children Especially Liable.

Burns, bruises and cuts are extremely painful and if neglected often result in blood poisoning. Children are especially liable to such mishaps because not so careful. As a remedy DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is unequalled. Draws out the fire, stops the pain, soon heals the wound. Beware of counterfeits. Sure cure for piles. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured my baby of eczema after two physicians gave her up," writes James Mock, N. Webster, Ind. "The sores were so bad she soiled two to five dresses a day." L. W. Randolph.

the Martin Act in error in 1898. H. J. Martin asked for exemption from personal tax assessed in 1896, claiming that while doing business at 152 Park avenue, he was only acting as an agent. Again Nelson and Wm. N. Runyon, acting as counsel for John Christian, of Woodland avenue, asked that $25 paid in 1899 as tax and again paid last month, be returned to him.

A letter to A. J. Gavett, street commissioner, from Geo. Hoff, was read. This complained that the Gleason-Kiely Contracting Company had failed to pay him $84.20 which he claimed was owing him. He asked that the Council withhold the company's pay until this bill was settled. All of these petitions were referred to the proper committees.

The bonds of Constable Amos Moffett and Peter V. Weaver were received and referred to the corporation counsel for examination as to form. The communication from E. L. Finch and others asking for another location for the new hospital was referred back to the committee on streets. J. B. Coward, in a letter, informed the Council that if it intended to continue to occupy his offices, he would next spring thoroughly repair the same and put them in first class condition. This was referred to the finance committee.

Mr. Daniel offered a resolution appointing The Daily Press and News as the official papers of the city. Another resolution by the same member provided for the drawing of $2,000 for the street work until such a time as the regular appropriations are made.

Mr. vanHerwerden called up the ordinance providing for the exemption of the books of the collector of taxes, but as Mr. Buckle believed that the ordinance should also cover the city treasurer and that the examination should be made every month or at least every six months instead of every three years, the ordinance was referred to the finance committee for further consideration.

Mr. Tolles moved that when Council adjourn it be to meet Monday evening, January 13, and after Mr. Lee called the clerk's attention to the absence of an 1902 calendar, and President Coriell instructed Mr. Wean to procure one for the Council rooms, the meeting adjourned.

WEDDED ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

MARRIAGE OF MISS ELLA TRIMMER AND WILLIAM WYMAN.

Took Place at the Home of the Bride's Parents Last Evening.

The wedding of Miss Ella Taylor Trimmer and William Wyman, two popular young people of this city, took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Trimmer, the bride's parents, of West Front street, last evening. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck officiated and the ceremony was performed in the presence of sixty relatives and friends.

The parlor, where the nuptial event took place, was tastefully adorned with palms and potted plants. The young couple stood beneath a handsomely trimmed arch. Miss Minnie Trimmer, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. Henry Wyman, the groom's brother, acted as best man.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served and Mr. and Mrs. Wyman received the hearty congratulations of their friends. They left on the 9:40 o'clock train for New York. After a honeymoon of two weeks duration at Monticello, N. Y., they will take up their residence temporarily at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride was gowned in white Swiss trimmed with lace and carried white carnations and the maid of honor wore white mulle and carried pink carnations.

Guests were present from New York, Elizabeth, Somerville, Readington and North Branch. The gifts to the bride were quite numerous and some were very elaborate.

A FUEL FAMINE.

South Carolina Factories Short of Coal—Complaints General.

ROANOKE, Va., Jan. 2.—A representative of South Carolina industrial plants is in Roanoke arranging for coal shipments to South Carolina. He states that the lack of fuel in and around Columbia has brought industries to a serious condition. Owing to floods it has been impossible to utilize water to generate power, and there being little coal available it was believed there was danger of a suspension on the part of some of the immense mills in South Carolina. He was endeavoring to get immediate shipments.

The fuel famine seems to be general, as there are complaints in all directions. Nearly all of the coal bearing railroads have been seriously hampered of late by high water and destructive floods. Besides the Christmas holidays, th consequent inability to get miners has cut off the supply at the fields. It is said the Norfolk and Western has 2,000 cars waiting to be loaded. It is said that some of the railroads having no coalfields to draw upon for fuel are reduced to the point of using wood.

SIXTY MILLIONS REDEEMED.

Northern Pacific Preferred Stock Promptly Presented.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The office of the Northern Pacific Railway company was kept open yesterday for the receipt and redemption of the preferred stock of that company. Upward of $60,000,000 of the entire $75,000,000 of that issue of stock was received, paid for and canceled.

Under the terms of the company's notice all outstanding shares of the whole issue of preferred stock became actually retired at midnight and ceased to exist as stock, and all holders of certificates for preferred stock have been notified that on presentation of the same at the company's office, 49 Wall street, they will receive payment in cash to the par amount of each certificate. The stock redeemed abroad is not included in the $65,000,000 canceled at the New York office, and, considering the day was a holiday, with banks and banking offices closed, it is thought the balance of the funds provided for this payment will not long remain unclaimed in the company's vaults.

INSURGENTS NEAR MANILA.

Lieutenant Rhodes Attacks and Burns Barracks.

MANILA, Jan. 2.—Lieutenant Charles D. Rhodes of the Sixth cavalry, accompanied by two orderlies, when within six miles of Manila yesterday came across twenty armed insurgents in a cuartel or barracks.

The insurgents shouted, "Americanos," and Lieutenant Rhodes feigned a retreat, but in reality he took the cuartel in flank and drove out the insurgents, capturing two rifles, three revolvers and some ammunition. Rhodes then burned the barracks and proceeded to Manila.

General Wheaton's report from the island of Samar indicates that little has been accomplished there. The attitude of the natives is more unfriendly than ever before.

General Chaffee probably will visit the island in order to personally investigate the state of affairs prevailing there.

On the other hand, in Batangas province the organized campaign against the insurgents is progressing favorably, and speedy results are expected.

Virginia Officials Inaugurated.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 2.—Before the constitutional convention and a committee of the general assembly in the hall of the house of delegates yesterday at noon Governor Andrew J. Montague, Lieutenant Governor Willard and Attorney General Anderson were inducted into office, the oaths being administered by President Keith of the supreme court. The address of the governor occupied only twenty minutes in its delivery. It was mainly devoted to a comparison of the work of the present constitutional convention with that of 1850, showing the magnitude of the task before the former, for which he pleaded patience and due consideration on the part of the public. The governor took an optimistic view of conditions in Virginia.

Artillery Lieutenant a Suicide.

ILWACO, Wash., Jan. 2.—Lieutenant James F. Beven, Eighth artillery, was found dead in bed at Fort Canby yesterday. His brains were blown out, and by his side was found a revolver. It is apparently a case of suicide, though no reason is known why he should take his life. He had risen from the ranks and was a very popular officer. Beven was forty years of age and had served in the Philippines.

A Deadly Quarrel.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 2.—Three people were killed and two wounded at Robbins, N. C., in a fight which occurred during a party given at the residence of Jesse Griffin. The participants in the fight were white people and well known in this part of the country. The dead are George Dunbar, Harry Dunbar and Fletcher Bennett. Mrs. George Dunbar and Arthur Dunbar were wounded.

Smallpox in the Philippines.

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 2.—The steamer Kaga Maru, from Hongkong, reports that owing to an outbreak of smallpox in some of the Philippine Islands the civil commission has prepared an act for the compulsory vaccination of all persons in the islands.

Boer Losses For a Year.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Official returns show that the Boer losses by killed, wounded and surrendered during 1901 totaled 14,887 men.

NEGRO DAY AT THE FAIR.

Colored People Dedicate Their Building at Charleston.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Jan. 2.—The buildings and grounds of the exposition, with the exception of the race track, were practically turned over to the colored people yesterday. The attendance was very large and the conduct of the crowd excellent. The negro building was turned over to the exposition directors by Dr. W. D. Crum of Charleston, one of the most accomplished colored physicians in the south, with an address appropriate to the occasion. The most notable feature of the celebration was the address of the orator of the day, President T. E. Miller of the State Colored college at Orangeburg. "Learn to labor and to wait" was the keynote of the address, which was opened by a glowing tribute to Abraham Lincoln and Fred Douglass. Among other things he said:

"The white man of the south is the white man of the north and east; the white man of the south is the white man wherever the American eagle spreads its wings.

"We have friends across the Mason and Dixon line. They have spent their treasures to assist in elevating us, but we have them by the millions all around us on this side of the line.

"Let me say here that there is no such thing as social equality anywhere in the world and that no sane white man or negro should pay any attention to the clatter about social equality, for it is all bosh to talk about it. No sensible negro aims at it or expects it."

FATAL RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

B. and O. Train Jumped Track, Killing Two and Injuring Seventeen.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 2.—As a result of a through passenger train on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad jumping the track two men are dead and seventeen injured, five of whom are considered seriously hurt. The dead are the engineer, John Collins, and the fireman, McCune, both of Connellsville, Pa. The injured were all taken to Meyersdale for treatment as quickly as the relief train from Cumberland could get them there.

The train which was ditched was the through passenger which left here at 8:40 a. m. yesterday bound for New York. It was a full vestibuled train composed of engine, baggage car, postal car, two coaches, sleeper and Pullman chair car. In going down the steep grade one and a half miles west of Glencoe the engine, from cause as yet unexplained, jumped the track at the curve, and the entire train piled on top of it. Probably the only thing that prevented a wholesale death list was the fact that the heavy vestibuled cars did not break up in going over the embankment.

The work to rescue the injured had to be done quickly because the gas tanks in the cars were exploded and set fire to the wreckage. The flames spread rapidly, and in a short time the entire train was burned. The engine was completely demolished, and the two dead men when taken from the debris were horribly mangled.

A Raise For Pennsylvania Trainmen

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2. — The Press says that an increase of from 4 to 12 per cent in the wages of about 45,000 trainmen will be made soon by the Pennsylvania Railroad company. It was, it is said, the intention of the company to make the announcement of the increase Jan. 1, but it was not done because the system of adjustment had not been perfected. However, the new scale of wages will take effect from Jan. 1. It will apply to all the trainmen on all the lines owned or operated by the company. The clerical force is not included in the plan. For months the officials of the company have been working on a plan, as they term it, for an "adjustment of wages."

Fatal Railway Collision.

KEITHVILLE, La., Jan. 2.—One life was lost, two persons were seriously injured, part of a car of valuable race horses en route from the winter meeting at New Orleans were destroyed in a disastrous collision between a Texas Pacific fast freight and a Houston, East and West Texas freight on a siding here. Twelve cars of the Houston, East and West Texas train caught fire and burned to the trucks. W. J. Daniels of Houston, fireman on the Houston, East and West Texas train, was caught under the wreck and either crushed or burned to death.

Kaiser Honors Miss Roosevelt.

BERLIN, Jan. 2.—Emperor William at the New Year's reception requested United States Embassador White to ask President Roosevelt to allow his daughter, Miss Alice, to christen the kaiser's new yacht, now building in the United States. The yacht is to be completed in time for next year's racing season. Special specifications made by the emperor are being carried out in the building of the vessel.

It was not until about noon that Pretonius finally awoke. He felt greatly fatigued, as usual. The evening before he had been with Nero at a feast, which had continued late into the night. For some time past his health had not been good. He said of himself that he felt like a log of wood in the mornings, and barely had sufficient strength to collect his thoughts.—Quo Vadis—opening paragraph.

Had Ripans Tabules been invented then one would have done Pretonius good had he swallowed it at the moment he awoke. Had he taken one at the moment of retiring his condition when he awoke would not have been so lamentable. R·I·P·A·N·S banish pain; prolong life; one gives relief.

Dear Sirs—Two years ago I had very bad corns and callouses on my feet, I went to a chiropodist and paid him $5.75 for taking them off. In less than a month they were back again. I then tried your CORN CURE and used only three bottles, costing 45c, and am happy to say it has taken them off completely. They have not troubled me now for over a year. I consider your HEPBURN'S CORN CURE the best I have ever used.—Yours truly, R. O. RUNYON,

OPERA AND THEATER WRAPS

Coats of All Over Lace the Novel Thing.

A great many women cling to the circular opera wraps, but the coat is smarter for theaters and restaurants. These coats are made of the simplest or the most elaborate materials, just as one's purse or taste dictates. Black peau de soie or broadcloth makes up well with revers and facings of ermine. On the other hand, a recent importation has an accordion plaited mousseline de soie lined with the palest of mauve satin and trimmed with a yoke of tinted lace encircled with mink. The sleeves were roomy and were lined with many rows of frillings.

Coats of all over heavy guipure lace are among the season's novelties. When of black lace, they are trimmed with chinchilla or ermine, and when of the ecru shades they are outlined with bands of mink or sable.

Skunk, with its glossy brown fur and full bushy effect, is excellent when used in narrow bands on pale colors, and it looks even better when used to outline boleros and tunic draperies and to border the open sleeves, which are supplemented by undersleeves of light color or fanciful description.

Here is a very dainty boa. It is made of pale mauve chiffon trimmed with a flower applique of black chiffon. The boa proper is composed of deeply tinted ruffings edged with the black applique. The long ends are shirred a dozen rows and to these shirrings are added three pointed ruffles edged with the applique. The hat which is worn with this is of eminence purple velvet with a soft fold of chiffon over pale mauve taffeta.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

SPOTTED GOWNS.

Made of Net or Chiffon They Are Most Stylish.

Very handsome evening gowns are made of wide and narrow insertions of black chantilly. These are joined together by means of black velvet ribbons. Black velvet ribbons are much used for silk and net skirts. The widths increase as they reach the bottom. Plaitings of black velvet baby ribbon are used with good effect on berthas and flounces. This same narrow velvet is also very chic when it outlines boleros and collars of lace.

Dotted effects are all the style for evening gowns. The dots are either the same color as the material or else they contrast. In the latter case the lining is almost invariably the color of the dot. For instance, a net with a pale corn colored dot will be made over a soft colored silk.

Black spotted chiffon is the material of the gown illustrated. The dot is pale pink, and the gown is made over pale pink silk. The waist is draped softly above a wide belt of crushed panne. The narrow shoulder straps are supplemented by a slight draping of chiffon. The skirt is made with a wide, plain yoke. A large pale pink poppy is fastened to the left of the decolletage. It has long streamers of shaded pink velvet.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

My Strangest Case

BY GUY BOOTHBY.

Author of "DR. NIKOLA," "THE BEAUTIFUL WHITE DEVIL," "PHAROS, THE EGYPTIAN," Etc.

[Copyrighted, 1901, by Ward, Lock & Co.]

"What have you found, little man?" inquired Kitwater, as he approached.

Mr. Codd, however, said nothing in reply, but beat with his bar upon the stone beneath him. There could be little or no doubt about the hollow sound that rewarded his endeavors.

"We've got it," cried Kitwater. "Bring the pickax, Hayle, and we'll soon see what is underneath this precious stone. We may be at the heart of the mystery for all we know."

In less time than it takes to tell, Hayle had complied with the other's request, and was hard at work picking out the earth which held the enormous flagstone in its place. A state of mad excitement had taken hold of the men, and the veins stood out like whipcord upon Hayle's forehead. It was difficult to say how many feet separated them from the treasure that was to make them lords of all the earth. At last the stone showed signs of moving, and it was possible for Kitwater to insert his bar beneath one corner. He did so, pried it up, and leaned upon it with all his weight. It showed no sign of moving, however. The seal of Time was set upon it, and it was not to be lightly disturbed.

"Push your bar in here alongside of mine, Coddy," said Kitwater at last. "I fancy we shall get it then."

The little man did as he was directed, Kitwater and Hayle seconded his efforts on the other side, and then, under the strain of their united exertions, the stone began to move slowly from its place. Little by little they raised it, putting all the strength they possessed into the operation, until at last, with one great effort they hurled it backwards, and it fell with a crash upon the pavement behind them, revealing a dark, narrow hole, the bottom of which it was impossible to see.

"Now, then, Gideon, my worthy friend, what have you got to say about the business?" asked Kitwater, as he wiped the perspiration from his brow. "You pretended to doubt my story. Was there anything in the old Frenchman's yarn after all? Were we wasting our time upon a fool's errand when we set off to explore Sengkor-Wat?"

Hayle looked at him somewhat sheepishly.

"No, no," he said, "I am willing to admit that so far you have won the trick. Let me down easily if you can. I can neither pass nor follow suit. I am right out of my reckoning. Now what do you propose to do?"

"Get one of those torches we brought with us, and find out what there is in that hole," Kitwater answered.

They waited while the latter went back to the camp, and when he reappeared, and had lighted the torch, they prepared to follow him down the steps into the mysterious depths below. The former, they soon discovered, were as solidly built as the rest of the palace, and were about 30 in number. They were, moreover, wet and slimy, and so narrow that it was only possible for one man to descend them at once. When they reached the bottom they found themselves standing in a narrow passage, the walls of which were composed of solid stone, in many places finely carved. The air was close, and from the fact that now and again bats dashed past them into the deeper darkness, they argued that there must be some way of communicating with the open air at the further end.

"This is just what the Frenchman told me," said Kitwater, and his voice echoed away along the passage like distant thunder. "He said we should find a narrow corridor at the foot of the steps, and then the treasure chamber at the further end. So far it looks all right. Let us move on, my friends."

There was no need for him to issue such an invitation. They were more than eager to follow him.

Leaving the first room, or antechamber, as it might more properly be called, they continued their way along the narrow passage which led from it. The air was growing perceptibly closer every moment, while the light of the torch reflected the walls on either side. Hayle wondered for a moment as he followed his leader what would happen to them if the Chinese, of whom the old Frenchman had spoken to Kitwater, should discover their presence in the ruins, and should replace the stone upon the hole. In that case the treasure would prove of small value to them, for they would be buried alive. He did not allow his mind, however, to dwell very long upon this subject, for Kitwater, who was pushing on ahead with the torch, had left the passage and was standing in a large and apparently well vaulted chamber. Handsomely carved pillars supported the roof, the floor was well paved, while on either side there were receptacles, not unlike the niches in the Roman catacombs, though for what purpose they were intended was not at first glance so easy to determine. With hearts that beat tumultuously in their breasts, they hastened to one of them to see what it contained. The niche in question was filled with strange looking vessels, some like bowls, and others not unlike crucibles. The men almost clambered over each other in their excitement to see what they contained. It was as if their whole existence depended upon it; they could scarcely breathe for excitement. Every moment's delay was unspeakable agony. At last, however, the coverings were withdrawn and the contents of the receptacles stood revealed. Two were filled with uncut gems, rubies and sapphires, others contained bar gold, and yet more contained gems, to which it was scarcely possible in such a light to assign a name. One thing at least was certain. So vast was the treasure that the three men stood tongue-tied with amazement at their good fortune. In their wildest dreams they had never imagined such luck, and now that this vast treasure lay at their finger-ends,

"NOW, THEN, GIDEON, MY WORTHY FRIEND, WHAT HAVE YOU GOT TO SAY ABOUT THE BUSINESS?"

to be handled, to be made sure of, they were unable to realize the extent of their future happiness. Hayle dived his hands into a bowl of uncut rubies, and having collected as many as he could hold in each fist, turned to his companions.

"Look here," he cried, "it's the Bank of England in each hand."

His voice ended in a choke. Then Kitwater took up the tale.

"I must get out of this or I shall go mad," he muttered, hoarsely. "Come, let us go back to the light. If I don't I shall die."

Without more ado, like men who were drunk with the finest wines, they followed him along the passage and up the steps into the open air. They were just in time to see the sun setting blood-red behind the jungle. His beauty, however, had no effect upon them. In all probability they were regardless of him altogether, for with almost simultaneous sighs of relief they threw themselves down upon the flag-stones of the courtyard, and set to work, with feverish earnestness, to overhaul the booty they had procured. All three were good judges of stones, and a very brief examination was sufficient, even in the feeble evening light, to enable them to see that they were not only gems of the first water, but also stones of such size as is seldom seen in these unregenerate days.

"It's the biggest scoop on earth," said Hayle, unconsciously echoing the expression Kitwater had used to him in Singapore. "What's better, there are hundreds more like them down below. I'll tell you what it is, my friends, we're just the richest men on this earth at the present moment, and don't you forget it!"

In his excitement he shook hands wildly with his companions. His ill-humor had vanished like breath off a razor, and now he was on the best of terms not only with himself, but also with the world in general.

"If I know anything about stones there are at least £100,000 worth in this little parcel," he said, enthusiastically, "and, what is more, there is a million or perhaps two millions to be had for the trouble of looking for them. What do you say if we go below again?"

CUBA'S FIRST ELECTION.

The Palma Ticket Had No Opposition—Light Vote Polled.

HAVANA, Jan. 2.—The indications are that the entire Palma ticket will be elected and that Tomas Estrada Palma, the Nationalist candidate for the presidency of Cuba, will receive the unanimous vote of the electoral college.

The adherents of General Bartolome Maso, the Democratic candidate who recently withdrew from the campaign, not only withdrew their candidates, but refused to go to the polls.

A remarkably light vote was polled throughout the island. La Discusion describes this indifference to the certainty on the part of the Palmaists of being victorious and that consequently the majority of them remained at home and did not vote. La Lucha says that this light vote can be taken as a protest from the Cuban people against the imposition of official candidates. The Diario de la Marina says that the result is an indication that the Cuban Democracy may look upon American policy as inevitable.

Cubans Celebrate In Santiago.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Jan. 2.—The municipal government of this city celebrated the victory of the Nationalist party at the polls Tuesday and the inauguration of the new year by raising a magnificent silk Cuban flag forty feet long over the city's end of the palace at midnight. Colored fire, roman candles and rockets set off from the roof of the palace made a fine display as the great flag was slowly raised aloft upon the stroke of 12. A band played the national hymn, and the plaza in front of the palace was crowded. A brilliant ball was also given at the San Carlos club. Here the festivities were suspended during the ceremony of raising the Cuban flag, and the guests of the club, including many American officers, witnessed the spectacle.

BAY STATE LEGISLATURE.

Officers Chosen For the Annual Session—Inauguration Today.

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—The great and general court of Massachusetts has convened for the session of 1902 at the statehouse on Beacon hill. The procedure of the first legislative day was carried out according to law and custom, both branches electing their presiding officers, clerks, chaplains and sergeants-at-arms, and everything is in readiness for the inauguration of Governor Crane today.

Rufus A. Soule of New Bedford was re-elected by the senate as president and Henry D. Coolidge, Concord, as clerk.

The house elected James J. Myers of Cambridge speaker for the third time and James W. Kimball, Lynn, clerk.

The political complexion of the legislature of 1902 shows little change from previous years. The senate includes 33 Republicans and 7 Democrats, a gain of 2 Republicans compared with last year. The house has 165 Republicans, 72 Democrats and 2 Social Democrats, a gain of 14 Democratic representatives over last year.

Richmond Bricklayers Locked Out.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 2.—The members of the Bricklayers' union have been locked out by the contractors, and the work on practically every building where bricklayers are employed is at a standstill. A special meeting of the Brick Contractors' association was held Tuesday night, when every member present agreed not to start or carry on any work until the union should agree to certain rules which had been adopted by the contractors. Among the new rules is one that members of the union shall work for none but members of the contractors' association. This rule the members of the union say they will not consider because it would stop them from working for some of the largest contractors in the city who are not members of the association and thus would throw more than half of their members out of work at the present time.

Longshoremen Go on a Strike.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Jan. 2.—Because of a reduction of wages from 20 to 15 cents an hour 115 freight handlers employed by the Crosby Transportation company here went on strike yesterday. The cut has been made every year by the company, but the men decided to make a stand against it this year. A meeting of the strikers was held, at which a longshoremen's union was organized and a committee appointed to wait on the company officials. The steamer Nyack returned to Milwaukee with only about half of her cargo unloaded.

Maryland Assembly Meets.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 2.—The general assembly of Maryland began its deliberations yesterday and after a brief session adjourned for a week in order to allow time to make up the committees. Noble L. Mitchell of Harford county was elected speaker of the house, and Senator John Hubner of Baltimore county was re-elected president of the senate. All the officers of last session were re-elected in both houses.

After Nashville Gamblers.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 2.—Writs have been sworn out for the arrest of forty alleged gamblers. The warrants were issued on the affidavit of F. K. Odil, a brother of Guy Odil, who recently lost $3,000 in the gambling houses of this city. The warrants charge the defendants with various felonies.

Gesang and Turn Verein Entertained Members and Friends New Year's Eve.

In true German fashion the Gesang and Turn Verein celebrated the close of the old year and the birth of the new at its headquarters, Saengerbund Hall. Mirth, music and refreshments were the conspicuous features of the affair.

All night long dancing was kept up on the main floor, the music being furnished by Anthony Gaub, violin, and Anthony Creger, piano. During the evening the singing section of the society rendered a number of songs of the Fatherland, with A. Eichborn as leader. A handsome Morris chair was presented to A. Eichborn, the leader of the singing section.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Charles Dresselt, John Wirth, August Wolff, Charles Meyer, Jr., and William Beiter.

QUAINT OLD SANCTUARY OVER IN PISCATAWAY

Short History of One of the Oldest Churches in Middlesex County.

BURNED, BLOWN DOWN.

WAS A HOSPITAL DURING REVOLUTIONARY TIMES.

Strange Old Graveyard Close by the Church and Some Remarkable Epitaphs to Be Found There.

In this city and vicinity there are many landmarks that have a historic interest seldom equalled, and among these old-time institutions is St. James Episcopal church located in Piscataway not far from Plainfield. It is without doubt the second oldest church in Middlesex county, St. James Episcopal church, at Perth Amboy, being conceded the oldest in the county, if not the State.

The graveyard surrounding it contains hundreds of graves of early settlers of the county and State, and some of the tombstones are so old as to be almost unintelligible. Many Plainfielders have frequently visited this cemetery out of curiosity, while numbered among those interred are some from this city and vicinity, and whose names are still familiar, and whose families are still living in this part of New Jersey.

So old is the church that its history is unknown, save as it is told in the village traditions, handed down from father to son. It is not known just in what year the church was built, nor by whom. Who were its pastors, too, is unknown. There are no records to tell, for during the Revolution the rectory was plundered by the British and then burned, so that all the records of the church were destroyed. A second fire some years after destroyed the church structure, with its records, and rendered it still more difficult to gain any authentic knowledge of the church's history. It is known, however, that it was organized some years before the close of the seventeenth century and that a church structure was built within a very few years after. Tradition places the building as 1694. That this is approximately correct is proven by the fact that some of the older tombstones in the churchyard bear date prior to 1705.

The foundations as laid over two centuries ago are still intact, although there have been three structures reared upon them. One, as has already been said, was destroyed by fire in 1796, after having stood 102 years and having escaped the devastating hand of the British, who destroyed the recish and American soldiers. It was destroyed by fire some time after the Revolution, but a number of the pews were saved and used to furnish the edifice that was erected on the ruins of the first. When this structure, too, was destroyed a number of these pews were torn apart, and were then found to be spotted with blood from the wounds of the soldiers who had been cared for at the church hospital and who had been forced to use the pews as cots. A few of these blood-stained pews were put together again and are now a part of the furnishing of the present church, itself nearly sixty-five years old.

The church structure is a small-sized frame building, square in its outlines. A tiny steeple surmounts it and in the belfry is a diminutive bell to go with the steeple. The church is painted white, and the only departure from the severity of the architecture is found in the front, which includes a cornice supported upon four immense pillars.

As interesting as the church is the churchyard. The old, moss-grown stones bear quaint epitaphs, Some of tory, but spared the church. The date of the fire which destroyed the church can be fixed only by approximation.

The second structure, erected almost immediately after fire, upon the original foundations, was wrecked in the awful tornado which spread death and destruction over Middlesex county June 19, 1835.

Piscataway town did not escape the visitation, and the first building to suffer was the church. The inhabitants had seen the storm gathering, and were on the way to prayer to ask that harm be averted from them. Unlike the people of New Brunswick, they had warning of the calamity. Fortunately, they did not enter the church, which was totally wrecked by the wind.

The church had been on the main highway through New Jersey, the road that figured in all the military operations that led up to the battles of Trenton and Princeton. It had been used as a hospital for both British the stones mark graves that were filled a century and a half ago. Many of the stones are so eaten away by time that only a letter here and there can be deciphered. The churchyard is the resting place of the founders of families that are still numerous and strong in the county—the Dunhams, the Martins, the Langstaffs, the Platts and the Stelles. Some of them, like the Wooleges, are extinct. The church yard is a mine of the curious in epitaph writing. Upon the tombstone of Martha, daughter of John Langstaff, who died in 1817, aged eighty-two years, are these lines:

"Affliction sore,
Long time I bore,
Physicians' arts were vain;
Till death did cease
And God did please
To ease me of my pain."

Another reads as follows:

"In memory of that pious man of God, Mr. James Platt, released from the sorrows of this life September 22, 1779, aet. 78.

"My lonesome days are past,
The earth is now my bed.
But hope with Jesus Christ to live
When he shall raise the dead."

Experiance S. Dunn leaves this hopeful message to her friends:

"I have left a vain world of sorrow and pain,
My spirit is wafted with Jesus to raign,
To join that glad throng in heven above,
Receive a bright crown and bask in His love."

BOY KILLED BY TROLLEY

Little Fritz Wiechers Fell Under Car Wheels and Was Crushed to Death.

WAS KILLED INSTANTLY

In Trying to Avoid Trolley Cars, on West Front Street He Fell in Path of Car—Motorman Held—Police Believe Him Blameless—Mother Prostrated.

The first fatal accident on the local trolley system, since its introduction in this city ten years ago, occurred at the corner of Plainfield avenue and West Front street at 4:55 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the life of George Frederick Wiechers, familiarly known as Fritz, the oldest son of J. F. Wiechers, of West Seventh street, was crushed out beneath the wheels of car No. 11, east bound. He attemped to pass in front of it on his bicycle when he was thrown to the ground. Before the frantic motorman could reverse his car the fender passed over the lad and he was rolled along by the trucks. A few moments later his little frame was extricated from its resting place but life was extinct. Death was evidently instantaneous.

Fritz, who was a wonderfully bright boy and looked fully three years older than he was, left home yesterday with the intention of coming to town to perform several errands. He rode his wheel, as usual, and took his customary route down Grant avenue to Front street. He reached the latter street just ahead of car No. 11, also bound for town, in charge of Motorman Frederick Seals, of West Fifth street, and Conductor John Hyler, of West Front street. Boy-like he rode just ahead of it and laughingly responded to Seal's warning gong.

Just before he reached Plainfield avenue, car No. 16, west bound, stopped at the crossing and he started to go to the left. As he did so he saw a hay wagon blocking his path. Then he swerved to the right, directly in front of car No. 11. It is supposed that it was his intention to cross to the extreme right but the approaching car rendered it necessary for him to strike the rails at a sharp angle.

Whether his wheel slipped on the rail or was struck from behind by the fender cannot be determined, as on this point witnesses differ. At any rate, he was hurled from the saddle and fell face downward a few feet ahead of the car. The bicycle was uninjured. The fender, the police say, was at least twelve inches above the ground.

Hyler had already rung a full stop for the corner and Seals had shut off the power, consequently the car's momentum was comparatively slight. It all happened so quickly, however, that the boy had disappeared beneath the trucks without a cry before the motorman succeeded in stopping it.

A score of willing hands were almost immediately outstretched to release the body which could plainly be seen pinned down beneath a heavy motor box. The lifeless form was lifted tenderly to the curb and Dr. Boone, who chanced to be passing, was called. It needed but a glance from his experienced eye to see that his services were not required. The lower part of the body was crushed into a shapeless mass and the skull was fractured.

No one recognized the features at the time and Chief Kiely allowed those in the vicinity to look at them in the hope of establishing their identity. Scores scanned the boyish face, crowned with a wealth of golden hair, but all turned away without recognition.

At 7 o'clock the boy's name was known for the first. A little silver pencil, intended for a Christmas present to a friend, was found in the clothing. A card attached bore the name of the sender, Fritz Wiechers, written in a childish scrawl.

Dr. G. W. Endicott, the family physician, was called and on him devolved the task of informing the parents of the sad occurrence. Mrs. Wiechers was the only one at home at the time and she was prostrated by the shock. She had a premonition of some bad news when from a window she first saw Dr. Endicott approaching the house. On several previous occasions, when the boy met with slight acci-

IN HONOR OF DEBUTANTE

FIRST "AT HOME" FOLLOWING MISS HELEN S. MARTIN'S DEBUT.

A Dinner to the Young Women and Then Followed an Informal Dance.

The first "at home" following to debut of Miss Helen Sprague Martin, daughter of Mrs. Frank Sprague Martin, of Hillside avenue, was a charming event of yesterday afternoon. The second and last "at home" will be given next week Thursday. The home was prettily decorated yesterday, the prevailing color being yellow. There was also an arrangement of laurel that added much to the attractive scene.

Mrs. Martin, Miss Martin and Miss Helen Sprague Martin recieved. Those in the dining room who poured were Mrs. William Malloy, Mrs. James De Graff and Mrs. John Benson. They were assisted by Miss Margaret Goddard, Miss Harriet Goddard, Miss Marjorie Fleming, Miss Saidee Mae Howell, Miss Virginia Hegeman, Miss Josephine Lapsley, Miss Agnes Minford, of this city.; Miss Melva Evans, of Baltimore; Miss North, of Philadelphia, and Miss Florence Patterson, of New York.

There were nearly one hundred guests present and all enjoyed the social features. The younger women were given a dinner after the reception. The evening was pleasantly spent in dancing, a number of young men being present.

OLDEST MAP OF PLAINFIELD

FAC-SIMILE PRESENTED TO STREET COMMISSIONER GAVETT.

Shows Plainfield as it Was Thirty Years Ago—The City Pictured.

Engineer F. J. Hubbard recently completed and presented to Street Commissioner Gavett a fac-simile of the oldest known map of Plainfield. The original is in the possession of William M. Stillman and was made in 1832. At that time the population was 700.

The original and its reproduction show that Plainfield at that time boasted of ten streets, or roads. The most important, as it seems to have been pretty well lined with houses of some pretensions (the old style of map drawing being to represent buildings from an exterior view instead of a ground plan as at present), was called the "Main Road through Plainfield." It is still the main road only it is now Front street. Second street and the road to "Brooklyn" now South Plainfield, are also brought out prominently. The former street was the southern border of the village.

Other streets represented are Liberty street, New street, Center street (Central avenue), Mechanic street (Madison avenue), Cherry street (Park avenue), Mountain avenue (Somerset street), and Short Hill road, now Plainfield's aristocratic Watchung avenue.

Green brook forms the northern border but at first glance bears no resemblance to the tracings of Plainfield's present tin can and waste paper lined stream. Hyde's, Tier's and two other mill ponds formerly between Grove and Washington streets and Girand and Grant avenues, are to be discerned. The one shown near the present Washintgon avenue bridge, was known some years ago as Wilson's pond. It was filled in and the Perin, Freres glove factory now stands on part of the made ground.

The fac-simile has been faithfully executed and Mr. Gavett takes pleasure in showing it to visitors to his office and comparing it with recently made maps of the Queen City.

SUIT OVER SEWING MACHINE.

Italian Claims He Couldn't Get It or the First Payment.

A fourth-hand sewing machine, actual value $2.50, is the innocent cause of a suit in Justice Hand's court. The machine was bought some time ago by Dominico Vitello, better known as "Lucy Shoestrings" from P. H. Latourette for that amount. One dollar was paid down and the remainder was to have been forthcoming in a short time, the machine in the meantime to remain at Latourette's store on Somerset street. Vitello appeared afterward with the $1.50 but Latourette said it was too late and, according to the indignant purchaser, he was refused the machine or the first dollar. The suit will be heard Monday.

Miss Nellie Walsh, of Newburgh, N. Y., is visiting friends in this city.

A LITTLE LATE BUT AN ENJOYABLE TIME

Christmas-Tide Celebrated by the Members of Franklin Council of Juniors.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

LAST PART OF EVENING DEVOTED TO THE PROGRAMME.

Visitors Were Present From a Number of Neighboring Councils—Financial Report Presented—The Programme.

The officers-elect of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., were installed last evening, after which there was an entertainment in celebration of Christmas-tide. The affair was a little late owing to the fact that last week there was too much business. There were delegations present from Wm. G. Holton Council, of Dunellen; Friendship Council, of New Market; Twilight Council, of Scotch Plains, and Benevolent and Somerset Councils, of this city.

During the early part of the evening there was the regular order of business, when Ephraim Compton, financial secretary, presented his report for the past six months. This showed the total receipts to be nearly $600. In the last two weeks the receipts for dues amounted to nearly $200.

After the transaction of business the officers were installed by Past Councilor Harvey R. Thorn. The officers' names were published a week ago and the only addition was that of chaplain, Fred Winn being appointed to that position by the new councilor, Theodore Martin. He also appointed the following committees: Delinquent, William Young, John Bowlby and George Townley; good and welfare, Henry Kriney, Frank Putnam, Harry DeHart, Wesley Thorn. After the installation a handsome badge of the order was presented to Henry Kliner, a retiring officer, by David Bodine.

The rest of the evening was given up to entertainment. Harvey Thorn was master of ceremonies and announced the various numbers. There were banjo, mandolin and vocal selections by Joseph and Walter Randall, piano solos by Andrew Carpenter and S. P. Sandford, a humorous, of New York, entertained the members with funny sayings. He first appeared as a "coon," after which he removed his disguise and continued telling some of the best stories yet heard. Every number on the programme was well received by loud applause.

After the entertainment refreshments were serve by the good and welfare committee and a smoker was enjoyed. It was nealy midnight when the festivities were concluded and all agreed that a most pleasant evening had been spent.

It was decided by the members to offer a prize of $15 to the person bringing in eight or more candidates between January 1 and July 1, of this year.

HOLIDAY TEA.

Given by Miss Suffren in Honor of Her Guest.

Miss Elsie DeR. Suffern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Suffern, of Sycamore avenue, gave a very charming tea, yesterday afternoon, in honor of Miss Green, of Elizabeth. The rooms were prettily decorated with holly and in the dining room, red was the prevailing color.

Miss Suffern, assisted by her mother and Miss Green, received the guests in the parlor. In the dining room, Mrs. Hibbard and Miss Adams presided at the table assisted by the Misses Hull, Shreve and Ball and Miss Brinkton, of Kansas City, Mo.

At a House Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Cutter, of East Second street, Miss May Mulford, Miss Carrie Mulford and William Townsend, of East Fifth street, were members of an old-fashioned house party at the residence of Lieut. H. V. C. Bell, of Brooklyn, on New Year's night. It was a delightful affair and all had a jolly good time.

Heptasophs' Rally.

Arrangements are being made for a monstrous demostration by the Improved Order Heptasophs at Elizabeth, January 14. Large delegations from all over the State will be present as well as the supreme officers. Deputy Supreme Archon John V. E. Vanderhoef, of this city, has charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. Anna Willis, of New York, is the guest of Mrs. J. A. Blatz, of Somerset street.

HUNTING FOR PATIENT.

While Driver of Ambulance Was Trying to Locate Him, He Walked to the Hospital.

Dr. Pocock, as driver of Muhlenberg hospital's ambulance, had troubles of his own, yesterday, trying to locate a patient. A telephone call was received saying the vehicle was needed at the Potter Press Works. He responded hurriedly but there was no patient there nor had any of the employes been hurt.

On calling the hospital he was told it was probably at the safe works and a hurried run to Evona still failed to reveal any one in need of assistance. He then returned to the hospital for a consultation over the matter and was at the door when the man for whom the call was given walked in unaided.

He is a builder employed by the Flynt Construction Company and had been seized with a fit while working on the Pond extensions.

BONDS FOR COURTHOUSE

Freeholders Authorized Their Issuance at a Meeting Held Yesterday.

The Union County Board of Freeholders met at Elizabeth, yesterday, in regular session. The two new members from Rahway were sworn in by Freeholder Noah C. Woodruff. All bills were paid, including one for $9,992 for three months' care of 236 inmates of the State Asylum at Morris Plains, who belong to Union county.

A legislative committee was appointed consisting of Freeholders Farrell, King and Brucklacher. One of the most important things considered at the meeting was a resolution authorizing the county collector to issue one or two bonds for $25,000, the same to be used in the construction of the new Court House. The bonds are to be floated at 4 per cent.

Match at a Cocked Hat.

Dissatisfied with the result of the match completed Saturday evening, the Bachelors and Benedicts of the Park Club, through the challenge of the latter, will bowl a series of "cocked hat," best out of three games. The first game will take place tomorrow evening. There will be ten men on a side. F. O. Ball will captain the Benedicts while W. R. Faber will act in a like capacity for the Bachelors.

Result of Accident.

Lawyer Robert M. Clark has been retained by the Watchung Wood Company to bring suit against the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company for damages resulting from a collision between a trolley car and one of the company's wagons at the corner of Richmond and East Fifth street, last Friday.

O Be Joyful Officers.

At a recent meeting of the O Be Joyful Club the following officers were elected: President, Fred VanLiew; vice-president, Harry DeMeza; secretary, Harry Rogers; treasurer and manager, William Pope. New Year's Eve the club gave a supper to itself at the Plainfield Hotel.

Death of Mrs. Martin.

The death of Mrs. Caroline S. Martin, widow of the late Nathaniel T. Martin, occurred last night in Brooklyn. Her home was at 165 North avenue, where she lived with her daughter, Miss Mara B. Martin. She also leaves a son, Walter N. Martin, who is in Porto Rico.

An Icy Plunge.

While skating on Hudson's pond, last evening, Miss Leberta Thoms, of Summit avenue, plunged through the ice and sank in the water. She was hauled out by Arthur Jeffries and beyond a thorough drenching did not suffer any serious consequences.

Doctors to Meet.

The Plainfield Medical Society will hold its quarterly meeting, this evening, at the Plainfield Hotel. A number of papers will be read by local physicians after which a collation will be served.

Surprise Party.

A surprise party was tendered Mrs. Elizabeth Emmons by Mrs. George Reighton, of Park avenue, Tuesday evening. There were twenty-eight children and grandchildren present.

Installation at Central.

The installation of officers-elect in Central Lodge, Ancient Order United Workmen, will take place Thursday evening, Jan. 9.

Graduation Exercises.

Within a short time there will be graduation exercises in the primary department of the First Baptist church.

Guernsey Nevius, of East Fifth street, who has been spending several months in Plainfield, starts taday for Chicago, where he will resume his position.

LITTLE BUSINESS FOR THE BOROUGH COUNCIL

Nothing Important is Ready to Come Up at Tonight's Regular Session.

FEW REPORTS EXPECTED

BOROUGH COUNSEL C. A. REED HAS BEEN ABSENT FROM TOWN.

So Some of the Proposed Ordinances Will be Delayed Until He Can Examine Them—No Ownership Report.

The first Borough Council meeting of the new year will be held this evening and it promises to be a brief session. Little of importance will come before the body, unless some one resurrects "municipal ownership," which is unlikely in the face of probable new year's resolutions made by the committeemen having this matter in charge. There will be two vacancies in the Board of Health to be filled by appointment. The terms of Andrew Love and L. E. Barkalew expire. Mr. Love is the efficient president of that body and will be reappointed by Mayor Smalley. As for Mr. Barkalew, he has declined to serve another term. No name has been suggested in connection with filling his place.

It is not at all likely that the proposed ordinances regulating the building line and fire line suggested some meetings ago will be placed before the session for consideration, as the absence of Senator Reed from town has prevented his preparing them. Both of these matters are considered of much consequence and it is probable that they will come up at the February meeting, unless a special session is held before that date.

The Commissioners of Assessment, appointed by the councilmanic body in the matter of the Somerset street improvement, have completed their labors and the affair is now in the hands of Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, but it will be impossible for him to draft the proper report in time for the meeting this evening.

There has been some talk of appointing a street commissioner, but it is understood that no action will be taken until spring. At present there is no work to be done on the borough thoroughfares, of any consequence, and hence deferring the appointment will be the means of saving the borough's money, as the plan is to pay a regular yearly salary.

ROSELLE WON.

Took Two Out of Three Games From Cranford on the Latter's Alleys.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, Jan. 3.—In the Daily Press Bowling League, the Roselle Casino team defeated the five of the Cranford Casino on the latter's alleys last evening, in two out of the three games. Strikes and spares were frequent.

FILLED WITH POWDER.

Harry Taynor Filled the Gun and Weapon Filled His Eye.

Harry H. Taynor, the young son of Samuel Taynor, of West Front street, filled a flobert rifle with powder, this morning, and discharged it. The greater part of the powder, flew backward and the boy received a generous portion of it in one eye. He was temporarily blinded and it was thought the sight was ruined.

Dr. Ard was called and treated the injured optic. It is still in bad shape but it is believed the boy will be able to see with it in a short time.

Bitten by Bloodhound.

A large blood hound, belonging to a family residing on Rockview terrace, sprang at Mrs. Charles Lyman, of Washington avenue, this morning, and severely bit her. A deep wound was inflicted on her right arm. Two blood hounds had attacked Mrs. Lyman's pet dog and in her endeavor to separate them she was bitten. One of the animals was killed by Mrs. Lyman's son.

Trolley Company Settled.

Lawyer Robert M. Clark has effected a settlement with the North Jersey Street Railway Company for his client, John Goff, who was injured at Newark several weeks ago. The company's representative called on Mr. Clark yesterday. It was the latter's purpose to commence suit today against the company if the settlement had not been made.

Charles Keiderling, who was so sick for the past week, is doing very well under the care of Dr. Carman.

WAS NEARLY KILLED BY GAS

JOHN LAYTON AGAIN OVERCOME BY GASOLENE FUMES.

At Cranford Pumping Station He Was Found Unconscious—Still In a Critical Condition.

For the fourth time within as many months, John Layton, of East Fifth street, engineer at the Cranford water tanks of the New Jersey Central, was overcome by gasolene fumes while at work, yesterday afternoon. It was fully five hours afterward before he was found and it was then thought he was beyond all medical aid.

He was brought to this city at midnight. Dr. Carman and the family worked over his unconscious form until 3 o'clock this morning but he could not be revived. The physician declared he might succumb at any moment but this noon he had rallied slightly.

The pumps at the Cranford water tanks are worked by a gasolene engine which has no exhaust. In consequence the fumes escaped into the engine room and must seek their own outlet into the open air. Layton is on duty practically the entire twenty-four hours each day, being the only engineer, and frequently sleeps on a cot placed some distance from the machine.

He evidently laid down yesterday some time before 5 o'clock as that is the time he returns to this city for his meal. He did not appear last night and becoming alarmed, Mrs. Dayton left for Cranford on the 9 o'clock train. Calling several employes from the station she proceeded to the pump house and there found her husband's inanimate form.

A BELATED CHRISTMAS TREE

ANNUAL FESTIVAL OF SUNDAY-SCHOOL OF MT. OLIVE BAPTIST CHURCH.

A Large Crowd Attended It Last Evening and Heard a Good Programme.

The Christmas exercises of the Mt. Olive Baptist church were held last evening. Although a trifle late in the season yet that fact did not in the least detract from the enjoyment of the occasion. Superintendent M. C. Dobbins was in charge and assisting him were the teachers of the various classes.

Two large and well adorned Christmas trees graced the front of the edifice. A short but entertaining programme was rendered, the principal feature being a timely address by City Judge Wm. N. Runyon, who received a great greeting from the colored people. Miss Ella Philips recited "The Christmas Carol" and Miss Anna O'Donnell recited "A Secret With Santa Claus." A hit was made by two little people, the Misses Maud and Mattie Green, who sang a couple of selcetions.

During the evening there were a number of gramophone selections given which had the effect of pleasingly varying the programme. The church choir also participated in the entertainment.

After Rev. E. E. Jackson, the pastor, had delivered a brief address, the presents were distributed to the pupils. The younger ones received special gifts, including toys, dolls, books and slates, while all were given boxes of candy.

REFORM CLUB INSTALLATION.

Officers Were Installed at Meeting Held Last Evening.

Officers of the Reform Club were installed at the hall on West Second street last evening. Captain W. C Smith, a former president of the organization, acted as installing officer. Those who were inducted into office were: President, John A. Goodwin; first vice-president, David Bush; chaplain, William F. Richards; recording secretary, Edward Smith; treasurer, Chas. B. Bauersachs. Charles B. Stephens, the newly elected financial secretary, and Charles Rice, the second vice-president, were absent.

Dr. S. D. Merriam, of Augusta, Me., recited some cleveer poems, and Miss Mattie VanDorn, of Griggstown, N. J., rendered some piano solos. Remarks were made by J. W. A. Bauersachs, John Goodwin and Captain Smith. All the addresses were good.

May Bring Suit.

J. F. Wiechers, of West Seventh street, the father of Fritz Wiechers, who was killed by a trolley car, has placed the matter in the hands of Craig A. Marsh. Suit will be brought provided it is found that the trolley company is responsible for the accident.

THE LAKEWOOD RAMMED SLIP

The New Central Ferryboat Crashed Into the Slip Doing Much Damage.

WAS ON HER LAST TRIP.

The Ferryboat Escaped With But Trifling Injury—One Man Hurt by Falling Beam—Ripped Up Roadway on West Street—Passengers Thrown Down.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New York, Jan. 3—The handsome new ferryboat, The Lakewood, of the Jersey Central's service, ploughed into the Liberty street slip on her 9:15 o'clock trip from Jersey City, last evening. Like a battering ram of ancient days the boat wrought devastation, coming out of the collision practically uninjured. Hubert Gibson, of Bayonne, who was on the slip at the time, was the only one hurt. He was struck by a falling beam.

Even the paving on West street, New York, was torn up by the sudden and powerful impact, which threw the heavy bridge high up on the flooring. The floor of the slip is piled up near the gate and the building itself leans towards the street like the tower of Pisa. Part of the roof fell with a loud crash. Some baggagemen and passengers were mixed up in a heap on the Jersey end of the boat, while all the others among the forty passengers were much frightened.

The Lakewood made a lucky escape, only the flag staff being torn away. It is claimed by some witnesses that the boat's engines had only been reversed when the crash was heard. Instead of hitting the bulkhead, as was intended, it is claimed that it missed it and met the slip with full force. The boat was to have been tied up for the night when the run was made, but after the passengers were safely landed, she recrossed to the Jersey side and was tied up at Communipaw.

As there is but one additional slip at Liberty street, there will be extra service on the Whitehill line Although the other side of the ferryhouse was not damaged, yet is considerably weakened, having received a crash two months ago.

FRATERNAL TREE.

Mizpah Lodge of Odd Ladies Had Its Festival and Tree.

The annual Christmas tree of Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, U. O. of I. O. L., was held, last evening, at the home of Mrs. David Bush, of West Second street. Although it was one of the last, it was not the least by any means as it contained a remembrance for every one of the members.

During the evening a musical and literary programme was enjoyed consisting of vocal selections by Mrs. Agnes Randall and Miss Florence Pearson and recitations by Mrs. Lewis Mattox, Mrs. Andrew Cox, Mrs. David Bush, Mrs. Henry Angleman and Miss Try Mattox. Refreshments were served at the close.

The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. David Bush, Mrs. Samuel Terry, Mrs. Henry Angleman and Mrs. Andrew Cox.

On January 27, Mrs. Jones, R. W. L. G., of Boston, accompanied by her staff, will visit Mizpah Lodge and install the recently elected officers.

POISONED DOGS.

One Valuable Canine on Prospect Place Was a Victim.

A despicable dog poisoner made his appearance on Prospect place, Wednesday, and administered fatal doses to two canines while a third was barely saved. Among the two former was a valuable Boston bulldog, the pet of the honsehold of J. V. N. Willis. But a few months ago an offer of $100 for the animal was refused, but its pecuniary value was a secondary matter. The other dog which succumbed belonged to Mrs. Hannigan, of Grove street.

Secured Non-Suit.

The case of Edward Pender against Mrs. Caldwell was tried last Monday before Justice Robert G. Wylie, of Woodbridge, when Lawyer Robert M. Clark representing the defendant secured a non-suit.

Will Resume Duty.

Child Worth Millions.

"My child is worth millions to me," says Mrs. Mary Bird, of Harrisburg, Pa., "yet I would have lost her by croup had I not purchased a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure." One Minute Cough Cure is sure cure for coughs, croup and throat and lung troubles. An absolutely safe cough cure which acts immediately. The youngest child can take it with entire safety. TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

A young fellow in the borough won a brace of ducks in a raffle Christmas eve and thinking that they should be kept in water he filled a barrel with that liquid, stuck the ducks in it and covered the barrel over so that it was air tight. Now he is wondering why the ducks died.

A practical joke played on Henry Moskovitz, of Somerset street, New Year's day, furnished great amusement to those who were "on the inside" of the little plot. t A Plainfield friend of Mr. Moskovitz purchased a lively opossum and shipped it to him in a sealed box by express. The recipient carefully opened the box in his store, thinking it contained goods ordered. No sooner was the lid off than the little animal popped out and simultaneously Mr. Moskovitz beat a hasty exit from his establishment. A neighbor was called upon to corral the opossum and now Moskovitz is swearing vengence.

THEATRICAL.

Grace George has but two weeks more to remain at the Republic. She is forced to leave New York with a success that would have easily finished the season here to paying business. A MIGHTY EXPANSION Wonderful Strides of a Year In Manufactures.

RECORDS BROKEN IN MANY LINES

Annual Review of Trade Shows That Never Before In This or Any Other Nation Has Development Been So Rapid.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—In summarizing the trade conditions of the year 1901 Dun's review for the current week says:

Most marvelous of all the phenomenal evidences of advancement in business during the year was the progress made in manufacturing. It is impossible to be too extravagant in delineating the movements of the industrial world. Never in the history of this or any other nation has such development occurred within the space of a twelvemonth. The expansion of productive capacity was enormous, the improved methods of work and organization were conspicuous, wise economies were introduced, but more than all other factors that made for permanent prosperity was the conservative resistance to price inflation.

All records of output for hard and soft coal were surpassed during 1901 despite the scarcity of cars that retarded operations. A few minor labor disturbances interrupted work, but none was as extensive as in the previous year.

The year 1901 was the greatest in volume of production and consumption in the history of the boot and shoe business. An entire year of activity and an era of high prices characterized the leather market, yet there has been no boom such as existed during 1895 and which resulted in one of the most disastrous slumps ever known in leather history.

While 1900 was the best year ever experienced by domestic agricultural interests, the opening year of the new century was in many ways more profitable, and the two together have put the farming population in much the most satisfactory position in the nation's history. Formerly the season of harvesting and crop moving brought heavy borrowing of funds at the east, but interior conditions have changed to such an extent that western banks are lenders at New York and Chicago, and, while there is still a large movement of money away from the east during the fall months, it is of funds that were held here for the account of interior correspondents.

There is a steady tendency to enlarge the acreage sown in the leading crops, yet supplies do not increase owing to the better demand both for home consumption and export.

The crop year opened with a new record of wheat and flour exports, amounting to 34,130,380 bushels in August, far surpassing any previous month, while for five months ending Nov. 30 the aggregate was 126,928,162 bushels.

Exports of high staple products reached a new high record notwithstanding the lower average prices of oil and cotton and the scarcity of corn.

Funeral of Bitzer's Victims.

TURNERS FALLS, Mass., Jan. 3.—The funeral of Miss Ida Columbe, killed by Louis Bitzer on Tuesday, was held at St. Ann's Catholic church yesterday. There was a requiem high mass, with Rev. J. P. Allard as celebrant. The funeral of Louis Martin Bitzer, the young son, took place at the home of Martin L. Bitzer, a brother of the man charged with the double murder, who lives directly under Louis Bitzer's tenement in which the boy was killed. The service was very simple and entirely in German. The three wounded members of the Bitzer family at the Farren hospital continue to improve. Anna, the sixteen-year-old girl, is resting comfortably, but the bullet is still in her head.

A Million Wanted For Wesleyan.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—At a meeting held last night in the Hanson Place M. E. church, Brooklyn, in the interest of Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn., Senator Dillingham of Vermont and President Raymond of the institution were the principal speakers. It has been decided to make the attempt to raise $1,000,000 for increasing the college work, and at the conclusion of the meeting a subscription was raised and a collection taken up. Bishop Andrews, who presided at the meeting, did not, however, announce the amount.

The assistant postmaster was assaulted and all the stamps in the office, money order blanks and keys taken. The postoffice at Smallwood, S. C., was also robbed and stamps stolen.

Walking Records Lowered.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 3.—Shelton, Cartwright and Fahey lowered the world's twenty-four hour go as you please record for a sixteen lap track here last night. Shelton, Cartwright and Fahey had been on the track twenty-four hours straight. Shelton also lowered the fifty mile record to Th. 1m.

BIG SYNDICATE FAILS

Temporary Embarrassment of Everett-Moore Concern.

COMMITTEE OF BANKERS INVESTIGATE

The Company Controlled Many Electric Lines In Ohio and Michigan With Capitalization of About $130,000,000.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 3.—The financial affairs of the Everett-Moore syndicate, owning or controlling a number of urban and interurban electric railways and an extensive system of local and long distance telephone lines in Ohio and Michigan, have passed into the control of a committee composed of seven prominent bankers of this city. This action was taken, it is stated, as the result of temporary financial embarrassment on the part of the syndicate, which has for some time past been affected by the stringency in the money market.

The committee chosen has been at work investigating the affairs of the syndicate and express the firm belief that the concern is entirely solvent and that its embarrassment will be only temporary.

The Everett-Moore syndicate is accredited with controlling more than 1,200 miles of urban and interurban electric lines in Ohio and Michigan, with many new extensions still in course of construction.

All of these lines are declared by the committee to be, with scarcely an exception, in good physical condition, perfectly solvent and in no wise embarrassed.

The aggregate capitalization of all the various properties owned or controlled by the syndicate is said to be about $130,000,000.

Expert accountants have been employed by the committee in charge to examine and report upon the condition of all the constituent companies. No statement has as yet been given out indicating the liabilities of the syndicate.

Messrs. Henry A. Everett and E. W. Moore refused to be interviewed concerning their affairs, declaring that the statement issued by the committee covered the entire matter.

The committee of bankers organized by electing H. R. Newcomb as chairman and E. C. Tillotson secretary.

H. R. Newcomb, chairman of the committee of bankers looking into the affairs of the Everett-Moore syndicate said that the syndicate had secured heavy loans from a large number of eastern banks and from banks in the interior of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Michigan, and so far as they have been able to express themselves the loaning institutions regard the syndicate's securities as gilt edge and actually worth 15 to 20 per cent more than the value of the loans. Mr. Newcomb said that legally the committee of bankers is not in charge of the financial affairs of the syndicate; instead that it is simply looking into the case. In order to take full charge of the syndicate's affairs Mr. Newcomb said the consent of the many loaning institutions will have to be secured. If this is not obtainable the further action of the committee is undecided.

Run on a Cleveland Bank.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 3.—As a result of the announcement of the financial embarrassment of the Everett Moore syndicate a run was started on the Dime Savings and Banking company, of which Messrs. Everett and Moore are directors. All demands were promptly met, and President Watterson said the bank had ample funds on hand to pay all depositors who desired their money. The institution is one of the city depositories. When its last report was issued in October, the bank's total resources were placed at $5,762,007, including a surplus fund of $335,000.

Big Suits Begun.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 3.—The Everett-Moore syndicate, through the Maumee Valley Electric road, is the plaintiff in three of the biggest suits ever brought in the local courts in which it seeks injunction to restrain execution on three cognovit judgments in favor of King & Tracy for $4,674.76, of the Toledo Loan company for $13,036.85 and of the Holcomb National bank for $18,526.87. The suits are the starters of big litigation. The allegations are sensational, alleging fraud, conspiracy and double dealing.

Fall River Figures.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 3.—Figures have been prepared, based upon the reports to the secretary of state, showing the profits and losses of Fall River corporations during the year just closed. Eight corporations have not yet reported. Nine of the corporations increased their net indebtedness in a year, and four increased their surplus. Five decreased their indebtedness, and five decreased their surplus.

War Revenue Receipts.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—A comparative statement of the receipts from the war revenue act of June 13, 1898, and the war revenue reduction act of March 2, 1901, shows that the former act produced between July 1, 1900, and Nov. 30, 1900, $46,629,308. The revenue reduction act of the latter date produced in the corresponding period in 1901 $29,429,642, a decrease of $17,199,666.

First Train In Five Days.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 3.—The Atlanta and West Point railroad yesterday sent its first train through to Montgomery, the interruption to train service and the delay to the mails occasioned by the floods of last Saturday and Sunday having been finally overcome by officials of this road.

PORTO RICO AFFAIRS

Governor Hunt's Message to Island Legislature.

PEACE AND CONTENTMENT PREVAIL

Schools Have Rapidly Multiplied. Exports Have Increased—Railroads Are Being Built—Important Recommendations.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Jan. 3.—Governor Hunt's message to the legislature of Porto Rico was read at 11 o'clock in the morning before a joint session of that body held in the theater of San Juan. The building was crowded. The message congratulated the legislature upon the fact that its work in 1901 had been vindicated as wise, conservative and progressive and leading to the establishment of free trade between Porto Rico and the United States seven months before the existing tariff duties provided for the cessation of the collection of such duties.

In his message Governor Hunt says: "Tranquility and contentment prevail in Porto Rico, schools have multiplied, railroads are being constructed, the commerce of the island has been developed, exports have increased, agriculture has become more profitable, roads are being built, and debts are being paid. Tolerance of opinion has become more common, former antagonism being forgotten."

Governor Hunt's report further said that 885 schools were open throughout the island, where 934 teachers were employed and which were attended by 45,000 pupils. Thirty-two schoolhouses had been constructed, and 129 Porto Rican students were being educated in the United States. The insular revenues had increased the available balance by $128,000 over the balance of July, 1901, and the total balance today, including tariff rebates, etc., amounted to $2,000,000.

Governor Hunt recommended the revision of the municipal laws and the adoption of modern city charters. He did not recommend an increase in the insular tax, but he advised an increase from one-half to 1 per cent in the tax on municipalities. The governor recommended an increase in the excises upon beer, cosmetics and perfumes and a road tax of a dollar a head. He advised the improvement of San Juan harbor and the early consideration of the new code which is now being prepared by a commission.

Concerning the case of Santiago Iglesias, the representative of the American Federation of Labor, who was sentenced here Dec. 11 to three years and four months' imprisonment on a charge of conspiracy, the governor referred to the ambiguities of the existing laws and said the remedy therefor was in the hands of the legislature.

In conclusion Governor Hunt said: "We are absolutely free in our course, but we cannot escape responsibility for our course when this is once chosen or avoid responsibility for our acts when once committed. Let us go to work with zeal and a clear purpose, looking courageously to the future, demonstrating that love of country is to be found here beneath the palm, and let us so labor that the civil government of Porto Rico shall become an element of national strength and pride."

One Colliery Resumes.

GIRARDVILLE, Pa., Jan. 3.—Packer colliery No. 5, which was flooded with water during the severe rainstorm three weeks ago, has resumed operations, giving employment to 800 men and boys. Preston colliery No. 3 of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company remains idle, and the officials of the company fear that it will take several months to clear it of water. At Lawrence the colliery of the Shaffer estate is also idle. The inside workings are completely ruined, and it is feared that the colliery may have to be abandoned. These two collieries employ upward of 2,000 persons.

Will Cross Russia by Rail.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Dr. Horace H. Allen, United States minister to Korea, who is in this country on leave of absence, called on President Roosevelt yesterday. Dr. Allen will return shortly to his post, traveling via St. Petersburg and the Transsiberian railroad. The railroad officials have tendered him a special car from St. Petersburg to Port Arthur. Dr. Allen expects to be the first American official to make the trip over the railroad.

United States Mint's Output.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The monthly statement of the director of the mint shows the coinage executed at the mint of the United States during December, 1901, to have been $14,649,321, as follows: Gold, $12,309,327; silver, $1,966,514; minor coins, $373,480. The total coinage for the calendar year ended Dec. 31, 1901, was $134,623,770, of which $101,735,187 was gold, $30,828,460 was silver, and $2,120,122 was minor coins.

The Railroad Merger Case.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 3.—Governor Van Sant and Attorney General Douglas have reached home. Both went immediately to the capitol and went to work on the railroad merger suits. The attorney general will henceforth be the central figure. He will leave tonight for Washington and will institute the state's suit Monday in the United States supreme court.

Public Debt Decreased.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The monthly statement of the public debt, just issued, shows that at the close of business Dec. 31, 1901, the national debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $1,011,628,286, a decrease for the month of $8,643,192.

COMING EVENTS.

January 3—Illustrated talk to boys by H. S. Park, of Paterson, at Y. M. C. A. at 4 o'clock.

January 5—Don O. Shelton, of New York, will address meeting at Y. M. C. A. Hall.

THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

While there was nothing unusual in the annual message of Mayor O. L. Jenkins, which was presented to the new Common Council at its first meeting, Wednesday evening, it contained much that was of interest to every resident of Plainfield, whether a property owner or not. Its full text was published in yesterday's Daily Press. It should be read carefully.

It contained, for one thing, some very important facts which were not generally known to the people of Plainfield. That he knows whereof he speaks must be taken for granted. He would not make public such important utterances unless he had considered the proper legal authority and knew that his statements would be backed up. In this case, it was probably Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh who was consulted regarding the subject.

According to Mayor Jenkins' message, the terms of office of all city officers, except justices of the peace, are by the provisions of the Meeker Election law extended for eleven months and a fraction beyond the time for which they were originally elected. Portions of the law are quoted to explain just what he means, and his authority for the statement.

Unless the Common Council or the Legislature takes some action, it will not be necessary next November to elect any city officials besides the justices of the peace. Mayor Jenkins thinks, however, that the Legislature is likely to pass some amendments to the present law this session and advises the Common Council not to deal with the subject until it has ascertained just what the Legislature proposes to do.

The Mayor also refers to the present negotiations with the Plainfield Water Supply Company but, as they have not yet been concluded, he does not go into details concerning what has already been accomplished or is likely to be done. The rest of his message is chiefly devoted to a summary of the local situation explaining that the city is, at present, in a prosperous condition.

There are several changes in the personel of the Common Council, this year, although the Republicans still continue in entire possession. President John B. Dumont has retired from public service and his place as a councilman-at-large is filled by Edward E. Pray. Of the ward councilmen, Charles B. Clifton, of the Third ward, retires in favor of Leslie M Daniel and James Craig, of the Fourth, in favor of Clarence L. Murphy. It is too soon to comment on the work of the new members as they have not yet had a chance to be heard from. Their official acts will be watched with interest, however, as there are many who wonder how they will fill the places of the retiring councilmen.

It was a significent thing that while every Plainfield Republican, who went to Elizabeth, New Year's Day, paid his respects to Governor Voorhees, there were a number who did not manage to bring up at U. S. Senator Kean's little annual gathering.

Business in Philadelphia.

Councilman Jan vanHerwerden, of South avenue, will have business interests in Philadelphia this year. He has associated himself with a banking institution of that city, where he will open a new department. This will be under his direction. He will, therefore, be absent from the city more or less of the time.

dents, he was the first to tell the mother. She hurried to the door, last night, with a vague fear, and queried, "Well doctor, what's happened to Fritz now?"

Immediately after the accident, Seals and Hyler were taken to police headquarters, where they gave their statements. They were corroborated by Harvey Apgar, of DeKalb avenue, an eye witness. At 10 o'clock, Hyler was released on is own recognizance. Seals was detained without bail and will appear before the county prosecutor sometime today. It is probable no action will be taken against him as the police believe he is blameless.

John F. Wiechers, the dead boy's father, has resided in Plainfield for many years and is well to do. He is a member of the New York Produce Exchange. There is another boy in the family, nine years old.

County Physician Westcott viewed the remains, late last night, and permitted them to be removed to the grief stricken home.

The funeral services will take place at the parents' residence Sunday afternoon at 4:30. The interment will be private.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Demick, Somerville, Ind. "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." You don't live by what you eat, but by what you digest and assimilate. If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food. You don't have to diet. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 5, "Facing the Future"—Text, Rev. xxi, 5.

"Behold I make all things new."

I wait for my story;
The birds cannot sing it,
Not one as he sits on the tree;
The bells cannot ring it,
But long years, oh, bring it,
Such as I wish it to be.

Each life is a story, unfolding its plot as years pass; a drama more interesting than any fancy can originate. What humor, what pathos, what heroism, what misery and meanness are woven in this play in which we all have part! What mingling of interests and yet what isolation in power for every one!

The new year comes up. No stopping the looms of life. All moves on the same as ever. This day is much like yesterday and the day before. The sun shines as ever, and the world moves in its accustomed grooves. So will it the day after we die. But, though things are as of old, we may become new. We are the ones that change. Our story grows. Birds and bells lose their old childhood art of foretelling the future, but we have the power of shaping that coming time as we please.

What shall this year yield for me? is a question well to ask now. What are you seeking? If more enjoyment, more money, more knowledge and influence, very likely it will bring some of what you wish, but not enough to satisfy, never enough to make the soul content. That would be impossible, because soul thirst is not quenched at those springs. New pleasure, new wealth, new knowledge and fresh power may all be good as far as they go, but new life is the only thing that keeps the soul young and capable of getting the good out of things. What are you worth today? Take account of stock and see what are your assets and liabilities. Has all you have obtained amounted to enough to pay for the labor expended? The world is full of riches. Mines of fabulous richness wait for you to stake your claim and work them.

If the old has been unsatisfactory, why not make this a different year? Hire out to the Lord of Life; get into His vineyard and at work for Him. New aims, new deeds, new friends, new inspiration and new rewards of effort all lie in this field. Life is grandly worth living and is worth living grandly.

Has the past year given some soul growth? Then be thankful and keep straight ahead. How much more there is to enjoy in the blessed pathways! Get all the pure pleasure possible out of life. Let life be exulting and joyous for you. Victory is not doleful, but shouts for gladness. Get and use the things of earth, but use them wisely for self and neighbor and God. Know all you can that will be helpful and right, and in all your getting get understanding. Know more in order to be better.

Make all fast to God.

Our lives need inspection often and thoroughly lest, like the Brooklyn bridge, some straps break, and by overloading the whole structure may collapse.

Make the vows hold firm. Renew them as they weaken or new strain comes on them. Suffer no rotten plank to remain. Remove all wornout things, and keep all the life fresh and firm with Christ.

Symptoms of Self.

Some of the manifestations of the self life are: A disposition to look at everything with an eye to how it will affect ourselves. It is an instinctive, wideawake looking out for what we call No. 1. There is a disease in the roots of some trees and vegetables called "root knot," which causes the roots, instead of stretching themselves out in the soil, to curl themselves back into a knot, stunting the growth and preventing fruit.

The self life is always unwittingly magnifying itself. It will talk incessantly of its doings and great achievements; it will relate incidents in its past life in such a way as to show off self to the best advantage.

A soul affected with mental root knot is always turning back upon itself, and if it preaches or prays or sings or gives money or enters any enterprise it has a keen faculty of seeing how the results will affect its own honor or reward or happiness.—Rev. G. D. Watson in "Way of Faith."

The Manliest Attitude.

The manliest attitude a man can take, whether he is still rejoicing in his youth or getting into years, is that attitude of awe and reverence which befits a man confronted by facts of our habitual experience, that attitude of dedicated will which, for so much received, pledges the best that it can give.—John W. Chadwick.

Not Gifts, but Graces.

God respects not the arithmetic of our prayers, how many they are; nor the rhetoric of our prayers, how long they are; nor the music of our prayers, how melodious they are; nor the logic of our prayers, how methodical they are; but the divinity of our prayers, how heart sprung they are. Not gifts, but graces, prevail in prayer.—Presbyterian.

A Continual Struggle.

Life is a wrestle. The contestants are inherited tendencies and our ideals. We must not weaken, but so overcome that the inherited tendencies shall prove a blessing and not a curse. We must direct our past into the mold of the present.—American Hebrew.

Four Things.

Four things a man must learn to do
If he would make his record true—
To think without confusion clearly,
To love his fellow men sincerely,
To act from honest motives purely,
To trust in God and heaven securely.
—New York Independent.

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

I am a mill man and work ten hours per day and am compelled to work all the time to make both ends meet, so I try to keep well as much as possible. I never was sick in my life until I was caught on a shaft, which has broken me down, but these two months have seemed like living to me. I took down sick, the doctor came, gave me an injection of morphine and I went to sleep. That is about all there was to that. I was up and at work again, but I kept getting down sick about one day in a week. I tried everything and was half sick all the time, but the change came the night I tried Ripans Tabules. Two months ago I bought of Young, the druggist in Lynn, Mass., one hundred and twenty Ripans Tabules and now I can say that I never felt better. A friend of mine was going to work with me two weeks ago and he said to me "Why, Miller, what is the matter with you?" Of course I knew I was all right and I asked, in surprise, "What do you mean?" He replied "Nothing, only that new walk you have got." I laughed and was not going to say anything when he said "What has done it, Miller?" All I could say was Ripans Tabules have done it and the knowing how to take them. The next morning he had a box of the Tabules in his pocket. Last Saturday night I bought my second box containing one hundred and twenty Tabules and I mean to keep them on hand all the time.

The Adaptable Woman

By Maud Robinson

"Hypocrite!" My friend Maisie Bender shot forth this remark just after her caller had gone.

"Why do you call that charming Mrs. Ainsworth a hypocrite?" I demanded indignantly.

"Didn't you see how she agreed with everything I said?" Maisie retorted. "There wasn't one point on which she disputed me, yet I have heard that same woman express diametrically opposite views on the very same questions when she was with another woman. That's why I brought up the same subjects, I wanted to hear what she would say. But it's no use. You can't make her disagree with you. She won't disagree with any one."

"Happy woman!" I interjected.

"Oh, that's all very well," Maisie went on, "but at least I would like to see her consistent. You know she has a really brilliant mind, is a tremendous reader, and there's nothing she likes better than to talk to intellectual people. In fact, she has nothing in common with the type of woman the Germans designate as 'hausfrau.' Well, my dear, the other day she happened to call on a woman of this description—a woman who cared for nothing but her housework and kitchen. And what do you suppose happened? Why, she fascinated the creature completely. During the whole of her visit she talked most enthusiastically on household subjects, discussed the relative merits of Brown's and of Jones' baking powders and whether that new washing compound wore holes in the clothes or not. Fancy! And I don't believe she ever held a tin of baking powder in her hand during her whole life. Here's another instance: She can't endure children, you know, yet whenever she goes where there are any she plays with them in the most charming manner and quite wins the hearts of all the mothers.

"She will volubly discuss politics on Tuesday evening with Jack Witherington, who admires brainy women, and will make him admit she is the cleverest one he ever met, and yet on Wednesday, when Lester Carew appears on the scene (he has old fashioned ideas on the subject of women), she will display the most adorable and utterly feminine ignorance on all serious subjects.

"And then when she attends the meeting of the Society of Advanced Woman Thinkers she wears a costume so severe that it savors strongly of the masculine, yet that very afternoon she rushes home, effects a quick change and appears at the Van Sutphens' afternoon tea in a creation of most frivolous chiffons. Now, did you ever see such a contradiction?"

"Why, no!" I exclaimed. "She is the adaptable woman, the woman who is born to be the delight of her husband and of society at large. She is the woman who will never offend you by indulging in a different frame of mind from your own.

"It is certain that she will never be straitlaced in Bohemia or Bohemian in the salons of Mrs. Grundy. When she goes to a strange country, she will almost instantly adapt herself to its ways and customs. When her husband loses her fortune, she will look as attractive in print gowns as she did in brocade ones, and she will do her housework with the same grace with which she received her guests at dinner parties.

"When by chance she has to do with inferior people, she will come down to their own level in talking to them, and when she has dealings with individuals who are her superiors in life she will raise herself to meet them. In other words, the adaptable woman is all things to all people."

But Maisie shook her head disapprovingly. She herself is not an adaptable woman

My Strangest Case

[Copyrighted, 1901, by Ward, Lock & Co.]

"No! No!" said Kitwater, "it's too late. We'd better be getting back to the camp as soon as may be."

"Very well," Hayle replied, reluctantly.

They accordingly picked up their iron bars and replaced the stone that covered the entrance to the subterranean passage.

"I don't like leaving it," said Hayle, "it don't seem to me to be safe, somehow. Think what there is down there. Doesn't it strike you that it would be better to fill our pockets while we've the chance? Who knows what might happen before we can come again?"

"Nonsense," said Kitwater. "Who do you think is going to rob us of it? What's the use of worrying about it? In the morning we'll come back and fill our bags, and then clear out of the place for civilization as if the devil and all were after us. Just think, my lads, what there will be to divide."

"A million apiece, at least," said Hayle rapturously, and then in an awed voice he added, as if he were discomfited by his own significance, "I never thought to be worth a quarter of that. Somehow it doesn't seem as if it can be real."

"It's quite real," said Mr. Codd, as he sprinkled some dry dust round the crack of the stone to give it an appearance of not having been disturbed. "There's no doubt of it."

When he had finished they picked up their tools and set off on their return journey to the camp. The sun had disappeared behind the jungle when they left the courtyard of the Three Elephants' Heads and ascended the stone steps towards the inner moat. They crossed the bridge, and entered the outer city in silence. The place was very dreary at that hour of the day, and to Codd, who was of an imaginative turn of mind, it seemed as if faces out of the long deserted past were watching him from every house. His companions, however, were scarcely so impressionable. They were gloating over the treasure they had won for themselves, and one, at least, was speculating as to how he should spend his share. Suddenly Hayle, who was looking down a side street, uttered an exclamation of surprise.

"Did you see that?" he inquired of Kitwater. Then, without waiting for a reply, he dived into the nearest ruin and disappeared from view.

"What on earth is the matter with him?" inquired Kitwater of Codd. "Has he gone mad?"

Codd only shook his head. Hayle's doings were more often than not an enigma to him. Presently, however, the runaway made his appearance before them. His face was flushed and he breathed heavily. Apparently he had been running, and for some distance.

"Don't you see him?" he inquired of his companions, in some surprise.

"See who?" asked Kitwater, with elevated eyebrows. "Who do you think you saw?"

"A man," Hayle replied. "I am ready to take my oath I saw him cross that narrow street back yonder."

"Was it one of our own men, do you think?" said Codd, referring to the two Burmen they had brought with them.

"Not a bit of it," Hayle replied. "I tell you, Kitwater, I am as sure as I am of anything that the man I saw was a Chinaman."

"Gammon," said Kitwater. "There isn't a Chinaman within 50 miles of the ruins. You are unduly excited. You'll be seeing a regiment of Scott's guards presently if you are not careful."

"I don't care what you say, it was a man I saw," the other answered. "Good Heavens! won't you believe me when I say that I saw his pigtail?"

"Believe you, of course, I will," replied Kitwater, good-humoredly. "It's a pity you didn't catch hold of him by it, however. No, no, Gid, you take my word for it, there are no Chinamen about here. What do you think, Codd?"

Mr. Codd appeared to have no opinion, for he did not reply.

By this time they had crossed the last bridge and had left the city behind them. The jungle was lulling itself to sleep, and drowsy croonings sounded on every hand. So certain was Hayle that he had not been mistaken about the man he declared he had seen, that he kept his eyes well open to guard against a surprise. He did not know what clump of bamboo might contain an enemy, and, in consequence, his right hand was kept continually in his pocket in order not to lose the grip of the revolver therein contained. At last they reached the top of the hill and approached the open spot where their camp was situated.

"What did I tell you?" said Kitwater, as he looked about the camp and could discover no traces of their two native servants. "It was one of our prowling rascals you saw, and when he comes back I'll teach him to come spying on us. If I know anything of the rattan, he won't do it again."

Hayle shrugged his shoulders. While the fact that their servants were not at the camp to anticipate their return was certainly suspicious, he was still as convinced as ever that the man he had seen slipping through the ruins was no Burman, but a true son of the celestial empire.

Worn out by the excitement of the day, Kitwater anathematized the servants for not having been there to prepare the evening meal, but while he and Hayle wrangled, Mr. Codd had as usual taken the matter into his own hands, and, picking up a cooking pot, had set off in the direction of the stream, whence they drew their supply of water. He had not proceeded very far, however, before he uttered a cry and came running back to the camp. There was a scared expression upon his face as he rejoined his companions.

"They've not run away," he cried, pointing in the direction whence he had come. "They're dead!"

"Dead?" cried Kitwater and Hayle together. Then the latter added: "What do you mean by that?"

"What I say," Codd replied. "They're both lying in the jungle back there with their throats cut."

"Then I was right after all," Hayle found time to put in. "Come, Kit, let us go and see. There's more than we bargained for at the back of all this."

They hurried with Codd to the spot where he had discovered the bodies, to find that his tale was too true. Their two unfortunate servants were to be seen lying one on either side of the track, both dead and shockingly mutilated. Kitwater knelt beside them and examined them more closely.

"Chinese," he said, laconically. Then after a pause he continued: "It's a good thing for us we had the foresight to take our rifles with us to-day, otherwise we should have lost them for a certainty. Now we shall have to keep our eyes open for trouble. It won't be long in coming, mark my words."

"You don't think they watched us at work in that courtyard, do you?" asked Hayle, anxiously, as they returned to the camp. "If that's so, they'll have every atom of the remaining treasure, and we shall be done for."

He spoke as if until that moment they had received nothing.

"It's just possible they may have done so, of course," said Kitwater, "but how are we to know? We couldn't prevent them, for we don't know how many of them there may be. That fellow you saw this evening may only have been placed there to spy upon our movements. Confound it all, I wish we were a bigger party."

"It's no use wishing that," Hayle returned, and then after a pause he added: "Fortunately we hold a good many lives in our hands, and what's more, we know the value of our own. The only thing we can do is to watch, watch, and watch, and, if we are taken by surprise, we shall have nobody to thank for it but ourselves. Now if you'll stand sentry, Coddy and I will get tea."

They set to work, and the meal was in due course served and eaten. Afterwards Codd went on guard, being relieved by Hayle at midnight. Ever since they had made the ghastly discovery in the jungle, the latter had been more silent even than the gravity of the situation demanded. Now he sat, nursing his rifle, listening to the mysterious voices of the jungle, and thinking as if for dear life. Meanwhile his companions slept soundly on, secure in the fact that he was watching over them.

At last Hayle rose to his feet.

"It's my only chance," he said to himself, as he went softly across to where Kitwater was lying. "It must be now or never!"

Kneeling beside the sleeping man, he felt for the packet of precious stones they had that day obtained. Having found it he transferred it to his own pocket, and then returned to his former position as quietly as he had come. Then, having secured as much of their store of ammunition as he could conveniently carry, together with a supply of food sufficient to last him for several days, he deserted his post, abandoned his friends and disappeared into the jungle!

Lake of Perfume.

On the Mangishlak peninsula, in the Caspian sea, there are five small lakes. One of them is covered with salt crystals strong enough to allow a man and beast to cross the lake on foot; another is as round as any circle and a lovely rose color. Its banks of salt crystal form a setting, white as the driven snow, to the water, which not only shows all the colors from violet to rosy red, but from which rises a perfume as of violets. Both the perfume and the color are the result of the presence of seaweeds, the violet and the pink.—N. Y. Sun.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For Week Beginning Jan 5. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—That which comes first.—Matt. vi, 33; Gen. xii, 7, 8; Matt. viii, 22.

On the first Sabbath of the new year it is appropriate to study, first, things in our lives. Life is made up of many elements. All are important. No element of life is to be lightly esteemed. The most insignificant phase of life may be tremendously important to us. But some elements of life are more important than others. Some are to be placed first, with others second. That it is important to know the things which should come first in life is apparent to all. Ignorance on this subject might lead us to give undue emphasis to that which is of least importance at the expense of that which is most important. Many are placing the secondary things of life first and as a result are wasting or ruining their lives. Esau ruined his life by failing to appreciate what should have been of first importance in his life, and many modern Esaus are following in his footsteps.

The topical references suggest several things that should come first in our lives.

1. The kingdom of God should come first. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Life presents two kingdoms before us—the kingdoms of the world and of God. Which shall be sought first? Many seek first the kingdom of the world, expecting to enter the kingdom of God when success in the world has been achieved. But this is not Christ's idea of the relative importance of these kingdoms. He says to His disciples, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God." But what about the things of the world? The man who seeks first the kingdom of God may leave these things to God. God controls the kingdom of this world as well as His own kingdom, and to those who are truly His children He will give all of this world that is needful and consistent with His eternal good.

2. Thanksgiving and prayer should come first. The first thing that Abraham did when God promised him the land of Canaan was to erect an altar in His name. His first act after he had pitched his tent between Bethel and Hai was to "build an altar unto the Lord and call upon the name of the Lord." Abraham's altars signified thanksgiving and prayer. For the new blessings that come into our lives with each new day we should erect altars of thanksgiving and prayer to our Lord.

3. Service to Christ should come first. "Jesus said unto him, Follow me, and let the dead bury their dead." In no better way could Christ have enforced the principle that service to Him should come first in our lives. No duty is more sacred than the duty we owe to our dead, and yet Christ here declares that even this duty is second to that which we owe to Him. "Follow me, and let the dead bury their dead." Thus is the supreme claim of Christ upon our lives enforced. If it stands above our most sacred duty, it stands necessarily first above all other duties. "Christ first" should be the motto of our lives.

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. xxxv, 1-7; I Sam. i, 9-11; Ps. cv, 1-5; cxxxvii, 5, 6; Prov. iii, 13-18; Eccl. xii, 1, 13, 14; Mark ii, 14; John ix, 4; I Cor. xii, 31; II Cor. viii, 5.

Prayer.

O thou Divine Life, in whose greatness the smallness and the fragmentariness of our imperfect lives may be taken up and blessed and forgiven and made more nearly complete, Thou whose gentleness should make us great, we would be thankful for the beautiful promises that are always calling us to better and nobler lives! May all that is dull and unreceptive of good in us be quickened and aroused to high devotion and holy will, that we may forever escape the dread coercion of evil deeds, the fatal unraveling of conscience, the days of feeble resolve, when the will would, but cannot, because it would not when it could! And may the thought that what we have sown that shall we also reap abide in our minds, with all its fear and all its solemn joy! Amen!—George R. Freeman.

The Church and the World.

The power of religion should leaven the world and not be leavened by it. Of course there must be interpenetration between the two, and I am not one of those who think that the church has nothing to learn from the world. Life is a big school, and it is part of God's plan to teach by means of the stimulus, pressure, temptation and difficulties of the world. But we hold that we are stronger than the world, that Christ has overcome the world, and our faith is similarly to overcome. The name we give to the spiritual life is holiness, but the positive side of holiness is an abounding spiritual vitality that takes hold of all that is best in life and is itself more sober, sane and attractive than anything the world can show.—Dr. W. T. Davison.

Burden Bearing.

Yestere'en the secret of loving
Came over me, strange and sweet,
As I sought with unuttered yearning
To clasp the dear Saviour's feet,
And this was the revelation,
If only 'twere understood—
It is ours to make men happy,
The Master's to make them good.

The heart that is full of trouble
A front of rebellion wears
The more that alone it suffers,
That nobody heeds or cares,
And there never was speech or sermon,
There never was "ought" or "should,"
Which goaded a wearied spirit
To seek and obtain the good.

But sympathy, sweet compassion,
Love's accents, tender and mild,
Sink anger and strife and sinning
To the peace of the little child.
It's bearing another's burden,
If only 'twere understood,
Gives that other the strength for climbing
To the high and holy and good.

—Philadelphia Ledger.

DECREASE IN LOSSES DURING LAST YEAR

Fewer Fires and Reduction in Losses to Property by Fire in Plainfield.

THE FIGURES COMPARED

WHAT DEPARTMENT OFFICIALS DECLARE IS STILL NEEDED.

Better Fire Protection at East and West Ends of City—Would be Needed in Case of Emergency—Other Things.

During the past twelve months the losses in this city by fire have been less than in some years previous. In fact, the losses per capita is decreasing proportionally with the increase of conflagrations, although in the last two years there have been more fires than ever before in the history of the city.

A record breaker was scored in 1900 when the losses approximated $49,000, but it should be remembered that this abnormal condition was due to the fact that there were two terrible blazes, one at Cadmus' mill and the other at the Chapot factory. This is the unknown quantity which cannot be reckoned upon and it is apt to make the losses foot up to big round figures at any time. In 1901, the total amount of damage done is estimated at $10,200. For 1899, the report shows that the losses, in toto, amounted to $20,000.

There were thirteen more conflagrations in 1900 than in 1901, the number being ninety-two against seventy-nine.

Here in Plainfield the danger is more from fires where $10,000 is involved than from those in which the damage might be $5,000. The opposite is the rule in many other cities. This is accounted for by the fact that there are many handsome residences luxuriously furnished within the bounds of the city. There are more fires here, as a rule, than in other places of a like size. Generally for a city with a population as large as Plainfield, it is declared, that there are not more than sixty-five fires during a given year.

For the apparatus at hand and the numbers of men in the service the local department obtains better results than the great majority of cities, where a comparison can be made. The one bad feature is said to be that the city department has failed to grow in proportion to the increase of population. In the last five years the west end of Plainfield has grown wonderfully and is not the department officials feel protected as it should be. Should a big fire occur in that locality it would be necessary for the service at headquarters on East Second street to be called out, thus leaving the centre of the city exposed. This, it is claimed, should never be allowed as there is too much property in the heart of the city to be placed in danger while the entire attention is being paid to some so called suburban locality.

Again at Netherwood there is much valuable property, and this must be covered by the service at headquarters. It is claimed that there should be a fire house there in order that efficient service might be done. Of course the men at headquarters are able to reach the Netherwood district in five minutes, but it is said that a local station there would be much more satisfactory.

The appliances are said to be below what they should be in a city like Plainfield. What is alleged to be needed is more houses and with them more apparatus to cope with big conflagrations. With these would come more men. In the past the want has not been sorely needed, but it is claimed that no one is able to tell just when such a condition will arise as would demand better service. It is because of this contingency that persons in a position to know declare that the city should see to it that steps are taken to improve the department.

BIG DAMAGES.

Mrs. Noah O'Brien Suing for $25,000 For the Loss of Three Toes.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Jan. 3—The case of Mrs. Nora O'Brien against the New Jersey Central Railroad Company, which came up for trial before Judge Schenck on Thursday, has excited unusual interest. The plaintiff's side of the case has been closed and the defense will open Monday. Mrs. O'Brien sues to recover $25,000 damages for the loss of three toes, lost by being run down by an engine last summer.

A stiff legal battle is being made, the company claiming that the damage was due to the negligence of the woman entirely. According to the woman's story she was crossing the eastbound tracks at the station here, one morning, to catch a train for New York, when an express struck her. She landed on the fender, but in some manner three toes were severed by the engine. She also received severe bruises in the side and was otherwise injured.

Dungan and Reger represent the plaintiff while Hon. Alvah A. Clark is counsel for the company.

SEALS HELD, OUT ON BAIL

City Judge Runyon Held the Motorman of Car That Killed Young Wiechers.

THE TESTIMONY TAKEN.

Hearing Took Place Yesterday Afternoon at Police Headquarters — Motorman Seals Charged With Gross Negligence—Cause Not Settled.

After two hours of testimony, taken before City Judge Runyon at police headquarters, yesterday afternoon, Frank B. Seals, motorman of car No. 11 which crushed out the life of George Frederick Weichers Thursday evening, was held without bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. The matter will then be probed thoroughly to determine whether or not the defendant is guilty of gross carelessness in causing the boy's death as alleged in the complaint preferred against him by Chief Kiely

At the hearing yesterday, there were present Senator Charles A. Reed, counsel for Seals; Prosecutor N. C. J. English for the State; Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, in the interests of the bereaved faimly; County Physician F. W. Westcott and Dr. J. T. Fritts, of the street railway company.

In all nine witnesses, subpoened by Chief Kiely, were examined and gave their testimony. They were Joseph Krewson, of Plainfield avenue; Augustus Runyon, of Lafayette place; Nelson Giles, of Dunellen; John Hyler, of West Front street, conductor of car No. 11; Harvey Apgar, of DeKalb avenue; Robert Stryker, of Mariners avenue; Charles Callahan, of East Second street; George Waldron, of West Fourth street, motorman of car No. 12, which was going west at the time of the accident, and Chief Kiely. The defendant's counsel refused to allow him to testify.

Of those appearing the most important evidence was given by Giles, Apgar, Stryker, Waldron and Callahan, the first three being passengers on No. 15. All testified on similar lines, to wit: That the boy was riding alongside of No. 11 in the center of the two tracks, that he turned to the left near Plainfield avenue to avoid No. 15 which had stopped and was then forced to swerve sharply to the right because of a hay wagon which blocked his path; that the front wheel of his bicycle slipped on a rail (three were positive of this) and he was thrown to the ground within ten feet of the approaching car; also that Seals was attending to his duty and did everything in his power to prevent the accident.

The prosecution attempted to bring out that the fender striking the rear wheel of the bicycle was the cause of the boy's falling, but this was not proven by any of these witnesses. None of those testifying heard Searls sound a warning gong just previous to the accident but Callahan stated he kad heard it rung a number of times when the boy remained ahead of the car on the way down from Grant avenue.

In summing up, Prosecutor English stated that the object in taking the evidence was to determine whether the facts justified the commitment of Seals to jail without bail or his exoneration. In either case, he said the matter would be considered by the Grand Jury but if the defendant was released at the present time there was a possibility of his being out of the State when his case was taken up.

Senator Reed maintained that the evidence given had showed that instead of being guilty of gross neglect, Seals had done all in his power to prevent the deplorable accident. It would not have happened, he said, but for the slipping of the bicycle. The boy took the chance and it cost him his life, therefore said Mr. Reed, where was the need of holding the defendant as a criminal?

In rebuttal, Counsellor Marsh averred that Seals should have rung a warning bell or shouted to the boy not to cross, also that it was his duty to immediately stop his car when he saw another car and a wagon preventing the boy from going to the left.

It was on this latter statement that City Judge Runyon, in rendering his decision, based his opinion that Seals should be held. There is a possibility, he said, in the defendant being negligent in not stopping the car when the

COUNCIL DECIDES TO IMPROVE BOROUGH JAIL

Appropriation Made to Do Away With the Present Unsatisfactory Condition.

OTHER BUSINESS DONE.

NOT MUCH WAS DONE AT BOROUGH COUNCIL MEETING.

Andrew Love, Sr., and John G. McLaughlin Appointed to the Borough Board of Health—Some Routine Matters.

A few appointments and an arrangement to improve to some extent, at least, the present condition of the borough lockup made up the sum total of the important business transacted by the Borough Council, at its regular monthly meeting last evening.

It is almost unnecessary to state that Messrs. Swackhamer and Coddington were the absentees. Mayor Smalley gave notice that W. W. Howland had declined to serve as a member of the sewage committee and, that in his place he named Captain W. C Smith. He also nominated John G. McLaughlin as a member of the Board of Health in place of L. E. Barkalew, whose term had expired and a reappointment declined. Andrew Love, the present head of the Board of Health, was again named. All the appointments were confirmed.

The collector's account for the month of December was as follows: Taxes and interest, $15,761.20; board of health, $188.42; special school, $7,365; Plainfield Street R. R. Co., work on Somerset street, $882.22; Frank Rowley, fines $86.50; bills payable, note, $6,000; balance on hand, Dec. 1, $7,481.06; total $37,564.40; disbursements, $30,664.49; cash on hand, Jan. 1, $6,899.91. The report of Chairman Clark of the street committee for December was as follows: Expenditures—Cleaning streets, $41; C. F. Debele, repairing Rock road, $7.50; J. J. Heideloff, supplies, $1.10; D. C. Ivins, coal used in steam roller, $17.45; total $67.05.

Nine arrests had been made and $84 in fines collected during December, according to the report of Chairman Lee, of the marshals' committee. On motion of Chairman Nicholls, of the finance committee, it was resolved to borrow $7,000, payable on demand, in order to meet a note for $6,000 about to fall due.

Following the custom in vogue during the last few years, an appropriation was made for the purpose of having the books of the Borough Collector and Treasurer regularly examined. The sum of $100 was voted for this purpose.

Mayor Smalley declared that he had received a number of complaints from residents along Somerset street concerning the undue noise made by the old cars of the trolley line passing along that thoroughfare. In order that this may be remedied, Chairman Clark, of the street committee, will communicate with the officials of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company.

A statement was made by Mr. Lee as to the condition of the present borough lockup, which he declared almost unfit for use. There is no ventilation since the windows have been closed by the erection of a stair case on the west side of the structure. The interior he said was simply filthy and needed thorough renovation. For this purpose he asked an appropriation of $50, which was passed very quickly, all the other members of the body holding the same opinion apparently.

From all quarters of the globe come letters to Peck, of West Front street, ordering his goods. His laces, embroidery are of the prettiest design. You might hunt the world over and not be any better suited. He also keeps a choice line of flannels, hosiery, handkerchiefs, etc.

"Perfectly lovely" is what everybody says of the sterling silver trifles at Collier's Park avenue jewelry store. Scores of fancy designs and patterns in pins, braclets and other trifles, which it is impossible to duplicate at other stores. Of course there are many in gold, too, which must be seen to be appreciated.

A Plainfield commuter believes in Poor Richard's maxim "A stitch in time saves nine." The other day he purchased four bottles of E. S. F. Randolph's cough syrup for presents to his clerks in New York. He remarked that he didn't want any of his men laid up with colds. Remember the name—E. S. F. Randolph.

The remark "I don't take much stock in that," is often heard. Woodhull & Martin are now taking stock preparatory to the spring season. DECLINE OF THE LOBSTER.

Fisheries Report Shows Falling Off in Important Industry.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—An increase of over 9,000,000 in the fish and fisheries eggs distributed by the government throughout the country and a marked decline in lobster fishing are shown in the annual report of United States Commissioner of Fisheries Bowers for the last fiscal year.

The total fish and eggs distributed were 1,173,833,400, the principal species being shad, salmon, lake trout, whitefish, pike, perch, lake herring, cod, flatfish and lobsters. In addition to the regular work on the great lakes plans were matured to begin the propagation of lake herring there. The collection of lake trout eggs in Lakes Superior and Michigan, which nearly doubled that of last year, aggregated 224,000,000, from which 19,000,000 fry were hatched. The report says the canvass of the great lakes had been taken up only in 1899, when the yield and value were nearly equal to those of 1890, the largest on record. The total yield was 113,728,000 pounds, worth $2,611,400. There were 9,678 persons employed in the fisheries, and $6,617,000 was invested.

It becomes each year more difficult to secure lobster eggs along the coast of New England. The continued steady decline of this important fishing industry renders it the more important efforts should be made to re-establish it by artificial propagation. The decrease is most noticeable south of Cape Cod. During the year there were hatched and planted in New England waters 202,870,000 cod, 44,000,000 flatfish and 60,000,000 lobsters.

In recent years the fisheries of the Mississippi and its tributaries have developed to such a degree that in 1899 they exceeded in quantity and nearly equaled in value the entire yield of the remaining interior waters of the United States except the great lakes. Mussel shells, extensively used in the manufacture of pearl buttons, were a valuable item, some 45,500,000 pounds being gathered, for which the fishermen obtained $247,000,000.

Various prison officials testified as to the incidents of the outbreak. The commissioner remanded the three prisoners into the warden's care to be held for the United States grand jury.

A SHIP LOST AT SEA

The Walla Walla In Collision With Unknown Vessel.

MORE THAN A SCORE ARE DROWNED

Passengers Were Asleep When the Crash Came—Ship Sank In Thirty-five Minutes—Captain Hall's Story of the Disaster.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4.—A collision at sea between the steamship Walla Walla, Captain Hall, and an unknown sailing vessel resulted in the sinking of the steamship and probable loss of at least twenty lives. The Walla Walla, owned by the Pacific Coast Steamship company, sailed from San Francisco Jan. 1 for Puget sound ports. She carried thirty-six first class passengers, twenty-eight second class and a crew of eighty men. When off Cape Mendocina, on the California coast, at 4:10 o'clock Thursday morning, an iron bark, believed to be French, loomed up in the haze and crashed in the Walla Walla's bow. Then the sailing vessel slid off into the darkness and was seen no more.

All the passengers and crew of the Walla Walla except the few on watch were asleep, but were aroused by the crash. The steerage quarters were in the bow, and it is believed that some of the steerage passengers and crew were crushed to death. A big hole was made in the steamer's bow, and she sank in thirty-five minutes. The officers and crew maintained strict discipline, and boats and life rafts were lowered.

All who were not killed in the collision got off except Captain Hall, who went down with his ship. He was picked up later by one of the boats uninjured, with the exception of a few bruises.

A choppy sea was running, and the small boats could not make a landing on the shore, a few miles distant. They drifted about all day, and finally sixty-five people were picked up by the steamer Dispatch, which took them to Eureka.

When the Dispatch reached Eureka in the morning with the survivors, tugs were immediately sent out for missing boats. The tug Ranger picked up one containing eleven passengers and three of the crew.

The Walla Walla was valued at about $250,000. She was formerly used as a collier and about ten years ago was converted into a passenger vessel at a cost of $175,000. The vessel was insured for about $260,000.

CAPTAIN HALL'S ACCOUNT.

Master of the Wrecked Ship Tells of the Disaster.

EUREKA, Cal., Jan. 4.—Captain A. L. Hall, master of the wrecked steamship, gives a graphic account of the disaster. He says:

"We left San Francisco Wednesday, being bound for Victoria and Puget sound. The weather thickened as the night advanced, and Thursday morning a heavy fog, accompanied by a light rain, set in. About 4:10 a. m. I was suddenly awakened by an awful crash on the port side well forward. Second Officer Luke was on watch at the time. The housing, especially in the vicinity of my cabin, was badly shattered, the main force of the collision striking her just forward of my stateroom. My bunk was struck and thrown across the room on my table.

"After the crash of the vessel, which, I think, was a French bark, judging from the language of her sailors, rebounded and groped alongside. I called to her to stand by. She drifted away and was lost to view. I could not tell how badly she was injured, but I do not imagine she was severely hurt, as she struck us bow on.

"Those of the passengers who had not been awakened by the crash were aroused at once. The vessel began to fill immediately, and she sank in thirty-five minutes. There was no confusion on board. The officers and crew kept the passengers from becoming panic stricken. The crew was immediately ordered to man the lifeboats and rafts, and an effort was made to save the baggage. This was given up, however, the vessel filling at such an alarming rate that no thought was given but for the safety of the passengers. I gave orders to have the port boilers blown out, it being necessary to give the vessel a list to keep the gaping hole in her side out of the water.

"In a few moments all the lifeboats and rafts were out with the exception of two, which were smashed. One of these boats contained nine or ten passengers. All were thrown into the water, but managed to board a life raft which had been launched a few minutes previously. The second boat was smashed by striking a heavy object in the water, but all the passengers were rescued by another life raft. We had about sixty-five first and second class passengers on board and 160 souls all told.

"We had no knowledge of the approach of the vessel striking us, the weather being so thick she was not seen until we had been struck. It was very dark at the time, and the uncertain light interfered to a great extent with the rescue of the passengers. I remained on board assisting them. I went down with the ship. After I had been down, I don't know how long, the social hall deck broke off, and I floated to the surface with it. Sighting a life raft, I commenced swimming and succeeded in reaching it after a hard struggle and was pulled on board by the three occupants. We floated about nearly all day and early in the evening were picked up a few miles to the north of the wreck by the steamer Dispatch, which was proceeding to Seattle.

GREAT SOCIAL EVENT

President's Eldest Daughter Presented to Society.

BRILLIANT AFFAIR AT WHITE HOUSE

Five Hundred Guests Attend Ball In Honor of Miss Alice Roosevelt. First White House Debutante Since 1873.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Miss Alice Roosevelt, the eldest daughter of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, was formally presented to Washington society last night at a ball given in her honor at the White House. About 500 guests in all were present, many of whom either were connections of the Roosevelt family or well known society people living outside of Washington. Miss Roosevelt is the first White House debutante since 1873, when Miss Nellie Grant, the daughter of President and Mrs. Grant, was presented to society at a ball which was the gayest social event of the decade.

The entertainment was given a personal rather than an official character by Mrs. Roosevelt, whose wish was that Miss Roosevelt should make her debut much as though it had taken place in her own private home rather than in the White House. There was no cotillion and consequently no favors.

When the ball was opened, the interior of the White House was most attractive. Never before have the floral decorations been more beautiful. The massive mirrors, chandeliers, columns and ceiling of the east room, where the dancing occurred, were festooned and garlanded with smilax, maidenhair fern and asparagus trimmed with bouquets of carnation. More than a mile of green festooning was used in this way.

The window recesses were filled with palms rising out of banks of variegated foliage. The mantels were banked with roses and azalias set in tropical crotons and crowned above with screw pines. English holly was used in profusion in the decorations. The red, green and blue parlors also were adorned on the same lavish scale.

When the guests arrived at the White House, they were conducted to the blue parlor, where the presentations were made. Mrs. Roosevelt introducing her daughter. The latter presented a charming appearance in a dress of white chiffon, with white roses, and wearing jewels which her father gave her at Christmas.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore pure white, with a trimming of white lace and lilac orchids. Miss Helen Roosevelt, a cousin of the president and who also was of the immediate party of the hostess, wore white chiffon, with white satin ribbon, and Miss Cutting wore white lace trimmed with tulle, with pink roses. Miss Roosevelt was the recipient of many floral pieces of beautiful design, sent to her in honor of her "coming out" day. The president enjoyed the occasion heartily and mingled freely among the young folks.

The dancing, which began shortly after 10 o'clock and included a programme of twenty numbers, was held in the large east room, the scene of so many brilliant functions of the past.

The company who gathered to do honor to the daughter of the chief executive was a thoroughly representative one of Washington society and also included a generous contingent of gentlemen from Harvard, Yale and Princeton universities and society folk from out of town.

CONSUMPTIVES NOT WANTED.

Sullivan County, N. Y., Making a Vigorous Fight Against Such Patients.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Sullivan county is instituting a vigorous crusade against the admission of tuberculosis patients. The Liberty board of health has passed an ordinance imposing a fine of $50 for maintaining a hospital or sanitarium for consumptives within the village limits. The board of health of the town of Rockland has just adopted an ordinance imposing a fine of $50 on any resident of the town for keeping or harboring a consumptive who is not a member of the family of the resident or dependent on them for support.

The board of health of Monticello has instructed real estate agents to discriminate against consumptives in renting property. At the Loomis sanitarium for consumptives, established four miles from Liberty through the generosity of Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, hundreds of consumptives are unable to secure admission.

Three Important Investigations.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—The Record-Herald today says: "The interstate commerce commission will begin a series of three investigations in Chicago next Tuesday which are said to have for their purpose the gathering of data for a special message by President Roosevelt to congress. It is said that in this special message President Roosevelt will deal with three subjects, as follows: Railway combinations, the interstate commerce commission and legislation governing interstate traffic. Originally it was the purpose of the president to cover those subjects fully in his annual message to congress, but owing to the inability of the interstate commerce commission to get all the facts necessary these subjects were touched upon but briefly and were left to be handled in a supplementary message."

Judgment Against the Hayes Estate.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 4.—The circuit court has handed down a decision affirming a decision of the lower courts giving Mrs. Adelaide Smith of Fremont a judgment of $5,400 against the estate of the late President R. B. Hayes. This is the second time this case has been in the circuit court. Upon the first hearing in the common pleas court Mrs. Smith secured a judgment of $7,500. The circuit court reduced it to $5,000, and the supreme court then remanded the case back to the common pleas court for a rehearing on an error. The common pleas court at the second hearing gave Mrs. Smith a verdict of $5,400, and the circuit court has now affirmed this. Mrs. Smith was bitten by a dog belonging to the late president, and this is the cause for action.

Boy Strangely Missing.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Yesterday morning Harry Lunn, a fifteen-year-old bellboy at the Ellicott hotel, left this city with County Superintendent of Poor Mark T. Howard to go to Frewsburg, where a large factory owned by Mr. Howard was burning. They left this city at 3:45, and upon their arrival the young man decided to return at once to Jamestown. He had not returned at noon. The proprietor of the livery stable sent out a team to obtain a trace of the missing rig. The carriage and horse were found some distance from Frewsburg. Lunn's coat was found a short distance from the buggy, but no trace of the boy could be found.

American Shipbuilding.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—During the six months ended Dec. 31, 1901, there were built in the United States and officially numbered by the bureau of navigation 717 rigged vessels of 154,073 gross tons compared with 568 rigged vessels of 179,229 gross tons for the corresponding six months of 1900. Canalboats and unrigged barges are not included. The principal decline, 19,752 tons, is on the Atlantic seaboard and is attributable to work on several large ocean steamers which will be completed during the coming six months.

Wiltberger, a farmer, near here last April for his money, was sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary. He received the verdict with a smile. WHITE SLAVE TRADE.

Grave Charges Regarding Sale of French Sailors.

NANTES, France, Jan. 4.—Le Petit Phare publishes a leading article, entitled the "White Slave Trade," in which the paper follows up the charges of crimping methods employed at Portland, Or., contained in a letter signed by eight French captains and dated Portland, Nov. 22, and published by this paper Dec. 28, in which the writers asked the French consul general at San Francisco to intervene and demanded a government inquiry into the subject. The article contains extracts from letters of French captains showing that eighty-seven French sailors were beaten and deserted their ships at Portland during the month of November.

Le Petit Phare urges that French diplomatic action be taken in this matter and says:

"This scandal must cease. It extends even to San Francisco. It is not worth the trouble for the French parliament to vote premiums to our merchant marine simply to fatten these pirates and permit them to sell French sailors like cattle at a fair."

Our Representation at Coronation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—It is understood that a way may be found by which two naval officers of high rank will take part in the coronation ceremonies at London. The question of selecting officers for this service has not yet been considered by the president or the secretary of the navy, but the prospect that such selections will be made has caused much speculation in naval circles. The present indications are that the president will select a civilian representative for the coronation and also one officer of the army and one officer of the navy to accompany this civilian. Quite apart from this, the navy will be represented by a squadron in English waters, with a rear admiral in command. The effect of this arrangement will be to place two naval officers of high rank in service in connection with the coronation.

New Mode of Coaling Warships.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The navy department has approved the recommendation of the construction board for the adoption of an entirely new system of coaling warships to be applied to the new battleships, armored cruisers and the St. Louis class of protected cruisers. At present there are a number of scuttles, and the openings through the deck are a source of disorder and danger. The new system will employ booms and will deliver the coal through the large hatches directly to the coal bunkers. By the new system three coal barges can be employed simultaneously, alongside a warship without interference with one another. The change is in the interest of simplicity of operation and will effect a material saving in time in coaling ships.

Rear Admiral and Did Not Know It.

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—Information from Washington shows that Captain Richard Leary, U. S. N., who died at Chelsea a few days ago, died a rear admiral without being conscious of the fact. It was a promotion that he had looked for, and it is said to be the one thing that he worried over during his last moments. The appointment was made the day before he died, but it was only when his brother-in-law, Dr. Fairfax Irwin, returned from Captain Leary's funeral at Annapolis to the marine hospital at Chelsea that the appointment was found.

No Bill Against Mrs. Dale.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The grand jury of Hudson county, N. J., returned a number of indictments yesterday. It is understood that the jury has failed to find a bill against Mrs. Emeline Dale, who was charged with the murder of her five-year-old daughter. The effort to connect Mrs. Dale with the crime failed before the coroner's jury, and she is now on bail pending the action of the grand jury.

Gans Won In Six Rounds.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 4. — Thomas Broderick of Yonkers, N. Y., was knocked out last night by Joe Gans of Baltimore in the sixth round of a fight scheduled for twenty rounds at the Eureka Athletic club. Broderick was the aggressor for the first two rounds and knocked Gans down in the second with a right swing on the jaw, Gans staying down the limit.

Out In Second Round.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—James Ferns of Kansas knocked out Jack Bennett of McKeesport, Pa., in the second round last night at the Industrial Athletic club. The fight was to have gone six rounds.

HOT CONTEST IN OHIO

Fight For Speakership of the House Fiercely Waged.

THE RESULT IS STILL IN DOUBT.

Vote In Caucus Alone Will Determine the Hanna-Foraker Struggle For Control of the Legislature.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4.—The so called Foraker-Hanna contest over the organization of the Ohio legislature closed its last day with neither Price nor McKinnon assured of the necessary thirty-five votes for the Republican nomination for speaker. Sacrifice hits on both sides are being made for all other places to get votes for McKinnon and Price, and it is conceded that the ballot in caucus this afternoon is the only "sure thing."

While McKinnon and Price are claiming thirty-seven votes each, their managers, who keep books, are more conservative. Congressman Dick, director general for McKinnon, said, "We gained two in the declarations of Binkley of Perry and Fisher of Medina, and we want a couple more."

The Price men concede McKinnon only twenty-nine, but conservative watchers say each has thirty-three sure and that each needs at least two more votes.

George B. Cox, manager for Price, said last night: "There are still seven doubtful Republican representatives. We need two or three of them and the others four or five."

While Dick, Cox and others are after recruits their lieutenants are having lively times in bolding their men in line and in guarding them in many instances. Members on both sides are accompanied by friends wherever they go, even to their meals and to bed. There are sentinels about the hotels and at the railroad stations to see that none get away or into strange company. Representative Willis turned on his escort yesterday and publicly denounced the "organized espionage on both sides."

He afterward attempted to start a movement to drop both Price and McKinnon and take up a new man for speaker.

While Foraker will have no opposition for the Republican nomination for senator, the names of Charles W. Baker of Cincinnati and Judge A. W. Patrick of New Philadelphia will be presented for the Democratic nomination for senator, with the odds in favor of Baker.

Fraud Trials Called For Today.

HAVANA, Jan. 4.—The trials of the cases growing out of the postoffice embezzlements in Cuba are scheduled to begin here today at noon. Senores Lanuza and Desvernine, attorneys for Estes G. Rathbone, will apply for a suspension of the trial of their client on the ground that the interrogatories admitted and ordered by the court to be forwarded from the United States and other places have not yet arrived here and that the testimony already received has not yet been translated into Spanish, as has been done with the other documents in the case. If the court does not grant an adjournment of the trial of Rathbone until such time as the evidence shall be fully prepared, Senores Lanuza and Desvernine will withdraw from their positions as counsel for Rathbone on the plea that under such conditions their client should not be tried.

The Dangers of Sing Sing.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 4.—President Lispenard Stewart of the state prison commission in a report made to that body urges the importance of a new fireproof roof on the cell building of Sing Sing prison. The report states: "It takes over an hour every morning to unlock the 1,200 separate cells, and twenty-four men are available for this work. During the nighttime only four hall men are on duty, and should a fire occur in the night it would be a manifest impossibility even to release the prisoners from their cells. That such a chance of burning its wards alive is taken by the state is a disgrace to civilization."

To Preserve Adirondack Forest.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—At a meeting of the Adirondack League club in the rooms of the New York board of trade and transportation, 203 Broadway, W. G. Rockefeller sent a check for $500, saying he regretted not being able to give his time and attention to forest preservation in the Adirondack region. The committee on plan and scope, with A. G. Mills as chairman, suggested the formation of the Association For the Preservation of the Adirondack Forests, Waters, Game and Fish. A constitution and bylaws were also submitted. The report of the committee was adopted and a board of trustees elected.

Preparing For Court's Entry.

PEKING, Jan. 4.—The foreign ministers have generally decided to ignore the request of the court officials to keep their countrymen off the streets during the court's re-entry into Peking. The most extensive preparations are going on to decorate and refurnish the city. Troops and police are drilling daily in order to perfect themselves in the respective parts which they will take in the ceremony. The entry of the court into Paotingfu yesterday was marked by a great ovation to their majesties.

An Exaggerated Report.

VIENNA, Jan. 4.—The report published in the United States to the effect that fourteen Jews had been massacred at Zaweisna, Galicia, by a mob headed by three landowners turns out upon investigation to have been a common murdering affray in which three Jews were killed.

THE TREASURER'S REPORT.

In the great majority of cities in the Unite States, the public has little or no real idea of the financial status of the municipality. That does not mean that the city officials are always anxious to keep the facts from the public but simply that there appears to be no way in which the desired information can be learned. It is customary to publish the treasurer's report in the newspapers but, in most cases, it is such a jumble of figures that even an expert accountant has his troubles in discovering just exactly what the conditions are. The rest of the public gives up in dispair and has to be content with no knowledge at all.

How different, therefore, is the situation in Plainfield. In yesterday's Daily Press was published the complete report of W. F. Arnold, the city treasurer. It was so arranged that even those with a very vague idea of bookkeeping were able to understand it and read with interest the present financial condition of the city. For this, the city has to thank that very able official, Mr. Arnold. He has not only looked after the city's finances carefully but he has enabled the people to gain some idea as to what has been done with them and what now remains.

The report can be considered a great success in two ways. It contains information which goes to show that the floating indebtedness of the city has been cleared away and that a balance remains. This information is set forth clearly and intelligently so that the uninitiated as well as the expert can read it and understand.

A great percentage of the school children followed the advice of the Board of Education and were vaccinated during the holiday week. The number of employes at the local shops, who have not been vaccinated within the five year limit, is very large, however.

This remarkable howl from all sides concerning the dog tax makes it look if the assessors had been waging war against the dog owners. Never before has the Common Council been asked to remit so many taxes on dogs which are said not to exist.

Ordinarily Santa Claus is well on his journey home by this time but somehow he was delayed this year and some of his visits did not take place until after the new year had begun.

To Repeat Christmas Music.

The Christmas music will be repeated in the Church of the Heavenly Rest Sunday.

PLAINFIELD'S KICKS.

Will be Formally Presented to Vice-President Warren of New Jersey Central.

A committee, composed of J. F McDonald, L. B. Woolston and Harry C. Runyon, on behalf of the local Board of Trade, will visit Vice-President Warren, of the New Jersey Central Railroad Company, in his offices at Jersey City, Monday afternoon. The object of the visit is to formally lay before him the grievences of the citizens of this city regarding the service of the railroad company.

Attention will not only be directed to the "rag time" train service, but also to the unsightly condition of part of the old station which is boarded up. Complaint will also be made of the method of turning out most of the lights during the night and especially of the poorly lighted condition about the station in the early evening.

HOME COMING SERVICE.

Held by Endeavorers of Park Avenue Baptist Church.

A combined home coming and consecration service was held, last evening, under the auspices of the Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church. Several letters were read from former members who have removed from the city, among them being Rev. Asa R. Dilts, a former pastor. There was also special music including a solo, "Nearer My God to Thee," a duet, "Speak to My Soul," Miss Elsie Giles and Miss Florence G. Hawkins; trio, "Consecration," Miss Cora Brokaw, Miss Adelia Runyon and Wesley R. Brokaw.

DEATH OF JOS. SYMONS.

Former Plainfielder Passed Away at Brandon, Vt.

Joseph Symons, of Brandon, Vt., died from pneumonia, Thursday afternoon. He formerly resided in Plainfield and is well known here. His brother, Paul Symons, of East Third street, who hastened to the sick bed, arrived after Mr. Symons' death.

He was a prominent man in Brandon, being a member of the city council and also a leading officer in a militia company of that place. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

Coming Home.

A letter has been received from Corporal Fred W. Bowden, of the Second Cavalry Band, now at Matanzas, Cuba, saying that the band and four troops are about to be transferred from Matanzas to Fort Myer, Virginia. Mr. Bowden, who formerly was employed in The Daily Press office, adds that the boys are all glad that they are soon to return to "God's Country"

Officers Installed.

Stricken While Here.

Verdict for McQuean.

A verdict was given for the defendant in the contract case of Wolff & Company against Andrew McQuean, tried in the first district court of Jersey City Thursday afternoon. William G. DeMeza represented the defendant.

Elected Alternate.

At the regular meeting of Wetumpkah Tribe, No. 229, I. O. R. M., held Thursday evening, William A. Westphal was elected alternate to Robert Humphrey as representative to the Great Council.

New Organization.

The Ladies' Temperance Aid Society will be the name of an association to be organized at Reform Hall, tomorrow afternoon. It will work in conjunction with the Reform Club.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Demick, Somerville, Ind. "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." You don't live by what you eat, but by what you digest and assimilate. If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food. You don't have to diet. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

DUNELLEN.

The changing of the price of a school ticket from Dunellen to Plainfield from $1.50 to $2.30 has been the cause of many of the students of the Plainfield High School in town deserting the railroad for the trolley.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Interest in a baseball team, to represent Scotch Plains on the diamond during the coming summer, is already beginning to manifest itself. Means of raising the necessary capital to open the season in proper shape is being discussed. One, which has already been started, is a drawing for a gold watch. Scotch Plains enthusiasts showed by their support last season that they are willing to pay for a chance to see a good game and the management is promising a strong team and good games. During the past season the club erected seats along the right field line of the diamond. The rental was so successful that benches will be erected along the line near third base. Altogether the outlook, while yet early, is still very bright and encouraging.

The order of service at the Baptist church tomorrow will be Sunday-school at 9:30; morning preaching service, 10:45, subject, "Sacred Utterances From the Cross"; B. Y. P. Miss Nancy Wade, who has been spending her holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abram Wade, leaves today to resume her position as teacher in the public school at Mahwah, this State.

The extreme cold weather of the past two days has made good skating and if it continues for a few days longer, the annual ice harvest will be gathered by the local dealers.

The annual week of prayer will be observed at the Baptist church the coming week. Services will be held every evening but Saurday.

Children Especially Liable.

Burns, bruises and cuts are extremely painful and if neglected often result in blood poisoning. Children are especially liable to such mishaps because not so careful. As a remedy DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is unequalled. Draws out the fire, stops the pain, soon heals the wound. Beware of counterfeits. Sure cure for piles. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured my baby of eczema after two physicians gave her up," writes James Mock, N. Webster, Ind. "The sores were so bad she soiled two to five dresses a day." L. W. blockade ahead was seen. If it was an ordinary question, he declared, he would not hesitate to discharge the defendant but it was a case where a human life was involved and for that reason it should be gone into carefully by the Grand Jury.

Seals, who is forty-five years old, has been a motorman only since December 8. He is single and came to this city from Glen Gardner, last November. He feels his position keenly and several times yesterday was in a state bordering on nervous collapes.

Accompanied by his counsel, Seals was taken to Elizabeth this noon, where application was at once made to Judge Vail for his release on bail. The request was granted and the amount fixed at $500. It was furnished at once by a representative of the street railway company.

DE WINDT'S JOURNEY.

French Traveler and Companions Will Try to Reach New York by Way of the Arctics.

Harry De Windt and his companions, who will attempt to reach New York by traveling overland, started long since on their way to Behring strait. The trip will be across the continent to Siberia, where the Russian government will actively assist the explorer in his undertaking.

Vicomte de Clinchamp and George Harding accompany M. De Windt. This will be the third attempt M. De Windt has made to reach America entirely by land. On the first occasion, starting from New York, he managed to reach the Asiatic coast of the straits, but owing to his capture and subsequent ill treatment by

(Will Journey from Paris to New York Via the Arctics.)

Koari, the Tchuktchi chief, he narrowly escaped with his life and had to return.

He again attempted the journey in the reverse direction last year, but owing to the political situation in China and on the Amur Count Lamsdorf refused to allow De Windt to cross Siberia, and again M. De Windt had to relinquish the trip.

Now, however, he is receiving assistance from both the Russian and American authorities, including Commodore Melville, of Washington.

WEST VIRGINIA DIANA.

Lily Jackson, Daughter of Oldest Judge on Federal Bench, Is an Accomplished Hunter.

Miss Lily Irene Jackson, of Parkersburg, W. Va., daughter of Judge John Jay Jackson, the oldest judge in the federal bench in point of service, is the Diana of West Virginia. Judge Jackson was one of President Lincoln's appointees, nearly 40 years ago. At 77 years of age he is still one of the ablest judges on the bench and he is robust and active. His daughter is an accomplished horsewoman, a crack shot with rifle or shotgun, an enthusiastic hunter, a lover of fine horses and dogs and she can hunt all day without the slightest fatigue. On a recent occasion she went on a hunting trip and returned with 20 quail, all of which fell victims to her splendid aim. She never misses a shot on the hunt and frequently brought down more than one bird at a time. A game supper to a few of her friends followed her last hunting trip, for which she herself cooked the birds she had killed. She has hand-painted souvenir cards of her own handiwork, representing hunting scenes, and on each was a feather of one of her trophies.

MISS LILY IRENE JACKSON.
(As She Appeared on Return from a Recent Hunting Trip.)

Peculiar Detective System.

In Newcastle, England, professional shoppers are employed by a certain large firm of drapers to test the ability of shop assistants. This firm owns over 30 large shops and employs nearly 1,000 assistants. To find out whether every customer is politely served, a number of lady customers are employed to call at the various shops. They are told to give as much trouble as possible, and sometimes to leave without making a purchase after looking at nearly everything in the shop.

Gen. Hamilton's Spectacles.

A very remarkable story is current with regard to Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton's spectacles. It appears that the gallant officer, then a subaltern, lost a pair of spectacles in the battle of Majuba hill. They were apparently picked up by a Boer, whom they suited, and who kept them for 20 years. In the early part of the present year the spectacles were found on the body of a dead Boer. The case had Gen. Hamilton's name on it, and they were in due course returned to their original owner.

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

BOICE, RUNYON & CO.,
Park Avenue and Railroad.

An American gentleman who spent the summer in Europe recently, asserted that Ripans Tabules must have an enormous sale. "Why," he said, "I ran across them everywhere over there." "But," said his interlocutor," "they are not advertised there at all, and I doubt if they are on sale. You must be talking through your hat when you say that you find them all over Europe." Thus warned, his companion became more circumspect, and this is what he said: "Well, in Vienna I met a gentleman who, speaking of the ills of traveling, especially of hasty eating and sometimes bad cooking, said: 'but I have a cure for that,' and he produced a vial of Ripans Tabules from his vest pocket, 'just like that,' said the man, producing one himself out of his own pocket. Then in Constantinople I met another American and had with him a somewhat similar experience. He had a vial of the Tabules in his pocket too. And there was a third case at some point, I don't remember just where now, but somewhere in northern Europe." "These men must have carried them over with them," said his friend, "for I am certain the goods are not on sale over there." "Well, I don't know how they got them," said the first speaker, "but they had them, and so did I, for that matter, and as I carried mine over with me, very likely they did theirs too."

WANTED:—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS, 20 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

Dear Sirs—Two years ago I had very bad corns and callouses on my feet, I went to a chiropodist and paid him $5.75 for taking them off. In less than a month they were back again. I then tried your CORN CURE and used only three bottles, costing 45c, and am happy to say it has taken them off completely. They have not troubled me now for over a year. I consider your HEPBURN'S CORN CURE the best I have ever used.—

FASHIONABLE MATERIALS.

Veronese Red the Latest Tint For Street Gowns.

The fashionable materials for street wear are many. First we must count for morning wear the homespuns, zibellines and all the long hair goods on the Scotch and English order. These homespuns and friezes are very stylish in the pale colors and especially in the fawns, cadet blues and grays. However, for more practical purposes green is much used, and there is a new shade of red called "veronese" which is not a thick, bricklike red, but has in its composition rosy tints and is very becoming both to blonds and brunettes.

Corded and ribbed goods are considered very smart, especially for young girls.

The brown tailor made in the illustration shows one of the most fashionable effects by way of a wide collar. This extends well over the shoulders and is trimmed with a wide band of handsome sable. This band is continued down the front, passing through the belt, so as to give the waist and skirt the effect of being in one piece. There are wide sleeves banded with the sable and having a chic trimming in the shape of two sable tails. The suit is further enriched by bands of velvet applique on the waist and skirt. The belt is of the cloth, stitched. The hat is of sable and coffee colored lace, with a huge chrysanthemum as trimming.

THE NEW YEAR MILLINERY.

Flat Shapes Are Giving Way to More Fancy Effects.

The plateau toque tilted to one side is beginning to pall upon the fashionable taste. An attempt at a change has been made by building the center, which stands for the crown, of heavy lace and the outer circle of fur. One of the new shapes is a flat, round toque, with upturned brim, a sort of improved turban. This is very smart and promises to supersede the pancake hat. This turban shape is nearly always trimmed on its under brim with a wreath of crushed roses, camellias or shaded dahlias.

For young girls there is a wealth of pretty felt shapes. Large, floppy felt hats are crushed here and there or threaded with ribbon and so drawn into quaint flutes. Pale blue felts are charming trimmed in this manner, with soft white ribbon and bunches of violets, while pale pink adapts itself to autumn foliage and knots of brown velvet.

Hats of rough white felt are trimmed with wreaths of holly, with its red berries, and a square bow of black velvet drooping over the hair in the back.

A very odd and yet at the same time simple hat is shown in the picture. It is of black velvet, and the trimming is of spotted black and white panne. It is drawn around the crown softly into a big knot in front. On the left side the brim is tilted, and there is also an irregular bow of the panne on the band. This simple hat can easily be made at home.

PART III.

The sun was slowly sinking behind the dense wall of jungle which hems in, on the southern side, the frontier station of Nampoung. In the river below there is a ford, which has a distinguished claim on fame, inasmuch as it is one of the gateways from Burmah into western China. This ford is guarded continually by a company of Sikhs, under the command of an English officer. To be candid, it is not a post that is much sought after. Its dullness is extraordinary. True, one can fish there from morning until night, if one is so disposed; and if one has the good fortune to be a botanist, there is an inexhaustible field open for study. It is also true that Nampoung is only 30 miles or so, as the crow flies, from Bhamo, and when one has been in the wilds, and out of touch of civilization for months at a time, Bhamo is by no means a place to be despised. So thought Gregory, of the One Hundred, and Twenty-third regiment, as he threw his line into the pool below him.

"It's worse than a dog's life," he said to himself, as he looked at the ford a hundred yards or so to his right, where, at the moment, his subaltern was engaged levying toll upon some Yunnan merchants who were carrying cotton on pack mules into China. After that he glanced behind him at the little cluster of buildings on the hill, and groaned once more. "I wonder what they are doing in England," he continued. "Trout fishing has just begun, and I can imagine the dear old governor at the Long pool, rod in hand. The girls will stroll down in the afternoon to find out what sport he has had, and they'll walk home across the park with him, while the mater will probably meet them half way. And here am I in this God-forsaken hole with nothing to do but to keep an eye on that ford there. Bhamo is better than this, Mandalay is better than Bhamo, and Rangoon is better than either. Chivvying dakus is Paradise compared with this sort of thing. Anyhow, I'm tired of fishing."

He began to take his rod to pieces preparatory to returning to his quarters on the hill. He had just unshipped the last joint, when he became aware that one of his men was approaching him. He inquired his business, and was informed in return that Dempsey, his sub, would be glad to see him at the ford. Handing his rod to the man he set off in the direction of the crossing in question, to become aware, as he approached it, of a disreputable figure propped up against a tree on the nearer bank.

"What's the matter, Dempsey?" he inquired. "What on earth have you got there, man?"

"Well, that's more than I can say," the other replied. "He's evidently a white man, and I fancy an Englishman. At home we should call him a scarecrow. He turned up from across the ford just now, and tumbled down in the middle of the stream like a shot rabbit. Never saw such a thing before. He's not a pretty sight, is he?"

"Poor devil," said Gregory. "He seems to be on his last legs. I wonder who the deuce he is, and what brought him into this condition."

"I've searched, and there's nothing about to tell us," said Dempsey. "What do you think we had better do with him?"

"Get him up the hill," said his superior, without hesitation. "When he's a bit stronger we'll have his story out of him. I'll bet a few years' pay it will be interesting."

A couple of men were called, and the mysterious stranger was carried up to the residence of the English officers. It was plain to the least observant that he was in a very serious condition. Such clothes as he possessed were in rags; his face was pinched with starvation, and moreover he was quite unconscious. When his bearers, accompanied by the two Englishmen, reached the cluster of huts, he was carried to a small room at the end of the officers' bungalow and placed upon the bed. After a little brandy had been administered, he recovered consciousness and looked about him. Heaving a sigh of relief, he inquired where he might be.

"You are at Nampoung," said Gregory, "and you ought to thank your stars that you are not in Kingdom Come. If ever a man was near it, you have been. We won't ask you for your story now; however, later on, you shall bukh to your heart's content. Now I am going to give you something to eat. You look is if you want it badly enough."

Gregory looked at Dempsey and made a sign, whereupon the other withdrew, to presently return carrying a bowl of soup. The stranger drank it ravenously, and then lay back and closed his eyes once more. He would have been a clever man who could have recognized in the emaciated being upon the bed, the spruce, well-cared-for individual who was known to the Hotel of the Three

NOW HE SAT NURSING HIS RIFLE, LISTENING TO THE MYSTERIOUS VOICES OF THE JUNGLE.

Desires in Singapore as Gideon Hayle.

"You'd better rest awhile now," said Gregory, "and then perhaps you'll feel equal to joining us at mess, or whatever you like to call it."

"Thanks, very much," the man replied, with the conventional utterance of an English gentleman, which was not lost upon his audience. "I hope I shall feel up to it."

"Whoever the fellow is," said Gregory, as they passed along the veranda a few minutes later, "he has evidently seen better days. Poor beggar, I wonder where he's been, and what he has been up to?"

"We shall soon find out," Dempsey answered. "All he said when we fished him out of the water was 'at last,' and then he fainted clean away. I am not more curious than my neighbors, but I don't mind admitting that I am anxious to hear what he has to say for himself. Talk about Rip Van Winkle, why, he is not in it with this fellow. He could give him points and beat him hollow."

An hour later the stranger was so far recovered as to be able to join his hosts at their evening meal. Between them they had managed to fit him out with a somewhat composite set of garments. He had shaved off his beard, had reduced his hair to something like order, and in consequence had now the outward resemblance at least of a gentleman.

"Come, that's better," said Gregory, as he welcomed him. "I don't know what your usual self may be like, but you certainly have more the appearance of a man, and less that of a skeleton than when we first brought you in. You must have been pretty hard put to it out yonder."

The recollection of all he had been through was so vivid that the man shuddered at the mere thought of it.

"I wouldn't go through it again for worlds," he said. "You don't know what I've endured."

"Trading over the border alone?" Gregory inquired.

The man shook his head.

"Tried to walk across from Peking," he said, "via Szechuen and Yunnan. Nearly died of dysentery in Yunnan city. While I was there my servants deserted me, taking with them every halfpenny I possessed. Being suspected by the mandarins, I was thrown into prison, managed eventually to escape, and so made my way on here. I thought to-day was going to prove my last."

"You have had a hard time of it, by Jove," said Dempsey; "but you've managed to come out of it alive. And now where are you going?"

"I want, if possible, to get to Rangoon," the other replied. "Then I shall ship for England as best as I can. I've had enough of China to last me a lifetime."

From that moment the stranger did not refer again to his journey. He was singularly reticent upon this point, and feeling that perhaps the recollection of all he had suffered might be painful to him, the two men did not press him to unburden himself.

"He's a strange sort of fellow," said Gregory to Dempsey, later in the evening, when the other had retired to rest. "If he has walked from Peking here, as he says, he's more than a little modest about it. I'll be bound his is a funny story if only he would condescend to tell it."

W. MURRAY CRANE.

Elected Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts Three Times and Governor Twice.

Gov. Winthrop Murray Crane of Massachusetts, who has declined to succeed Lyman J. Gage as secretary of the treasury, was elected last November for the second term as governor, and before he became governor he was lieutenant governor three years. He is a millionaire paper manufacturer, of Dalton, in the western part of the state, where he was born in 1853. His grandfather founded the Berkshire paper mill there in 1801. There are now four mills in the control of the Cranes, the Berkshire, at Dalton; the Pioneer, which is one of the largest mills in the country; the Bay State mill, and the mill at Pittsfield, where the paper used by the United States government in the manufacture of money is made. W. Murray Crane has been the guiding and controlling mind not only in the management of these large paper mills, but in the various other enterprises of the Cranes of Massachusetts. The Crane mills are noted among workers as never having had a labor difficulty, and their principal owner has a reputation for fair dealing with employes and public-spirited support of undertakings for the welfare of the community in which the mills are located. Gov. Crane became extremely popular during his first term as lieutenant governor, and in the state convention of 1899, when it was agreed the then governor should be satisfied with having served three terms, no name but Mr. Crane's was considered by the convention. He has been a member of the republican national committee and has a number of times been a delegate at large to national conventions.

HAS SUFFERED MUCH.

Queen Sophia of Sweden and Norway Has Been an Invalid for Many Years.

Queen Sophia of Sweden, who is at present very ill, is now in her sixty-sixth year, and is noted among European royal women as a devoted mother, who has had more than the average happy mother's lot to contend with. She was formerly Princess Sophia, and is the daughter of the late Duke Wilhelm of Nassau. She was married to King Oscar on June 6, 1857, and brought him a truly royal dowry, which has constituted the only great wealth which the Swedish king has had. For 14 years the queen has been unable to take an active or conspicuous part in court affairs or in public functions of any kind. Since her serious illness of 1887 she has been a great sufferer, and has been compelled to live a quiet life. She has found time and strength, however, to devote herself to works of philanthropy, especially to the Sophia home in Stockholm, endowed by her, in which she takes a never-failing and active interest.

Where Women Are Firemen.

In the town of Mont Clare, Ill., the women are the fire fighters. Most of the men are in Chicago all day attending to business, and they leave the management of the suburban town's affairs largely to their wives and sisters. So the fire captain is a woman, and so is the fire marshal, and all of the women are trained to fighting fire.

Mr. Carnegie's Benefactions.

Andrew Carnegie has given in this country for libraries and educational purposes $25,000,000, not including his latest proposed contribution of $10,000,000 for students of science. Mr. Carnegie's total list of benefactions to date is $82,000,000.

PARKS LOST THE SERIES

WESTFIELD CLUB WON TWO OUT OF THREE GAMES.

Rolled on Park Alleys in Daily Press Bowling League Last Night.

The Park Club bowling team was taken into camp on its own alleys, last evening, by the Westfield Club team, in The Daily Press Bowling League tournament. The home team won one out of the three games by eighteen pins. The other two games were captured by the visitors. There was no consolation in the fact that all the scores averaged low.

Hegeman, of the Westfield team, made the unusual score of 233. His bowling in the third game took the heart out of the home team. He made six straight strikes in that game. H. D. Hibbard was high man for the home team, making a score in the first game of 179. Morris Dumont made his debut in tournament games. His bowling was even throughout. Below will be found the scores:

DIED WHILE ON THE TRAIN

Sudden Death of John D. Titsworth While Returning From New York.

WAS AN OLD RESIDENT.

Passed Away Shortly After Leaving Jersey City — Had Complained of Not Feeling Well, So Fred Hillmann Sat With Him—Shock to Family.

John Davies Titsworth, of Madison avenue, died Saturday afternoon while on his way from New York to his home.

He left the city on the 2:30 o'clock boat, making connections with the train which reaches this city at 3:30 o'clock. After arriving in Jersey City and just before entering the train, he hailed Fred Hillmann, of 653 West Seventh street, and asked him to remain with him. He complained of not feeling well and said that he had intense distress about the heart. The two sat in the same seat.

They had not ridden very far, when Mr. Titsworth sank back and soon expired. Just prior to that Mr. Hillmann had urged Mr. Titsworth to get off at one of the stations and secure the services of a physician. This he declined to do, saying that he wanted to reach home as soon as possible as he felt so bad.

The body was brought on the same train to Plainfield and when it arrived Undertaker Runyon was at the North Avenue station to receive it, word having been sent ahead. Nathan R. Titsworth, a son, was found and he was also at the station. The body was removed to the parlors of Undertaker Runyon and in the evening taken to the home in Madison avenue.

In the meantime, Nathan Titsworth went to the Seventh-Day Baptist church, where the Sabbath-school was in session, to tell his mother the sad news. John Neagle, the sexton, was asked to call Mrs. Titsworth and as soon as she saw her son she had a premonition of the news. She became hysterical and it was with difficulty that she was removed to her home.

Several weeks ago Mr. Titsworth was seriously ill with pneumonia. For a long time past he had a great sufferer with heart trouble and was being treated for the trouble. Members of his family, as well as relatives knew of his weak heart and while his death was a terrible shock to them, it was not unexpected altogether.

Mr. Titsworth was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Titsworth, of Cincinnati, and was born in the latter place fifty-eight years ago. He had been a resident of Plainfield over thirty years. Years ago he was engaged in the candy business in this city. Later he entered the drug business, he and his son, Alonzo Titsworth, conducting the business in Cedar street, New York, under the firm name of John D. Titsworth & Son. This business was continued for a few years, when Mr. Titsworth withdrew and his son remained for a time.

When Mr. Titsworth withdrew he entered the employ of Merck & Company, wholesale druggist, of University place and Eighth street, New York. He was placed in charge of the firm's downtown branch at 100 William street, and he held that position until the time of his death. He was highly esteemed by his business associates and all who knew him. He had a host of friends in this city who cherished his friendship.

He was a member of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., the Exempt Firemen's Association and the Congregational church and Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum. He was devoted to his home and his family and found great pleasure and comfort there. It is a strange fact that many of Mr. Titsworth's near relatives died suddenly with some form of heart trouble. He leaves a wife and two sons, Nathan R. Titsworth and Alonzo Titsworth.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow afteanoon at 3 o'clock from the home.

In connection with his business relations in this city, Mr. Titsworth and M. D. Titsworth were the predecessors of Howard Prescott Reynolds. They kept a drug store, where A. M. Griffen's hardware store is now. Mr. Reynolds bought them out. John D. Titsworth then traveled for a drug

HOW DEATH WAS PICTURED

COMFORTING WORDS FOR FAMILY OF YOUNG WIECHERS.

Spoken by Rev. E. M. Rodman at Funeral Held Yesterday Afternoon.

A sorrowful gathering of relatives and friends assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Wiechers, of West Seventh street, yesterday afternoon, to hear the parting words pronounced over all that was mortal of little George Frederick Wiechers, whose young life was ground out beneath the wheels of a trolley car, Thursday afternoon. The impressive Episcopal service was conducted by Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector of Grace P. E. church.

The obsequies began with a solo, "Nearer My God," the boy's favorite, touchingly rendered by Charles L. Lewis. Dr. Rodman followed with Scripture reading after which he spoke at some length on the youth. "The young lad, of whom no one spoke but in terms of the highest praise," said he, "was on his way home. A sudden slip and he was beneath the wheels of a merciless car. The next moment his spirit fled and instead of returning to greet his earthly mother he departed to meet his heavenly Father. Rejoice that this young man has won life's fight and he that was the victim is now the victor."

At the conclusion of Dr. Rodman's remarks Mr. Lewis sang "Abide With Me" after which the friends were allowed a last look at the boyish face in a casket nearly hidden from sight with floral remembrances. About the room were huge pillows, wreaths and sheaves.

The remains were taken to Hillside cemetery this morning, where interment was made.

VALUABLE GIFTS.

Just Presented to the Board of Managers of the Children's Home Amount to $650.

A legacy of $500 has been made by the will of the late Mrs. R. MacDonald to the Children's Home. The announcement was made at a meeting of the board of managers Thursday, Jan. 2, add it came as an agreeable new year's surprise.

Dr. O. L. Jenkins followed this up with another surprise. Saturday morning the mayor handed his check for $150 to the president of the Board of Managers of the Home.

The board, through its president, Mrs. M. E. Kimball, desires to thank all who remembered the little ones by sending gifts for the Christmas tree, December 27. It was intended to record all the names of the benefactors, but in many instances no names were attached to the presents and this made the plan impossible. Since Christmas applications have been made for the admission of nine children to the home.

DEATH OF MR. PRICE.

An Old Resident Passed Away in a New York Hospital Today.

J. Wilbur Price, aged sixty-nine years, one of Plainfield's well-known residents, died at 1 o'clock this morning at Hahnemann Hospital, New York, where he had been under treatment three weeks. His illness dates back six weeks.

Mr. Price lived on Sherman avenue, near Clinton avenue, and had been a resident of this city twenty-eight years. His wife died October 15, following a long illness. Mr. Price entered the employ of the Coats Thread Company twenty years ago. It afterwards became the Spool Cotton Company and he remained with them to his death.

Mr. Price was born near Waverly and has always lived in New Jersey. He was an attendent at the First Presbyterian church. He leaves three daughters, Mrs. Alice S. Brown, Miss Anita Tovell and Mrs. E. Arthur Janke, all of this city. He leaves two sisters who live in Trenton.

The funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon from the late home at an hour to be announced.

Funeral of Thos. Martin.

Funeral services over the remains of Thomas Martin, the well-known ex-jail warden, were held yesterday afternoon from Mount Olive church. The edifice was filled with relatives and friends. Rev. E. E. Jackson officiated. Those who acted as pallbearers were James Scott, Reuben Ray, Lorenzo Randolph and Albert Butler. Interment was made in the Methodist cemetery.

—There will be initiation at the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., Thursday evening, January 16.

ALL SMOKE AND NO FIRE.

Deceiving Appearance Led Man to Believe Store Was Afire.

One of the bakers employed by W. W. Warnock, the West Front street confectioner, placed a quantity of wood in an oven, yesterday afternoon, to have it dry. He forgot to pull a damper and the fuel ignited. Some of the smoke poured out of an opening and made its way to the street giving a passerby the impression the store was on fire. He informed fire headquarters and No. 2 hose wagon with Chief Doane responded. They were met by the employe who explained matters and immediately removed the wood under the firemens' direction.

BENEDICTS WON THIS TIME

VICTORIOUS IN FIRST MATCH OF THE "COCKED HAT" SERIES.

Rolled on Park Club Alleys Saturday Evening With the Bachelors.

Cheer after cheer went up from the Benedicts during the course of the first game of the series at "cocked hat" with the Bachelors on the bowling alleys of the Park Club, Saturday evening. Elated over the lead and finally victory itself brought great rejoicing from that team and its supporters. The married men won the contest by nineteen pins, in a fiercely contested match.

Their pride had been injured by the jibes of those enjoying the state of single blessedness, and they had determined to play the game of their lives. As each player on the rival team stepped up to try his luck he met the taunts of an enthusiastic crowd, which seemed to delight in "rattling" the bowler. Married life had possibly given the Benedicts more courage to withstand uncomplimentary remarks for they did not appear to lose their nerve, although the younger fellows "went to pieces" occasionally.

Senator Reed, who has grown accustomed to knocking down figureheads, made a good showing, twenty-six pins, but G. T. Rogers carried off the blue ribbon for form in handling the sphere. He scored thirty-two pins.

During the progress of the game, the Benedicts added spirit to the contest by occasionally shouting:

Boom rah, boom rah,
Boom rah, ruff—
We, the Benedicts,
Are very hot stuff.

FOWLER'S AMBITION TO BE NEXT GOVERNOR

How His Possible Rivals Are Being Cared For With Other Places Now.

FEW OF THE INSTANCES.

THIS INFLUENCE WILL AFFECT FIGHT FOR U. S. SENATORSHIP.

How Governor Voorhees Can Assist—Story Comes From Prominent Union County Politician in Touch With Him.

In all this agitation over the candidacy of a United States Senator to succeed the late William J. Sewell, there has been one influence which has been very evident to the politicians and which has not yet been brought out in public. The tendering of the appointment of State treasurer to William M. Johnson, of Bergen, and the present pressure now being brought to bear on Chancery Clerk E. C. Stokes to announce himself a candidate for the U. S. Senate are all, without doubt, parts of a well-organized plan which may, if carried out successfully, give the next Repbulican nomination for governor to Congressman Charles N. Fowler.

The fact that Mr. Fowler has his eye on the governorship will be news to most people. It comes, however, from excellent authority, the statement being made by a prominent Union county politician who is recognized as being close to the Congressman and thoroughly in touch with his movements. While this fact has not been announced, a careful examination of the happenings of the last year or more will show that the Congressman is carefully gaining strength through the State and that an influence is carrfully working to eliminate from the contest three years hence such men as might possibly prove formidable rivals.

Among those who have been recognized as possible candidates to succeed Franklin Murphy as Chief Executive are William M. Johnson, of Bergen, and Edward C. Stokes, of Cumberland. Let it be remembered that Governor Voorhees and Congressman Fowler are very close friends both personally and politically. Governor Voorhees tendered the office of State treasurer to Mr. Johnson. Had he accepted, the Legislature would undoubtedly elect him next year for a full term and he would be out of the race for governor. If Mr. Stokes decides to be a candidate for United States Senator and lands it, as he has a fair chance of doing if he consents to allow his name to be used, he too will be out of the gubernatorial race.

Mr. Fowler has undoubtedly come to the front rapidly of late years. When he first went to Congress, he was possessed only of county prominence. His work in Conrgess and his activity in the National campaign have made his well known through the State and even outside of it. It is a well-known fact that he has political ambitions. Many supposed that he had his eye on the place in the United States Senate now held by John Kean. This has been denied, however, by the authority already mentioned. The latter declares that Mr. Fowler's next step will be as candidate for governor and then, of course, the United States Senate or something else may come later.

Recovered From Injury.

William Hartpence, of West Second street, an employe at the American Engine Works, Bound Brook, has been discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital, where he has been under treatment for a severe injury to his hand. It was crushed while assisting in some work about an engine and at first it was thought he might lose the hand.

Exempts' Entertainment.

The Exempt Firemen's Association will give an entertainment and smoker in its rooms, this evening. Friends of the members will be welcome and will be entertained with an excellent programme.

In Justice Mattison's Court.

The contract case of Cuyler & Mohler against William W. Mills, in Justice Mattison's court, which came up for trial Thursday, has been adjourned until January 10.

Literature for Soldiers and Sailors.

The committee from the W. C. T. U. on soldier and sailor work is preparing a barrel of literature to be sent away.

ALLEN GETS SEVEN YEARS

COLORED MAN WAS SENTENCED AT TRENTON FRIDAY.

He is Also Charged With Having Committed Score of Burglaries in This City.

Thomas S. Allen, better known as "Nigger" Allen, the negro who it is alleged committed a number of daring robberies in this city a few months ago including the breaking into the Clinton Avenue and Netherwood depots, was sentenced at Trenton, Friday, to seven years in the State prison. He is the man who worked in this city by day as coachman for John Stewart, of West Seventh street, and the police say, at night, robbed many Plainfield homes.

Allen is said to be one of the most desperate burglars in the State and at the time of his arrest the detectives charged him with sixteen breakings and enterings. Several times previously, Allen had been convicted of crimes of this character and against his record is one of three years in prison. His wife has been residing in this city.

Indictments will be secured against him for the Plainfield robberies and he will be tried on the completion of his present term.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL OFFICERS.

Elected at Annual Meeting of Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-School.

A meeting of the officers and teachers of the Park Avenue Sunday-school was held at the home of the superintendent, G. E. Hall, Saturday evening, and officers were elected for the ensuing year.

Those chosen were: Superintendent, G. E. Hall; assistant superintendent, Miss Florence G. Hawkins; secretary, Thomas A. Cuming; treasurer, Joseph M. Hawkins; librarian, E. Frank Vail; pianist, Miss Elma H. Runyon; superintendent primary department, Miss Elmira C. Runyon; superintendent of home department, Miss M. Adelaide Runyon.

Reports were read by the various officers. Queries were answered through the "question box." Miss Aimee Emmons gave two recitations during the evening. Before adjournment the guests enjoyed a hearty repast in the dining room, which was tastefully decorated in red and green. A miniature Christmas tree was placed in the centre of the dining table.

To Aid Music Fund.

A musical entertainment will be given at the Casino, Monday evening, January 13, under the direction of Alfred E. Holmes, for the benefit of the Congregational church music fund. Miss Harriet Ware, the well-known pianist and composer, will appear, assisted by other talented artists, and will play some of her own compositions, to which have been set the poems of Sidney Lanier and Edward Marcum.

Quiet at Hospital.

During the past few weeks there has been little doing at the hospital. As a rule everyone who can tries to get home for the holidays, and so far as possible those able to go were discharged. In the meantime very few new cases were received. The result is that affairs have been quiet at the hospital.

Posed as Stage Characters.

J. Hervey Doane, of Park avenue, took several excellent photos of his son, Clyde Doane, last Wednesday. They represent the young man in several well-known characters seen upon the stage.

Democratic Banquet Off.

The proposed banquet to be given under the auspices of the Union county Democratic executive committee on Jackson's birthday has been indefinitely postponed.

For One Quarter.

The reports read at the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., Thursday evening, were for three months, and not six months, as stated.

FIVE YEARS HAVE PASSED

ANNIVERSARY EXERCISES AT MONROE AVENUE M. E. CHURCH.

Held Yesterday—A Sermon in the Morning—League Anniversary in the Evening.

Appropriate services marking the fifth anniversary of Monroe Avenue church's organization, were held yesterday.

The celebration began at the morning service when Rev. Dr. Thomas O'Hanlon, president of Pennington seminary, delivered an anniversary sermon. He selected his text from John iii:3. It referred to the need of conversion.

In the afternoon exercises were conducted by the pupils of the Sunday-school, the primary department taking an important part. The latter were in charge of Miss Emily Haff. The programme was made up of recitations and the singing of carols.

The Epworth League of the church also observed its tenth anniversary yesterday, although in reality it was in last September. It was postponed then for the purpose of holding it with that of the church. This important organization of the church assumed charge of the service, last evening, and conducted interesting exercises.

The members assembled in the Epworth House at 7 o'clock for a prayer meeting after which they marched into the church. The Juniors were in advance in charge of Miss Charlotte Aldrich. After a responsive reading led by Edward Beekman, president of the league, solos were rendered by Raymond A. McGee and Miss Grace Phillips. The church history, dealing mainly with the growth of the organizations, was read by Francis E. Whiteside, a student at Drew Theological seminary. The programme concluded with a talk to the Leaguers by Rev. Dr. O'Hanlon in which he showed the importance of beginning a Christian life young.

WHY SEALS WAS HELD.

City Judge Runyon Wanted a Full Investigation So There Could be no Question as to Blame.

A general misapprehension seems to prevail regarding the action of City Judge Runyon in holding Motorman Seals, whose car killed little Fritz Wiechers, for the Grand Jury.

In holding the man, the Judge did not express his belief in the other's guilt but simply referred the case to a higher authority for investigation. In a case like this where a human life is involved, the Judge deemed that the best interests of the bereaved family and the motorman himself demanded the fullest possible investigation so that the blame might be fixed where it belonged.

An informal examination like that of Friday afternoon could settle nothing definitely and so he preferred that the Grand Jury should take up the case. It was not in his province, according to law, to fix bail in a case like that, but there was no trouble in securing it from the proper authority, Judge Vail, at Elizabeth.

While the subject would be brought to the attention of the Grand Jury anyway, as was stated by Prosecutor English, it was the natural precautionary course to hold the man, who has no family or other ties in this neighborhood, under bonds of reasonable amount as long as there remains the least shadow of a doubt as to where the responsibility for the child's death rests. It will now be for the Grand Jury to thoroughly investigate the case and settle, if possible, just who was to blame.

Sang at Hospital.

Several members of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, accompanied by six little tots from the primary department of the Sunday-school, went to Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday afternoon, and sang a number of Christmas selections. The music was greatly enjoyed by the patients.

Death of Samuel Pierson.

Samuel Pierson, one of Morristown's oldest residents, died at his home there Saturday. He resided there nearly all his life of eighty years. He was an uncle of Mrs. S. O. Staats, of West Second street. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Sang a Solo.

Elmer D. Cutting, of the quartette choir at the First Presbyterian church, sang a pleasing solo, "The Heavenly Song," last evening.

—The Womans' Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will meet Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the lecture room of the church.

STRUCK DOWN ON RAILROAD

An Unknown Man Instantly Killed and Cut to Pieces Near Grant Avenue.

EVIDENTLY A TRAMP.

Was Picking Coal When West Bound Local Train Struck Him and Threw Him in Path of Approaching Blue Line Flyer—Remains Badly Mangled.

An unknown man, evidently a tramp, met a horrible death on the tracks of the New Jersey Central, a few hundred feet east of the Grant Avenue station, yesterday noon. He was struck by a west bound local and hurled directly in the path of an approaching Blue Line flyer, speeding eastward at the rate of fifty miles an hour. The second train caught up the man and ground him to pieces. The remains were scattered along the tracks for a distance of nearly a quarter of a mile.

All that is known of the accident is that related to the police by John Canary, a young lad living on South Second street. He was on the railroad near Cadmas's mill when a man, apparently fifty years old and roughly dressed, approached and asked him if any coal was to be found on the tracks. The lad said there was and watched him picking up pieces of coal on the west bound passenger track.

He was evidently oblivious of the local as on its approach, he stepped on the track directly in front of it. He was tossed to the left and the next moment was caught by the east bound flyer. The engineer was unable to stop the train until it reached Liberty street. It then continued slowly to the North Avenue station where the officials were notified of the accident.

Young Canary hurried to Muhlenberg hospital and asked the attendants to inform the police by telephone. Patrolman McCarthy and Undertaker George Cole responded.

The mangled remains were viewed later by County Physician Westcott and, unless claimed, will be buried this afternoon.

No one has been reported missing answering the meagre description of the man. The police stick to the tramp theory.

The clothes show they were of poor material and in one pocket several crusts of bread were found. The hands were very soft. It is a frequent scheme of wayfarers to steal or pick coal from the railroad and sell it for a small amount.

School Dramatics.

Arrangements are being made by the Athletic Association of the Plainfield High School to give a dramatic entertainment in the near future. The object of the affair is to increase the association's funds. The committee appointed in the matter consists of Hervey K. Doane, chairman, Miss Edna Moore, Miss Dorothy Waldo, Harold Normer, Harold Davis and Fred VanAuken.

Modern Dwelling.

A permit has been issued by Building Inspector T. O. Doane in favor of Mrs. Mary B. Walsh, of South avenue. Mrs. Walsh will construct a modern dwelling on the northeast side of McKinley place, near East Second street. Walter Wyckoff will do the mason work, while F. G. Walsh will do the carpentry work.

Mrs. Wittemore.

Mrs. E. M. Wittemore, of "The Door of Hope," New York, will address a meeting to be held the last of this month at Warren chapel under the auspices of the King's Foreign Mission Circle. She is so well known in her religious work that no doubt a large number of people will be pleased to hear her.

Board is Pleased.

The Board of Health is much pleased with the work being conductd by Mr. Thurlow, who was recently engaged to look after milk dairies, etc. A better condition of affairs is now to be found and the improvement will continue.

Pay Their Fare Now.

Commencing with Wednesday all employes of the New Jersey Central who have occasion to travel back and forth to their work on the railroad, will pay half fare, instead of riding on free passes.

The new winter garden, which is the only one in America, has been voted the most unique and prettiest place of amusement in the country. The Messrs. Sire have spared no expense in the construction and decoration of the new resort, and it has already become popular with the theatre-going public. It is seldom that so many prominent people are secured to play in the one production as "The Supper Club" contains among them are such favorites as Virginia Earle, Thomas Q. Child Worth Millons.

"My child is worth millions to me," says Mrs. Mary Bird, of Harrisburg, Pa., "yet I would have lost her by croup had I not purchased a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure." One Minute Cough Cure is sure cure for coughs, croup and throat and lung troubles. An absolutely safe cough cure which acts immediately. The youngest child can take it with entire safety. The little ones like the taste and remember how often it helped them. Every family should have a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure handy. At this season especially it may be needed suddenly. L. W. COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants.

While so many people are looking for bargains they should not overlook those at the Star Clothing Company's store on West Front street. The company is closing out clothing at great reduction.

Fashionable clothing will make any woman attractive. When they can be purchased so cheaply as those offered by the Paris Cloak Company, of West Front street, there is no excuse for the women looking shabby.

There is nothing that is so dressy as a well-made skirt or silk petticoat. In addition to carrying superior stock of women's hats, Bonn, of West Front street, also sells skirts and petticoats. The goods are first quality, while the prices are right.

Did you ever meet the woman who likes to drive a bargain and a horse as well. She's the woman who patronizes Love's livery on East Second street. The finest rubber tired turnouts at the very lowest rates, by the hour, day or longer period.

"Appetite comes with eating, says Angeston" and so likewise in trade success comes from fair dealing. Druggist Thomnas Armstrong finds that careful and prompt attention to prescription work is responnsible for the large patronage he enjoys at the corner of North and Park avenues.

"A thing of beauty is joy forever" and so are the substantial pieces of furniture sold by the Union Furniture Company. They are attractive in appearance yet strength and durability have not been forgotten in making good looks. Visit the store and see the Morris chairs, couches, bouffes and bureaus displayed.

Don't imagine that simply because the amateurs at the Buffalo Exposition were able to take pictures of the buildings at night that you can snap a picture of the North Avenue station after dark with any degree of success. The cameras sold by VanWinkle, of North avenue, work wonders, but won't accomplish this feat.

Foss & Jeter style their place of business the "Model Sea Food Market" and it's no misnomer. Everything is conducted on strictly business principles and they are daily gaining the patronage they enjoy. Their supply of salt and fresh water fish, oysters and clams is always fresh and never but what it is represented.

The term "White Label" is a household word throughout the land. It is the name of a brand of canned goods second in quality to none packed in this or any other country. Neuman Brothers are the sellers in this city and this reliable firm guarantees every can sold to be as represented. They make allowance in price for large purchases.

The New York Poultry Show.

Beginning at Madison Square Garden Tuesday morning, January 14, and continuing day and evening, including Saturday, January 18, the thirteenth annual exhibition of the New York Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association will be given. Each year brings the New York poultry show to the front withe a splendid showing, and with the competition open to the world and thousands of dollars in prizes, and the special club prizes also, the best birds in America and from many foreign countries are always in competition. The success of preceding years has stamped the New York show as a most important one to breeders and fanciers, and to the public. The prize winners at the Pan-American, at Buffalo, are entered for the coming show in the Garden, and in the standard classes, the game birds and in pigeons, the demands for space tax the ability of Superintendent Crawford to provide for them. The showing of incubators will be in excess of last year, the exhibition yards will be complete, and a breed of birds known as Faverolles, imported from France, and popular in England, will be shown by a New England farm, as the first complete exhibition in this country. The pet stock entries insure a full showing of cats, cavies and rabbits, and there will be many special exhibits of prize winners from other shows.

A Bible Diary for 1902.

A valuable suggestion is being offered by D. McCall McGregor, of Philadelphia, for church members to write a Bible verse each day in a diary this year. This will help the memory as well as interest the mind to a wonderful degree.

Constipation and health never go together. DeWitt's Little Early Risers promote easy action of the bowels without distress. "I have been troubled with costiveness nine years," says J. O. Greene, Depauw, Ind. "I have tried many remedies but Little Early Risers give best results." L. W. Randolph.

THE COURT'S RETURN.

Peking In Holiday Attire to Welcome Rulers.

PEKING, Jan. 6.—The Chinese capital on the eve of the court's return presents an animated and gaudy scene not before equaled in its history.

All the palaces, pagodas and temples have been repaired and painted to form a glittering spectacle. The roofs of these buildings viewed from the city walls are patches of shining yellow tiles and brick. The wall about the Imperial City is a vivid crimson, and the gates leading to the Imperial City have been repaired and gilded. On the towers above the Chenmen gate stands a gorgeous structure of wood, cloth and paper, with a yellow painted dragon entwined about the massive cloth pillars. Hundreds of Chinese officials clad in furs and embroidered silks ride about the streets of Peking, and parties of foreign soldiers bent upon sightseeing roam everywhere. Thousands of new soldiers from the province of Shangtung who are finely uniformed and equipped with modern weapons entered Peking yesterday and marched through Legation street.

The ministers of the foreign powers have received notice from the Chinese foreign office that all the streets upon which the Chinese court will pass will be closed Monday and Tuesday. Two buildings on the principal street of the line of procession have been provided from which the members of the legations will be permitted to witness the re-entry of the court. This is an unprecedented concession. The foreign ministers have decided, in consideration of recent events, not to witness the re-entry of the court. This decision is strengthened by the fact that the majority of the ministers have not yet presented their credentials.

Chinese officials have strongly protested to Sir Ernest Satow, the British minister, against British officers being in charge all the way from Paotingfu to Peking of the trains upon which the Chinese court will travel. They said that if foreign officials were conspicuous at Tengti Junction the court would prepare to leave the railroad and take another route. Acting upon this protest, the British minister has requested the officers to refrain from making the military conspicuous, and this request will be complied with.

Negotiations concerning the Manchurian treaty await the arrival of the court.

No News From Miss Stone.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 6.—The news that the brigands holding Miss Stone captive are being hustled by the inhabitants of the Turkish territory where they are said to be hiding has created considerable of a sensation here. A deadly feud is said to exist between the leaders of the hostile bands, part of whom are reported to have deserted and are attempting to re-enter Bulgaria, and much anxiety is felt here with regard to the outcome of these developments. The American legation here has not yet received news from M. Gargiulo, the dragoman of the legation, who left Salonika for the interior the latter part of last month with the purpose of meeting Miss Stone's captors, and says the rumors of Miss Stone's release are quite unfounded. No direct news has been received from the American captive since Nov. 13.

Rockefeller Gas For Paris.

PARIS, Jan. 6.—La Liberte has published a report to the effect that the Rockefellers intend to apply for a concession to supply gas to the city of Paris. The paper vigorously opposes this scheme and says it would be an act of mental aberration to accept such a proposition, which would be disastrous to national production and a powerful help to the designs of the Americans, who wish not only to expel foreign industry from their own country, but who seek to supplant foreigners on their own ground. La Liberte says the Rockefellers would not use a ton of French coal and that the granting of this concession to them would be a mighty weapon for the realization of the economic schemes of American imperialism in Europe.

Outlook For Everett-Moore Syndicate

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 6.—Chairman Newcomb of the bankers' committee o seven in charge of the Everett-Moore syndicate states that after meeting over a hundred of the creditors and those holding syndicate securities they pronounced themselves as being better satisfied with the condition of affairs and with the ultimate success of their plan than at any time since it was suggested. The statement was emphatically made as being the consensus of opinion of the committee that the way now seems perfectly clear for a speedy and most satisfactory solution of the entire matter.

To Sue For Vast Estate.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Jan. 6.—About fifty people attended a meeting at Port Jervis called to order by C. E. Cuddeback as counsel to consider plans to proceed against the city of Cleveland, O., to gain title to an estate variously estimated at from $60,000,000 to $100,000,000. The heirs in this section are descendants of Absalom Case. Leonard Case left the property now in dispute to his brothers. The property is in the heart of the city.

ESTIMATE EXCEEDED

New York Comptroller's Report Shows Large Surplus.

INCREASED SPECIAL TAX RECEIPTS.

Over 6,000 State Corporations Taxed During 1901 at Cost For Collection of Six-tenths of 1 Per Cent—Savings Banks Cause Trouble.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 6.—The annual report of the state comptroller will be handed down in the assembly this evening. Its principal features are the following:

Actual surplus of the general fund Sept. 30, 1901, $7,567,176.92, exceeding the estimate by $5,439,797.61, the largest surplus known in the fund. The aggregate appropriations for 1901 were $22,307,608.75, a decrease over the previous year of $1,600,000 and the lowest sum appropriated since 1896. The state debt for all purposes at the close of the fiscal year was $10,075,660, and the amount of the sinking fund to meet this obligation was $1,866,526.94, making the net debt a little over $6,600,000.

The principal receipts from indirect sources were as follows: Tax on corporations, exclusive of organization tax, $4,966,680; tax on transfers, $4,084,606; liquor tax, $4,197,858.

In the corporation tax bureau the records show that there has been an increase in the last decade of 200 per cent in the number of corporations taxed and an increase of 147 per cent in the amount collected. Over 6,000 corporations have been taxed in 1901, the receipts from which were nearly $5,000,000 and the cost of collection but six-tenths of 1 per cent. This bureau collects the largest amount of money of any agency of the state government at the least cost. Of the collections this year $2,104,132 were received from savings banks and trust companies under the new law.

The comptroller reports some difficulty in adjusting taxes with the savings banks and a disposition on the part of these institutions to undervalue their property. He suggests a slight change in the law, so that the "market value" should be taken as a measure of the assessment of the property of these institutions instead of the "par value."

The receipts from taxable transfers were the greatest since the passage of the original act, with the exception of the preceding fiscal year, when about $250,000 more was collected. It will be remembered, however, that the year 1900 was remarkable for the payment by one estate of nearly $2,000,000. The number of estates paying a tax during the past fiscal year was 3,059,368, of which were those of nonresident descendants whose estates paid a total tax of $595,594.06.

New York Legislature.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 6.—The legislature convenes tonight after a recess of but four days, thereby showing a disposition to hurry along their work for an early adjournment. It had been the custom heretofore to adjourn for at least a week and sometimes ten days so that the committee lists could be made up by the speaker of the assembly. It was understood that all the committee lists were completed last Friday and that the chairmanships of the important committees are very little changed from last year because of the fact that those who hold chairmanships in the last assembly are almost all re-elected to serve this year. Mr. Allds heads the ways and means committee, Mr. Kelsey cities, Mr. Rogers judiciary, Mr. Weekes codes, Mr. Apgar gas, electricity and water and Mr. Bellell railroads.

For a McKinley Arch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The William McKinley National Memorial association has drafted a bill which will be introduced in congress this week and supported by a petition signed by the members of the association and also the members of the McKinley National Memorial association formed to erect a monument in Canton, to which the arch association yielded the field of popular subscription. The bill provides a commission to select a site and secure plans for a memorial arch in honor of William McKinley, late president of the United States, to be erected in the District of Columbia.

The Week at Charleston.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Jan. 6.—This week will be a notable one at the exposition. The stock show opened today with 1,010 entries under the supervision of George F. Weston of Biltmore, N. C. On Thursday the Liberty bell will arrive from Philadelphia and be placed in the beautiful structure specially built for it. On Friday the International League of Press Clubs and the Pen and Pencil club of Philadelphia will assemble here, and the great musical festival conducted by Innes' band will open.

Sailors' Families Give Up Hope.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 6.—The families of Captain J. Albert Sooy and the crew of the fishing steamer Sparta, which left here Thursday morning, now declare they have lost all hope of ever hearing from their missing ones. Every effort was made by searching parties, by telegraph and telephone, but no news of the whereabouts of the missing vessel or men can be obtained. The steamer Sparta was known to be in a damaged condition off this city Thursday, and it is now feared she has gone down with all hands on board.

British Caught In Ambush.

PRETORIA, Jan. 6.—The Boers ambushed a party of the Scots Grays last Saturday, near Bronkhorst spruit, about forty miles east of Pretoria, on the railroad. The British casualties were six men killed and thirteen wounded.

VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN

General Bell Adopts Stern Measures In Batangas.

THE INSURGENTS GIVEN NO REST.

Conditions In Samar Still Unsatisfactory—Island of Leyte Declared Perfectly Peaceable—Important Captures at Tarlac.

MANILA, Jan. 6.—General J. Franklin Bell is conducting a vigorous campaign in Batangas province. Every available soldier is in the field. The columns under the command of Colonels Wint and Dougherty are doing excellent work and driving the Filipinos in all directions.

A number of the latter are fleeing to Tayabas province, where the native constabulary are rendering valuable assistance in capturing men and rifles.

The advocates of peace at Manila deprecate the stern measures employed by General Bell. In reply General Bell says that these peace advocates have had numerous opportunities to use their influence, as they have been given passes through the American lines almost for the asking and that it has been afterward proved that they often only went through the lines for the purpose of assisting the insurrection. General Bell says that the best peace method now is a rigorous warfare until the insurrection is completely subdued.

The arrest of members of the wealthy Lopez family and the confiscation of their steamers and rice as well as the arrest of three members of the religious corporations who were known to be instigators of the insurrection have had an excellent effect upon the natives.

Conditions in the island of Samar are still unsatisfactory owing to the difficulty of finding the insurgents.

The civil authorities say that the island of Leyte is now perfectly peaceful. On the other hand, the military authorities consider Leyte to be dangerous on account of its proximity to Samar if for no other reason.

Last Friday Major Albert L. Myer of the Eleventh infantry captured quite an extensive arsenal and plant for the making of cartridges at Ormoc, on the northwest coast of Leyte. Major Myer also captured another powder factory, large quantities of ammunition, four cannon and several rifles.

Captain Pitcher reports that he is rapidly ridding the island of Mindoro of insurgents.

The constabulary of Tarlac, Luzon, have captured a number of members of the Filipino secret society called the Guardia de Honor. The prisoners intended moving to the island of Pulilo, off the east coast of Luzon, where they expected to be free of American interference, temporarily at least, and where they had decided to resist American invasion to the uttermost. Twenty members of the Guardia de Honor are charged with sedition.

The big stone church at Balayan, in Batangas province, is falling to pieces as a result of the recent earthquake.

Revolutionary Steamer Reported.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Jan. 6.—The armed revolutionary steamer Libertador (formerly called the Ban Righ, which left Fort de France, island of Martinique, Dec. 31 for the Venezuelan coast with General Matos, 300 volunteers and a cargo of munitions of war) is now reported to have anchored Saturday morning off Uchire, on the Venezuelan coast, near Rio Chico, and to have sailed from Uchire that same afternoon. A report has reached here that a bomb was exploded at the residence in Caracas of the Venezuelan minister of finance, Tello Mendoza. The explosion wrecked a considerable portion of the house, but no one was injured. The attempt has caused considerable excitement in Caracas.

Princess Louise Insane.

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—Princess Louise, the eccentric daughter of King Leopold of Belgium, who was divorced from her husband, Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha and who has been held practically a prisoner in a retreat near Dresden for the last two years, has been pronounced hopelessly insane. Her daughter, Princess Dorothea, was married to Ernest Gonthier, duke of Sleswick-Holstein, brother of the present empress of Germany, and her sister, Princess Stephanie, was the wife of the Archduke Rudolph of Austria, who committed suicide.

Starving Stock Killed In Texas.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 6.—On account of the almost total failure of grass and the high price of foodstuffs in this section over 100 head of horses and milk cows have been killed in San Antonio during the past sixty days to prevent them from dying of starvation their owners, who are of the poorer class, being unable to buy feed for the animals. There has been a drought in this section for twelve months or more, and there is no present prospect of improvement.

Three Killed In Railway Collision.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 6.—As the result of a head on collision between two freight trains of the Southern railway early yesterday morning near Rex, Ga., fourteen miles from this place, three of the trains' crews were killed and a number of freight cars destroyed by fire. The two trains met on a sharp curve, the derailed cars catching fire. The collision, it is said, was caused by a disregard of signals by the crew of one of the two trains.

General Andrade Coming.

COLON, Colombia, Jan. 6.—General Andrade, a former president of Venezuela, who arrived here from Willemstad, Curacao, on the Italian steamer Piedmonte, expects to sail for New York tomorrow.

HONORS DIVIDED IN OHIO.

Foraker Ticket Elected In Senate and Hanna Ticket In House.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 6.—The Republican caucus Saturday night nominated the Foraker ticket for the senate and the Hanna ticket for the house. The contest is being continued on the same lines over the makeup of the standing committees, and it is evident that the chairmanships and preferred places will go the same way as the offices. Price, who was defeated for speaker by McKinnon, will be shown consideration as chairman of the judiciary committee, and the chairmanship of one of the committees on municipal affairs, in deference to George B. Cox, will go to some member from Cincinnati, but the courtesy will not be extended further.

The senate committees are being apportioned by a special committee on the lines of the Republican caucus, with the Democrats co-operating.

As the liquor associations threw their influence to Price that interest is now attempting a fusion of the Democrats with such Republicans as are opposed to local bills.

Senator Foraker is not expected here until next week, when all the committees will be made up. It is proposed thereforé to have a demonstration in the interest of harmony. On Tuesday of next week the two houses will vote separately for United States senator and the next day in joint session they will declare the result.

CONGRESS REASSEMBLES.

The House Will Take Up Canal Bill. Senate Has Little to Do.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—After a recess of almost three weeks both houses of congress reconvened today. The principal item on the house programme for the week is the Hepburn isthmian canal bill, which is the special order for tomorrow. No limit has been fixed as to the time for debate on this measure, but Mr. Hepburn does not contemplate a prolonged discussion of it. It is surmised in some quarters, however, that if the proposition of the Panama Canal company to sell its property and franchises for $40,000,000 should be made as promised this may have the effect of opening a wider field of discussion than at first seemed probable, and if this should prove to be the case the bill may be before the house for a longer time than is now contemplated.

The senate has no programme for the week and very little business on its calendar, as the reorganization of the senate committees did not take place until just before the holidays. There are, however, a few bridge bills reported, and Senator Morgan's bill for the acquisition of right of way for the Nicaragua canal is among the measures in position to receive attention. It is not probable, however, that the right of way bill will receive consideration at this time.

The Gold and Silver Output.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The preliminary estimate of Mr. Roberts, director of the mint, on the production of gold and silver in the United States during the calendar year 1901 indicates only a slight gain over the production of the preceding year. The yield of Alaska fell off by about $1,000,000, Colorado made a slight gain in gold, and the other producers were nearly stationary. The yield of silver exceeded that of the previous year by about 2,000,000 fine ounces. The total number of ounces of fine gold produced is shown to have been 3,880,578 of the value of $80,218,000. The number of fine ounces of silver produced was 59,653,788, having a commercial value of $35,792,200. The coinage value of the silver is approximately $77,000,000.

Skaters Drowned.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Bert Cooper, aged twenty-two, and Arthur Snyder, aged thirty, unmarried and carpenters engaged on the new Zabriskie mansion at Annandale, skated on the river from Barrytown to Tivoli yesterday afternoon in company with Daniel Leary of Barrytown. On their return and when near Cruger's island, going very fast so as to reach home before nightfall, all three skated into an air hole. Cooper and Snyder came up under the solid ice and, thus imprisoned, were drowned. Leary came up in open water and after a terrible struggle managed to pull himself unaided out on the ice, no help being at hand. He reached shore almost frozen and was cared for at a farmhouse.

Mr. Bryan's Itinerary.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 6.—As the guest of Mayor Tom L. Johnson Hon. William J. Bryan spent Sunday and remained in this city until this morning, when he went to Wooster, O., to speak at a Jackson day banquet to be held there tonight. Thence he goes to New Haven, Conn., where he will speak at a Jackson day banquet on Wednesday night.

Fatal Train Wreck.

SHAWNEE, Okla., Jan. 6.—Two negroes and an Indian were killed in a collision of an eastbound freight train with an extra train between Earleboro and Mekuskey. Both engines were wrecked, and eight cars were demolished. The train crews saved themselves by jumping. The wreck was caused by a mistake in train orders.

Church Celebrates Its Centenary.

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 6.—The one hundredth anniversary of the organization of Bethesda Welsh Congregational church was fittingly celebrated yesterday afternoon and evening. The services included the reading of an interesting letter of reminiscences from Hon. Ellis H. Roberts, United States treasurer.

"WANTED, A PRESIDENT."

Our Chief Magistrates Worn Out by Petty Matters.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The publication of an article in the Washington Post by ex-Senator William E. Chandler, president of the Spanish claims commission, entitled, "Wanted by the United States, a President," has caused considerable comment. The article is an argument for reform in the present methods of conducting executive business. Mr. Chandler asserts that a president has now only three objects in life—first, to see 20,000 people a year; second, to accomplish 2,000 little things, and, third, to try to do 200 great things. In seeing so many thousands of people about trivial matters and in giving his attention to the thousands of little things the president, Mr. Chandler insists, is worn out and becomes physically unable to grapple with the great problems to which he ought to give his undivided attention.

Mr. Chandler cites from personal knowledge the cases of presidents who have almost succumbed under the strain, instancing particularly President Arthur, in whose cabinet he was secretary of the navy, and President McKinley, to whose impaired health Mr. Chandler attributes inability to recover from the shock of the assassin's bullet.

Mr. Chandler expresses his regret that President Roosevelt, "even with his quickness, his acuteness and his present untiring industry and unbounded energy, has given countenance to the idea that he will do all the appointing himself and hear all that any one has to say concerning any appointment."

Mr. Chandler thinks that the great weight of the pressure for office ought to fall on the cabinet ministers, and the president ought to have more time for important things.

FORTY-TWO LOST.

This Is the Latest Estimate of the Walla Walla Disaster.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—The French bark Max, which collided with the steamship Walla Walla early on Thursday morning, has been towed to this city in a badly disabled condition by the steamer Acme and the United States revenue cutter McCulloch. The Max's bowsprit was carried away, and her bow was stove in both above and below the water line. Her water tight compartments alone were keeping her afloat.

Ninety-two survivors of the Walla Walla arrived here yesterday from Eureka on the steamer Pomona. There is still some discrepancy in the list of dead and missing. This discrepancy is due to the fact that several passengers boarded the vessel just as she was leaving port. Others who were traveling second class gave assumed names in order to hide their identity. By striking out what are possible duplicates the number of lost stands at forty-two, classed as follows: Known dead, 9; missing, passengers, 13; crew, 20.

One life raft is unaccounted for, and it is feared that all the missing are lost.

House Wrecked by Exploding Boiler.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The explosion of a boiler connected with the heating apparatus in the basement of the handsome five story residence of Mr. Beale R. Howard at 1410 Sixteenth street seriously damaged the house and may result in loss of life. The shock of the explosion was felt throughout the immediate neighborhood, and the house was so badly wrecked as to be unfit for occupancy. William Foegus, the colored butler, who was attending the fires under the boiler at the time of the explosion, was frightfully scalded and badly cut about the hands and face.

"Young Corbett" at Denver.

DENVER, Jan. 6.—"Young Corbett," the featherweight champion, who has opened a week's engagement here, has received a challenge for a match with George Welty, the Australian bantam. "'Young Corbett' is only too eager to meet all comers," said Manager Kennedy, "but Terry McGovern will get the first chance. During the next fifteen weeks the champion will give exhibitions in St. Louis, Louisville, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati, Pittsburg, Toledo, Indianapolis, Buffalo, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington."

Fire In Pennsylvania Town.

COUDERSPORT, Pa., Jan. 6.—The village of Roulette, Potter county, was visited early Sunday morning by a destructive fire, caused, it is believed, by overpressure of natural gas. The stores of Brown & Co. and R. L. White, the Hotel Brehmer, Cavanaugh's saloon, the Odd Fellows' temple and Opera House and several smaller buildings were burned. Only one store is left standing. The town is without fire extinguishing apparatus, and the fire burned itself out. The loss will exceed $30,000, which is partly covered by insurance.

Propagating Mormonism In Germany

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—The German Mormon conference has assembled here under the leadership of Hugh J. Cannon, son of the late George Q. Cannon, the well known Mormon apostle. One hundred and twenty-five Mormon missionaries are now working in Germany and have secured 2,000 followers. The present conference is attended by more than 100 of the German missionaries.

Burned to Death In Their Home.

BETHANY, Conn., Jan. 6.—Edmund Peck, a retired Methodist clergyman, eighty years old, and his daughter, Mary Peck, thirty-five years old, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their handsome home in the Bethany turnpike. Charles Peck of Waterbury, a son of the clergyman, was seriously injured in jumping from the roof.

CHEERS FOR BOERS

Enthusiastic Demonstration at Cleveland.

W. J. BRYAN AMONG THE SPEAKERS.

He Is Glad England Has Had Such a Hard Time, as She Needed the Lesson Taught by the Struggle.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 6.—Four thousand people attended a pro-Boer meeting in Gray's armory yesterday afternoon. There was enthusiastic applause for every expression of sympathy and encouragement for the struggling Boers. An unexpected event in the meeting was the appearance of Hon. William J. Bryan, who is in the city for the day as the guest of Mayor Johnson. When the committee in charge of the meeting learned that the Democratic leader was in the city, an invitation was sent to him and the mayor to attend and address the gathering. Both gentlemen accepted, and when toward the close of other speeches Mr. Bryan and Mr. Johnson entered the hall the whole audience rose en masse and repeatedly shouted the names of Bryan and Johnson and greeted them with hurrahs and handclapping.

The audience was composed mostly of men, although a number of women were present. The tricolor of the Boer republic was a prominent feature of the armory's decoration, and little streamers were tied in the buttonholes of many of the men. Upon the stage were seven native Boers who had been in some of the early conflicts of their countrymen against the English soldiers. They were driven from the country and are now residents of this city.

The meeting continued for four hours, the principal address being by Hon. John J. Lentz. Rev. August Franz, a local Reformed Lutheran, also spoke.

When the formal speeches of the afternoon were concluded, Messrs. Bryan and Johnson were called upon to address the vast audience. Mr. Bryan spoke for about five minutes, during which time he said:

"Sad will be that day, fallen will be the star of our destiny, if the time ever comes when struggling freemen feel that they cannot look upon the people of these states for sympathy."

Mr. Bryan said that he was in entire sympathy with the intent of the meeting, eulogized the fighting South African farmers and urged them to continue the struggle. He said that he was glad the war had cost England so dearly and that the disastrous cost in money and life would be a much needed lesson for the English government, because it would teach and has already taught a lesson that will not be soon forgotten.

Mr. Bryan said that he considered it a compliment that the Boers looked to the United States for aid and sympathy in their struggle and that he considered it a disgrace that no official expression of sympathy had yet been made by this government.

Mayor Johnson also spoke briefly and said that he was in full sympathy with the intent of the meeting and expressed similar sentiments to those expressed by Mr. Bryan in that the English people generally are opposed to the war.

A resolution of great length was passed and will be sent to the president of the United States. The resolution calls the president's attention to the continuance of the war for the past two years and states that it has been characterized on the part of the British as a conflict of savagery by the confiscation or destruction of property of inhabitants and noncombatants lying within the zone of war.

Hawaiian Rains Break Record.

HONOLULU, via San Francisco, Jan. 6.—Unofficial reports from Papaaloa, island of Hawaii, state that recently forty inches of rain fell in twenty-four hours. Professor Lyons of the government observatory says that this is a world's record, but he discredits the report. From another district a fall of ten inches in five hours is reported, and throughout the islands there were heavy rains.

Crude Rubber Company Fails.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The Crude Rubber company, incorporated under the laws of Virginia in February, 1897, and having its offices at 25 Broadway, this city, has gone into the hands of a receiver. According to trustworthy reports, its assets are about $3,000,000 and its liabilities about $3,000,000 in addition to indorsements and guarantees of about $2,000,000.

Coal Mines Still Flooded.

HAZLETON, Pa., Jan. 6.—Owing to the idleness of a majority of the coal mines in this district, which have been flooded for three weeks, a coal famine prevails here. Coal during the last week was advanced 50 to 75 cents a ton. It will be a week at least before all the mines in this district will be in condition for resumption.

Killed by a Fall.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Jan. 6.—Cortez K. Turner, a member of the firm of C. K. Turner & Son of New York, was instantly killed by a fall from the roof of the kitchen of the Parker House. Mr. Turner had been under treatment here since Friday for acute Bright's disease.

Pennsylvania Bank Robbed.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 6.—The First National bank of Glassport has been robbed of $3,000. The robbers got into the cellar, dug a hole in the vault and used dynamite on the safe. The bank had just moved into a new building and was not yet in working shape.

MR. DUMONT'S WORK.

In regard to the changes in the Common Council which took place this noon, it is interesting to note that President J. B. Dumont, who retired, has probably served the city as a Councilman longer than any other member now serving, which is fourteen years. This has not been served continuously, but with short intervals.

Mr. Dumont has been a most valuable member of the Council, due largely to his financial ability. It cannot be denied that by his close watch of the city treasury many a dollar has been saved and the credit of the city maintained, when others have been inclined to go beyond the limit. In matters of conference, Mr. Dumont has also proved himself to be a man of wise thought and judgment. He has carefully guarded every interest, and more than once has refused to support measures which he felt confident would work disastrously to the best interests of the city.

He has been fearless and outspoken at all times, and while some of the members have at times thought him unreasonable, they have eventually been forced to believe that his words and actions were the best. It is the opinion of many Plainfielders that the city owes a debt of gratitude to Mr. Dumont or his faithful and efficient service as a Councilman that will be hard to pay.

In all the ten years that the trolley cars have made their daily trips through the city streets, it was not until Thursday afternoon that an accident with fatal consequences occurred. It was a deplorable affair. A bright life was suddenly cut off and a happy household was shrouded in sorrow. There are so many loved ones of that age in Plainfield homes that the fatality strikes deeply into the hearts of the loving parents and the father and mother of the lad have the unlimited sympathy of the entire community.

The announcement that Ward Stephens has resigned as organist and choirmaster of the Crescent Avenue church will be read with regret by his many admirers. Mr. Stephens came to Plainfield with a very high reputation and his work here has fully sustained it. He was a valued addition to the local musical circles. While his many friends will be glad to learn that he is to be associated this winter with Madame Blauvelt as solo pianist, his presence in this city will be missed.

Among the many excellent institutions of a charitable nature, which the people of Plainfield are asked to support, there is none of a more useful nature than the Children's Home. The announcement, in today's Daily Press, of two valuable gifts to that institution, shows that its worthy efforts are appreciated. Plainfielders, who are anxious to devote money to charitable purposes, can send a portion of it to the Children's Home with the full knowledge that it will be well used.

January, remarks the Philadelphia Record, is the month for bargains of all kinds in the department stores, and people of foresight reserve means to take advantage of them. It is a mistake to assume that people spend all their savings before the holidays. There is hardly any kind of business which cannot be greatly improved by newspaper advertising at this season.

The showing made by the Park Club five in the Daily Press Bowling League is not as good as the friends of that club would like to see. Those bowlers from Roselle are regular sharks, however, and it takes crack work to defeat them. At present, it looks as if the trophy would soon become the permanent property of the Roselle Casino.

There is general rejoicing among the members of the local Seventh-Day Baptist church over the fact that Rev. George, B. Shaw has accepted the call for the local pastorate. He is considered one of the brightest young men of his denomination and it seems but proper that he should go to one of its most important churches.

It looks as if, after all, the "municipal ownership" committee of the City Common Council would report before the similar committee from the Borough Council is ready with its report. And yet, at the start, it looked as if North Plainfield was going to completely distance the city in that respect.

From the tone of Mayor Jenkins' message, it looks as if the committee from the Common Council had been pressing the Plainfield Water Supply Company for more advantageous terms for the city.

WANT A DECISION.

First Baptist Church Still Considering Communion Cups.

In order to hasten a decision Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, announced from the pulpit, yesterday morning, that slips had been placed in the hands of members of the congregation for them to designate their wishes in the matter of communion cups. A committee was appointed some time ago to ascertain the wishes of the members. A number have not yet expressed their views. It is desired to learn at an early date whether the congregation would like to make a change to the communion cups.

American Purity Alliance.

The twenty-sixth annual meeting of the American Purity Alliance will be held Saturday, January 18, at 210 Second avenue, New York. Mrs. Anna Rice Powell, of East Sixth street, is the secretary and treasurer and Andrew J. Gavett, of West Fifth street, is a member of the general council of the organization.

Increase of Insurance Rates.

An increase of twenty-five cents on every $100 has been made in premiums on houses containing gasoline and gasoline stoves. This raise has been made because of the fact that an unusual number of conflagrations have been due to this cause recently.

No More New Bridges.

The Union County Board of Freeholders will not spend any more money for new bridges until the appropriations are made in April. The funds for repairs are sufficient to look after this part of the work.

Until New Pastor Comes.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis preached at the Seventh-Day Baptist church Saturday morning. It is quite likely that he will often fill the pulpit until the new pastor, Rev. George B. Shaw, assumes his charge.

Iona's Anniversary.

The ninth anniversary of Iona Council, Degree of Pocohontas, will be held in Red Men's Hall Wednesday evening, Jan. 15, when an interesting programme will be presented.

Social by Shepherds.

Star of Plainfield Lodge, Shepherds of Bethlehem, will have a social Wednesday evening, Jan. 8.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Demick, Somerville, Ind. "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." You don't live by what you eat, but by what you digest and assimilate. If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food. You don't have to diet. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

GOING TO USE TANK AGAIN

WILL KEEP WATER ALWAYS CIRCULATING THROUGH IT.

Water Company Decides to Utilize the Reservoir on the Mountain.

An interesting portion of the annual report of Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, was that part which referred to the improvements being inaugurated by the Plainfield Water Supply Company to increase its service, especially as regards the water for fire purposes.

Chief Doane mentions the reservoir on Johnston's Drive, which holds nearly a million gallons of water and is held in reserve. It will be remembered that complaints have been made concerning the water from this tank. To obviate this a roof is being placed over the tank and an electrical device installed that will tell the engineer at the pumping station exactly the level of the water in the reserve tank at any minute.

An arrangement is also being placed on the tank so that the water will be pumped in one side and will flow out of another opening. This will keep the water moving all the time and, it is believed, will obviate all heretofore existing trouble. It is also proposed to empty the tank frequently.

At the pumping station there are two pumps of large capacity. One pumps 3,000,000 gallons of water daily and the other 2,000,000. Another new pump with a daily capacity of 5,000,000 has been ordered and will soon be put in position. This will give a total capacity of 10,000,000 gallons daily. In case of an accident the company wants to be so provided that there will be no question of plenty of water.

MUSICAL SERVICE.

Was Well Given by Choir at the First Baptist Church Last Evening.

A congregation that completely filled the First Baptist church enjoyed a special musical service, last evening, given by the choir under the direction of Howard Case, organist.

A selection on the 'cello by William Paulding DeNike, accompanied by Howard Case on the organ, was rendered excellently. The first part of the service consisted of two anthens by the choir and a duet by George Smith, tenor, and William Holmes, baritone, it being part of the Christmas music.

The latter part of the service was devoted to the rendition of a cantata entitled "Christmas Eve," by Niels W. Gade. Mrs. F. M. Ward, contralto, took the part of the "Seraph." The voices formed an exceeding well-balanced chorus.

This part was followed with a short sermon by the pastor, Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, after which an offering was received for the Organized Aid Association. As an offertory number, Miss Luella C. Harris, soprano, sang a sweet solo. The concluding number was a selection by Mr. DeNike.

AN IDEAL CANDIDATE.

Senator Reed Suggests Chancellor Magie as a Fit Successor for Gen. Sewell.

Chancellor William J. Magie is suggested by State Senator Charles A. Reed to succeed the late General Sewell as United States Senator. In an interview given to a Press reporter, Saturday evening, the Senator said that he favored no particular candidate, as yet, but that eliminating the geographical side of the question Chancellor Magie would make an ideal candidate.

Continuing he said: "He would be a candidate entirely independent of factional influences, or charges of being connected with political deals. He is the most eminently fitted for the position of any man in the Ssate. With him in the Senate, New Jersey would have a representative, who would compare favorably with any in that body, both intellectually and personally. While I have no knowledge as to whether or not he would accept it, I am sure he would have the unanimous support of the Legislature."

Children Especially Liable.

Burns, bruises and cuts are extremely painful and if neglected often result in blood poisoning. Children are especially liable to such mishaps because not so careful. As a remedy DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is unequalled. Draws out the fire, stops the pain, soon heals the wound. Beware of counterfeits. Sure cure for piles. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured my baby of eczema after two physicians gave her up," writes James Mock, N. Webster, Ind. "The sores were so bad she soiled two to five dresses a day." L. W. Randolph.

Andrew Thompson, of West Front street, is now night operator at the Western Union telegraph office.

George Rhoades, of Pennsylvania, a well-known member of the Jr., O. U. A. M., has been visiting in Plainfield for a time.

MEASURED PLANET MERCURY.

Dr. See of the Naval Observatory at Washington Finds Its Diameter to Be 2,658 Miles.

Dr. See, of the United States naval observatory in Washington, has just concluded a measurement of the planet Mercury with the large telescope of that institution. Its diameter is found to be 2,658 miles. Dr. See calls attention to the fact that he has never observed any marked spots on the planet's disk, not even when the sky was absolutely pure and the image of the planet perfectly defined on the lens of the telescope. His observation also is that there is no diminution of brightness at the edges of the disk, such as would be produced by an absorbing atmosphere. Although these results agree in general with those obtained at the Lick observatory, they disagree with those of Schiajarelli and Mr. Percival Lowell.

Dr. See has made another interesting estimate regarding meteors. Every observer notes a considerable number of small meteors while he is engaged in telescopic observations. The field of view of a telescope is a very small fraction of the surface of the heavens, and a simple proportion based on the number of meteors enables an estimate to be made of the number of meteors in the whole sky. In this manner, says the Washington Star, Dr. See estimates there are about 1,200,000,000 telescopic meteors appearing in the sky daily. Between 10,000,000 and 15,000,000 meteors, bright enough to be visible to the naked eye, encounter the earth daily, according to the estimate of Prof. Newton.

MOUNTAIN LIONS AID HERDERS

They Feed on Wild Colts and Leave Sheep and Calves of Stockmen Alone.

Mountain lions are assisting the stockmen of southern Utah in reducing the herds of wild horses which roam the ranges, writes the Denver correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean. It is reported that the lions have considerably diminished the herds by devouring the colts.

Young colts seem to be choice morsels for the wild beasts, and it is said that not over 50 colts escaped the lions this season on the Boulder, Thousand Lakes and Fish Lake mountains. The lions seem to prefer the colts to lambs and calves, and since there have been a great many colts born on the ranges during the last few years the beasts of prey have almost ceased to molest offspring of sheep and cattle.

As the lions are not much hunted and have ready access to choice food they have been increasing in numbers rapidly and threaten to become a great menace to stockmen, especially when the wild horses begin to grow scarce. Down in Kane county the horses have about deserted the haunts of the lion and are increasing so fast that the stockmen have recently decided upon their extermination. A prominent stockman just up from the south says that with this means employed, the depredations of the lions and the starving to death in hard winters the wild horse bands of southern Utah will soon become a thing of the past.

New Year's Customs in European Countries

Some Odd and Pretty Ways in Which the Day is Celebrated in Many Lands.

IT IS interesting to note, in connection with the reviewing of the customs and ceremonies which grow up about an anniversary day of any kind, how much they reflect the character of the day celebrated, and embody the central thought which gave rise to its national or international observance. It is also instructive to note the evolution which gradually takes place in the methods of observing any public anniversary day. To take down an old volume and read of how our forefathers threw themselves body and soul into the spirit of such days as they rolled by, makes one realize that times have indeed changed, but for better or worse we will have to let each decide for himself. A paragraph from Irving's Knickerbocker is illustrative of this point:

"New Year was truly a day of open-handed liberality, of jocund revelry, and warm-hearted congratulation—when the bosom seemed to swell with genial good-fellowship—and the plenteous table was attended with an unceremonious freedom, and honest, broad-mouthed merriment, unknown in these days of degeneracy and refinement." And without taking up the challenge thus thrown out, that times "ain't what they used to be," and willing to admit that perhaps we did make a mistake in not arranging for our earthly advent 200 or 300 years ago, let us look on the bright side of the matter, and remember that the chap with the cocked hat and knickerbockers has long since moldered in the grave, while we have life and its opportunities before us.

And the coming of the new year emphasizes this last thought and gives fresh hope as one realizes all the possibilities and opportunities lying hidden therein. It is this all pervading essence of thought of the New Year's anniversary which can be traced in almost every custom belonging to the day, which has arisen in this or other lands.

In France and the other Latin countries the great gift day of the year is New Year's day. In the popular eye it is the greatest festival of the year. It is the great family day. In the morning the children are out of bed and at their stockings before the light of day has begun to streak the early morning with dashes of gray. They then rush off to be the first to salute their parents and offer them good wishes for the new year. If any member of the family has died during the year all the near relatives assemble at the grave in the early morning, renewing flowers and ornaments. After the midday meal, the younger members of the family call upon the older ones and in the evening they all meet for dinner at the home of the oldest member, who is considered the head of the family. When the French speak of their family it is in the broad sense and includes all relatives.

In Scotland, as in France, New Year's day lords it over Christmas as the most important festival of the year. The day before known as hogmanay, at which time the children of the poorer classes in the retired and primitive towns swaddle themselves in great sheets and go along the streets in little bands, calling at the doors of the wealthier inhabitants for a dole of wheaten bread or sweet cake.

Another visitor whom every family expects on this night is the First-Foot, a name given to the person who first sets foot over the threshold after the clock strikes 12. Hence in Edinburgh and other large cities the streets were thronged in the old days and there was a din and clatter in the air as the First-Footers pressed up and down carrying a het-pint, or bowl of hot toddy, which each offered the other with "A gude New Year." And girl caught on the street, even with an escort, might be kissed by any youth. This merry rollicking custom prevailed until in 1811, when the rowdy and criminal element made it the occasion of bold robberies and held possession of the streets of Edinburgh for several hours, since which time the First-Footer has come to be the exception rather than the rule.

But it is to Germany we have to turn for a curious bit of horse play in connection with the celebration of New Year's eve or St. Sylvester's night. In many of the larger cities, and especially Berlin, everybody is privileged to bonnet with a blow of the fist any citizen who ventures into the street after dark with a high silk hat. The unfortunate visitor from the provinces and the stranger in the city are the special mark of the roysterers. Suddenly he finds himself the center of a jolly group of men and boys and the cry of "Hut ab!" sounds in his ears and when he finally makes his escape it is with his hat rim resting on his shoulders and the battered remains of the crown of his hat resting on his aching head.

In rural Russia New Year's begins as preeminently a juvenile festival. The boys rise with the sun, fill their pockets with dried peas and wheat, much after the manner of the American youth on Halloween night, and go in bands from house to house. As doors are never locked, it is easy for them to effect an entrance. They use the peas on their enemies and the gentler wheat upon their friends. After breakfast the handsomest horse in the village is bedecked with evergreen and bright berries, and led to the house of the nobleman, followed by the pea and wheat shooters of the early morning. The lord admits the horse and guests to his parlor, where all the family is gathered. This is the greeting of the peasants, old and young, of their lord and master.

A New Year's eve custom which is said to linger around Bramyard, in the Worcestershire border of Herefordshire, England, is the rush for the first pitcherful of the New Year. As the hour of midnight is on the strike, and the last carol is dying away, a promiscuous rush is made to the nearest spring to snatch the "cream of year," the first pitcherful of the New Year, and with it the prospect of the best luck. The same custom, it is said, obtains in the south of Scotland.

A pretty custom in Wales is one in which the children play an important part. They form themselves in little groups and carry from house to house their congratulations and good wishes for health and prosperity during the ensuing year. These wishes are symbolized by each bearing in his hand an apple stuck full of corn variously colored and decorated with a sprig of some evergreen. Three short skewers serve as supports to the apple when not held in the hand, and a fourth serves to hold it by without destroying its many colored honors.

The Persians celebrate the beginning of the year by exchanging presents of eggs, which is suggestive of the custom surrounding our observance of Easter, and may convey with it the thought of new life and a new year, the egg, at least if it is fresh, symbolizing a beginning and a life with all its promise and possibilities.

Several nights during last hot wave, around July 4, when the thermometer registered 100° outside my window, my brother complained that he could not sleep, and said to me: "You sleep like a horse!"

I informed him the reason was that I took a R·I·P·A·N·S before retiring.

I think R·I·P·A·N·S are the most harmless sleep producers during hot weather that one can take.

I would advise all persons that take intoxicants and get drunk during hot weather to produce sleep to take a R·I·P·A·N·S. It is healthier and cheaper.

FOR ORDINARY WEAR.

Waists of Flannel, Cashmere and Corduroy Are Fashionable.

For a schoolgirl nothing is prettier in the way of waists than one of dotted velvet. Such a waist can be made with stitched plaits and strappings or, if desired, trimmed with little pipings of plain satin the color of the waist or black. With a waist of plain velvet a wide lace collar is pretty. Changeable velvets make charming blouses for dressy and ordinary occasions.

White flannel, which has been heretofore so popular, is being discarded by people who have to consider the cost of things. It is really most unpractical, as it soils almost immediately, and when washed it either grows yellow or shrinks.

Cashmere and silk and wool fabrics are superseding flannel because of their superior cleaning qualities. Box plaits form a popular way of making these unlined tailor made waists.

The waist in today's illustration is of white silk laid in alternate tucks and shirrings. The sleeves are elbow length and are finished by wide ruffflings of chiffon. Above these ruffflings are wide and narrow bands of black velvet, terminating in rosettes. The waist has a short yoke of tucks, bordered by a curved medallion applique. The waist is collarless, but about the throat is worn a pretty neck ornament consisting of three narrow bands of velvet ribbon held together by a white lace butterfly.

ELABORATE SKIRTS.

Triple Flounces, Appliques and Tucks on All the Newest Models.

Skirts are becoming more and more ornate. Triple effects are especially stylish, and one of the newest skirts boasts of three gored flounces laid in clusters of five tucks and edged with a rich passementerie. In net and thin goods a favorite model for tall people consists in a yoke with two rows of shirring farther down, from which falls a full ruffle edged with a wide patterning of lace.

Skirts of velvet are handsomest made perfectly plain, with a clinging effect around the hips and a long train. One large gored flounce is rich when added on invisibly or by means of a single heavily stitched fold. A pretty style for a cloth gown consists in ornamenting it at intervals with wavy bands of inch wide velvet ribbon of a little darker shade than the cloth.

Today's picture shows a gown of yellow lace of a rather plain design. The waist is bloused into a belt of turquoise silk. The sleeves are elbow length, with a wide frill. The sole trimming of the waist consists of narrow black velvet ribbons brought across the shoulders and front fichu fashion and held together with a turquoise brooch.

The skirt has a graduated flounce set on invisibly. There is a very long train.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

My Strangest Case

BY GUY BOOTHBY.

Author of "DR. NIKOLA," "THE BEAUTIFUL WHITE DEVIL," "PHAROS, THE EGYPTIAN," Etc.

[Copyrighted, 1901, by Ward, Lock & Co.]

They would have been more certain than ever of this fact had they been able to see their guest at that particular moment. In the solitude of his own room he had removed a broad leather belt from round his waist. From the pocket of this belt he shook out upwards of a hundred rubies and sapphires of extraordinary size. He counted them carefully, replaced them in his belt, and then once more secured the latter about his waist.

"At last I am safe," he muttered to himself, "but it was a close shave—a very close shave. I wouldn't do that journey again for all the money the stones are worth. No! not for twice the amount."

Next morning George Bertram, as he called himself, left Nampoung for Bhamo, with Gregory's check for 500 rupees in his pocket.

"You must take it," said that individual in reply to the other's half-hearted refusal of the assistance. "Treat it as a loan if you like. You can return it to me when you are in better circumstances. I assure you we don't want it. We can't spend money out here."

Little did he imagine when he made that offer, the immense wealth which the other carried in the belt that encircled his waist. Needless to say, Hayle said nothing to him upon the subject. He merely pocketed the check with an expression of his gratitude, promising to repay it as soon as he reached London. As a matter of fact he did so, and to this day, I have no doubt, Gregory regards him as a man of the most scrupulous and unusual integrity.

Two days later the wanderer reached Bhamo, that important military post on the sluggish Irrawaddy. His appearance, thanks to Gregory's and Dempsey's kind offices, was now sufficiently conventional to attract little or no attention, so he negotiated the captain's check, fitted himself out with a few other things that he required, and then set off for Mandalay. From Mandalay he proceeded as fast as steam could take him to Rangoon, where, after the exercise of some diplomacy, he secured passage aboard a tramp steamer bound for England.

When the Shweydagon was lost in the evening mist, and the steamer had made her way slowly down the sluggish stream with the rice-fields on either side, Hayle went aft and took his last look at the land to which he was saying good-by.

"A quarter of a million if a halfpenny," he said, "and as soon as they are sold and the money is in my hands, the leaf shall be turned, and my life for the future shall be all respectability."

PART IV.

Two months had elapsed since the mysterious traveler from China had left the lonely frontier station of Nampoung. In outward appearance it was very much the same as it had been then. The only difference consisted in the fact that Capt. Gregory and his subaltern Dempsey, having finished their period of enforced exile, had returned to Bhamo to join the main body of their regiment. A Capt. Handiman and a subaltern named Grantham had taken their places, and were imitating them inasmuch as they spent the greater portion of their time fishing and complaining of the hardness of their lot. It was the more unfortunate in their case that they did not get on very well together. The fact of the matter was Handiman was built on very different lines to Gregory, his predecessor; he gave himself airs, and was fond of asserting his authority. In consequence the solitary life at the fort sat heavily upon both men.

One hot afternoon Grantham, who was a keen sportsman, took his gun, and, accompanied by a wiry little Shan servant, departed into the jungle on shikar thoughts intent. He was less successful than usual; indeed, he had proceeded fully three miles before he saw anything worth emptying his gun at. In the jungle the air was as close as a hothouse, and the perspiration ran down his face in streams.

"What an ass I was to come out!" he said angrily to himself. "This heat is unbearable."

At that moment a crashing noise reached him from behind. Turning to discover what occasioned it, he was just in time to see a large boar cross the clearing and disappear into the bamboos on the further side. Taking his rifle from the little Shan he set off in pursuit. It was no easy task, for the jungle in that neighborhood was so dense that it was well-nigh impossible to make one's way through it. At last, however, they hit upon a dried up nullah, and followed it along, listening as they went to the progress the boar was making among the bamboos on their right. Presently they sighted him, crossing an open space a couple of hundred yards or so ahead of them. On the further side he stopped and began to feed. This was Grantham's opportunity, and, sighting his rifle, he fired. The beast dropped like a stone, well hit, just behind the shoulder. The report, however, had scarcely died away before the little Shan held up his hand to attract Grantham's shoulder.

"What is it?" the other inquired.

Before the man had time to reply his quick ear caught the sound of a faint call from the jungle on the other side of the nullah. Without doubt it was the English word help, and, whoever the man might be who called, it was plain that he was in sore straits.

"What the deuce does it mean?" said Grantham, half to himself and half to the man beside him. "Some poor devil got lost in the jungle, I suppose? I'll go and have a look."

Having climbed the bank of the nullah, he was about to proceed in the direction whence the cry had come, when he became aware of the most extraordinary figure he had ever seen in his life approaching him. The appearance Hayle had presented when he had turned up at the Ford two months before was nothing compared with that of this individual. He was a small man, not more than five feet in height. His clothes were in rags, a grizzly beard grew in patches upon his cheeks and chin, while his hair reached nearly to his shoulders. His face was pinched until it looked more like that of a skeleton than a man. Grantham stood and stared at him, scarcely able to believe his eyes.

"Good Heavens," he said to himself, "what a figure! I wonder where the beggar hails from?" Then addressing the man, he continued: "Are you an Englishman, or what are you?"

The man before him, however, did not reply. He placed his finger on his lips, and turning, pointed in the direction he had come.

"Either he doesn't understand, or he's dumb," said Grantham. "But it's quite certain that he wants me to follow him somewhere."

Turning to the man again, he signed to him to proceed, whereupon the little fellow hobbled painfully away from the nullah in the direction whence he had appeared. On and on he went until he at length came to a standstill at the foot of a hill, where a little stream came splashing down in a miniature cascade from the rocks above. Then Grantham realized the meaning of the little man's action. Stretched out beside a rock was the tall figure of a man. Like his companion, he presented a miserable appearance. His clothes, if clothes they could be called, were in rags, his hair was long and snowy white, matching his beard, which descended to within a few inches of his waist. His eyes were closed, and for a moment Grantham thought he was dead. This was not the case, however, for upon his companion approaching him he held out his hand and inquired whether he had discovered the man who had fired the shot?

To Grantham's surprise the other made no reply in words, but, taking his friend's hand he made some mysterious movements upon it with his fingers, whereupon the latter raised himself to a sitting position.

ANDY MILLER'S SNAKE.

A Very Intelligent and Faithful Serpent Bred in Old Kentucky Retires for the Winter.

Andy Miller, of Harrodsburg, Ky., put his seven-foot cowsucker snake Dan to bed for the winter last week. Dan retires late this year because Andy had kept him awake by making him stay by the fire.

But one cold day last week he slipped out and tried to follow Andy to the barn, as he loved to do. When half way there the cold got him, and he fell into a torpor.

Andy knew what had happened as soon as he saw the vacant place by the fireside. He soon found his pet, and filling a box with rags, put the snake in it and buried the box three feet deep.

SNAKE CAME CLOSE BEHIND.

He has had Dan'l for three years and each season when the cold weather sets in "cashes" him until spring again clothes the leafless trees and life again is tolerable for snakes.

It was under somewhat peculiar circumstances that Andy acquired Dan and adopted him for Daniel's good. As Andy tells it, he was going through his wood land when a rabbit ran past him so rapidly that he could hardly tell what the creature was. Close behind the rabbit came the snake.

One hundred yards away the thought must have struck the rabbit that its only salvation was in the man, for Andy says it made a loop and, to his amazement, squatted between his feet. And the snake, not to be robbed of its dinner, turned and came at Andy full tilt.

When the snake reached Andy's legs he recovered from his astonishment. He caught the reptile by the back of the neck and carried it home.

In a year or so it had become so gentle that it knew its name, and would jump through a hoop. It follows Andy like a dog, and all summer long sleeps on his feet at night.

Dan has never voted yet.

PIG IN HER PARLOR.

English Woman Kept It There Because, She Says, She Had Educated It as a "Christian."

Miss Emily Hampton, of Nazeing, England, was summoned the other day for keeping a pig in a manner dangerous to health. The nuisance Inspector testified that he found the pig occupying the whole of one room in the house of the defendant. The animal was lying between clean sheets on a feather bed, covered with a white lace counterpane, with his head resting on a pillow. The room was furnished like the usual parlor, and there were illuminated texts on the walls.

The inspector said further that he found the defendant kneeling at the bedside and kissing the pig and calling it a naughty boy because it had eaten a small portion of its pillow.

Miss Hampton pleaded that she had educated the pig as a Christian. She had reared it from infancy. When young it used to occupy the sofa. It had always asked to be let out when it wanted to take the fresh air. It never kicked the clothes off the bed and was most quiet and peaceable. Visitors came in carriages to see it. The magistrate gave Miss Hampton six weeks in which to find fresh lodgings.

Value of Oriental Rugs.

A square foot of the best Persian rug is worth about $10, and it takes a single weaver 23 days to complete it. This allows the weaver about 44 cents a day for her wool and her labor, but three-fourths of this amount goes to pay for the wool. Only 11 cents a day is left for the weaver.

AFTER ROBERTS' SCALP.

President Believed to Be Considering the Appointment of a New United States Treasurer.

A change in the important position of treasurer of the United States, now held by Ellis H. Roberts, of New York, is looked for soon. It is understood here that the president has decided to appoint a successor to Mr. Roberts, but who the new man is cannot be learned.

A republican representative from New York, who has long been a close personal and political friend of the president, has had several talks with him at the white house recently in regard to this matter and he is authority for the statement that a new treasurer will soon be made.

Further inquiry made by the Brooklyn Eagle correspondent brought out the fact that the president is not satisfied with certain transactions of the treasurer in matters outside of his office and which were made the basis of a suit against him.

ELLIS H. ROBERTS.
(United States Treasurer Who May Be Displaced.)

It is known that some time since certain New York people called at the treasury department and complained to Secretary Gage regarding Mr. Roberts' conduct in this matter. The New Yorkers were informed that the president was the proper person to whom complaints should be made, and it is supposed the matter was taken to the white house. It was reported, also, that Mr. Roberts had met the charges against him, but this is also denied in other quarters.

Mr. Roberts was made treasurer of the United States July 1, 1897, and has been in office for about four and a half years. He has made an excellent official, his thorough knowledge of banking matters and his former experience as assistant treasurer of New York being exceedingly useful to him in his work here. There has been no suggestion whatever of irregularity connected with him in his official position.

Treasurer Roberts was born in Utica in 1827 and was educated in Yale in the class of 1850. He was first an editor in his native city, later becoming proprietor of the Utica Morning Journal. In 1870 he went to congress and served two terms. President Harrison in 1899 made him assistant treasurer of the United States at New York. In 1893 he became president of the Franklin national bank in New York. He has written and lectured much on financial subjects, including the tariff. A suit brought against him in 1899, as a result of which he was ordered to pay his sister over $21,000 on a judgment rendered, brought his name into prominence and discussion.

DR. JOSEPH ZEMP.

Elected President of the Swiss Republic for the Year 1902 Over Two Opposing Candidates.

Dr. Joseph Zemp, the newly elected president of the Swiss republic, is regarded as a genuinely capable statesman and eminently qualified to preside over the national council which initiates all legislation in the little mountain state. He is a leader in the conservative party, although he is known to hold tolerant and even liberal views in matters of great weight. Dr. Zemp is 67 years old, and is a native of Entelbuch, Lucerne. One year ago he was elected vice president, and he comes into his present office by virtue of the unwritten law that the vice president shall succeed to the highest office, provided his services in the subordinate position have been satisfactory to the people. As vice president he was head of the department of state railways and telegraphs, where he was well tested in the art of government. He was elected over two opposing candidates.

Enormous Loss by Fire.

The loss from conflagrations in this country, for 11 months of 1901, is $150,000,000, and the most of this tremendous drain could be saved by better construction and greater care.

house. When he and his son, Alonzo, were in business in Cedar street, they were resident buyers for out-of-town drug houses, and it was his keen judgment and shrewd business qualities that led to the position he held with Merck & Company for several years. He was unquestionably an authority in the drug business in New York and no one knew the market better than he. In 1868 he was married to Miss Elizabeth Rogers, daughter of Nathan Rogers, of this city.

A FRAME HOUSE IN FLAMES

HOME OF JOHN CAREY WAS PARTIALLY DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Blaze Was Under Good Headway When Firemen Arrived—Had No Insurance.

Flames, presumably originating in a chimney, swept through the two story frame house, belonging to Moses Carey and occupied by his son, John Carey, yesterday afternoon, and practically destroyed the entire building. The loss on the furniture and wearing apparel of the family is uncovered by insurance, but there is a policy on the dwelling.

The cries of the infant daughter in a second story rear room, brought Mrs. John Carey from the kitchen to the scene of the conflagration. Picking up the little girl and a son, George Dewey Carey, who was playing on the floor, she rushed for help. John A. Goodwin turned in an alarm.

Warren Engine Company hurried to the place, but before it arrived the whole rear was in flames, the roof being already eaten up. A heroic battle was made and the fire at last gotten under control. The West End Hose Company met with an accident on the way and by the time it got to the conflagration, the fire was subdued.

The loss is estimated at $400. John Carey is a poor man with six children and he has lost everything he has in the world.

John R. Pettit Taken Ill at Home of Betrothed—Died at Bound Brook.

John R. Pettit, of Bound Brook, who was taken ill last week while visiting in Plainfield, and who died at his home a few days later, was to have been married at Easton to Miss May Hughes, of Jackson avenue. He was visiting Miss Hughes when taken ill and she returned with him, where she remained until he died. The funeral was held this afternoon. Among the floral tributes was a large wreath from the employes at Crosby & Hill's, where Miss Hughes is employed.

E. church one new member was added by letter, while at the Congregational church three were admitted by letter. WARD STEPHENS HAS RESIGNED AS ORGANIST

Will Sever His Connections With the Crescent Avenue Church May 1.

HE IS GOING ON A TOUR.

WILL ACCOMPANY MADAME BLAUVELT AS PIANIST THIS WINTER.

The Church Will Allow Him to Put in Substitute Organist During His Two Months Leave of Absence.

The chief topic of interest in local musical circles today is tthe announcement that Ward Stephens has resigned his place as organist and choirmaster of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church to take effect May 1, and that previous to that time, Mr. Stephens will be absent for three months on a concert tour. Although he has been here but a short time, Mr. Stephens has made a host of friends and there will undoubtedly be a general feeling of regret that such an accomplished musician is to leave Plainfield.

It was only recently that the New York Tribune alluded to Mr. Stephens as "the most talented and versatile and most modest of the American born pianists." It is not surprising then that Madame Lillian Blauvelt, the famous cantatrice, who arrived in this country from Europe a week ago, should invite him to make a concert tour of two months with her in vocal and instrumental recitals. Madame Blauvelt and Mr. Stephens will give a few concerts the latter part of January in Maine and the large cities in the east, including Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Washington. The first of February, they will leave for the west to go as far as Denver, taking in Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Detroit and Pittsburg. About forty concerts in all will be given.

Through the courtesy of the Crescent Avenue church, Mr. Stephens will be allowed to put in a substitute organist for the months of February and March and will then return to take up his duties for the month of April.

C. L. Graff, manager for Sembrich, Lehmann, Gadski and Blauvelt, has remarked that he considers himself fortunate in securing Mr. Stephens' services as he is not only a beautiful pianist but a very cultured musician and therefore a "very present help in time of trouble."

The departure from Plainfield of such a distinguished musician as Mr Stephens will be universally regretted. The people have appreciated the high standard of church music that he has continued. Mr. Stephens has never offered anything musically trivial to a Plainfield audience, whether in concert, organ recital or church service. The members of his choir have the highest admiration and respect for him, both personally and musically.

One of his choir remarked only a few Sundays ago that he had never met an organist who had such a beautiful musical conception, such splendid discrimination in accompanying the voice, such extraordinary ability to read music at sight and with all a fine disciplinarian. Much regret has been expressed that the music loving people of Plainfield have not had more opportunity to hear Mr. Stephens as a pianist.

COUNCIL MET LAST EVENING AFTER ALL

Meeting Took the Place of the One Set For the Monday Evening Following.

A NUMBER OF PETITIONS

CONSIDERED: THE QUESTION OF NEW QUARTERS WITHOUT ACTION.

Subject of Street Sprinkling by the City Was Brought Up and Will be Considered at a Future Meeting.

In view of the fact that at the first meeting of the Common Council for 1902, the rules for 1901 were adopted, it was considered wise and safe that that body should meet on the first Monday in January, thus abiding by the rules. This decision was transmitted to the Council by Corporation Counsel Marsh. Accordingly the Council met last evening, contrary to expectations. The adjourned meeting scheduled for next Monday evening, as per resolution offered last evening, will not be held. All of the members were present except Councilmen van Herwerden and Buckle.

The first business considered was a petition received from W. C. Startup, in which he complained that a tax for a dog amounting to $2.83 with interest for the year 1897, was not just. He claimed that he did not nor does he now own a dog. J. B. Coward, attorney for Mrs. Elizabeth Hyde, executrix of the estate of Charles Hyde, petitioned the Council to return $10 an amount overtaxed in 1900 on the property at 800 and 844 South avenue. The petitions were referred.

The bond of Constable Amos Moffett, having been approved, was ordered filed, and the bond of Constable W. R. Mattox was referred to the corporation counsel for approval as to form. The petition of the residents of Madison avenue asking for the widening of that avenue, which was referred by the Council of last year to the present Council, was referred to the proper committee.

Councilman Mellick at this time reported back several petitions wherein various amounts in taxes were in question. They were referred to the finance committee at the last meeting and last evening the committee reported adversely in all but one case. The petitions not granted were J. H. Harkness, dog tax; H. J. Martin, request for exemption of taxes, claiming same because he was an agent in business; F. C. Langhorne, asking for the return of $13.49, claiming the same was paid twice in 1897; W. T. Banks, asking exemption for a dog tax. In each of these cases, by advice of the corporation counsel, there was reported that no good reasons exist for granting the same.

Mr. Mellick stated that the committee has no way of determining whether J. H. Harkness and W. T. Banks did have or not have dogs, as claimed. They should have appeared before the Commissioners of Appeal and stated their claims. In the case of H. J. Martin, the same report was made, this is, that the fact that he was an agent did not furnish good reason for exemption.

In F. C. Langhorne's case, it was the opinion of Mr. Marsh that where the tax had been voluntarily paid it should not be returned by the city. In this connection it was reported that only in that one year, 1897, had Mr. Langhorne paid the sum mentioned. His wife paid a similar sum in that year and had continued to do so ever since. There was an argument in Mr. Langhorne's case, Mr. Lee claimed that inasmuch as the city has heretofore refunded tax paid on the property in question no exception should be made now. Mr. Tolles said that, if the tax was paid under protest, it should be returned. It was finally agreed that the finance committee should withdraw the report in this case and consider the matter further.

The one case reported favorably upon was that of John Christian, who like Mr. Langhorne, was represented by Nelson and Wm. N. Runyon. It was moved by Mr. Mellick that the tax in question, paid twice, should be properly adjusted.

A motion was made at this time by Mr. Mellick that the Council take a recess of ten minutes to consider the question of leasing new quarters for the Council and city offices. After a recess, the Council returned to its regular session and received a communication from J. B. Coward. This stated that the writer had received the notification regarding the vacating of the present quarters and he desired to say that in consideration of an extension of the lease for the same quarters, he would put the offices in first-class condition and lease the same for $700 a year. If the Council preferred to have the office now used by F. A. Dunham, giving a total floor space of 348 square feet, he would be glad to make such arrangements for a yearly rental of $850. Mr. Coward agreed to properly heat all offices after next summer. This communication, as well as the one from Smalley Brothers offering their rooms in the new bulidig on North avenue for $1,000 a year, were referred to the finance committee for further consideration. They will be reported upon later.

In conclusion Mr. Mellick brought up the subject of street sprinkling under the direction of the city. In doing so he said that he wished to have the matter considered early and give plenty of time for any propositions that might be offered. Mr. Pray supplimented Mr. Mellick's remarks by saying that he had been obtaining data on the same subject and could assist the committee in considering the matter. This concluded the business and the Council adjourned.

NEW SCHOOL BOARD MET AND ORGANIZED

President Probasco Was Re-elected and Appointed His Committees for the Year.

ONLY ROUTINE BUSINESS

NOTHING OF A STARTLING NATURE CAME UP FOR CONSIDERATION.

C. F. Abbott Elected to Fill the Place of Secretary Lounsbury Whose Term Has Expired—F. T. Woodhull the New Member.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education began last evening, with the organization looking not at all like itself. Two members, Dr. Richards and Mr. Abbott, were absent while a third was a new comer. He was F. T. Woodhull recently elected to succeed Secretary Lounsbury. Mr. Woodhull took an active interest in the proceedings and showed by frequent inquiries that he intends becoming acquainted with his duties at once.

Before settling down to business the board re-organized itself as follows: President, Dr. J. B. Probasco; secretary, Charles F. Abbott. President Probasco afterward announced his committees as follows: Teachers and text books, Probasco, Richards and Abbott; books, stationery and supplies, Richards, Woodhull and Probasco; buildings and repairs, Abbott, Probasco and Lovell; fuel, Woodhull, Lovell and Richards; finance, Lovell, Abbott and Woodhull. This is practically the committees of last year with, of course, the exception of the new member. The remainder of the business transacted was purely of a routine nature. Mr. Lovell assumed the secretary's chair and read the various reports. Tax Collector Smith's report showed a total collection for the month of $3,165.47, including the interest, which had been deposited to the credit of the board. According to the medical inspector's report 135 pupils have been examined during the month. The custodian of school moneys reported the receipt of $50,611.95 while $25,459.14 had been disbursed leaving a balance on hand of $25,154.81.

Superintendent Maxson reported receiving $463 for the winter term of tuition by non-resident pupils. He also reported the receipt of $47.24 from the Junior and Senior classes of the High School and $61 from the pupils of the Irving school, the amounts cleared from entertainments. The money will be added to the library fund of the schools donating.

At a recent meeting of the board a request was received from the Board of Health asking that all pupils in the schools be vaccinated. Superintendent Maxson stated that this matter had been attended to and that in making queries he learned that in the High School 85 per cent. of the pupils were vaccinated, in the grammar schools, 80 per cent. and in the primary and kindergarden grades about 45 per cent. The parents of those unvaccinated had been asked to have the matter attended to.

On motion of Mr. Lovell, it was decided to prepare a definite form of rules governing the actions of the board at all times. This is a matter which has been brought up at odd times for the past two years but which has never been decided upon. In order to have it done at once President Probasco appointed Mr. Lovell and Mr. Richards a committee to prepare the rules.

The president reported that his invitation to Rev. Dr. Jesse Lyman Hurlbut, of Morristown, formerly of this city, to deliver the address at the 1902 commencement, had been accepted. The board then adjourned.

LINEMAN WANTS DAMAGES

SUIT OF DANIEL KNUTTER AGAINST THE TELEPHONE COMPANY ON TRIAL.

Knutter Fell From a Tree at Somerville, While He Was Stringing Wire.

The suit of Daniel Knutter, a lineman living at Dunellen, against the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, was put on trial at New Brunswick, yesterday.

Knutter was employed in the Plainfield district under Manager Charles W. Runyon, which includes Somerville. He was up a tree at that place on January 7, 1900, stringing a wire, when it was pulled sharply by another lineman causing tLe limb he was standing on to break. He fell to the ground, and received a broken leg and crushed ankle. He claims the injuries are permanent. The company offered a settlement but he refused and began suit on the ground of negligence.

At the conclusion of the plaintiff's testimony, yesterday, the company motioned for a non-suit but it was denied.

AN EPWORTH LEAGUE NIGHT

FIRST OF MEETINGS GIVEN BY LOCAL METHODIST CHURCHES.

Service Was Held in the Grace M. E. Church—All the Pastors Assisted.

A service devoted to the interests of the local Epworth League was held in Grace M. E. church, last evening. It was the first of the series of special prayer meetings to be held each evening during the present week in the Methodist churches of the city.

There was a large representation of the various branches of the league in attendance and everyone joined heartily in the service. The pastor, Rev. G. W. Gardner, was in charge, and assisting him were Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, pastor of the First M. E. church, Rev. John McMurray, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, and Rev. F. B. Ham, of Westfield.

Rev. Mr. McMurray invoked the divine blessing on the meeting and Rev. Dr. Snodgrass read the Scripture lesson. A pleasing contralto solo was rendered by Miss Grace Carroll, one of the members of Grace M. E. choir. During the offertory Dyckman Winckler played a violin solo.

A short testimony meeting followed and many participated in it. Subsequently Rev. Mr. Ham made an address in which he implored all those who were not as good as they would want to be to seek the Lord. He said they should cast aside the past and think of the future. Particularly he impressed upon the congregation the danger of putting off a resolution to seek the Lord. Rev. Dr. Snodgrass closed the meeting with a benediction.

LOCAL EXEMPTS HELD A PLEASING REUNION

Big Gathering of the Exempt Firemen's Association for Entertainment.

MANY VISITORS THERE.

A LETTER FROM PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT WAS READ AT MEETING.

A Programme of Music and Recitations Was Given—Then Followed Speeches by Prominent Plainfielders Present.

There was a happy reunion of the members of the Exempt Firemen's Association, last evening, when an entertainment, supper and smoker was given for the purpose of bringing together as many of the members as possible. There was a large attendance, many veteran firemen being present for the first time in many months. The rooms presented an attractive appearance. In the centre was arranged several tables lavishly ladened with fruit, cakes, sandwiches and other good things.

Lewis E. Barkalew, president of the association, occupied the chair of honor and extended to all a cordial welcome. A very interesting part of the programme then followed when G. Thorn, secretary, presented a history of the association. The first meeting was held March 25, 1887, and July 25, 1887, an organization was completed with sixty charter members. Of this number thirty-five are still living and in good standing. The growth of the association was related.

Mr. Thorn read a letter from George B. Cortelyou, secretary to President Roosevelt, in which the latter declined with thanks the kind invitation to be present at the entertainment.

The letter is as follows:

White House,
December 30, 1901.

My Dear Sir: The President requests me to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of the 28th inst. and to express his regret that owing to the pressure of his official duties he is precluded from accepting many of the kind invitations which come to him.

Thanking you in the President's behalf for your thoughtfulness and courtesy, believe me

Very truly yours,
Geo. B. Cortelyou,
Secretary to the President.

L. E. Barkalew,
58 Lincoln place.

B. A. Mumford, an old member of the association, presented to the members an old gong. This was made in 1870 by D. W. Littell and was used for many years on the old hook and ladder truck. The gong was received with the hearty thanks of all.

Then followed a programme of music and speeches. The first was a selection by an orchestra composed of Vincent Sokol, organist; Martin A. Korff, violinist; G. T. Dunham, trombone; and Morris Sorenson, cornet. The next number was phonographic selections by B. A. Mumford, after which Joseph Laughead entertained with selections on his banjo.

The committee in charge then served refreshments, while the orchestra discoursed popular selections. After the inner man was well taken care of, several speeches were made. The first speaker was Senator Charles A. Reed. He reviewed the old days when he used to run to fires in old Somerset and he said that he always felt at home among the firemen.

The Senator made reference to the matter of exemption and took occasion to say that the tendency of the legislators now is to make taxation as equal as possible. He said that he would be pleased if, at any time, he could use his influence for such legislation as would be a benefit to the exempt firemen.

Continuing, he said, that some localities there was a tendency among some people to join town organizations simply for the exemptions that would follow, and in the general movement toward abolishing such laws as tended to encourage this, he was not so sure but what a change would be beneficial. The Senator did not single out especially firemen in this class, but referred to other bodies as well, as coming under that head. He took particular pains to impress upon all that to the firemen who honestly won his exemption such deductions are fair and should be granted. The Senator's remarks were heartily applauded, as also those of James E. Martine, who followed.

Mr. Martine praised in no mean words the very high efficiency of the local fire department and the Exempt Firemen's Association. To the department he gave all honor for saving the home he now occupies and he referred pleasantly to the good that such gatherings, as that of last evening, do in the way of benefitting all, morally, socially and otherwise.

After an amusing recitation by John Becker, the inimitable John H. Carney was introduced. In his own peculiar way he convulsed all with laughter as he recited in Dutch dialect some touching and amusing selections. His local hits were thoroughly appreciated and one had only to look at him to laugh. The next speaker was Alex. Titsworth, one of the old-timers. He gave the boys a rousing talk on the old days.

President B. Frank Coriell, of the Common Council, was the next speaker. He paid a glowing tribute to the fire department and the old association. He believed that Plainfield's department, all things considered, is second to none in the State, and for this condition he gave Chief Doane great credit. He claimed that if it had not been for him, the city would not have as good a department.

Other speeches were made by P. A. Emmons, W. R. Stanbery, representing the Scotch Plains department. J. E. Flannery sang a ballad and Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan recited two very amusing poems.

Those having the entertainment and supper in charge consisted of President Barkalew and William A. Woodruff, Eugene M. Laing, Frazee Putnam, Frank Schuck, David S. Dunavan, D. W. Littell and George Clark.

PASTOR TO RESIGN.

Rev. George A. Francis Has Announced His Intention of Leaving Westfield Baptist Church.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield Jan. 7—The members of the Baptist church, at this place, were greatly surprised recently when their pastor, Rev. Goerge A. Francis, tendered his resignation, to take effect August 1. Rumors of dissatisfaction had been heard, but it was not believed that they would lead to a resignation of the pastor. It has been intimated that the relations between the pastor and the superintendent of the Sunday-school were not pleasant. There will be a church meeting tomorrow evening, when the resignation will be considered.

Mr. Francis has been pastor of the Baptist church since March 15, 1896, having then returned from Africa, where he was engaged in missionary work. Since coming to Westfield he married Miss Alice Greaves, daughter of Rev. Joseph Greaves. He has always been popular. His views on certain lines has been pronounced and it is possible that this has caused some feeling.

CHANCELLOR MAGIE IS NOT READY TO TALK

Refuses to Say Whether or Not He Is a Candidate For U. S. Senate.

WAS CONGRATULATED.

SENATOR KEAN WILL NOT ANNOUNCE HIS PREFERENCE YET.

Was Interviewed, But Refused to Take Sides—Chancellor Magie Was Interviewed at Jersey City.

In connection with the suggested candidacy of Chancellor Magie, as proposed in a interview with Senator Reed, the following from yesterday's Jersey City Journal is of considerable interest:

Chancellor William Magie heard motions in Chancery Chambers, this city, this morning. Lawyers who appeared before him congratulated him upon his having been put forward as a candidate for United States Senator to succeed William Sewell. He replied to them evasively.

To a reporter who read to him an interview with Senator Charles Reed of Somerset, in which Senator Reed said: "While I have no knowledge as to whether he would accept it, I am sure he (Chancellor Magie) would have the unanimous support of the Legislature." Chancellor Magie said: "I have no knowledge myself whether I would accept it or not. I never dreamed of it and never heard of it until this morning."

"Will you say whether or not you will be a candidate?" he asked.

"I will not answer 'yes' or 'no'" replied the Chancellor.

From all that could be gathered from his attitude this morning it seems probable that he will enter the race for Senatorial honors and be pitted by his friends against former Attorney-General Griggs, John F. Dryden and other candidates who are in the field.

The Camden Post-Telegram of yesterday has the following interview with United States Senator Kean regarding his choice of a new colleague:

The friends of ex-Governor Griggs have been circulating the report that United States Senator John Kean has declared for Griggs and has asked some of the members of the Legislature to vote for the former Governor. When Senator Kean was asked if this was true he smiled pensively.

"First I have heard of it," he said. "You can say that I have not yet declared for anybody. What do I think of the outlook? Well, really, I know nothing about it.

"I have heard from the lower end of the State that they are solid for a South Jerseyman, and that Mr. Baird claims to have sixteen votes—yes, that's it, isn't it, sixteen? Yes? Well, perhaps he has. Baird is very popular down there, you know.

"But I really don't know much about the situation, and I don't think anybody can say much about it just now. Personally I have not expressed a preference for any man."

Senator Kean had this talk with a reporter just before he started for Washington.

TOO ENTHUSIASTIC.

Talked So Much About Beauties of Plainfield That He Was Arrested.

Charles Sandford, an itinerant umbrella mender, arrived in town yesterday and started to view the city. He saw most of it through the bottom of sundry glasses handed to him by a borough boniface. He began to talk later about the beauties of the city and was still talking when Patrolman Overbaugh escorted him to the back parlor at the police station. This morning he was sent to jail for twenty days.

Miss Dobbins' Birthday Party.

Miss Erma Dobbins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins, of Elmwood place, entertained a number of her young friends on the occasion of her third birthday yesterday afternoon. The little ones enjoyed parlor games and afterwards partook of refreshments. Miss Dobbins received a number of handsome presents.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants.

To all lovers of skating it is essential that one should have the proper kind of shoes. A. Willett & Son, around the corner, have just the right kind of skating shoes. They have a large stock to select from.

Furniture, furniture, furniture is the cry at Powlison & Jones' East Front street show rooms. Lots of it, new stock, the best of goods and rock bottom prices. They are cutting prices on all sides in order to make room for the spring goods. Now is the time to furnish your home.

A daily form of exercise practiced by a Plainfield man is to walk ten miles every day. To do this he must wear shoes that are comfortable. Looks do not count so much, but it is needless to say that if you buy your shoes of John H. Doane, they will be both comfortable and look well.

Years ago it used to be a day's journey to reach a dry goods store in some parts of the country, and then the goods were not of the best. Today all you have to do is to take a short trip to Crosby & Hill's store. There you will find an unusually large stock of first-quality goods at reasonable prices.

To be a judge of good potatoes is no little achievement these days. W. W. Wilson, the West Third street grocer, can tell a good potato every time and this accounts for the quality of the stock he handles. All kinds, one quality and the lowest prices at Wilson's, West Third street above Grant avenue.

There is nothing that brightens up a sick room so much as a vase of fresh cut flowers. If you have a friend who is confined to bed with a cold, express your sympathy by sending a bunch of flowers, and don't forget to leave your order with Stanley, the North avenue florist.

John Powers, the North Plainfield druggist, doesn't care whether Bishop Potter is right or wrong in his views on prohibition. He declares that good hot drinks such as he sells at his soda fountain should satisfy anyone these cold days. From the patronage he enjoys it seems as if his customers agree with him.

There are suits and suits, including those found by mixing with the law, but the suits Harry Werner sells are guaranteed to suit. He buys all his clothing from reliable manufacturers and knows just what he is getting. So do you when you invest in raiment at his place of business. Everything in the apparel line for men.

Judges of fine art were recently startled over the sale of a painting which brought thousands of dollars. It was a beauty and to the art-lover well worth the price. You may not find just as expensive ones, but a visit to Phillip Swain's art store in West Front street, will reveal to you some of the choicest pictures to be seen anywhere.

There is danger in cheap candy. Everybody knows deadly poison is sometimes used in small quantities to color ingredients mixed together and for want of a better name styled candy. This is not the method of Ben Fowler, the East Front street confectioner. Every bit of candy made in his establishment contains nothing but pure material and the public is invited to watch its manufacture.

Convincing proof of the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm, the greatest of catarrh remedies, is certainly cheap. A generous trial size costs but 10 cts. Full size 50 cts. Sold by druggists everywhere or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

135 Mill Street, Lexington, Ky.

Messrs. Ely Bros.:—After giving your Cream Balm a trial I can truly say I feel very much benefited by its use and shall continue to use it by purchasing from our druggist here.

COLUMBIA'S NEW HEAD.

Nicholas Murray Butler Chosen to Succeed Seth Low.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Professor Nicholas Murray Butler was elected president of Columbia university to succeed Mayor Seth Low at the meeting of the board of trustees held yesterday afternoon. Professor Butler has been acting president since the resignation of Mr. Low, which was given at the time of his nomination for the office of mayor.

It was also announced after the meeting of the board of trustees that a gift of $100,000 had recently been made to the university. The name of the donor was not made public, and all information was refused on the subject.

Professor Butler, who has been for some years a member of the Columbia faculty, has been the editor of an educational newspaper, and in such capacity a couple of years ago he was accused of bitterly attacking Mr. J. J. Little, who had been elected president of the board of education, calling him a "fine old educational mastodon." In the same article he used the expression "cohesive power of public plunder," a term which has been frequently used in political campaigns since.

Professor Butler was indicted at the time for criminal libel, but shortly after the indictment was dismissed. He lived for many years in New Jersey, where he interested himself greatly in school matters. In fact, all his life he has been interested in the public school question, and he is an authority on all such matters.

TRAIN WRECKERS FOILED.

Operator Clubbed and Express Sidetracked in the Alleghanies.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 7.—A report has been received here of a bold attempt to hold up Baltimore and Ohio express train No. 7, bound for Chicago, which left here at 11 o'clock at night.

The scene of the attempt was at Swanton, an isolated spot on the seventeen mile grade in the Alleghanies about forty-five miles west of here. The operator, M. J. Sarsfield, states that five men came into his office, the operator being alone and no house near, and offered him candy. Before he knew it he was knocked into insensibility, a padded club being used over his head. The men then turned a switch, running the fast flying train into a derailing switch used for freight traffic.

The quick application of air brakes prevented the train from being ditched. The train crew anticipated trouble, and the armed express officers who protect trains from holdups through that wild region made such a demonstration that the men rushed into the mountain, while shots were exchanged. An armed posse is now reported to be pursuing the bandits.

The whole country is much excited over this bold affair. The operator recovered consciousness in a short time.

No Trace of Alden.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 7.—A visit to the North Sunderland home of Edwin P. Alden, the father of Rev. Charles A. Alden of New York, who disappeared two weeks ago last Saturday, established the fact that the missing man was not there and had not been. His mother and brother, Edwin M. Alden, are the only members of the family at home at present, the father having gone to New York the week after the disappearance of his son. Mrs. Edwin P. Alden stated that her son left New York, saying that he was going to Philadelphia, and did not register at a hotel in that city, paying for his room two days in advance. Since that time no one of the family has known of his whereabouts, although they are very anxious to find the missing man and are putting forth every effort to that end.

German Exports to the United States

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—Complete returns from all the consulates in Germany show that the total of German exports to the United States during the year 1901 amounted to $99,616,731. This is a decrease of $3,567,922 from the valuation of the same exports for 1900, and it is due entirely to the reduction of sugar exported to the United States. In 1901 this product was exported to a valuation of $7,827,349 as against $16,332,552 in 1900.

THE ALPS ECLIPSED.

Canadian Rockies Like Sixty Switzerlands In One.

A MOUNTAIN CLIMBER'S EXPERIENCE

Explorer Whymper Says World's Mountain Climbers Could Not Conquer These Mighty Peaks In a Century.

MONTREAL, Jan. 7.—Mr. Edward Whymper, conceded to be the greatest of mountain climbers, has just given out a review of his experiences last summer in climbing the Canadian Rockies. He had previously climbed the Alps, scaled the heights of the Matterhorn, ascended the highest altitudes of the Andes and then turned his attention to Canada, where he spent the entire summer and fall, and he sums up this last expedition with the words, "If all the mountain climbers in the world today were to make a combined attempt to explore the Canadian Rockies, their task would not be completed within a century."

Leaving London May 23, Mr. Whymper reached Banff, in the Canadian National park, June 9. In addition to Mr. Whymper the party consisted of four mountaineers of great experience from the Swiss Alps and Mr. G. W. Franklyn, great-grandson of Sir Samuel Cunard, who was photographic assistant. The objects in view were to determine as accurately as possible the altitude of all the points and peaks reached, and the party carried for this purpose four mercurial mountain barometers. On this point Mr. Whymper says:

"The scarcity of good observations of temperature at considerable elevations in the Canadian Rockies made it necessary to observe the thermometer frequently. Temperature is of the first importance for the mountain climber, and it will be interesting to many to learn that the temperatures which were experienced throughout the journey were moderate, either as regards heat or cold, in comparison with the temperatures which occurr on other mountains of equal altitude in similar latitudes."

A brief summing up of the work accomplished by Mr. Whymper follows: Exploration in the neighborhood of the Vermilion pass, on the eastern slope of the Rockies, occupied his attention from June 18 to July 2, when he transferred his outfit to Lake Louise, the lowest of the lakes in the Clouds, and after remaining in that district for sixteen days went to Field, at the base of Mount Stephen, one of the giants of the Rockies. A week sufficed to show the explorer that the attractions of this spot were so numerous that he would have to defer their exploitation to a later period, and on July 26 he left for the Yoho valley, immediately to the north, in which he passed almost a month, returning to Field Aug. 23. During the whole of that time the weather was perfect, and in consequence he was enabled to do an extraordinary amount of valuable work.

"The Yoho resembles the Yosemite," he says, "but its environing mountains are more elevated and magnificent. The Yoho is deeply forested, with fine waterfalls, and at its northern end is an immense glacier of at least 400 feet in thickness and with a larger area than that of the great glacier of the Selkirks."

The explorer sums up his record of the trip by saying:

"The Canadian Rockies, and I may add the Selkirks as well, differ largely from the Swiss Alps in that they are more uniform in height. There are not so many dominating peaks as in the Alps, which rise to much greater altitude than the rest of the ranges, but from any of the heights of the Rockies the outlook is a magnificent one. The vast ranges are appalling in their immensity and grandeur, for here are fifty or sixty Switzerlands rolled into one. The opportunities for mountain climbing are in plenty, and while many individual peaks are doubtless inaccessible there are lots of mountains yet to be ascended which will bring credit to their conquerors."

Oldest Bank President Dead.

MOUNT MORRIS, N. Y., Jan. 7.—Hiram P. Mills, one of the oldest bank presidents in the United States, died suddenly here yesterday. He celebrated his ninety-sixth birthday on Thursday last and danced. He chaffed his son Charles, who is seventy years old, for quitting the dance before he did. Mr. Mills was president of the Genesee River National bank up to his death and had been its president continually since its formation, in 1853. He came to Mount Morris in 1836. He was one of the engineers of the old Genesee Valley canal and helped to lay the rails of the first railroad between Albany and Schenectady.

Six Men to Be Hanged.

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 7.—Governor Aycock has named Wednesday, Feb. 25, for the hanging of six white men, such a wholesale execution in one day being without precedent in this state. In each case there has been an appeal to the supreme court. Four men are to hang at Asheville for burglary at Emma, N. C.; one to hang at Wilson, N. C., for assassination, this being the first since the war, and one at Lincolnton, N. C., for burglary.

Illinois Postoffice Robbed.

LINCOLN, Ill., Jan. 7.—The postoffice at Chestnut, a village in this county, has been robbed. The robbers, who are thought to be professionals, broke open the front doors of the drug store in which the postoffice is located and blew open the safe. Postage stamps amounting to $225 and some money were secured. The work was accomplished with tools stolen from a blacksmith shop.

CUBAN FRAUD CASES

Trial of Postoffice Officials Proceeding at Havana.

REEVES' TESTIMONY CONTRADICTORY

Defendant's Statements Before Court Do Not Correspond With Former Evidence Given—General Wood Reduces Gas Rates.

HAVANA, Jan. 7.—At the continuation yesterday of the trials of the cases arising from the Cuban postoffice frauds in the Audencia court Senores Lanuza and Desvernine reappeared as counsel for Estes G. Rathbone. Upon the opening of the court last Saturday Rathbone was informed by the judges that his counsel, Senores Lanuza and Desvernine, had withdrawn from the case.

Moya and Mascara, the two Cuban stamp clerks, testified that they had received surcharged stamps from Charles F. W. Neely without making record thereof, that they had sold them and had given the money received therefor to Neely. The two stamp clerks recalled about eighteen instances of such payments of about $100 each. Moya said that Neely made no secret of these transactions and that Neely's clerks received this money when Neely was not present.

W. H. Reeves, one of the defendants, was on the stand for three hours. His voice was so weak that the interpreter repeatedly asked him to speak louder, as the official stenographers were unable to catch one-half of what he said. The fiscal examined Reeves with regard to the paying of four duplicate warrants on the postoffice department for the pay of employees in July, 1898, when Reeves was deputy of Cuba, and involving about $8,000. One set of warrants had been drawn about the middle of the month and another later, and the names on them had been forged.

Reeves said that both sets of warrants had been paid. He testified that Neely told him he had cashed these warrants. The fiscal asked Reeves if he had not in a previous statement to the court of first instance said that he himself had forged the indorsement to these warrants. Reeves refused to answer this question. His testimony was contradictory in many respects with his previous statements.

During Reeves' testimony Neely remarked that Reeves was getting himself into a tight place and that if he would keep on he would prove him (Neely) to be innocent.

General Wood has issued a decree fixing the price of gas at $2.50 in Spanish gold per 1,000 cubic feet. The former price was about $3.75 per 1,000 cubic feet.

This decree also regulates the price for the use in public places of 200 sixteen candle power electric lights at $1.10 per month each.

Indians Demand Pay For Lands.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—A delegation of full bloods from the Yakima Indian reservation in Washington are at the interior department urging an early reimbursement by congress for lands they claim were taken away from them through erroneous boundary lines. They claim that by government surveys in 1890 either 293,000 acres, according to one survey, or 347,000 acres, according to another, were cut off from their reservation and are now partly occupied by settlers. They refused a government offer of $125,000 as compensation.

A Claim Against Turkey Settled.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 7.—A case famous in international diplomacy has been closed by the payment of $7,500 damages to Mrs. Lenz, the mother of Frank G. Lenz, an American wheelman who was killed by Turkish officials. The money was turned over by the state department to Attorney John H. Mueller of this city, who in connection with the L. A. W., through President Keenan, was instrumental in securing President McKinley's personal interest in the claim and having it pushed to final payment.

It is reported here that the Liberatador has captured the Venezuelan gunboat Zumbador.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Senate and Assembly Resume Business—Committees Announced.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 7.—Lieutenant Governor Woodruff was prevented by engagements in the metropolis from presiding at last night's session of the senate, and President Pro Tem. Timothy E. Ellsworth presided. A beautiful bank of flowers decorated the desk of Senator Raines.

Following the plan urged by Governor Odell, the senators prepared and presented a large number of bills which introduced the measures recommended by the governor to abolish boards of management of insane asylums and centralizing authority in the state lunacy commission. This bill was referred to the judiciary committee. Another of the governor's bills introduced was the bill relative to the duties of receivers and curtailing their proceedings and limiting times therefor.

Senator John Raines introduced an entirely new project for raising money by tax. It is a general stamp tax of one-fifth of 1 per cent on every hundred dollars of indebtedness, such as instruments, agreements, certificates, documents, debentures, mortgages, notes, shares of stock or any other evidences of indebtedness upon which interest or dividends may accrue. Upon all contracts which shall have been executed after Sept. 30, 1902, a tax of one-fifth of 1 per cent, one-fifth of the whole amount collected to go to the state and four-fifths to the county in which the tax is collected, except that in Kings, New York, Queens and Richmond, which shall go to New York city. The tax is to be placed on the instrument in the form of a stamp and is not in any sense annual, but is merely an original tax. The county treasurer and the comptroller of New York city retain from the sum collected from the tax sufficient money to reimburse them and pay expenses.

Senator Raines says the bill will raise $15,000,000, of which $12,000,000 will go to the counties and $3,000,000 to the state.

Senator Elsberg introduced a resolution designed for the suppression of anarchy and the punishment of all persons who make any attempt to take the lives of public officials.

Every available inch of space was taken up in the assembly chamber when the house convened at 8:30 p. m. On many of the leaders' desks were baskets of flowers, and the galleries were filled with gayly dressed ladies. Prayer by Rev. Archibald L. Love was delivered.

The reports of the managers of the State Institution For the Blind, the Wyoming Benevolent Institute and the Institution For Feebleminded Children were read. Notices were read of the contest of the seat of James N. Manney of the Thirteenth Kings district by Thomas F. Matthews and of the seat of John F. McCullough of the Tenth New York district by Jacob C. Brant.

The speaker then announced the chairmen and members of the assembly standing committees.

Must Maintain Splendid Isolation.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Speaking at Birmingham last night, Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, referred to the hatred and jealousy of Great Britain entertained abroad and denied that this was due to the existence of a particularly wicked government. "This is no new thing in history," he said, "and we must maintain our splendid isolation, surrounded and supported by our colonial kinsfolk." While fully admitting the necessity of finding new markets and keeping abreast of modern times and methods Mr. Chamberlain saw no sign of any imminent or pressing danger to British trade.

Schooner's Crew Frostbitten.

MACHIAS, Me., Jan. 7.—With every member of the crew frostbitten, with the loss of jib and with foresail split the schooner Alaska, Captain Libby, has arrived here. The Alaska was bound from New York to Boston with a cargo of 280 tons of coal. She sailed from Vineyard Haven Dec. 31 and encountered a series of southwest and northwest gales. The vessel became iced badly, making her unmanageable, and she was driven far from her course. She put in here for repairs.

AS SEEN BY A GERMAN.

Report of a Naval Constructor Regarding American Shipbuilding.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—Tjard Schwartz, a German naval constructor who was recently sent to the United States by the marine general staff to investigate shipbuilding there, has submitted his reports.

Herr Schwartz says that all the principal shipyards in the United States facilitated his investigations in every way. His descriptions are accompanied by masses of photographs and drawings of new machines and especially of pneumatic contrivances used in shipbuilding. The investigator says that materials for the construction of steel ships are lower in price in the United States than in any other country and that the only thing to be complained of is the fluctuation in prices, which makes competition with foreign shipbuilders difficult.

Herr Schwartz in this connection says that within four months the prices of shipbuilding materials in the United States have fluctuated 200 per cent from a lack of stability of the market and that this is the principal reason why some American shipbuilders are combining with the steel producers.

The German investigator refers to the splendid body of American workmen earning wages from 30 to 50 per cent higher than those paid in Great Britain and 100 per cent higher than the wages paid on the continent and says that wage bills in the United States are counterbalanced by economical processes of machinery which are not found in European yards.

Herr Schwartz reports that notwithstanding the wages paid freighters are being built on the great lakes as cheaply as tramp steamers are built in Great Britain.

He says that the most striking difference between German and American shipyards is found in the use in the United States of pneumatic boring, hammering and riveting machines and pneumatic cranes. The investigator saw seventy-five pneumatic machines working at once in the yards of an American shipbuilding company in Chicago, although only two ships were on the stocks. He says that British shipbuilders are arranging to obtain these pneumatic machines from the United States.

Withdrawing Troops From Cuba.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Acting in accordance with a recommendation made by General Wood, military governor of Cuba, Secretary Root has directed that the third squadron of the Eighth cavalry, comprising the entire garrison at Puerto Principe, be brought to the United States at the first favorable opportunity. It is admitted that this is practically the beginning of the general withdrawal of United States troops in Cuba preparatory to the transfer of the control of affairs to the civil government to be installed during the coming summer. So far as known there will be no further withdrawals of troops, however, until final arrangements are made for the formal transfer of the government to the newly elected officials of Cuba.

A Fifth Assistant Needed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The creation of another assistant postmaster generalship, to have charge of the free city and rural delivery service, is contemplated in a bill shortly to be introduced in the house by Representative Watson of Indiana. The proposed legislation is the result of the vast growth of the rural free delivery service throughout the country, which, with the free delivery service in the cities, will involve an aggregate cost of over $30,000,000 during the next fiscal year. The free delivery service, which comprises both the city and rural delivery, now has about 375 employees, distributed among a number of divisions.

New Jersey's New Treasurer.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 7.—Ex-Mayor Frank O. Briggs has returned from the west and has filed with the governor his bond for $200,000 as state treasurer. The bond was signed by Ferdinand W. Roebling and Charles C. Roebling and was approved by the governor. Mr. Briggs took the oath of office yesterday afternoon and at once assumed charge of the office.

COURT COMES TODAY

Legation Guards to Be Kept Within Quarters.

DIPLOMATS' FAMILIES TO SEE PARADE

The Emperor and Dowager Empress Pleased With Their First Experience In Traveling by Rail.

PEKING, Jan. 7.—The Chinese officials have requested the ministers of the powers to keep the legation guards within their quarters today in order to prevent the possibility of a collision between the Chinese and foreign troops. The ministers will comply.

The families of the foreign diplomats will occupy the buildings which the Chinese government has tendered them for the purpose of viewing the parade in connection with the return of the court to Peking. There is much criticism of this course among the foreigners, who are not satisfied that the ministers alone will remain in the legations. They say that the presence of any members of the legations will be construed as being a sort of homage and will be thus proclaimed among the people.

The foreigners are divided into two factions concerning the future relations of the diplomats with the court, one of them holding that they should be limited to the fulfillment of the most formal, obligatory ceremonies and the other holding that in official and social relations the ministers should endeavor to be more intimate with the court than formerly and should meet all Chinese advances in the most friendly spirit.

Many foreign soldiers and a few officers yesterday violated the government's request to keep off the streets, which have been cleaned and decorated for the royal procession. This is likely to create resentment.

Railroad traffic between Peking and Paotingfu, except on the court's business, has been congested since the arrival of the court at Paotingfu. Special trains for two days past have been bringing the court's baggage here. Official business monopolizes the telegraph lines and the postal service to Paotingfu.

First Railway Travel Enjoyed.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 7.—The director general of the Belgian railroad in China who conveyed the emperor's and dowager empress' train from Chengtingfu to Paotingfu telegraphs that he has been personally thanked by their majesties, who expressed themselves pleased and interested by their first experience in railroad travel.

Will Petition Congress.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 7.—Webster Davis of Kansas City addressed a large and enthusiastic audience last night on conditions in South Africa. He explained what was being done in this country by Boer sympathizers and said they expected soon to ask congress to act in the matter. "President Roosevelt," he said, "can do nothing of his own accord to bring the Boer war to an end. The only way he can act is through congress, and we are now preparing a petition to that body which will in a short time have a million signatures. The petition will ask it to extend the sympathy of this country to the two republics. I have permanently retired from politics. From now on I will devote myself to literature and speaking."

Long Tunnel Completed.

HAZLETON, Pa., Jan. 7.—The two gangs of men working from opposite ends on the big Beaver Meadow-Quakake tunnel that will drain the mines of Coxe Bros. & Co. in the Beaver Meadow basin and some of the collieries south of the city met yesterday at almost equal distances from each side of the Quakake mountain, which it pierces, and the contract is now practically completed. The tunnel, which is nearly a mile and a half long, has been under construction for about two years and will have its outlet in the Quakake valley.

Open Air Treatment Successful.

BOSTON, Jan. 7.—The open air treatment for persons in early stages of consumption is shown to have been efficacious to about 67 per cent of the cases treated the past year at the Massachusetts State sanitarium at Rutland, according to the annual report just made public. There was but one death during the year, and the percentage of cures or of marked improvement is considerably higher than for two years past. There were 1,100 applications and 390 admitted. The average age of patients was twenty-eight.

"Tod" Sloane to Ride.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—"Tod" Sloane, according to information which has just been made public, will don the Fleischman colors this season and ride the horses of Cincinnati's mayor. The story is that Sloane will make application for reinstatement to the English Jockey club and that it will be granted on the condition that Sloane will not accept any mounts in England. Then the Jockey club in this country will license the rider. It is said the Fleischmans have brought about this result.

Kitchener Denies Report.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The war office, on the authority of Lord Kitchener, denies the report telegraphed from Pretoria Jan. 1 that two officers of the intelligence department who were sent to parley with Boers who desired to surrender near Warm Baths were treacherously shot by concealed Boers.

Weather Probabilities.

PLAINFIELD'S FIRE RECORD.

Plainfield was unusually fortunate last year in escaping any serious conflagrations. While those things cannot be forseen or prevented in many cases, yet the prompt action of the local fire department has undoubtedly been the means of extinguishing many fires in their incipiency. It can therefore be considered that the department is partially responsible for the comparatively small loss by fire during the year 1901.

While there was a slight falilng off in the number of alarms sent in, the number was yet above the normal for a city the size of Plainfield. While it would seem that Plainfield has an unusual number of fires, a careful examination of the records show that, in many cases, there has been nothing for the department to do. They have been only little blazes which have been extinguished even before the department arrived on the scene. The number of fires of any size is really small for a city of the population of this one.

It brings to light, however, an important fact which must be of much satisfaction to all the city officials It shows that the people no longer fear to call in the fire department. The dread, which used to be felt on the arrival of the volunteer fire fighters, seems to have disappeared to a large extent. With the chemical engine, the firemen no longer feel the necessity of flooding the whole establishment, and thousands of dollars worth of property is saved annually. While still not a full paid department, the local department goes to a fire with the intention of putting it out as quickly as possible and with the least possible incidental damage. Losses by water there always will be but they have been greatly reduced in past years.

That congregation in the West End, formerly a branch of the First M. E. church, has shown a healthy growth since it was first organized. After being conducted as a chapel of the principal church, it became self-supporting and formed a separate church organization. Now the Monroe Avenue M. E. church has just passed its fifth year and is in a flourishing condition. For its present success much credit is due to the former pastor, Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, who labored there so zealously when it was only a chapel and for the first few years it became a church. His work has since been well cared forward by his successor, Rev. John McMurray.

There is no man in the Republican party in New Jersey who stands deservedly higher in the estimation of the people of this State than Chancellor W. J. Magie. While the political exigencies of the case may prevent the fulfillment of Senator Reed's suggestion that he be made United States Senator from New Jersey to succeed the late William J. Sewell, there is no doubt that he would fill the place with honor and dignity to himself and the State.

It is a new thought that Union county may have a candidate for governor when the time comes around in the fall of 1904 to select a successor for Franklin Murphy. While the fact that Governor Voorhees came from this county would have its effect on such a choice, yet if Charles N. Fowler stood head and shoulders above any other available candidates, it would not be difficult to land the nomination for him.

This is the week of prayer observed by most of the evangelical churches of the land. Services are being held in nearly all the local churches this week and every evening, the congregations unite their voices in supplication for the betterment of the community and the world at large.

Two sudden deaths have startled the community within twenty-four hours of each other. One was a man, well-known and respected here while the identity of the other remains a question.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Senators may be made by election, but leaders are not. Quite a number of eminent and able men are spoken of, each as the possible successor of Senator Sewell. It will depend on the Legislature in joint session whether one of them shall be senator, but it depends wholly on themselves which one of them or whether any of them will succeed Gen. Sewell as leader. Leaders, like poets, are born, not made. Of those named in the senatorial rivalry several have shown undoubted executive ability within the local limits of their political activity, but as yet not one of them has been called to lead the Republican party of the whole State. It does not follow that no one of them is capable of being a state leader; but whichever one has the executive ability, the political sagacity, the steady hand and the strong nerve, will be a leader, whether elected to the United States senate or not.—Elizabeth Journal.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

The reporter was jotting down facts concerning a wedding. "How was the groom dressed," said he. "Oh, just say: In the 'conditional' black," remarked the feminine informant.

He is a famous former full-back of a noted eleven, who incidently acts as sporting critic for a progressive Philadelphia daily. One of his feminine friends was telling of his worldly position, when she remarked: "He is the sporting editor of the 'North American Review.'" Such is fame.

A merry laugh was enjoyed by a number of commuters the other day at the expense of an official of the New Jersey Central. A prominent resident of the Park was telling his friends of the evident woes of the man responsible largely for the service of the company. "Some friends of mine," said he, "were hunting up the office of Mr.——. They walked into an elegantly furnished office at the headquarters of the company. A gentleman approached them and they inquired if that was the office of Mr. ——, designating this particular official. "Great heavens! No! no! no!" shouted the employe, as he sank back in despair.

Grand Jurors in Session.

The Grand Jurors for the January term held their first session today. The Plainfield members are William A. Woodruff, James F. Buckle, Robert Rushmore and Edward Nelson. Among the cases to be considered today are two from this city, Runyon, assault, and Delia Dunham, charged with larceny.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Demick, Somerville, Ind. "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me untif I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." You don't live by what you eat, but by what you digest and assimilate. If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food. You don't have to diet. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

CANINE MIND-READER.

Terrier by Selecting Cards and Other Signs Shows That He Has Power Like Telepathy.

Alliance, O., boasts of a dog with telepathic powers, which residents believe to be the only one in the world. His name is Tom and his species bull terrier. He is the property of Jack Myers, who has resided there for years.

Prof. Charles Marmaduke Lumley of the London psychological institute, London, England, after witnessing Tom's remarkable feats, offered $1,250 for him, but the offer was promptly refused by Mr. Myers, as he firmly believes that if Tom were separated from him the dog would pine away.

Tom first demonstrated his mind-reading qualifications unexpectedly to his owner, by means of a pack of playing cards. Mr. Myers had finished a game of solitaire and had carelessly slapped his dog on the nose with one of the cards. Mr. Myers noticed that the card was the ten-spot of the hearts. The card was placed in the pack and laid upon the table and Myers left the room.

On returning some time later he was surprised to see ten-spot of hearts lying apart from the deck of cards and in front of the dog.

Attorney William Roache, of Alliance, hearing of the incident, one day while at the hotel where Jack and his owner live put the dog's powers to an extreme test. He stacked the cards face downward and simply thought intently of a particular card. Here came in the dog's greatest achievement, for each time he was tested in this manner he picked out the right card. Following this incident, hundreds from far and near have thus tested the canine and have been unable to baffle him.

Some time since, while a deal was pending for the sale of the animal, Jack went about bowed down with grief. When a messenger arrived with a telegram declaring the negotiations off he is reported to have grabbed the message from the carrier's hand and, carrying it to his master, leaped for joy before the contents of the little envelope had even been read by Mr. Myers.

FORGOT GRANDMOTHER.

Little Miss Bessie Apologized for the Omission, However, as Soon as She Could.

She is a dainty little blue-eyed girl of five, with long yellow curls and that innocent, fearless expression which is one of the most beautiful things in the world. Though her father is a Methodist minister with a small salary, little Miss Bessie is always beautifully dressed and is the pet and pride of all her family.

WOULDN'T THAT FREEZE YOU?"

Recently, says the Chicago Tribune, Bessie has been sent to kindergarten and in that sheltered retreat she has picked up, strangely enough, a number of slang phrases which sound amusing and at the same time shocking as they fall from her lips.

Ever since she could lisp little Bessie has said her prayers regularly, night and morning, and in her petitions she invariably mentions each member of her family by name, going back to include her grandparents on both sides of the house.

The other evening her mother had tucked her in bed, after her prayers were said, when she suddenly sat up and said: "Mother, I forgot part of my prayer."

Out of bed she climbed and knelt down again like a little white cherub in her pretty gown.

"O, Lord," she began, with a most serious and anxious tone of voice, "I forgot to pray for dear grandmother. Wouldn't that freeze you?"

Then she got up again and with happy eyes clambered back to her little bed.

The New Woman's Observations

By ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER

Much must be said for the National Civic federation on the score that its intentions are undoubtedly honorable. Its recent love feast to end the troubles between labor and capital and institute reconciliation and brotherly love is highly commendable. Labor delegates, clergymen and millionaires threw bouquets at one another so profusely that you could fairly smell the perfume as you read the story of their meeting. Meanwhile what of the 35,000,000 girls and women who are as vitally interested as any man living in the harmonizing of labor and capital? Certainly a fourth of the wage earners of this land are women, not counting the vast silent army of wives who work for their board and clothes. Yet not the name of one solitary woman is on the committees of labor, of capital or of disinterested citizens. This is certainly not for lack of suitable material. Where is there a man in America more directly connected with the employment of workmen, thousands of railway men, than Helen Gould? Where is there an employer who knows more about his workingmen? Where is there a capitalist richer or shrewder than Mrs. Hetty Green, also directly connected with railway management? And when it comes to the ethical side of the labor question, there is no man, be he layman or prelate, who has considered the matter more earnestly from the viewpoint of both head and heart than Ella Wheeler Wilcox, and there is not a man living who can sing so nobly and inspiringly as she to the workers of the human race. Her labor lyrics vibrate in the souls of a million people today, lifting them up to braver, happier lives.

Not everybody knows that the United States senate shows sufficient respect to the feminine citizens of this great country to include among its committees one on woman suffrage. Senators Wetmore, Bard and Mitchell are the present members of the committee.

A French art writer says that in ten years more he expects to see all women on the streets in short skirts and without corsets. Speed the day!

Mrs. Alice Moore McComas, the newspaper writer, formerly of Los Angeles, is now the business manager of her two gifted and handsome daughters, "Carroll the Whistler" and Alice, the pianiste. Mrs. McComas has thus far been very successful in her enterprise, though she says it involves a steady rush of hard work. She and Miss Carroll have gone to London, where the girl whistler will conclude the season. Miss Alice, the pianiste, is meantime touring this country with a well known theatrical company.

Women whistlers are now the vogue, and they are more popular than men performers in the same line. Their whistle seems somehow sweeter and more birdlike than that from masculine lips.

Women scare at mice, do they? Listen. When the boys of a public school in central New York were marching down stairs in the middle of a fire drill, a boy saw a mouse in front of him. It scared him so that he gave a leap forward and knocked down the boy ahead and injured him seriously.

The proposition has been made by the wife of a rector of the English church that women curates be appointed to assist in the duties which usually fall to men curates, and the suggestion is meeting with considerable favor, perhaps because men are scarce in Great Britain.

Girls and women ought to be trained in the use of firearms for their own protection. Hunting has become a highly fashionable amusement among society women, and some of them are expert and cool headed marksmen.

A New Jersey woman is asking for her third divorce from the same husband. She ought not to get it. A woman who is so reckless as to marry for the third time a man she had tried twice before to live with and could not deserves to be made to live with him the rest of her days, and maybe then she will learn some sense.

Miss Elizabeth Peckham is a deputy tax collector in Auburn, being the first woman to hold such office in New York state.

"I shall appoint at least two women on every one of the fourteen local school boards in the borough of Brooklyn because as president of the board of education I became acquainted with the value of their work," declares Mr. J. Edward Swanstrom, president of the borough of Brooklyn, city of Greater New York.

Montana has a woman chief deputy collector of internal revenue. She is Mrs. E. S. French of Helena. Go west, woman, young or old.

Rebecca Parish, both a deaconess and a doctor, is medical superintendent of the great Wesley hospital, a Methodist institution of Chicago.

My Strangest Case

BY GUY BOOTHBY.

Author of "DR. NIKOLA," "THE BEAUTIFUL WHITE DEVIL," "PHAROS, THE EGYPTIAN," Etc.

[Copyrighted, 1901, by Ward, Lock & Co.]

"My friend tells me that you are an Englishman," he said, in a voice that shook with emotion. "I'm glad we have found you. I heard your rifleshot and hailed you. We are in sore distress, and have been through such adventures and such misery as no man would believe. I have poisoned my foot, and am unable to walk any further. As you can see for yourself I am blind, while my companion is dumb."

This statement accounted for the smaller man's curious behavior and the other's closed eyes.

"You have suffered indeed," said Grantham, pityingly. "But how did it all come about?"

"We were traders, and we fell into the hands of the Chinese," the taller man answered. "With their usual amiability they set to work to torture us. My companion's tongue they cut out at the roots, while, as I have said, they deprived me of my sight. After that they turned us loose to go where we would. We have wandered here, there and everywhere, living on what we could pick up, and dying a thousand deaths every day. It would have been better if we had died outright—but somehow we've come through. Can you take us to a place where we can procure food? We've been living on jungle fruit for an eternity. My foot wants looking to pretty badly, too."

"We'll do all we can for you," said Grantham. "That's if we can get you down to the ford, which is about five miles away."

"You'll have to carry me, then, for I'm too far gone to walk."

"I think it can be managed," said Grantham. "At any rate we'll try."

Turning to the little Shan he dispatched him with a message to Handiman, and when the other had disappeared, knelt down beside the tall man and set to work to examine his injured foot. There could be no doubt that it was in a very serious condition. Tramping through the jungle he had managed to poison it, and had been unable to apply the necessary remedies. Obtaining some water from the stream Grantham bathed it tenderly, and then bound it up as well as he could with his handkerchief.

"That's the best I can do for you for the present," he said. "We must leave it as it is, and, when we get you to the station, we will see what else can be managed."

He looked up and saw the little man's eyes watched him intently. There was a look of almost dog-like affection in them for his companion, that went to the young soldier's heart.

"By Jove," he said, "I'm sorry for you fellows. You must have suffered agonies. The Chinese are devils. But yours is not the first case we have heard of. We only come up here for a month at a time, but the man we relieved told us a strange tale about another poor beggar who came into the station some two months ago. He had been wandering in the jungle, and was nearly at death's door."

The blind man gave a start, while the little man seized his hand and made a number of rapid movements upon it with his fingers.

"My friend wants to know if you are aware of that man's name?" he said. "We lost a companion, and he thinks that he may be the man. For heaven's sake tell us what you know. You have no idea what it means to us."

"Since you are so interested in him I am sorry to have to say that I do not know very much. You see he had very little to do with us. As I have said, he turned up while our predecessors were here. From what I heard about him from Gregory, he gathered that he was a tall, thin man, who had come through from Peking by way of Yunnan."

"Are you sure it was from Yunnan?"

"That's what they told me," said Grantham. "Since then I have heard that he was on his way from Peking to Burmah, and that his coolies had robbed him of all he possessed."

"You don't happen to remember his name, I suppose!"

The blind man tried to ask the question calmly, but his voice failed him.

"As far as I remember his name was George Bertram," Grantham answered.

There was a pause for a few seconds, after which the blind man began again—

"He didn't tell you, I suppose, whether he had any money about him?"

"He hadn't a red cent," said Grantham. "The Chinese cleared him out. They lent him the money to get to Rangoon. I happen to know that because he cashed my friend's check in Bhamo."

There was another and somewhat longer pause.

"You did not hear whether he had any precious stones in his possession?"

"Good gracious, no! From what they told me I gathered that the man hadn't a halfpenny in the world. Why should he have been likely to have had jewels? In point of fact I'm sure he hadn't, for I was given to understand he was about as woebegone a customer as could be found anywhere."

The blind man uttered a heavy sigh and sank back to his former position upon the ground.

An hour and a half later, just as the shadows of evening were drawing in, a party of Sikhs put in an appearance, bringing with them a dhooly, in which they placed the injured man. It was almost dark when they reached the station, where Grantham's superior officer was awaiting their coming.

"What on earth's the meaning of this?" he asked, as the cortege drew up before the bungalow. "Who are these men? And where did you find them?"

Grantham made his report, and then the wounded man was lifted out and carried to a hut at the rear of the main block of buildings. The little man watched everything with an eagle eye, as if he were afraid some evil might be practiced upon his companion. When the blind man had been placed on a bed, and his foot attended to as well as the rough surgery of the place would admit, Grantham did something he had not already done, and that was to ask them their names.

"My name is Kitwater," said the blind man, "and the name of my friend here is Codd—Septimus Codd. He's one of the best and stanchest little fellows in the world. I don't know whether our names will convey much to you, but such as they are you are welcome to them. As a matter of fact, they are all we have with which to requite your hospitality."

Why it should have been so I cannot say, but it was evident from the first that Capt. Handiman did not believe the account the refugees gave of themselves. He was one of that peculiar description of persons who have an idea that it adds to their dignity not to believe anything that is told them, and he certainly acted up to it on every possible occasion.

"There's more in the case than meets the eye," he said, suspiciously; "and I fancy, if only we could see the bottom of it, we should discover that your two proteges are as fine a pair of rascals as could be found on the continent of Asia."

"I don't know anything about that," Grantham replied. "I only know that they were a miserable couple, and that I did the best I could for them. You wouldn't have had me leave them in the jungle, surely?"

"I am not aware I have said so," the other answered, stiffly. "The only thing I object to is your treating them as if they were martyrs, when in all probability they deserve all the punishment they received."

Act quickly in times of danger.

Backache is kidney danger.

Doan's Kidney Pills act quickly.

Cure all distressing, dangerous kidney ills.

Plenty of evidence to prove this.

Mrs. Margaret Reville, of 752 West Third street, says: "For a long time I was troubled with a lame and weak back and I never found anything which gave me any relief until I obtained Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store and began to use them according to directions. It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that time on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back pained me and was so weak and sore that I dreaded to bend and when I had a cold or over-exerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies, but got little if any relief. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back."

FANCIES OF FASHION.

Present Styles Will Remain Through Rest of the Season.

Dress Goods Exhibited Now Are as Nearly Perfect as Good Taste and Human Ingenuity Can Make Them.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

SPEAKING in a very general way the changes in the world of fashion within the past month have been very few indeed, and with all due respect to the vagaries of that fickle lady, Dame Fashion, I cannot help but think it safe to assume that the present styles, pretty and becoming as they have proved themselves to be, will remain as they are throughout the remainder of the winter season.

The charm of many of the handsomest garments worn at present is to be found in the material. Never have the manufacturers put more lovely stuffs on the market, and never have the colors been more beautiful and harmonious. But, though glorious fabrics and wonderful colors are to be seen on all sides, the woman who has to study economy must keep her wits well in hand and choose with exceeding care. I mean in this wise: Certain fabrics have come to stay and will be in general demand all through the coming season, while others are the mere passing fancy of a few weeks at most. To invest even a considerable sum of money in the former is money well invested, while only those to whom cash is a secondary consideration can afford to buy the latter.

In the matter of color there are most wonderful browns, royal blues, dull reds, and soft grays to be obtained at the present moment, but none of these can be attempted with any degree of satisfaction in any but a high-priced fabric. Stone grays of every kind are extremely fashionable, just now, and those high in authority in such matters say their popularity will wax rather than wane, and throughout the spring season they will be the most sought after shades.

There is a delightful new fabric on the market for teagowns, namely a stamped cotton velveteen. It does not sound at all nice, I know, but it has been produced in fantastic Japanese designs and is really charming. The plain velveteens now so much in vogue make ideal lounging robes, but must be finished with chiffon and as much lace as the purse can buy or else they will not prove at all satisfactory.

Not many women desire, or can really afford, to change the style and cut of their garments with each passing whim of fashion, but she who would be considered particularly swell and up-to-date can only be reckoned so by closely following the almost daily changes in what is commonly known as the falfals of fashion. For instance one day it is the peculiar manner of wearing a chain, next a fanciful belt, a certain style of collar, a jaunty-looking hairbow and a thousand and one trifles, the omission of any particular one from the toilette instantly proclaiming my lady as being not one of fashion's devotees, to say the least. For example, no woman, no matter how rich and costly her costume might happen to be, would be considered fashionably or smartly dressed for the street, if her fur coat did not boast either a cravat of lace or embroidered chiffon, or an entire collar of cream lace. Neither can the strictly tailor-made gown be called complete these days without some softening touch of lace or chiffon at the throat. A decidedly pretty kink of the moment is the neat turnover hand-stitched white muslin collar, with a black or black and white spotted satin stock. However, the decorative value of this falfal and others of similar description depends solely upon daintiness and fresh appearance.

Another delightfully charming novelty is the new Japanese belt, delicately wrought in silver and gold, seen for the first time within the week. It shows to perfect advantage when worn with exactly the right gown, but I cannot call it a desirable addition to a dowdy serge gown, an example of which I saw yesterday. Incongruous mixtures of this description very often run into exceeding bad taste, and that, you know, is unpardonable in this day and generation.

Such small but important details, let it be remembered, as shoes, gloves, cravats, veils, etc., make or mar a costume. The veil of the moment is of soft white or cream tinted chiffon, embroidered in black, put on very full, and drawn up into a kind of curtain in the back, where it is held in place by small jeweled pins, joined together by tiny gold chains. Hosiery varies very little, if any, from that worn last season. The best style of stocking for winter wear is a heavy silken one, finely ribbed, while for evening wear the inserted lace fronts, in both black and fancy colorings, are very much in vogue. The Biarritz glove, in all shades of tan and red, is much sought after, while the dainty suede is as popular as ever, particularly in all shades of soft gray. For cold weather and general rough wear a heavy kid glove, fastened with two enormous pearl buttons, is considered quite the proper caper. A few exclusive women are wearing fanciful knit white silk mittens with stunning cloth and fur street costumes.

Jet and spangles have been restored to all their old time popularity, but the kind used now is of the very best quality—that is, the jets, even the very smallest ones, are all sewed on by hand. These jetted trimmings and jetted allovers are beautiful in the extreme, but in the very nature of things are as costly as they are beautiful. The handsomest patterns seen thus far have the jets hand-embroidered onto a heavy silk net foundation, while their beauty and cost, too, for that matter, is further enhanced by means of tiny velvet appliques put on with a somewhat sparing hand.

Other desirable patterns both in trimming and allovers have the applique work done in white velvet, thus producing the ever popular black and white combination.

Lovely indeed is the Empire gown of the moment, whether fashioned of jetted lace or soft oriental satin. But with the exception of the jetted lace ones no gown of this description, whether intended for day or evening wear, is considered complete in any sense of the word without the soft finishing touch of the old-fashioned bertha of rare old lace.

Bearing in mind that Dame Fashion is a jade of very changeable moods, I cannot but be impressed by her faithfulness to the charms of lace and chiffon in combination. Although it has been "in" for several seasons, it is just as popular as when first introduced, and as it is both pretty and becoming, let us hope this delightful state of affairs will continue for many seasons to come.

A leading costumer on the avenue is showing motoring costumes of goatskin which must be reckoned among the novelties of the season and will be much sought after by the automobiling members of the sex. These costumes are, of course, invincible in any wind and any weather, and are fashioned with a nattiness and charm of outline truly delightful. Each costume is accompanied by a hat and veil, the former being somewhat different in construction from any yet seen. It is cut to form a sharp point in front and fits the head with such snugness that the strongest wind cannot dislodge it. The natty little veil is of white chiffon, of double thickness and finished around the lower edge by a narrow frill of lace.

The millinery of the moment is charming, with the exception of the fur toque of huge proportions, which at the present moment is having a wonderful reign of popularity among a certain few. However, I suppose when we see freaks of fashion like this we should not blame the authorities, but rather those women who demand the "latest," no matter at what cost to personal appearance.

KILLED BY WAGON.

Driver Cramer Fell Out Ice Wagon and Was Run Over—He Was Instantly Killed.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Jan. 7 — James Cramer, employed as a driver by J. R. Crossman, of Burt's Creek, near this place, was instantly killed yesterday by being run over by his own wagon.

Crossman has been filling his ice-houses from ponds near Sayreville. Cramer started for the ice-houses with a big load of ice piled on a box wagon. The spring seat had been placed on top of the ice, and on this Cramer sat. Half an hour later the team appeared at the stables, driverless. The seat and blankets were also missing.

Search was made, and about a half mile from the pond, on the slope of a steep hill, Cramer's body was found. It is surmised a sudden start of the horses, a slipping of the brake, or some other shock, caused the seat to slip forward on the ice, throwing Cramer in front of the wagon.

LAMP MELTED.

Flames Began to Spread When Neighbors Discovered Them.

A large kerosene lamp, styled a "gas" stove, melted at the home of John Scott, of West Fourth street, last evening, and poured burning oil over the floor. No one was home at the time. Flames spread about the room and were climbing partitions when neighbors discovered them.

The department was telephoned for and Chief Doane, No. 2 hose wagon and the chemical engine responded. Three extinguishers put out the blaze. The loss will be $50 on the house and $25 on clothing, insured.

PITCHFORK VS. BEER BOTTLE

A THRILLING ENCOUNTER BETWEEN TWO COLORED TRUCKMEN.

Were Arrested and Both Fined Anthony Parson Was Badly Cut About the Head.

Anthony Parson and Harry Parker, two colored truckmen, engaged in a fight in a stable on East Second street at 7 o'clock this moring. It was accompanied by some thrilling features.

The men bandied a few words over a trifling matter when suddenly, it is alleged, Parker seized a pitchfork and struck Parson a blow on the head, felling him to the ground and laying his scalp open He was on his feet in an instant only to go down with another blow across the face. This time his left cheek swelled up until it closed his eye. A second time he succeeded in getting to his feet and commenced chasing Parker about the stable. The latter succeeded in reaching the office where, it is said, he barricaded the door and armed himself with a beer bottle. Parsons was trying to reach him when Patrolman Overbaugh arrived and placed both under arrest.

In the city court, later, both pleaded guilty to fighting. Parker was fined $5 and Parsons $3, both paying. It was necessary to call Dr. Carman to attend Parson's injuries, the gash in his head inflicted by the pitchfork being nearly three inches long.

COURT OPENS.

Prospects of a Long and Busy Term in Union County Court This Month.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Jan. 7—The winter term of the Union County Court opened here this morning before Judge VanSyckel. The term promises to be long, as the calendar contains over fifty cases. There are fifteen suits against railroad companies alone, most of them being for heavy damages.

More than ordinafy interest is felt in a suit which has its origin in the robbery of the Elizabethport bank by "Wilile" Schreiber, the confidential clerk, who disappeared with the entire amount on deposit, $106,000, and never was caught. He also stole three United States bonds for $1,000 each, and cashed them at Los Angeles, Cal. Schreiber is now believed to be in Australia.

The bonds were placed in the bank by the executors of the estate of the late Peter H. Wyckoff, general freight agent for the Jersey Central. As the bank refused to make good the stolen bonds the estate brought suit.

Democracy in Switzerland.

The Swiss girl is taught to be humble and practical from the moment when, at four, she enters the infants' school, until at 18, when she returns finished from pension. There is absolutely no difference between the treatment of the masses and the classes. They sit together at school, are taught the same subjects by the same masters, receive the same punishments and the same praise. Little cares the daughter of the millionaire if her bosom friend is the daughter of her own father's coachman; they have been brought up together, and remain together without let or hindrance. The Swiss girl is never ashamed of being seen at her work, be that work of the most humble description.—St. Louis Glooe-Democrat.

Why the Snow Is Not Black or Red.

Why is the snow white is a question frequently asked. Because black snow would be dangerous; so would red or yellow. These are "warming-up colors," and they change the sun's rays to heat. Such snow would soon melt again and prove a very poor protection. But white snow throws back the sunlight in just the form in which it receives it, and thus the snow can be long on the ground. Throw dirt on the snow, and its dark color quickly makes it eat its way in whenever the sun shines on it. After a snowstorm, once let the horses' feet mingle the dirt of the road with the snow and sleighing will soon be over.—Prof. S. C. Schmucker, in Ladies' Home Journal.

Giant Butter Makers.

Dairies of the twentieth century are great factories full of machinery. Instead of being skimmed the milk is put into a centrifugal apparatus, which, after a few whirls, separates the cream and the milk, even to the uttermost particle. When it comes to the butter making the contrivances employed are equally astonishing. It is interesting to consider how, within hardly more than a quarter of a century, the primitive churn, manipulated with a dasher by the hands of the robust country milkmaid, has developed into a machine of such formidable proportions, capable of turning out thousands of pounds of butter daily.—N. Y. Herald.

Stranger Fell Exhausted on City Streets Late Yesterday Afternoon.

A SWEDISH JOURNALIST.

Had Eaten Nothing for Three Days and Had Walked From New York Here En Route to Home of Friend in Philadelphia—He Was Sent On.

A pitiful tale was revealed to the police, last evening, when John Anderson, a refined appearing young Swede, dropped from exhaustion in front of Johnson & Barnes' store on Park avenue. The man was literally starving to death, having been without food for three days. Despite this fact, he set out to walk from Newark, yesterday morning, to Philadelphia, when nature asserted itself and he was forced to give up the unequal struggle.

When his plight became apparent to the kind passersby who assisted him to Armstrong's pharmacy, provision was at once made to have his immediate wants attended to. It was some time after Anderson was found that he was able to tell anything about himself. It was the oft-repeated tale of a stranger in a strange land, without funds or friends, but plenty of manly pride.

He came to this country a few weeks ago from Sweden, intending to secure work at his vocation, that of a journalist. He had a little money but it soon disappeared when he searched about for a position. He finally secured one on the staff of a Swedish daily at Boston but he was not to begin work until the latter part of this month.

He has friends in Philadelphia and during the interim he decided to visit them. He resolved to walk, not having the money to purchase a ticket, and reached Newark, yesterday morning. He was then without a cent, had eaten nothing in two days, and growing weaker every moment. Despite these obstacles, he set out for this city and completed the seventeen miles, at 6 o'clock, last evening.

On the outskirts of the city, he sold for a quarter his last possession, a handsome pocketbook, and with the silver piece clasped in his hand he was hurrying to get some food when he sank to the ground. When taken in Armstrong's, he shook as if with the palsy and was finable to speak. Mr. Armstrong discerned his plight and for some time slowly fed him broth and crackers. This revived him sufficiently to relate his story, which was interspersed with expressions of gratitude for the kindness shown him.

He was afterward taken to the Hotel Plainfield by Patrolman Lunger where he was able to partake of a light supper. A bed was given him and today he was very much better, although still weak.

Through the efforts of H. Otis Newman and Patrolman George Lunger, a sufficient amount was raised today to provide Anderson with a ticket to Philadelphia and also enough money to tide him over until he assumes his position. He was overwhelmed with gratitude and when he departed his face was wreathed in smiles at the prospect of meeting his friend, who was a college chum in Sweden.

PLAINFIELD YOUNG MAN WRITES OF WEIMER

Geo. C. M. Smith Describes the German City Where He is Studying.

STRANGE THINGS SEEN.

SOME OF THE MOST REMARKABLE DIFFERENCES FROM AMERICAN CITIES.

Old-Fashioned Hand-Fire Engines Are Still in Use There—Wretched Trolley Service—Many Other Curious Things.

An interesting letter descriptive of Weimer, the principal city of the Grand duchy of Saxe-Weimer-Eisenach, has been received by The Daily Press from George C. M. Smith. Mr. Smith is a son of Charles Smith, of Craig place, and he is now taking a course in music, especially on the violin, at the famous conservatory at Weimer. He graduated from the North Plainfield High School, last June, and while at that institution was well known as a violinist of no mean ability.

As he describes it, Weimer is a peculiar city, when contrasted with the typical municipalities of this country. Railroads owned by the government, trolley cars without conductors, churches where no collections are taken, with all expenses borne by the municipality, and a bureau where all must register intentions to become a resident or to leave the municipality, are some of the features which make it odd when viewed by an American. In some respects the city excels the average one in this country while in others it is behind the times.

In the course of his letter he says: "The population is largely evangelical. There are few foreign residents and no negroes. As for the climate is seldom is above ninety-five degrees, Fahernheit, and contagious diseases are rare. There are only four church institutions, two Evangelical, one Roman Catholiic and one Episcopal.

"The fire department is without a doubt old fashioned. The Germans in Weimer still cling to the old time hand engine, but fortunately the services of the department are rarely needed. This is easily accounted for. The houses are all built of cemented bricks and stone, there being no frame dwellings. The roofs are mostly of tile. There are few high buildings, none over four stories. As a rule the people live in tenements, and as for modern interior improvements there are none to speak of.

"The city is kept very clean. The trolley service is wretched. There are no conductors, the passengers dropping the fare in a box as they enter the car. The lines are all single tracks, because the streets are very narrow.

"A part of the German army is stationed in the city and a military band gives many public concerts. All Germans at the age of twenty-one have to do two years' service in the army. There is only one public school and that is attended only by the poorer class of children. There are, however, many private schools. There is a system of compulsary education, fourteen years of age being the limit. The Bible is read in all the schools and there are no Sunday-schools in the city. Lawyers' services are in little demand and therefore there are few practicioners at the bar.

"In the court house building is a department of announcements. It is here that any person wishing to leave the city to reside elsewhere or any one wishing to make his home in the city must announce his intentions, under a penalty amounting to $50 in our money. Monuments, fountains and parks adorn the city. The well known Goethe-Gardenhause is situated in the largest park, as is also a bark house where Goethe spent much of his time. A theatre produces two operas and three plays during the week in the winter season.

"The principal occupation of the inhabitants is bookbinding, but there are no large factories. The grand duke is at the head of the government and he has everything royalty could wish for. Weimer is associated in history as being the home of many composers, authors and artists. Schiller, Goethe, Herder and Wieland lived and died here. Their homes are still standing and monuments are erected to them in different parts of the city. The composers, Bach, Liszt and Hummel, and the great artist, Lucas Cranach, were also residents. It is a peculiar city and one which a traveler may well afford to visit."

HIGH WATER DAMAGED THE CENTRAL'S TRACKS

Will Take Until Spring to Fully Repair the Washouts Near Mauch Chunk.

CAUSES MANY DELAYS.

ONE TRACK SWEPT AWAY FOR A STRETCH OF THIRTY MILES.

Compelled to Lay New Track in Mauch Chunk on Account of Washout—Accounts for Lateness of Trains.

The extreme severtiy of the flood and washout experienced by the Pennsylvania towns along the Lehigh river, two weeks ago, is daily becoming more apparent. While the damage was roughly estimated at the time at hundreds of thousands of dollars it is now certain that the original figures will be tripled.

The greatest sufferers from the avalanche of water, which swept down the little river, ordinarily a few feet deep, were the Jersey Central and Lehigh Railroads, the former in particular. A goodly portion of the Lehigh track from Easton to Scranton was saved by reason of its being higher up than that of the Central on the opposite side of the river.

At Mauch Chunk, there is a bend in the river and here the Central suffered the most. The tracks and roadbed for miles were swept away and has or will be entirely rebuilt. Every available laborer has been pressed into service making repairs but despite day and night shifts, the progress is slow.

At present all the Central's through traffic, eastward from Scranton, is carried on the greater part of the way over a single track where formerly two were no more than adequate. There is one stretch of single track near Mauch Chunk running a distance of thirty miles. In Mauch Chunk itself, temporary tracks have been built in the streets, running alongside those of the local trolley system. Permission to do this was first obtained from the town council.

The lack of men has proved a serious handicap but it is expected many will be secured from the large cities and the road can then be placed in its original shape by spring. At the time the flood occurred, hundreds of miners were thrown out of work by the filling of the imnes, but when offered employment by the railroads, they refused almost without exception.

The train, which is scheduled to reach this city at 9:59 in the morning, comes from Scranton and has to run over the single track, necessitating slow travel. This is partly responsible for its invariably being behind the schedule.

Captain W. Kempton Browning, of Company K, has received an unofficial communication from Major W. J. Browning, quartermaster on General Cooper's staff, stating that the National Guard of New Jersey would participate in the inaugural exercises at Trenton, Tuesday, Jan. 21. The members of Company K will therefore have the opportunity of appearing in an inaugural parade for the first time.

Sweeping the Streets.

The moderate weather of the past few days caused a great deal of dust to accumulate on the business streets. In order to get rid of it before it became a nuisance by rain or wind, Street Commissioner Gavett placed an extra gang of sweepers at work yesterday afternoon.

At the meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church, Friday afternoon, work on a new box will be begun. A full attendance of members is desired.

METHODISTS MET.

Week of Prayer Services Continued at First M. E. Church Last Evening.

The evening of prayer at the First M. E. church, last evening, was in the nature of an evangelistic service. There was a goodly representation present from the three congregations of the Methodist denomination in Plainfield.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, pastor of the First M. E. church, was in charge of the service and he was assisted by Rev. Dr. F. S. Hoyt, formerly editor of the Western Christian Advocate, who is a retired clergyman residing in Ohio, Rev. John McMurray, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, and Rev. G. W. Gardner, pastor of Grace M. E. church. Rev. Dr. Hoyt offered a fervent prayer at the beginning of the service. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Mr. Gardner, who took for his text: "Christ, the Truth, the Way and the Life." It was a short but moving appeal for all to follow the Lord.

This evening an union prayer meeting will be held in the same church edifice and a large congregation is expected to attend.

MRS. O'BRIEN WON DAMAGES

WAS GIVEN A VERDICT FOR $5,000 AGAINST CENTRAL RAILROAD.

Suit Against Trolley Company Was Next Taken Up in the Somerset County Court.

Somerville, Jan. 8—The jury in the case of Mrs. Nora O'Brien against the New Jersey Central Railroad Company, went out yesterday morning at 11 o'clock and returned three hours later with a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $5,000. As told in the Press Mrs. O'Brien sued for $25,000 damages for the loss of three toes, which was caused by her being struck by a passenger train at the depot here last summer while she was on her way to board another train.

The case of Zachariah T. Sutton against the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company was immediately taken up. Geo. W. Anderson appeared for the plaintiff, who asked for $2,000 damages because a car of the company frightened his horse so badly last summer that he was thrown from his wagon and fractured his leg. Mr. Sutton claimed the car was running at a high rate of speed and the motorman was ringing the bell violently.

Hon. Alvah A. Clark, counsel for the trolley company, asked for a nonsuit on the ground that the motorman was only doing his duty in controlling the car and in ringing the gong. The motorman, he claimed, might apprehended that the horse would stop being frightened and be controlled by the driver. "It was his duty to ring the gong for the purpose of warning Sutton as well as any others to keep off the tracks."

Exceptions were taken by the counsel for the plaintiff for the purpose of reviewing in the Supreme Court. Court then adjourned for the day.

MANY HONORED MEMORY OF PROMINENT MAN

Funeral Services of the Late John D. Titsworth Held Yesterday Afternoon.

THE FLORAL TRIBUTES.

REV. C. L. GOODRICH AND REV. DR. A. H. LEWIS IN CHARGE.

Words of Comfort Were Spoken and the Memory of Departed One Was Praised—Singing by Quartette—The Bearers.

A large number of relatives, neighbors and business associates gathered, yesterday afternoon, to attend the funeral services of the late John Davies Titsworth, which were held from the home in Madison avenue at 3 o'clock. The high esteem, in which the deceased was held, was evidenced by those present from the various walks of life. All felt a personal sorrow at the sudden termination of such a life of helpfulness and comfort, for Mr. Titsworth was a person beloved by all who knew him.

Another evidence of esteem was witnessed in the beautiful floral tributes. There were many large wreaths of galax leaves, a pillow at the head of the bier was inscribed "Husband," another pillow from Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., bore the Masonic emblem, still another pillow was inscribed "V. M. L. 711," from Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, while a beautiful floral trumpet bore an inscription "Exempt Firemen." There were many other tributes, both large and small, and not the least was one from the firm of Merck & Company, New York, where Mr. Titsworth was employed. All the tributes were placed about the bier nearly covering the casket.

After the singing of "Asleep in Jesus," by a quartette composed of Mrs. David E. Titsworth, Mrs. William C. Hubbard, David E. Titsworth and Joseph M. Titsworth, Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, of which the deceased was a member, read appropriate selections from the Scriptures. He then made a few remarks in which dwelt upon the beautiful character of Mr. Titsworth. He told of his devotion to his home, his family and his church, of his genial nature and charming personality. He spoke words of comfort to the bereaved ones left so suddenly without one to lead and guide and pointed them to the Heavenly Father, who alone can heal the broken heart.

Following these remarks, Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis spoke briefly. He also referred to the exemplary life of the departed and told of the strong home ties, of his devotion to those he loved and of his bright and happy nature. Dr. Lewis also drew attention to the sudden termination of life and what a shock it was to all who knew Mr. Titsworth. He lead the thoughts of all, especially the bereaved ones, to Christ and invoked the Divine blessing for help, strength and comfort in the hour of trial. At the conclusion of his remarks, Dr. Lewis offered prayer. The quartette then sang "Abide With Me."

After an opportunity had been given those present to look upon the form of the departed, the interment took place in Hillside cemetery. The bearers were Joseph M. Titsworth, David E. Titsworth, Arthur L. Titsworth, Sydney R. Titsworth, Dr. Frank S. Wells and M. L. Duncan.

New Course of Study.

RACE IS DOWN TO THREE MEN

Griggs, Dryden or Stokes Will Probably be Next Senator From Jersey.

THE GOVERNOR'S DAY.

All Candidates But Two Were at Trenton Yesterday, But Nothing Definite Was Accomplished—General Opinion is One of Three.

The man who is to succeed the late William J. Sewell as United States Senator from New Jersey still remains an open question although most authorities concede that the choice has practically sifted down to three men, John W. Griggs, John F. Dryden and Edward C. Stokes. Charles M. Bacon, the Trenton correspondent of the Philadelphia Record, adds the name of David C. Baird. No one can tell, however, which of these men is likely to be named.

It was thought that something definite might come out of Governor's Day, yesterday, at Trenton. While all the candidates but Congressman Gardner and John W. Herbert, of Middlesex, were there, there was really but little accomplished. Nearly all of the members of both houses of the Legislature were present and there were many conferences held. All the candidates appeared singularly hopeful and in excellent humor.

According to the poll of the legislators made by the Trenton True American, the votes for the different candidates will probably be somewhat as follows on the first ballot:

Griggs—Passaic, 6; Bergen, 3; Monmouth, 4; Morris, 2; Ocean, 1; Union, 3; total, 18.

Stokes—Cumberland, 3, Gloucester, 1; Morris, 1; Burlington, 3; Cape May, 1; Ocean, 1; Union, 1; Warren, 1; total, 12.

Dryden—Essex, 12; Union, 1; total, 13.

Baird—Camden, 4; Salem, 2; total, 6.

Gummere—Mercer, 4; Somerset, 2; total, 6.

Herbert—Middlesex, 4.

Gardner—Altantic, 2.

Loudenslager—Cape May, 1; Gloucester, 1; total, 2.

From present appearances, no choice is likely to result from the first ballot when many counties will have their "favorite sons" to honor. After the first ballot, there will be a general shifting of votes.

The New York Tribune sums up the situation as follows: "While it was not conceded, it might as well have been, that not one of the candidates from South Jersey, including Mercer and Middlesex counties, could count reliably upon more than sporadic support beyond his own county, and even in some of the counties this support was either divided or non-committal. It also was rumored that there were possibilities of a division in Passaic county, but this rumor was not wholly disinterested, inasmuch as those who were in a position to speak authoritatively declared that the Passaic delegation would be a unit for Mr. Griggs.

"To the theorists and the enthusiasts the situation appeared to be speculative, and they were agreed that the contest was as yet 'anybody's fight.' To the cool headed practical Republicans—the men who are tacticians and who are the vitality and intelligence of the party—the situation was only problematical in so far as it related to Dryden, Griggs and Stokes."

DEATH OF ANDREW MOORE.

Died at Poughkeepsie Monday Evening After Lingering Illness.

THEATRICAL.

Proctor's Newark Theatre opened successfully on Monday and the leading feature of a bill of "head-liners" was "Skinny's Finish," played by Eva Williams and Jac Tucker. This sketch, first produced two years ago last August, has never yet come so near to Plainfield although, in its present form, it is the work of a former Plainfielder, George Taggart. Doubtless many Plainfielders will take occasion to see Proctor's beautiful new theatre in Newark this week and, when they do, it may gratify them just a bit more to feel that the leading act on the bill is the output of one who used to do monologues and play parts in amateur performances here, even though his name does not appear on the programme.

"The Christian" has followed "Way Down East" at the Academy of Music, New York City. This is the first time Liebler & Company have ever offered their play at popular prices. Edward J. Morgan, the original John Storm of the Knickerbocker cast, again essays the heroic young chruchman, and on this occasion performs the feat as a star for the first time before a New York audience. Elsie Leslie plays Glory Quayle for the first time in New York. Edgar L. Davenport is seen as Drake, Georgia Dickson as Mrs. Callendar, and various others of the original New York cast are found playing their old parts. Special scenery and a greatly augmented corps of extra people are employed, and in all ways the attraction deserves the application of that much abused descriptive adjective—"big." It is a new experience for Edward Morgan, trained in the chaste atmosphere of Daly's and the Lyceum, to appear before the alert and appreciative Academy clientele, but his manly attractiveness and spirited interpretation of this telling role really prove even more effective at the Academy than it did on Broadway—if that were possible. There are several others of the original cast besides Mr. Morgan in the Academy production, and all the parts are found in competent hands. Edgar Davenport, Georgia Dickson, Frank Roberts, Fanchon Campbell, Charles Canfield, Edward Emery, Adolph Lestina, and other good players are in the bill. This mammoth special production is staged by Oscar Eagle, who employes 100 or more people in the great mob scenes.

Child Worth Millons.

"My child is worth millions to me," says Mrs. Mary Bird, of Harrisburg, Pa., "yet I would have lost her by croup had I not purchased a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure." One Minute Cough Cure is sure cure for coughs, croup and throat and lung troubles. An absolutely safe cough cure which acts immediately. The youngest child can take it with entire safety. The little ones like the taste and remember how often it helped them. Every family should have a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure handy. At this season especially it may be needed suddenly. L. W. Randolph.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

R. W. Barnes, the Park avenue delicatessen dealer, claims to have the finest potato salad in Plainfield. His choice line of smoked salmon, sturgeon and mackerel is unsurpassed by any on the market.

Those beautiful cut flowers, which one sees brought out by commuters, are from Wm. H. Brower's Sons, the florists, of 946 Broadway, N. Y. Orders for them are left with John L. Brower, of 127 East Fifth street, this city.

"The popular demand for an article is a test of its merit," says Druggist C. E. Hepburn, of Park avenue and Second street. He cites the large sales of his famous Cough Syrup as an example. It will nip the cold at the beginning or cure it when advanced.

The old saying that "the back bone of winter is broken" has not yet been heard, but at all events spring is not a great way off. Cashin, the Park avenue tailor, can properly clothe you for the season and can give you pointers on what will be worn next spring and summer.

Lederer, the West Front street dry goods dealer, wants all the women of the city to see his stock of walking skirts. He claims they cannot be equalled for style, material and comfort at the price. They will be on sale for the rest of the week but early visits secure the best of the large assortment.

The art of candy making has improved wonderfully during the last few years, in fact it has been said that in the old days pure confection was seldom heard of. Campbell, of West Front street, has revolutionized the art and today he manufactures only the purest confection and sells it reasonably.

It is now an acknowledged fact that there is not a better carrier of disease than milk. The Board of Health is assured of this and they are taking every precaution to prevent the spread of disease. If you buy your milk of Wm. Lindsay & Son, of Mountain avenue, you need never worry as to absolute purity. It can be used with perfect freedom.

It is said that women's order of preferences is jewels, flowers, man. The second of these would undoubtedly be first if all the women would see the stock of rare plants, palms, cut roses, carnations and other beauties that delight the eye at A. E. Lincoln's. Jewels are often priceless but it's different with flowers. Those at Lincoln's are within the reach of all.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. J. T. Armstrong, of Brooklyn, has returned home after a visit with Miss Mary Brown, of Washington avenue.

John Fisher, of East Second street, who has been detained at the hospital for some time under treatment, is now gradually recovering.

John Cuthbert, formerly of this city, but now of New York, was in Plainfield yesterday attending the funeral of his late friend, John D. Titsworth.

Councilman Frank DeW. Randolph, of West Front street, is suffering with facial trouble, caused by a badly ulcerated tooth. One side of his face is swollen to unusual proportions.

Wm. Hartpence, of West Second street, who was recently injured at the American Engine Works, Bound Brook, where he works, has so far recovered as to be able to return to his work.

Don't Live Together.

Constipation and health never go together. DeWitt's Little Early Risers promote easy action of the bowels without distress. "I have been troubled with costiveness nine years," says J. O. Greene, Depauw, Ind. "I have tried many remedies but Little Early Risers give best results." L. W. Randolph.

Doing the Right Thing.

The trouble begins with a tickling in the throat and a nagging little cough. Soreness in the chest follows and the patient wonders if he is going to have an all winter cold. Probably, if he does the wrong thing or nothing. Certainly not if he uses Perry Davis' Painkiller, the staunch old remedy that cures a cold in twenty-four hours. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'.

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

WATERLOO MONUMENT.

Site of Napoleon's Downfall to Be Marked by Sculpture of a Gigantic Dying Eagle.

France has at last, after a lapse of 86 years, decided to mark the site of Napoleon's downfall. Waterloo is to have a monument.

A short time ago M. Henri Houssaye, an eminent historian and noted member of the French academy, together with Count de Mautoy and M. Gustave Larroumet, bought a plot of land at the junction of the high road from Brussels, and that from Planchenoit near the famous farm of La Belle Alliance, which was the center of Napoleon's position in the great battle.

This ground has been offered to the military society "La Sabretache," which has opened a subscription for the erection of a monument. Already the response has been so generous that M. Jean Leon Gerome, the illustrious French sculptor and artist, has been given carte blanche, the only command issued being that the memorial must be of the finest materials.

WATERLOO MONUMENT.
(Erected to Mark the Site of Napoleon's Downfall.)

He has promised it for the early part of 1902, but the unveiling will not take place until the spring days come and the weather is warm enough to permit of a lengthy and elaborate ceremony.

The monument is a striking piece of work. The principal figure represents a dying eagle with one wing broken and drooping by its side, and the other extended but pierced with bullets; one claw firmly grasps the French flag, while with the other the mortally wounded bird defends the colors on which are inscribed the words: "Austerlitz" and "Eylau."

The eagle is of bronze, and stands on a huge bowlder of marble over which the flag droops on one side, and on the other will be carved an inscription, the exact text of which has not yet been decided upon, but it will contain the date of the battle of Waterloo, and in a few brief sentences tell the results of the strife and also state that the monument is lovingly dedicated to the greatest general France had and to the noble men who so courageously and gallantly followed their leader.

The eagle measures two meters in height, and the extending wing three meters, 25. The entire monument, with pedestal and bronze, is 15 meters high and is very impressive.

HONOR FOR MULDOON.

Created Coadjutor, Bishop of the Archdiocese of Chicago by Order of Pope Leo XIII.

Rt. Rev. Peter J. Muldoon, the brilliant young bishop of Chicago, who was consecrated July 25 last and named as auxiliary bishop of Chicago, has received a further signal distinction that seldom comes to one so young, of being made bishop coadjutor of the diocese.

RT. REV. PETER J. MULDOON.
(Just Appointed Coadjutor Bishop of Chicago Archdiocese.)

By this new appointment, which has been made by Pope Leo XIII., he has coordinate jurisdiction in this great diocese with the venerable archbishop, Most Rev. P. A. Feehan.

The greater significance of this new honor is that it confers upon him the right of succession to Archbishop Feehan.

In naming him as bishop coadjutor the holy father designated at the same time the next archbishop of Chicago.

Bishop Muldoon was born a little less than 38 years ago in Columbia, Cal., of Irish parents.

His early education was obtained in the public schools of Stockton, Cal.

A MARVELOUS GROWTH.

Population Increased Sixteenfold During the Century.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Figures based on the enumeration of June 1, 1900, now made public, show that the total population of the United States at the close of the nineteenth century was about 84,250,000. As the population of the United States at the beginning of the century was about 5,333,000, the nation has grown nearly sixteen fold in 100 years.

The report further states:

"There are but three countries which now have a greater population than the United States—viz, China, the British empire and the Russian empire. China and the British empire have each of them probably between 350,000,000 and 400,000,000, or together nearly one-half of the total population of the earth. The Russian empire, with about 131,000,000 people, has more than half as many again as the United States and has been increasing during the century just closed with greater rapidity than any other European power. Its growth, like that of the United States, has been partly through the natural increase of its population and partly through great accessions of territory. It had about 38,800,000 people in 1800 and has increased more than three and a half times during the nineteenth century.

"France, including its dependencies, is the fourth country of the world in order of population and has about 83,700,000, or almost the same number as the United States. Of these over 25,000,000 are in African dependencies, nearly 17,000,000 in Asia and 2,000,000 in Madagascar. These five most populous countries together include over two-thirds of the estimated population of the world, which is placed by the best authorities at between 1,500,000,000 and 1,600,000,000."

LONG'S SUCCESSOR.

Former Governor Lowndes of Maryland May Be Naval Secretary.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Naval circles are greatly agitated by the report that former Governor Lowndes of Maryland is to succeed John D. Long as secretary of the navy.

Officials in the navy department are in a flutter of excitement over the announcement. Just where the report originated is difficult to determine.

At the White House a somewhat equivocal denial of the story is given out, but it is said that a change in the navy department may occur whenever it suits Secretary Long's convenience to retire.

Porto Rico Wants a Naval Station.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Jan. 8.—The Porto Rican legislative assembly has passed a joint resolution concerning the establishment of a United States naval station in Porto Rican waters. Copies of this resolution were mailed to President Roosevelt and the presiding officers of the senate and the house. The resolution recommends that the people of Porto Rico cede the possession of any property, buildings and appurtenances belonging to the government of Porto Rico as may be required and necessary for the construction of a naval station, leaving the adjustment of title thereto to subsequent legislation.

A Schley Resolution.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Representative Hooker of Mississippi has introduced a joint resolution reciting that Commodore Schley was the senior officer in command at the battle of Santiago, that he was in absolute command at that battle and is "entitled to the credit due to such commanding officer for the glorious victory which resulted in the total destruction of the Spanish ships." The resolution provides for the thanks of congress to Admiral Schley and the officers and men under his command.

An Indian Territory Oil Well.

GUTHRIE, Okla., Jan. 8.—A deal has been consummated between the Indian Territory Illuminating company, composed of Jersey City capitalists, and a party of Rhode Island bankers by which the latter turn over all their oil wells in the Indian Territory and other properties, including the oil rights of the entire Osage nation, to the New Jersey company. The wells now in operation produced 20,000 barrels of oil during 1901.

A Dual Police Court.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 8.—Two police judges, each with a number of supporters, held court at the same time in the police courtroom here yesterday, one of them finally being forcibly ejected by the police. Judge Berka, the newly elected judge, held the bench, while Judge Gordon, who claims to hold over on the supposition that the election of Berka was illegal, pulled a table in front of him and rapped for order.

French Syndicate to Invade Mexico.

ROANOKE, Va., Jan. 8.—In a head end collision on the Kenova division of the Norfolk and Western railroad Hugh Smith, an express messenger and baggage master of this city, and Flagman John Turner of Bluefield, W. Va., were killed.

CANAL FIGHT BEGUN.

Senate and House Take Up Discussion of Routes.

PANAMA COMPANY IS DENOUNCED.

Morgan Suggests an Investigation of What He Alleges Is a "Wicked Monopoly"—Hepburn Says Recent Action Is Suspicious.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The first notes of the contest between the Nicaragua and Panama routes for the isthmian canal were heard in the senate yesterday. Mr. Morgan offered and secured the adoption of a resolution which indicated his purpose to have the committee on interoceanic canals inquire into the relations alleged to exist between the transcontinental railroad companies of the United States and Canada and the Panama Canal company. In explanation of the resolution Mr. Morgan declared that the alleged relations were a "wicked monopoly" which already had cost the people of the Pacific coast millions of dollars. The relations involve the control by the Panama Canal company of the Panama Railroad company and the agreement existing between certain railroads of the United States and the Pacific Mail Steamship company.

At the conclusion of business the senate paid a graceful compliment to Senator Foraker of Ohio by adjourning until 2 o'clock today in order that senators might attend the marriage of Miss Foraker at noon without interfering with their legislative duties.

The debate on the Nicaragua canal bill in the house was opened in lively fashion by Mr. Hepburn, chairman of the interstate and foreign commerce committee, which reported the bill. For two hours he held the floor, replying to a volley of questions concerning the recent offer of the Panama Canal company to sell its property and franchises to the United States for $40,000,000. The interest in the debate centered almost entirely in this new phase of the subject. Mr. Hepburn maintained that the alleged new offer of the Panama company was part of the plan of delay. All his utterances along that line were liberally applauded. He pointed out what he claimed was the suspicious circumstance that the Panama company held out for $109,000,000 until it was decided before the holiday recess to consider the Nicaragua bill and then suddenly dropped the price to $40,000,000.

Mr. Morris (Minn.) gave notice that at the proper time he would offer an amendment to authorize the president if he could procure the property and rights of the Panama company for $40,000,000, if concessions could be procured from Colombia and if the Walker commission so recommended to purchase and proceed to complete the Panama canal.

Philippine Financial Troubles.

MANILA, Jan. 8.—Numerous meetings of merchants and others have taken place recently and resolutions have been passed urgently requesting congressional action to meet the financial situation here. Since the ratio was officially changed, Jan. 1, for the first quarter of 1902, to be $2.10 Mexican silver to one American gold dollar, business transactions of any sort have become difficult and unpleasant. The majority of the business houses have raised their prices from 5 to 10 per cent, and some houses refuse to accept any coins except American, which are difficult to obtain owing to the vast speculative shipments of coin during the past few months. Some banks refuse to recognize the government ratio and are fixing their own majority at one American gold dollar to two Mexican silver dollars. Even the government's American employees, whose salaries are payable in Mexican dollars, object to the change owing to the large increase in prices. The leading banks refuse to handle government checks, not because they have any doubt of obtaining the money, but because of the frequent long delays over trifling irregularities.

Belmont Defeated For Congress.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Mr. Perry Belmont has been defeated in the hard fought election for a successor to Nicholas Muller in the Seventh congressional district. The vote was very close, and when the last few Staten Island districts had been heard from his defeat by a few less than 200 votes was conceded. Mr. Montague Lessler, the successful nominee, profited by the division in the Tammany camp. He has conducted a magnificent canvass, devoting most of his energy to the Staten Island end of the campaign.

Serious Railway Wreck.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Jan. 8.—A serious wreck occurred on the western Maryland cutoff line at Culbertson, caused by a Reading freight train sideswiping a western Maryland train standing on a siding. The Reading engine was upset down a thirty foot embankment and the fireman seriously injured. The engineer escaped with slight injuries. Conductor Robert Shober of the Reading train was badly injured. Both engines and a number of cars were smashed.

Gorman Has a Sure Thing.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 8.—The Maryland general assembly reassembled last night with the understanding that but little business is to be transacted pending the election of a United States senator. It has been decided that the Democrats will hold their caucus for this office tonight, and there appears to be no doubt that former Senator Arthur P. Gorman will be the nominee. In fact no other name has been mentioned for the place on the Democratic side.

PEKING'S GREAT DAY

Court Enters City Amid Big Demonstration.

BEWILDERING BARBARIC EXHIBITION

Foreigners Everywhere In Evidence During the Entry—Contrary to All Chinese Customs—Dowager Returns Salutations.

PEKING, Jan. 8.—The re-entrance of the Chinese emperor into Peking was the most remarkable episode in the annals of the dynasty save the fright of the Chinese court when Peking was bombarded by the allied forces.

The spectacular phases of the return of the court exceeded the expectations. The cortege was a sort of glorified lord mayor's show and was a bewildering and barbaric exhibition of oriental tinseled splendor.

Its chief significance was the complete effacement of the traditional deification of Chinese royalty. Foreigners were given greater facilities to witness the ceremonial than would have been afforded them at most European courts.

The scene at the Chien gate when the emperor and dowager empress entered the temple to offer thanks for their safe journey was nothing less than revolutionary when viewed in the light of all Chinese customs. Th horseshoe wall forming the ancient gate was crowded with Europeans—diplomats, army officers, missionaries, ladies, photographers and correspondents.

When the emperor and the dowager empress arrived at the temple, the procession halted, and their majesties alighted from their chairs, which were covered with imperial yellow silk and lined with sable. The emperor proceeded to the Temple of the God of War, on the west side of the plaza, with hundreds of foreigners peering down only forty feet above him, and dozens of cameras were focused upon the son of heaven.

Then the chair of the dowager empress was brought to the doorway of the Temple of the Goddess of Mercy, on the east side of the plaza, and the dowager empress appeared. Amid a great scuffling of attendants she proceeded into the temple on the arms of two officials, followed by a company of Buddhist priests bearing offerings. The spectators then heard the booming of the temple bell.

After an interval of five minutes the dowager empress reappeared. Standing in the doorway of the temple, she looked upward. Directly overhead were the German minister, Dr. Mumm von Schwartzenstein, and the secretaries of the German legation and the officers and ladies from the American garrison. The dowager empress saw the foreigners and bowed low. She advanced a few steps and bowed again in acknowledgment of the salutations of the foreigners. She returned to her chair, looking upward to the semicircle of foreign faces and bowing repeatedly.

The expression of the dowager empress seemed almost appealing as she faced those who had humbled her from her former arrogance and confirmed the impression that she is returning to Peking with anxiety for her safety.

In the meantime the Chinese soldiers, Mantcheo bannermen and minor officials who had crowded the plaza were reverently kneeling. The two arches at the sides of the ancient gateway framed hundreds of faces of Chinese coolies who, emboldened by the presence of foreigners, ventured to gaze upon their rulers. This incident constituted a most sharp contrast with the old regime, when neither diplomats nor natives were permitted to view the passage of royal personages along the streets.

The streets from the Machiapo station to the gateway of the Forbidden City, a distance of four miles, were swept and garnished early in the morning. The great plaza between the temples of Heaven and Agriculture were sprinkled with yellow sand. Residents were compelled to remain indoors. The soldiers and the police formed a close cordon along both sides of this entire distance. A sharp wind, bringing sand from the Mongolian desert, blinded the spectators.

The special train bearing the emperor and the empress dowager, composed of twenty-two cars, was preceded by a pilot engine and arrived here shortly after noon. The engine and the emperor's cars had been decorated with yellow silk dragons by the British railroad officers. Two companies of Chinese cavalry mounted on white horses and two companies astride horses from Australia were drawn up at the sides of the station. Two thousand officials, princes, viceroys and taotais, in a kaleidoscopic field of silks and furs, in which gleamed an occasional yellow jacket, were in attendance.

Lockjaw From Vaccine Virus.

BELVIDERE, N. J., Jan. 8.—Dr. Frank P. Haggerty, the leading physician of Vienna, a township seven or eight miles from here, is suffering from lockjaw, and his jaws have become rigid. Dr. Haggerty has had two smallpox cases during the last two weeks, and, fearful that the disease might become epidemic, he had vaccinated himself. This was several days ago, and Dr. Haggerty felt no serious results until Monday morning, when signs of tetanus appeared.

A Michigan Treasurer Arrested.

MANISTIQUE, Mich., Jan. 8.—V. P. Chappel, former treasurer, has been arrested on the charge of embezzling county funds. An examination of the books has revealed a shortage of $7,300. Chappel says that poor bookkeeping is responsible.

M'KINLEY DAY FAVORED.

Governor Stone of Pennsylvania Issues a Proclamation.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 8.—Governor Stone has issued the following proclamation to the people of Pennsylvania:

"The governor of Ohio has by public proclamation called attention to the McKinley National Memorial association, organized for the purpose of raising a fund for the erection of a suitable monument at the grave of William McKinley, and has recommended that the people of Ohio be given an opportunity to contribute to this fund.

"The citizens of Pennsylvania who have so richly profited by his life work owe a great debt to William McKinley, and the response to the invitation of the McKinley Monumental association should be prompt and liberal.

"I therefore heartily join with the governor of Ohio in suggesting that Wednesday, Jan. 29, the fifty-ninth anniversary of the birth of William McKinley, be observed by all the schools of the state as McKinley day and that on the Sunday preceding the 29th of January special memorial exercises be held in all our churches. I also suggest that an opportunity then be given in both schools and churches to those who desire to aid this work."

BOER AND BRITISH LOSSES.

The Year's Operations In South Africa Reviewed.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—A published review of operations in South Africa during the past year based upon official reports gives an interesting comparison of Boer and British losses.

The review says that the total reduction of the Boer forces in killed, wounded, taken prisoners and surrendered amounts to 18,320 men. Out o this total only 7,993 rifles were secured. The captures of Boer ammunition amount to 2,300,000 cartridges. British columns are supposed to have secured all the Boer artillery, amounting to 27 guns, exclusive of the two captured by General De Wet at Zeefontein. The captures of Boer stock have been enormous, considering the great hauls made during the earlier years of the war. During the last year a total of 29,882 horses were captured, while of other stock, such as cattle, oxen and sheep, 366,821 head were captured.

The British casualties from actual fighting amount to only half of those sustained by the Boers—namely, 9,113 men, of which 1,513 were taken prisoners and have since been released. During the last year 4,090 men died of disease, 15 officers and 342 men were killed accidentally, and 25,800 men were invalided home.

Merger Fight Begun.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Attorney General Wallace B. Douglas of Minnesota has filed in the United States supreme court the bill of complaint in the case of the state of Minnesota, complainant, against the Northern Securities company, defendants. It is a long document, about 10,000 words, covering thirty-two pages of printed matter. The bill first points out the direct interest the state has in the proposed consolidation. It still owns more than 3,000,000 acres of public land, valued at more than $15,000,000 and traversed in part by the lines of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads. If the merger is effected, these roads will cease to build spurs into these lands or compete for their business. The value of the lands will not increase as it has under the spur of competition, and the state will lose in the taxable value of its property. The lands will not be opened for years, and development will be arrested.

Big Price For Hereford Bull.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—The Hereford bull Perfection, 92891, has been sold for $9,000 at the Union stockyards, Chicago. This is the highest price ever paid in America for a Hereford and the highest price in recent years for a bull or cow of any breed. Perfection was the champion Hereford bull of the International Live Stock exposition in December. He headed the list of fifty-six animals sold by Thomas Clark of Beecher, Ill., and was purchased by Gilbert H. Hoxie, vice president of the Mallory Live Stock Commission company of Chicago.

Daring Bank Theft.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 8.—Six masked men entered the National Stockyards bank, north of East St. Louis, Ill., and after capturing and gagging the two watchmen and firemen at the plant and blowing open the vaults with dynamite secured $5,000 in coin and currency, with which they decamped. For nine hours they were at work on the vaults without being interfered with.

Fatal Explosion of Gas Machine.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Jan. 8.—While Harry Dusenberry and R. A. Lord of Washingtonville were repairing a gas machine at Little Britain the machine exploded. Dusenberry received injuries from which he died. Lord was hurled many feet, but was uninjured.

Gift For New York Hospital.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—An anonymous friend of the Postgraduate hospital of this city has offered to donate $100,000 to the institution providing an additional sum of $200,000 is raised. Since Saturday $35,000 of the last mentioned sum has been pledged.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

The British have defeated the commandos of Botha and Opperman, but suffered severely themselves.

For the first time in the history of the United States senate the chaplain prayed for the newspaper men.

At Logansport, La., fire burned the business portion of the town, consisting of thirty-three buildings; total loss, $125,000; insurance, $75,000.

DIPLOMATIC RECEPTION.

First Formal Levee of President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt gave a reception at the White House last night in honor of the diplomatic corps. It was the first formal evening levee of the season and the first at which President and Mrs. Roosevelt have been the host and hostess. A full representation of the diplomatic corps made the affair notably brilliant.

The floral decorations were handsome and elaborate. There was a delicate draping of the immense chandeliers in the east room with a wealth of smilax, the immense mirrors were banked with roses, carnations, hyacinths and lilies of the valley, while in the large recesses around the room there were large jars of variegated crotons.

The ceiling, pillars and other portions of the room were beautifully decorated. In the large red, blue and green parlors the floral displays were simple in character, being confined to a few glowing plants and cut flowers.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt received their guests in the blue room. Their entrance was announced by a fanfare of trumpets by members of the United States engineer band stationed in the long corridor. Assisting the president and Mrs. Roosevelt were Mrs. Root, Mrs. Knox, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Hitchcock and Miss Wilson.

The diplomatic corps, accompanied by the ladies of the legations, assembled in the red parlor and, headed by Sir Julian Pauncefote, the dean of the corps, passed the receiving party, the introductions being made by Colonel Theodore Bingham. After them were received the higher officials of the army and navy, the members of the supreme court, many senators and representatives in congress and a large number of resident society folk of Washington. President Roosevelt gave every visitor a hearty handclasp and a cordial welcome.

He Thawed Dynamite.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—An explosion of dynamite occurred in a contractor's toolhouse beside the Pennsylvania railroad tracks in West Philadelphia. "Doc" Mullen, a watchman employed by P. McManus, the contractor, was literally blown to atoms, and a dozen persons living in the vicinity were cut by flying glass from the shattered windows of the houses. A number of laborers employed by McManus were at work making excavations along the line of the railroad. The sticks of dynamite used for blasting had been frozen, and Mullen placed them near a stove in the hut to thaw out. The explosion followed, killing Mullen instantly and wrecking the shanty. The pavements for blocks were covered with broken glass from the shattered window panes of the dwellings.

Cheap Coal For the Poor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Within a day or two warmth, which the coal hucksters have made a luxury for the city's poor, will be within the reach and purse of thousands. Those who are obliged to buy by the bucketful instead of being forced to pay prohibitive prices will be able to procure fuel at less than half the prices they are now asked or about thirty-five pounds for 5 cents. Mr. Nathan Straus has made application to Commissioner of Docks McDougall Hawkes for permission to place a coal barge at one of the lower east side piers and one on the lower west side. These will be kept there during the entire winter if the permission which Mr. Straus expects is granted.

Fifteen Miners Entombed.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Jan. 8.—Fifteen or more men were entombed by a cavein in the Negaunee mine last evening, and it is feared all will perish. The work of rescue was begun without delay, but at latest reports none of the entombed men had been brought to the surface. There are two shafts to the mine, but it is believed all chance for escape was shut off when the cavein occurred. The manager of the mine cannot give the names of any of the imprisoned men. Relatives of the workmen surround the opening of the mine and are anxiously awaiting developments.

Pay For Confederate Soldiers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—A bill of much interest to ex-Confederate soldiers has been favorably acted upon by the house committee on war claims. It provides for paying former Confederate soldiers for horses, bridles, saddles and side arms taken from them in violation of the terms of surrender made by Generals Lee and Johnston with Generals Grant and Sherman. The bill was introduced by Representative Padgett of Tennessee.

UNREST AT PANAMA.

Revolutionary Forces Still Menace the Town.

GENERAL HERRERA'S PLOT REVEALED

Military Governor Alban, Learning of Proposed Night Attack, Has Strengthened the Defenses at La Boca Landing.

COLON, Colombia, Jan. 8.—Information received here of the conditions existing at Panama characterize them as very unsettled. Ships belonging to the revolutionary forces were seen last Sunday fifty or sixty miles from Panama. It is reported these vessels were unable to take aggressive measures against the government because one of them, the cruiser Padilla, lacks coal. Subsequent reports, however, say that the steamer Monotombo, from Nicaragua, has supplied the revolutionary general Herrera with coal. General Herrera landed a revolutionary expedition at Tonosi Dec. 24 in the revolutionary steamers Ibis, Darien and Gaitan.

General Carlos Alban, the military governor of this district, has captured correspondence from Liberals in Panama setting forth that General Herrera had perfected plans to capture Panama by effecting a landing during the nighttime at the railroad dock at La Boca. La Boca is the Pacific entrance of the Panama canal and about three miles from Panama. Since this discovery a six pounder and 100 men under General Sarria have been stationed on the dock at La Boca, thus rendering a landing in that vicinity impossible.

The Colombian government gunboat Boyaca, with troops from Chepo, is expected to reach Panama soon. Government troops from Chorrera have arrived at Panama after a march overland. Small detachments of government soldiers now at Nombre de Dios and Cocle, both on the Caribbean coast, are also expected to reach Panama shortly. There is now a total of between 600 and 800 government troops at Panama, and much excitement prevails there owing to the movements of the soldiers up and down the city.

The latest reports from the Colombian general Castro locate him at Pese, with the revolutionary forces at Las Tablas, southwest of Panama, on the Azuero peninsula.

The captain of a sailing vessel which has just arrived at Panama reports that when he left Agua Dulce fighting was going on at Los Santos, near Pese.

General Alban has asked that the United States cruiser Philadelphia, which reached Panama Monday, proceed to Las Tablas, conveying certain revolutionary prisoners which are to be exchanged for government officials captured by the Liberals at Tumaco and who are all said to be of importance. H. A. Gudger, American consul general at Panama, has sent a cablegram to Washington asking for approval of the request made by General Alban.

Indictment Awaits Fitcham.

BALLSTON SPA, N. Y., Jan. 8.—W. A. Mason, special examiner of the department of justice, has completed the work of reviewing the evidence of Teller Fitcham's embezzlement from the First National bank. He finds sufficient evidence from the books of the bank depositors to warrant indictment. The United States district court meets in Albany Feb. 11. There will probably be two charges—embezzling $115,256.87 from the bank and falsifying the teller's books in attempting to cover the embezzlement. Fitcham also may be indicted by the Saratoga county grand jury which meets Jan. 20 for grand larceny in the second degree. Fitcham has nearly recovered from his illness.

A Light Fingered Colored Brother.

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—The mystery of the disappearance of small sums of money from cash drawers in various departments at the statehouse at night was solved when watchmen saw a colored porter in the act of rifling the drawer in the office of the bureau of registration in pharmacy. The man was J. William Henry Johnson. He was arrested. In the municipal court he admitted his guilt and was sentenced to serve six months' imprisonment. Johnson, it is said, is a regularly ordained Baptist minister.

Austrian Dreyfus on Trial.

VIENNA, Jan. 8.—The trial has commenced here behind closed doors of Captain Carina of the Austrian cavalry, who has been dubbed the "Austrian Dreyfus," on the charge of divulging military secrets to the French government, from which he is alleged to have received $10,000. The captain pleaded not guilty and declared he had never possessed or had access to the information which he was charged with selling to France.

Creditors Extend More Time.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 8.—Still more signatures have been received to the agreement extending the time for the payment of the obligations of the Everett-Moore interests. A committee of outside creditors met with the committee of bankers who have the matter in charge, and all showed their willingness to hold their securities and grant the extension of eighteen months.

Westinghouse Capital Increased.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 8.—At a special meeting of the stockholders of the Westinghouse Machine company held here the capital stock was increased from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000. The increase was made to provide additional working capital.

CITY STREET SPRINKLING.

In a suburban community like Plainfield, the subject of street sprinkling is a very important one. When there is no attempt made to prevent the dust of the streets from blowing about and distributing itself over rich and poor alike, it becomes a serious menace to the good name of the city. Heretofore the work has been done by private individuals except in the heart of the city where the street department took up the work. Now, however, the Common Council is considering the advisibility of having the street department assume the task of keeping all the streets properly sprinkled.

One great opposition to the sprinkling by private individuals is that the burden of expense is often unfairly divided. Well-to-do householders refuse to bear their share of the cost while they gain all the advantages of it. The other householders are consequently compelled to stand more than their share. Of course, the street sprinkling concern can refuse to sprinkle the roadway in front of the home of the man who will not pay but he has the full advantage of the part which is sprinkled on either side while his neighbors, who pay, have to stand the discomforts which follow the neglect of his roadway.

This subject has been considered before by the city officials and the argument against it, which then prevented its adoption, was that there were so many miles of streets to be kept watered in the city that to do the work satisfactorily, a very heavy expenditure would be incurred. If, however, the present Common Council, can find means whereby the work can be done by the city at a moderate cost, it will have accomplished a good work. The plan seems a proper one in theory. All it lacks is to be successfully worked out along practical lines.

Plainfield has been very fortunate in the personel of its fire department for many years. The men who went to make up its volunteer force in past years included many of the best citizens of the city. The Exempt Firemen's Association naturally includes them all in its membership. The experiences, which some cities enjoyed from their volunteer fire departments, were entirely wanting here. It is, however, a recognized fact that a few men, carefully trained, can accomplish far more than a host of others, no matter how willing. So the efficiency of the Plainfield department has been increased with the passing of the volunteer force and the establishment of the semi-paid department.

Dr. J. B. Probasco has been re-elected to the office of president of the Plainfield Board of Education without opposition. For many years Dr. Probasco has been at the head of the city school board and he has labored hard and earnestly for the best interests of the city as he has viewed them. Every city official is bound to be subjected to more or less criticism but it can truthfully be said that Dr. Probasco has done much for the advancement of public education in Plainfield.

The principle of an established rate for all advertisers like is one which organized advertisers will eventually demand of all newspapers, remarks the Philadelphia Record. A prominent advertiser states that when newspaper publishers are willing to make special rates in order to get his advertisements he doubts the value of the space in their publications. This view of the matter is extending.

It was generally supposed that the members of the Common Council had made up their minds to move the city offices to the Smalley building on North avenue. The subject came up at Monday evening's Council meeting but nothing definite was done. The owner of the present quarters, J. B. Coward, made a new offer to the city which may put a different aspect on the subject.

There was a meeting of the Common Council on the first Monday in the month after all. The meeting had been set for the following Monday but it was deemed best to change thet day of meeting so as to conform with the rules of the Common Council.

With so many other troubles, it certainly looks as if it would be some time before the Jersey Central Railroad gives the fence separating the tracks at the North Avenue station a coat of paint which will make it easy to be seen.

For such a little hamlet, Peapack takes the record for producing strange and wonderful tales. Its latest is of a remarkable cavern in the hillside.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Senator Reed of Somerset has introduced a new name in the list of possible candidates for United States Senator by suggesting Chancellor Magie, though he says he does it without consulting the Chancellor.—Jersey City Journal.

When Senator Charles A. Reed declared that Chancellor William J. Magie could have the unanimous support of the Legislature for the United States Senatorship if he wanted it, the Somerset man apparently overlooked the fact that the chancellor is from Union county.—Newark News.

The committee of the Plainfield Board of Trade, which Monday made a complaint to the Jersey Central officials against the "rag-time train service" given that city by that road, evidently does not appreciate popular music. The rythmic notes of a march—The March of Progress—sound sweeter to them when given out by cars wheels.—Newark News.

DEATH OF E. W. HUMMER.

Brother of Two Boroughites Passed Away at Annandale, N. J.

L. A and C. M. Hummer, of the borough, received the sad news today of the death of their brother, Elias W. Hummer, of Annandale, N. J. He was a man that was widely known and will be greatly missed.

He and a brother have been in business together for twenty-five years. He had also been superintendent of the Sunday-school connected with the Reformed church, of that place, for fourteen years, and also choir leader of the church for seventeen years.

This is the second time these families have been afflicted in less than a year. It will be remembered that the death of the wife of the other brother was caused by being thrown from a carriage last April.

Relatives in Plainfield.

John Watson Bird, of Liberty Corners, who was buried at that place at noon today, was a brother of Lewis M. Bird, of Summit avenue, Morgan Bird, of Park avenue, and George Bird, of Watchung avenue. A sister, Mrs. M. M. Moulton, resides on West Fourth street. The only other brother is Elias Bird, of Mt. Bethel.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Demick, Somerville, Ind. "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." You don't live by what you eat, but by what you digest and assimilate. If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food. You don't have to diet. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

SUBURBAN NEWS

A Department Devoted to the Minor Events in Greater Plainfield's Suburbs by Our Own Correspondents.

DUNELLEN.

The regular monthly meeting of the Borough Council was not held Monday evening as scheduled as there was not a quorum present. The meeting will be held Saturday evening and it is probable that a new Board of Health will be appointed, as the large number of deaths from typhoid fever has had lead to the supposition that the sanitary condition in parts of the town is not all that it should be.

The new officers will be installed at the next meeting of Court Dunellen, I. O. F., by S. O. Sutton, deputy ranger. The installation will be followed by a collation and a smoker.

Last night was the third night of the week of prayer and a considerable number gathered in the Methodist church for worship.

The band will meet in Apgar's hall this evening for practice. Practice will be held every Wednesday evening from now on.

The Board of Education held its regular monthly meeting last evening in Whittier hall and transacted routine business.

The park gang of the Central railroad, which is under charge of Fowler Vail, has been laid off until spring.

Wm. G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., held a meeting last night and transacted routine business.

Miss Dora Fulton, of Brooklyn, has returned home after a visit with her sister, Mrs. Chas. Ross.

The annual election for chief, first and second assistant chiefs of the fire department was held in the fire company's rooms last night from 8 to 9. Wm. B. Noble was re-elected chief, Wm. H. Lake first assistant and Phillip Blank second assistant chief for the ensuing year.

The Young Peoples Literary Society, connected with the Methodist church, will resume its weekly meetings in the church this evening. During the past two weeks no meetings have been held on account of the holidays.

Miss Lopez, a native Porto Rican girl, who has been spending two weeks as the guest of Rev. and Mrs. G. M. Shott, has returned to Peddie Institute, Hightstown, where she is taking a course of study.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The local court of Foresters met Monday evening and held its annual installation of officers. Deputy Chief Day, of Elizabeth, did the work. The members installed into office were: Chief ranger, Thomas Hurly; vice chief ranger, Geo. Smith; treasurer, P. J. McDonough; financial secretary, J. S. Thuma; recording secretary, William Hamilton; orator, H. Hartzel; senior woodward, M. H. Collins; junior woodward, William Maher; senior beadle, T. Terrill; junior beadle, Hans Nelson.

A petition, with sixty signers, asking for a polling place in South Plainfield, was presented to the Piscataway township committee yesterday. The township has but one polling place, at New Market, and it claimed that a much larger vote could be brought out at elections if the voters did not all have to go to New Market to cast their ballots. The only opposition to a local polling place comes from those township residents who live in or near Lincoln, they desiring one nearer Lincoln.

In observance of the week of prayer a special prayer meeting will be held at the Baptist church, this evening and Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the church lecture-room.

The Christian Endeavor Society, of the Baptist church, held a business meeting last evening. No important business was transacted.

—The large heron presented to the Warren Engine Company by Chief J. J. Stahl, of the borough fire department, was shot last week at Washingtonville by a man named Strin.

Some Chatty Gossip in the Field of Sports

"What's the very latest book of popular fiction?" asked one of the best known horse owners in the country of a bookseller recently. "I must name a lot of yearlings that I will enter in next year's two - year - old events, and I find that nearly every conceivable avenue of research for good names has been traversed by others. The registry of the Jockey club contains the names of almost everything but an undiscovered and of course unnamed comet."

Literary Names for Equine Heroes.

On the testimony of the Keenes, Morrises, Belmonts, Whitneys, etc., it is said that the selection of names for young race horses has become a task as great as the successful study of the stock market. "What's in a name?" is given great force in the thoroughbred world. The euphonious name made up of a combination of the letters of the names of sires and dams invariably is the refuge of those who have sought in vain in the realm of literature, science and the arts for names that the turf authorities will accept for thoroughbreds. It was but a short time ago that Mrs. A. H. Morris, who used to give names to the famous "all scarlet stable," departed from all precedents and chose one-syllable words for all names. It need surprise no follower of racing if, when he reads the nominations for the great stakes of 1902, he sees such names as the Crisis, Virginia, Eliphalet, Lazarre, Helmet of Navarre, Tolstoi, Thompson-Seton, Calumet K., Kim, Right of Way, D'ri, etc.

While on the subject of names, the funniest thing in the turf world this year undoubtedly was the trip of Andy Hamilton, the "colored Archer," to Russia, where the celebrated jockey rode for some of the best known nobles of Moscovy. For six weeks he was attended in a Moscow hospital by the czar's own medical adviser and recovered from a severe injury gained by a fall at the Moscow race track. But that was not funny. Hamilton said he rode for a Russian Prince "Tchcoptchylofski," or some such name. "I thought the world's supply of vowels done was turned loose over thar," said Hamilton upon his arrival from his Russian trip. "Bless my soul, if I was to 'tempt to tell you the names of those Russian hosses I'd need the library of Tolstoi. Mighty queer it was to heah a Russian noble tellin' me to ride 'Obdjetcheff,' or some such hoss. I jes' watched his lips move, guessed what he meant and took out the right hoss. How'd I guess the animal? Truth is, a little stable boy did it for me. One day after I was hurt, Marty Bergen (you remember Marty, who rode the mighty Salvator when the chestnut hung up the mile record at Monmouth) began to ride for Prince Plenty of Vowels. There wase 23 horses in the race, and their combined names would reach about a mile if set up in type. Just think of Bergen, the former hero of many a stake in the east, riding for a man whose name he could not pronounce, piloting a hoss with an almost unpronounceable name and up against a starter who wielded a long knout and whose patriarchal beard made him look like a moujik. Bergen wanted to make a good impression and he jockeyed to get a flyin' start. Of course the Russian starter opened up on Bergen. After the race Marty told us he knew the starter was Old Man Caldwell, the former highest salaried starter in America. 'Can't fool me with all those jaybreak yelis,' said Marty. 'That fellow is the same old Caldwell who used to swear at us jockeys at Guttenberg. I'd know him anywhere, even with long whiskers.' Oh, I had a great time in Russia. It's a good thing the papers there don't print the form cards of races as they do in America. The printers would run out of sorts in type setting hoss names."

Alvin C. Kraenzlein, who is held by many to be the greatest all-around athlete in America, recently told me in unequivocal terms that he was no longer a candidate for competition and that he would not appear in the Olympian games. But the influence of this great athlete in the world of intercollegiate athletics will not down. If not actually hurling his well-knit form through the air in the broad jump or going over hurdles it is safe to say that the American college men who will compete will be thinking of Kraenzlein when straining every nerve for the capture of the laurel wreath and bronze medal.

Kraenzlein Learning to Jump.

Alvin commends athletics to all students. Certainly he has made a grand record in two universities as a student as well as commanding attention as an athlete. In the Paris Olympian games Kraenzlein, wearing the red and blue of the University of Pennsylvania, carried off more records than any other man from 14 countries represented. His college dean once told him that the reason so many college graduates made a failure in practical life was that they knew nothing outside of books. Athletics never divide energies, Kraenzlein holds; they multiply them. "I could do more work and better work while training than at any other time in the term" is his positive statement. As to young men carried away by an excess of enthusiasm for athletics, they are in the minority compared to students carried away by other phases of life not half so worthy. All of his faculty at Wisconsin and Penn. thoroughly believed that athletics was a healthy adjunct of 'varsity life. To-day Kraenzlein is the greatest living example of the strenuous athlete and finished scholar. He took his first hurdle over a coal bin in the basement of the East Side high school in Milwaukee. He has hurdled all difficulties in university life since then and is now ready at any time to give a college student gratuitous instructions on how to combine mental and physical training.

A small coterie of men prominent in the billiard world will attempt, some time within a few weeks, to compel the public to look to the three-cushion carom billiard game for future championships. This, at first blush, may seem almost an impossibility. But since the 18-inch one-shot-in balkline championship just decided in New York, an abundance of evidence has come to light substantiating this declaration.

King Balk Line Is Dead.

"There are but two or three great 18-inch balk line players in this country" is the argument of this group of manufacturers. "Why should we continue to keep them on the pay roll and pay out big money each time we wish a championship when the country is full of devotees of the three-cushion style of play? The country took to bowling because anybody may play the game. Our contention is that three-cushion billiards is easy and the public is ready to adopt it as the popular game. It is pyrotechnical and there are hundreds of good players where there are but few experts at balk line. We will declare that three-cushion billiards is to be the championship game, and there will be no end to the state, municipal and sectional championships. When you get right down to 'bed rock, we and we alone, are the people who are paying to keep 18-inch balk line at the head of the procession. We are through. There will be no more great 18-inch balk line championship tourneys!"

If you play billiads, take the prognostication of the billiard authority under advisement, and when satisfied that the trend is toward the angle style of the game, practice it. While you may not be able to make a run of 20 at 18-inch balk line, you may rest assured that conscientious work with the cue in practice at three cushions sometimes may be rewarded by a run of eight or more at angle billiards.

Back to the starting point in his real baseball career goes Charles "Kid" Nichols, the veteran pitcher of the Boston National league team, by his determination to take his release from the Hub management and become a magnate and player in the Kansas City club of the Western league. Thirteen years ago this great ball player was the hero of the hour in the city by the Kaw. But of more importance to fans than his apparent retrograding—which really is "looking forward" instead of "backward"—is the change in a veteran team that "Kid" Nichols' absence will bring about. Herman Long, the sensational shortstop, and Robert Lincoln Lowe, the famous second baseman, served the same long period with the Boston club. Long says he will remain with Soden's club next season.

"Kid" Nichols in the Box.

Lincoln, in many respects, is one of the best-known ball players in the country. Going from the famous Blues after the season of 1888, he became the great twirler for Omaha the next year. With Frank Selee, the manager, he went to Boston the following year, and pennants came easy to Boston with Nichols to go in at vital points and clinch games. Fate seems to act as readily upon important baseball combinations as does advancing age. Selee will manage Chicago next year, while Nichols will try his hand at managing, owning and pitching in Kansas City. The baseball players know how valuable a twirler Nichols has been to Boston. Yet none will quite agree upon a description of his most effective twirling. "He knows every player and just how to fool him," is the general way of putting it.

Dear Sirs—Two years ago I had very bad corns and callouses on my feet, I went to a chiropodist and paid him $5.75 for taking them off. In less than a month they were back again. I then tried your CORN CURE and used only three bottles, costing 45c, and am happy to say it has taken them off completely. They have not troubled me now for over a year. I consider your HEPBURN'S CORN CURE the best I have ever used.—

When A Woman Calls

By MAUD ROBINSON

"Look at that list!" Polly Benedict heaved a huge sigh and let herself fall back lazily among the cushions of her divan. The slip of paper she handed me was filled with names and bore the legend, "People I must call upon."

"Why didn't you make some of those calls today? It would have left you more time at the end of the week," I began.

Polly glanced at me scornfully. "What! On this horrid, cold, gray day?" she cried. "No, indeed, child. I'm not such an idiot. They'll all be at home. Tomorrow, if it's particularly pleasant and attractive out of doors, I shall start out in a hansom with about a bushel of cards. If I have the luck I expect, not more than three of those twenty people will be in, and I shall get through with every call on the list. Twenty calls in one afternoon—that won't be bad either!" Polly commented softly to herself. "I think I shall have broken the record."

"Then there's a record for making calls as well as for everything else?" I asked.

"Certainly," she returned. "Flossie Van Tyne is ahead just now. She made nineteen calls in an afternoon. But it wasn't fair. She simply sent around the empty victoria and had the footman leave cards. Now, she should have gone in person and taken her chances of finding people in."

"It is rather like a game," I admitted.

"Yes, only some people play it so badly," Polly went on. "Last Wednesday, for instance, Lucy Bennet came to call, and a little while afterward that nice boy Phil Arkwright dropped in. Now, any girl with the smallest particle of sense would have left with In five minutes. Not a bit of it! She stayed on and on, gabbing foolishly and trying to make herself interesting until we both thought we would go wild. Catch me staying after a man comes to call on my hostess! There are certain unforgivable social sins, and that is one of them."

SHE STAYED ON AND ON.

"It's no worse than for the same woman to come every week on your reception day just for the purpose of seeing how many people you have"—

"And of eating your refreshments," Polly put in.

"That's so. I positively have to hide the dish of candied violets every time old Mrs. Jones calls. She scoops them up by the handful."

"Ought you to call first on Bessie Jones and then on Phyllis Carleton?"

"Yes, they are both social climbers, and at the house of one you will be informed pretty accurately about the mishaps of the other. It's as good as a comedy to hear the two versions."

"Doesn't it make you furious when a fat woman comes to call and after coolly looking about her at your substantial furniture she deliberately plants herself in your littlest gilt chair?"

"And every time she moves you stop in the middle of what you are saying and a cold chill creeps down your spine."

"Then there's the woman who keeps saying, 'Now, I really must go,' when your not keeping her at all"—

"And then when she does leave the room she keeps talking over her shoulder and repeating, 'Well, goodby!'"

"Speaking of sending the empty victoria, what do you think of the cool way many society people have of sitting in their victorias outside the door and making the footman run up the steps with cards without even inquiring whether the people called upon are at home?"

"Oh, it's plain that we all find calls a bore!"

"Then why, for goodness' sake, do we make them?" I ventured.

But Polly gave a superior smile. "Because every woman who respects herself must have a long visiting list," she remarked sagely.

And I found this bit of truly feminine logic unanswerable.

My Strangest Case

BY GUY BOOTHBY.

Author of "DR. NIKOLA," "THE BEAUTIFUL WHITE DEVIL," "PHAROS, THE EGYPTIAN," Etc.

[Copyrighted, 1901, by Ward, Lock & Co.]

Grantham was too wise to carry the argument any further. He knew that when Handiman was in his present humor the best thing to do was to leave him alone in it. He accordingly returned to the hut where the two men were domiciled, and attended to their comfort, as far as lay in his power. His heart had been touched by their misery. He did not give as a reason for the trouble he took the fact that the face of the elder man reminded him of his own venerable father, the worthy old Somersetshire vicar; it was a fact, nevertheless. For a week the unfortunate couple were domiciled at the ford, and during that time Grantham attended to their wants with the assiduity of a blood relation. Meanwhile Handiman scoffed and bade him take heed for the valuables, lest, his new-found friends should appropriate them. He did not believe in honest gratitude, he declared, particularly where homeless wanderers in the Burmese jungle were concerned. At last, however, they were so far recovered as to be able to proceed on their way once more.

"We have to thank you for our lives, sir," said Kitwater to Grantham, when the time came for them to say good-by to the ford. "Had it not been for you we would probably be dead men now. I don't know whether we shall ever be able to repay your kindness, that is with Allah, but if the opportunity should ever arise you may be sure we will not neglect it. Whatever we may be now, you may take it that we were gentlemen once. There's just one favor I should like to ask of you, sir, before we part!"

"What is it?" Grantham inquired.

"I want you, sir, to give me a letter of introduction to the gentleman in your regiment who looked after the stranger you told me of, when he came here out of China. I've got a sort of notion in my head that even if he is not our friend, that is to say the man we are searching for, he may happen to know something of him."

"I will give you the letter with pleasure," Grantham replied. "I am sure Gregory will be only too pleased to help you as far as lies in his power."

The letter was accordingly written and handed to Kitwater, who stowed it away in his pocket as if it were a priceless possession. Then, when they had bade their protector farewell, they in their turn set off along the track that Hayle had followed two months before, and in due course arrived at Bhamo. Here they presented the letter they had obtained to Capt. Charles Pauncefort Gregory, who, as may be supposed, received it with manifest astonishment.

"Well," said he, "of all the stories I have heard since I have been in the east, this is the most extraordinary. I thought that other chap was about as unfortunate a beggar as could well be, but you beat him hollow at every turn. Now, look here, before I go any further, I must have my friend with me. He is the man who discovered the other chap, and I'm sure he would like to hear your story."

Dempsey was accordingly summoned, and his wonderment was as great as his friend's had been.

"Now," said Gregory, when Dempsey had been made familiar with the other's story, "what is it you want to know about the man we picked up? Ask your questions, and we'll do the best we can to answer them."

In reply to Kitwater's questions, Gregory and Dempsey described, as far as they were able, the appearance of the man whom they had helped. The schedule was in a great measure satisfactory, but not altogether. There were so many English in Burmah who were tall, and who had dark eyes and broad shoulders. Little Codd leant towards his companion, and, taking his hand, made some signs upon it.

"That's so, my little man," said Kirtwater, nodding his head approvingly. "You've hit the nail on the head." Then, turning to Gregory, he continued: "Perhaps, sir, you don't happen to remember whether he had any particular mark upon either of his wrists?"

Gregory replied that he had not noticed anything extraordinary, but Dempsey was by no means so forgetful.

"Of course he had," he answered. "I remember noticing it for the first time when I pulled him out of the ford and afterwards when he was in bed. An inch or so above his left wrist he had a tattooed snake swallowing his own tail. It was done in blue and red ink, and was as nice a piece of work as ever I have seen."

"I thank you, sir," Kitwater replied, "you've hit it exactly. By the living thunder he's our man, after all. Heaven bless you for the news you have given us. It puts new life into me. We'll find him yet, Coddy, my boy. I thank you, sir, again and again."

He held out his hand, which Dempsey felt constrained to shake. The man was trembling with excitement.

"I tell you, sir," he continued, "that you don't know how we loved that man. If it takes the whole of our lives, and if we have to tramp the whole world over to do it, we'll find him yet!"

"And if I'm not mistaken, it will be a bad day for him when you do find him," put in Gregory, who had been an observant spectator of the scene. "Why should you hate him so?"

ON A SUNDAY IN THE INDIAN OCEAN KITWATER HELD A SERVICE ON THE DECK.

"How do you know that we do hate him?" Kitwater asked, turning his sightless face in the direction whence the other's voice proceeded. "Hate him, why should we hate him? We have no grudge against him, Coddy, my boy, have we?"

Mr. Codd shook his head gravely. No! they certainly had no grudge. Nothing more was to be gleaned from them. Whatever their connection with George Bertram or Gideon Hayle may have been, they were not going to commit themselves. When they had inquired as to his movements after leaving Bhamo, they dropped the subject altogether, and, thanking the officers for the courtesy shown them, withdrew.

Their manifest destitution, and the misery they had suffered, had touched the kindly white residents of that far off place, and a subscription was raised for them, resulting in the collection of an amount sufficient to enable them to reach Rangoon in comparative comfort. When they arrived at that well-known seaport, they visited the residence of a person with whom it was plain they were well acquainted. The interview was presumably satisfactory on both sides, for when they left the house Kitwater squeezed Codd's hand, saying as he did so:

"We'll have him yet, Coddy, my boy, mark my words, we'll have him yet. He left in the Jemadar, and he thinks we are lying dead in the jungle at this moment. It's scarcely his fault that we are not, is it? But when we get hold of him, we'll — well, we'll let him see what we can do, won't we, old boy? He stole the treasure and sneaked away, abandoning us to our fate. In consequence I shall never see the light again; and you'll never speak to mortal man. We've Mr. Gideon Hayle to thank for that, and if we have to tramp round the world to do it, if we have to hunt for him in every country on the face of the earth, we'll repay the debt we owe him."

Mr. Codd's bright little eyes twinkled in reply. Then they shook hands solemnly together. It would certainly prove a bad day for Gideon Hayle should he ever have the ill-luck to fall into their hands.

THEATRICAL STARS HAVE BEEN CLIMBERS

The Leaders Have Not Bounded Into Fame Without Great Effort on Their Part.

THE last few weeks money has been going for Christmas presents instead of for theater tickets, and right glad beats the heart of the theatrical manager that the 25th of December is over with for this year. As far as financial returns are concerned, the theaters the fortnight preceding Christmas might as well as not be closed.

But one must keep one's company together, and make a pretense that all is well; though stars of brilliant light shed their radiance on rows of empty seats, the funny man has but few souls to move to laughter, the song and dance folk do their turn before a disheartening number of vacant chairs.

Even the famous English artists, Irving and Terry, felt the tightened purse-strings to some degree during their late Chicago engagement, but there has been in consequence no diminution of effort on the part of these artists. Irving showed wonderful vitality and versatility in his work in the windy city, one day appearing in no less than four different roles, and no one of them an easy role. But Irving has ever been an indefatigable worker, and is yet in the possession of an amount of energy and vim that many a younger man might envy. For 35 years Mr. Irving has been prominently before the London public, and in that period has shown what can be accomplished by genius when closely allied to unremitting industry.

Julia Marlowe and E. H. Sothern have won their way step by step; nay, sometimes only by half-steps. No meteoric flight has been theirs, though all well-dowered at birth with good wit and fair looks. Eternal pegging away at the technique of their art, eternal study and devotion to their aim, has been their experience. But now they stand well up that toilsome ladder of fame and can look back a long ways to the bottom rung whence they started.

Julia Marlowe can point to no one morning when she woke and found herself become famous over night. Repeated failures tried her mettle well before she attained general favor, and more than once were the discouragements such they well-nigh overwhelmed the talented girl.

But Miss Marlowe was fortunate in the possession of a friend, an actress named Ada Dow; one that was also her sternest critic and exacting teacher. Miss Dow, believing the girl had a future before her, determined to fitly prepare her for its requirements. Four years she kept her in seclusion and at hard study. In the morning the pupil was at work learning a part, and in the afternoon had to undergo the trying experience of acting the part before her unrelenting critic.

Theun, after all this serious preparation, all this arduous training, the actress went forth to a public that was worse than critical, one utterly indifferent. If Miss Marlowe had not been wholly devoted to her art, this reception would have destroyed her faith in hr teacher, her past meritorious efforts, in all honest work; but she possessed the undaunted soul of the artist, whose sublime belief in herself is the last part of him that dies, and struggled on. In 1887 her Parthenia in "Ingomar" met with considerable success. In Shakespearean roles she afterwards made a reputation, her Rosalind in "As You Like It" being very generally applauded, and also her conception of Imogen in "Cymbeline." New York, however, refused for years to acknowledge her superiority, but at last, in 1898, the metropolis paid her homage when she presented a play from the German, "The Countess Valeska." Her more recent successes have been in "Barbara Frietchie" and "When Knighthood Was In Flower," in the latter making her greatest hit.

Miss Marlowe has had to pay for her public triumphs the high price of domestic infelicity, the cause of separation from her husband, Mr. Robert Tabor, being assigned as jealousy on his part of her success on the stage.

Sothern came of stage folk, his father being an actor of note. But the father did not wish the son to follow the theatrical profession, and set him to study in an art school in London. The son, however, had the stage fever, and at 19 began, in a very small way, his stage career. In England and America he fought his way; engaged in what seemed a losing fight, sometimes so poor he actually went about hungry. At the end of a nine years' struggle as an obscure actor, he began to see glimmerings of better things, and in 1888 made a decided hit with "Lord Chumley."

In "The Three Musketeers" his success was phenomenal, and he became the swashbuckling hero we generally regard him as—although his last year's fine production of "Hamlet" has given us a quite different idea of Mr. Sothern's powers, even the veteran critics lauding him in the portrayal of the melancholy Dane. This year Mr. Sothern is successfully presenting Justin Huntley McCarthy's "If I Were King," with Miss Cecilia Loftus as his leading lady.

AMELIA BINGHAM.

After speaking of people that have climbed, thought comes to mind of the play Miss Amelia Bingham has on the road this season, "The Climbers." The play is not a pleasant one, dealing as it does with people that are bending every energy to climb, not to exalted place in any legitimate profession, but into a "four-hundred set." It is very up-to-date, and is said to represent a phase of society actually in existence, but we repeat it is a morbid, unwholesome affair.

A vain and aspiring widow of humble origin, who has succeeded in marrying into fashionable society, puts forth all her endeavors to gain social recognition. One daughter sympathizes with her mother in her social aspirations and aids her in her strivings to gain entrance to upper tendom. Miss Bingham plays the part of another daughter, Mrs. Sterling, a noble woman married to a moral coward. Her husband, who has become entangled in Wall street dealings, appropriates what funds he can lay his hands on; first those of his family and then those of his clients. His wife, assisted by Edward Warden, a friend of the family, makes heroic efforts to save him. Mrs. Sterling and Warden are thrown much together, and fall in love with each other; but Mrs. Sterling will not give way to weakness, and, though the play is supposedly a picture of modern society, we are spared a scandal.

The Climbers," which opens with a funeral scene and closes with a suicide, is most decidedly not a cheerful play. The reason it has drawn such large crowds is not because of its merits, but is due largely to the fact that Mrs. Bingham is such a finished actress, and also because she has grouped about her such an array of talent. Miss Bingham is not only a good actress, but is also a good manager, choosing a strong cast to support her rather than a weak one to serve as background for her shining. Miss Bingham, like Mrs. Fiske and Miss Crossman, travels independently, is not under the wing of the theatrical trust.

GOLF.

The annual meeting of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will be held in February, when many matters of importance will be considered. It is expected that there will be a discussion regarding tennis, which is to occupy a portion of the schedule for next season.

As regards the outlook for golf among the college teams next season, it is of interest to know that numbered among the best players are two Plainfield young men, F. O. Reinhart and J. Whitney Baker, of Princeton. Much has been said about the strength of Yale and Harvard, but the chances are that Princeton will be able to surprise the New England experts in coming intercollegiate competitions. F. O. Reinhart, '05, has been playing the most brilliant as well as the steadiest golf throughout the fall, as shown by his winning the championship tournament and all his subsequent matches. He gives promise of being a strong competitor for the intercollegiate championship in the spring. J. W. Baker, '04, is playing a very strong game. His improvement over last year's work is remarkable, and he gives promise of becoming one of the best golfers in college. Considering these two members, as well as the other golfers, the material is excellent and should develop into the strongest team which has represented Princeton up to this time.

BASKET BALL.

The Warren A. C., of Jersey City, is scheduled to play the local Y. M. C. A. basket ball team, Monday evening. The Warrens are said to be expert players and a lively contest is anticipated.

INDOOR SPORTS.

The women's gymnasium class at the Y. M. C. A. will begin its second term tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

TORE DOWN FENCES.

Anarchistic Principles Were Tried at Raritan Yesterday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Jan. 8—Yesterday, John Yack and Joseph Brady became so anarchistic that they went to Raritan and pulled and broke up nearly sixty panels of fence along the properties of Dr. J. B. Cornell, Rager Myers and Ed. S. Tillman. Officers Holmes and Henderson arrested the men and Justice Kitchen held them for the next Grand Jury.

Sent Gift to Grand Forman.

Robert Loughlin and Oliver R. Pearson, of Columbia Lodge, Ancient Order United Workmen, paid a fraternal visit to Resolute Lodge, of Hoboken, last evening. They had a good time and the members of the lodge, not unmindful of Grand Foreman Nash, sent him a present consisting of Frankfurters, grapes, Swiss cheese sandwich and other delicacies. Mr. Nash was unable to go to Hoboken so his fellow-members remembered him.

Address on Missions.

A meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the First M. E. church was held yesterday afternoon in Vincent chapel. An address was made on the subject of general missionary work by Rev. Dr. F. S. Hoyt, of Ohio. After the society had transacted its routine business, refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Prayer Meeting Topics.

The topic for the special service to be held this evening in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church will be "Prayer for a Blameless Church." Tomorrow evening the topic will be "Prayer for a Missionary Spirit." Friday evening the Christian Endeavor Society will have charge and the topic will be "That Which Comes First.

COULDN'T FIND THE FIRE

A STILL AND BOX ALARM WERE BOTH SENT IN LAST NIGHT.

No One at Box to Tell Where Fire Was—Proved Same As the Other.

A very small fire at the home of George Belcher, of West Fifth street, late last night, assisted in causing considerable confusion to the local department.

A bed ignited from some unknown cause. On being discovered by Mrs. Belcher, fire headquarters was notified by telephone. Assistant Chief Jennings and the chemical engine responded. They were on the scene and had partially extinguished the flames when an alarm was sounded from box 35. In her excitement Mrs. Belcher had screamed fire from a window and a bicyclist passing hastened to send in an alarm. He had difficulty in getting a key and after sending in the alarm immediately left the box.

Chief Doane was at the box within a few minutes, also Assistant Chief Murray and the greater part of the apparatus but having no one to guide them did not know it was for the still alarm. Chief Driver Townley scoured the block and eventually learned it was for the Belcher house while the firemen there were getting ready to answer what they thought was a second alarm. It was then that matters were straightened out.

Chief Doane says that while the intentions of the wheelman were good, he was at fault in not remaining at the box. The Chief wishes to make it plain that it is imperative that people sending in an alarm should wait to direct the department.

The damage at the house will be about $10, covered by insurance.

MUSICAL TREAT.

To Be Given at Casino on Evening of Monday, January 13.

Under the auspices of the Congregational church choir, a musical feast will be given at the Casino, Monday evening, Jan. 13. According to the arrangements it will be "An Evening with Sidney Lanier and Edwin Markham," with Miss Harriet Ware as the principal attraction.

Miss Ware studied with European masters. Her original compositions on the piano have won the praise and admiration of the greatest music critics. Some of her works are now being sung by a leading tenor in London as well as by American artists. Last season Miss Ware played at many society musicales and her Lanier evenings have made a great hit.

Miss Ware will be assisted by others who have gained reputations in the musical world. Charles Kaiser, the tenor soloist of St. Patrick's cathedral, New York, and Miss Cora Guild, the dramatic soprano, being among the number. In addition to these will be Miss Marian Camp, contralto; Miss Edith Roberts, violinist, who is a concert pupil of Shradich; and Alfred E. Holmes. Another feature will be singing by a specially selected quartette.

EVENING WITH CARDS.

Pleasant Time Spent by Members at the Park Club.

A pleasing diversion for the members of the Park Club, last evening, was an "evening with cards," given under the direction of the entertainment committee. The affair was exceedingly informal, those present chosing the games they wished to play. There were no prizes. Among the games played were whist, hearts and euchre. There were nearly fifty members present and play was continued until 10:30 o'clock when refreshments were served.

Among the things soon to happen at the Park Club is music for dancing Saturday evening, January 18. Next Saturday evening there will be bowling between the Batchelors and Benedicts at "cocked hat." Last Saturday evening a similar bowling contest was held, when the Benedicts won. The Batchelors are confident of winning the next game.

Rare Birds These.

Warren Engine Company held its regular monthly meeting, last evening, and transacted a lot of routine business. Chief J. J. Stahl presented a handsome specimen of a heron measuring six feet, four inches from tip to tip. The bird will be stuffed and placed in the meeting room beside the big white owl given by the Red Jacket Company, of Elizabeth.

Watchung Council's Anniversary.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, will celebrate its first anniversary this evening. A banquet will be held in the Hotel Kensington on North avenue. Men high in the order from New York and this State, as well, will be among the invited guests. Covers will be laid for 125 persons and a big time is expected.

—Peter C. Blimm, of Somerset street, has taken charge of the stables at the Farmers' Hotel, on that thoroughfare.

TO PREVENT ANY MISTAKE

NEW RULING IN BOROUGH CONCERNING CHICKEN POX.

All Children in Afflicted Family Must Remain Away From School.

As a precautionary measure, no child in whose family there is a case of chicken pox will be permitted to attend the sessions of the North Plainfield public schools.

This action is taken to prevent any possible danger from a wrong diagnosis of a case of this nature. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, the school physician, has advised Superintendent Homer J. Wightman to take this step in the interest of the general health of the citizens. No fear is expressed that any physician might make this mistake, but it is pointed out that there is often danger of parents not consulting a doctor when a case breaks out.

By reason of this rule some children have been notified to stay away from school temporarily and it is the desire of the superintendent that all may be acquainted with the reason for the action.

TAKEN FROM PARENT'S CARE

ORDER FROM COURT OBTAINED BY ORGANIZED AID ASSOCIATION.

Children of Mrs. Sarah Willett Placed in Custody of Charles Place—Final Hearing.

On the petition of Rev. Alfred C. Nickerson and Dr. William H. Murray, Supreme Court Justice VanSyckel yesterday made an order of the court committing the three children of Mrs. Sarah Willett, of this city, to the care and custody of Charles Place, until the children reach the age of eighteen years respectively, or until the further orders of the court. The witnesses were Miss VanBoskerck and Maurice Higgins.

The case is the first of its kind. Craig A. Marsh was counsel for the petitioners and the Organized Aid Association and instituted the proceedings under an act of the Legislature which he drew at the request of Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert. Because of the jealousy with which the law protects the rights of parents to the custody of their children, the act provides for somewhat elaborate proceedings so as to afford all persons interested the fullest opportunity to be heard before the Chancellor, the Supreme Court, or Supreme Court justice.

In this case proceedings were begun at Trenton last November and the final hearing was held at Elizabeth yesterday. The ground of the order was that the interests of the children required that it should be granted.

NIGHT SCHOOL DISCUSSED.

Steps Being Taken Toward Its Formation at Hope Chapel.

At a meeting of the Y. M. A. of Hope chapel, held last evening, the subject of the night school was formally discussed. The members decided to prepare circular-letters at once and ask for the support of all the friends of the association. It is hoped the full corps of teachers can be obtained in the next two weeks and that studies will begin immediately after. The course will embrace minor English branches at first, but the curriculum will be added to as soon as possible.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

She had listened for an hour to an interesting talk on the needs of the Indians in Oklahoma. Just about as she was preparing to take her leave from the lecture, someone approached and inquired the subject of discussion. "Oh," said she, "Miss——has been telling us of the Indians in Yokohama."

One morning last week two of Plainfield's wealthy commuters were seated in a car on their way to New York discussing the present management of the New Jersey Central, as is quite the custom nowadays. During the course of the talk, another man, evidently an employe of the road, interrupted the conversation. Said he: "I've been on this road for ten years—"Great scott," injected one of the indignant men, "at what station did you get on, anyhow?"

A comparison of the figures of the number of corporations chartered in New Jersey for the year ending December 31, 1901, with that of 1900 for the same period, shows an immense increase of the total capitalization and of the fees collected by the State. There were filed during the entire twelve months the certificates of 2,346 large and small corporations, one-tenth being over $1,000,000 and seventy over $5,000,000. The total capitalization of the corporations was $4,773,792,000. The fees received for incorporations were $687,429.

In 1900 there was a greater number of corporations formed, but their capital stock was not as large as those of 1901. Their number was 2,605. The total capitalization was $1,350,298,485. While the number of incorporations decreased this year when compared with last year, the amount of fees that the State receives was doubled and the capitalization increased almost two-thirds.

The last two years have brought into existence 5,031 comined capitalization was $6,124,090,485. The secretary of State in two years has received $1,023,271 in fees.

LIBRARY AFFAIRS.

Considered at Meeting of Board of Library Directors.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room, was held in the library parlors, Monday evening. The business transacted was mostly of a routine nature.

On motion the Y. M. C. A. was made a sub-station of the library and the art committee was authorized to set the upper hall and one of the upper rooms of the library building in good order. The matter of purchasing books on moths and butterflies and other entomological subjects was referred to the library committee with power.

A vote of thanks was extended President Mason W. Tyler for his cash donation of $100 to the board with which eighty-six books were purchased.

Eight of the Policemen Have Just Been Vaccinated.

Fair warning is given citizens not to be playful around the right arm of the local patrolmen during the next few weeks. Eight of them underwent vaccination last evening, at the hands of Dr. Jenkins, and the remainder will receive similar treatment in a short time. The division was made to prevent a depletion of the force if any of the members were taken sick from the sore arms.

Well-Known Young Man of West End Passed Away With Typhoid Fever.

After an illness of but three weeks, Michael Owens, a well-known and promising West End young man, passed away at his his home on Lee place, last evening. Death was due to typhoid fever.

It was a particularly sad death inasmuch as the young man was just approaching his majority. Up to the time when he was first taken with the fatal illness, none had enjoyed better health than he. He was extremely fond of athletics and for several seasons past has been a valued member of baseball and football teams.

He was employed at the Pond Tool Works having completed his apprenticeship but a short time ago. He was a charter member of the local lodge of the Knights of Columbus and his is the first death it has suffered. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Owens and four brothers, Thomas, Morris, John and William, survive him.

BETTER SERVICE IS COMING SAY THE CENTRAL OFFICIALS

Delegation From the Local Board of Trade Presented Plainfield's Present Grievances to Them Yesterday.

CONFERENCE HELD IN NEW YORK.

A FEW CHANGES AT NORTH AVENUE STATION MAY BE EXPECTED VERY SOON.

Tickets Will Continue As At Present—Vice President Warren and General Passenger Agent Burt Received the Visitors—Mr. Warren Did the Talking—No West-Bound Ticket Office—Mr. Warren Favored the "White Fence"—All Plainfield's Kicks Were Outlined for Official's Benefit.

Better train service in the near future is the sole bright prospect which Plainfielders may anticipate as a result of a prolonged conference held yesterday afternoon between officials of the New Jersey Central Railroad Company and a committee of the local Board of Trade. The meeting took place in the directors' room of the company's building on Liberty street, New York, and the many grievances received a thorough airing.

Vice President Warren and General Passenger Agent Burt were the men who listened to the complaint and L. B. Woolston, Charles W. Runyon, Charles W. Eoff, and J. F. MacDonald were the delegates from the Board of Trade. In some respects the discussion was unsatisfactory. Vice President Warren showed a decided disposition to evade answering pertinent questions, but was quite anxious to hear what the general public thinks of the road. All through the conversation he made light of the items in the bill of complaint. Mr. Burt had little to say. In fact he only spoke when direct questions were put to him by members of the committee concerning the change in the rates of transportation.

One at a time all the various faults which the people have to find with the present management of the road were enumerated but as a rule no answer was made until after the committee had finished. To sum it all up in a few words, the citizens may rest assured that the company will not grant a request for a ticket office at the old station, neither will it make any changes in the prices of tickets now in use. Some improvements will be made to the old station and the unsightly condition presented by boarded up windows will be remedied.

The committee was ushered into the directors' room by a clerk, and at 3:55 o'clock Mr. Warren, followed by Mr. Burt, entered and greeted the Plainfielders. Immediately Mr. Warren unfolded a communication setting forth the complaints received from the Board of Trade and signed by its secretary, Harry C. Runyon. He at once asked for "Mr. Runyon" and Charles W. Runyon responded but explained that he was not the writer of the letter.

"Well he's the only gentleman I made an appointment with," said Mr. Warren. "Who are you, gentlemen?" he continued.

Mr. Woolston volunteered the information that he and his friends appeared on behalf of the Board of Trade, and that the secretary was unable to be present. Quickly Mr. Warren intimated that he had nothing to discuss with the committee. "What's the Board of Trade of Plainfield got to do with New Jersey Central Railroad affairs?" asked the official with an apparently surprised air.

"Why, we've got this to do with it," responded Mr. Woolston, "we're all interested in our city. If we didn't take action, who would? People come to us with complaints and we want to see Plainfield have good service."

In a polite manner, Mr. Warren stated that he thought the matter beneath the dignity of a Board of Trade. "What you are doing is hurting Plainfield more than our company could in ten years. Agitating the matter and stirring up newspaper notoriety is harmful to the city." He added that it was not his affair, but he merely took the liberty of expressing an opinion. The result was that he would consent to listen to the grievances. In a friendly spirit he explained that it was not in the jurisdiction of the board to take up the matter, for the commuters and other passengers should come direct to the company with complaints.

"If they did," retorted Mr. Woolston, "you would have to entertain the whole of Plainfield." Mr. Warren appeared to think it strange that the people should be so dissatisfied and yet not formally state their grievances in person.

Taking up the letter before mentioned, Mr. Warren read the first count, which drew attention to the unsightly appearance presented by the boarding up of one end of the old station. This he wanted explained, particularly as he suggested that it was natural for anyone to protect valuable property when stored.

"Why aren't curtains drawn down before the rough boards?" he asked. The official thought they should be, but he was informed that there were no curtains. The appearance to strangers was what the committee found fault with, and Mr. Warren agreed that there was ground for complaint in this particular matter. He professed ignorance in the matter, claiming that he had never noticed the boards. From his attitude it is safe to predict that those boards will disappear in the near future.

The second complaint was confined to an attack on the management of the passenger and freight departments. He did not read the entire sentence but broke off inquiring what the people had to do with the manner in which the company transacted its business. After a little explanation he was set right by reading the remainder of the paragraph and found that it was the service given by these departments which was brought in question. He requested full particulars.

Mr. Woolston declared that so far as he was concerned there was no fault to be found with the freight department, but he had something to say in regard to the passenger service, which he stigmatized as poor.

Mr. Eoff drew attention to the taking off of trains, especially the east bound train leaving here at 3:37 o'clock in the morning. Many persons suffered inconvenience by the withdrawal of this train he said, as it left the people without a train from 2:17 o'clock until after 5 o'clock on many occasions. The 2:17 o'clock train, said he, is generally very late and it is a hardship on the community. Other trains which are still on the time table are generally delayed. The 3:37 o'clock, he declared, gave good service because it started from Dunellen and was always on time.

Mr. Warren would not answer any question put to him by Mr. Eoff and seemed somewhat angered at the inqueries.

"Is that all, gentlemen?" said he. It was made very clear that it was not all, and each member of the committee in turn cited instances of bad service. Mr. Eoff, who was very forcible in his manner, asked why it was that when a passenger reached Jersey City a boat would leave just a few seconds before, thus delaying the man for some time. "Put yourself in the shoes of the fellow who is left at the ferry, how would you feel? That's the way to look at it," added Mr. Eoff. This was subsequently dwelt upon by Mr. Warren.

"What else have you to say?" put in Mr. Warren impatiently. Several members of the committee spoke up at once, but all gave way to Mr. Woolston. He cited the condition of the tunnel at the North Avenue station, which, he declared, is a dangerous place at night on account of its poorly lighted condition. There are but two small electric lights in that tunnel, said he. This Mr. Warren did not discuss, for he appeared anixous to hear more.

Then attention was called to the wretched condition of the pathway at night, from the intersection of Sycamore street, on East Fourth street, to the new station.

"There is not an electric light on that path and it's a dangerous place," said Mr. Woolston.

"Why don't you place lights on the path?" he responded.

"We did ask the Council to do it, but were told that there was a light on the street and that your company had changed the path and further it belonged to the company."

"Well I think it should be lighted and I will look into it," was Mr. Warren's final remark.

No sooner was this part of the argument concluded than the matter of the condition of lights at the station itself taken up. "It's as dark as a dungeon," said Mr. Woolston with emphasis. Mr. Warren thought he was exaggerating the condition, but Mr. Runyon, who had brought up the subject, declared that his fellow committeeman was not far wrong for he had witnessed the state of affairs himself.

"They turn on the lights outside the station when they see the headlight of the incoming train and turn them off just as soon as the passengers get abroad," said Mr. Runyon. The official explained that this was simply business and that all the lights could not be kept continually lighted. What Mr. Runyon objected to was the apparent meaness of the company in allowing the lights to be lit for so short a time. "You must remember the passenger who gets off as well as the one who gets on the train," said he. Continuing he said that the place was so dark that the man getting off was in danger of falling.

Mr. Warren did not think that it could be possible that the lights were lighted for so short a time, and he jotted down a few notes apparently with the intention of righting this condition of affairs.

Mr. Eoff drew attention to the fact that on the south track the ground has not been properly levelled off and a person alighting from a train was in danger of sustaining a severe fall. He cited one case where a friend of his did fall. This also was news to the Vice President and it can be taken for granted that this will be remedied.

Mr. Woolston brought up the subject of ticket offices. He declared that the public suffered much inconvenience in having to cross under the tunnel to the south side to purchase a ticket when taking a west bound train. This is especially inconvenient, he declared. He had understood that the company would place a ticket office in the north station as well. Mr. Warren made it understood that the company had made no promise in this respect and from his manner it is evident that there is no prospect whatever for the restoration of the old ticket office.

It was pointed out that the public is as badly off as in olden times in this respect and even worse. In the old ticket office there were two windows and at the beginning of each month there were two ticket agents there to avoid any inconvenient delays. It was shown that under the present condition of affairs there is but one window in the new station and that as a result people are packed thirty deep sometimes trying to obtain tickets. "If a man gets on the train without a ticket," said Mr. Eoff, "he has to bear the consequences." "Sometimes men miss their trains in this way." Several notable instances were cited, one being of a business man who missed an important engagement on this account.

Then again Mr. Eoff said that some strangers were deceived by the appearance of the old ticket stand. They would wait there, thinking the windows would be opened, and in consequence miss the train. "Well," said Mr. Warren, "I can avoid that by removing the building altogether."

Then Mr. Woolston broke in and said that he had thought it not a bad thing to do away with the old structure and have the ground for a park. "That was exactly what we were considering at one time," responded Mr. Warren. The official then gave it out that the old station would be remodelled to conform architecturally with the new station. This he said would be done by removing the second story of the structure and taking away the projecting roof.

CHANCES OF CHANGE OF MUNICIPAL OFFICES

Member of Council Declares That It Is Strictly a Business Proposition.

SAYS NO POLITICS IN IT.

HE ENUMERATES ADVANTAGES OF THE SMALLEY BUILDING.

More Room, a Proper Vault and Suitable Heating Facilities Are Named—Advantages of the Coward Building.

At present it is an open question as to whether the Common Council will remain in its present quarters or move to the Smalley building on North avenue. There is a belief, however, that a change will be made. A member of the Council, in talking with a representative for The Daily Press, informed the latter that the question has settled to a strictly business proposition. "There is not," said the member, "any sentiment or feeling in the matter against Mr. Coward. The question to be decided is whether or not it will be for the best interests of the city to move. There are many advantages in possessing modern and up-to-date quarters, such as are offered by Smalley Brothers, and besides all the city offices would be in one place and centralization is a good thing."

When the member was questioned as to the offer made by Mr. Coward, he was inclined to think favorably of it for some reasons. "There are several disadvantages, however," remarked the Councilman. "The Council Chamber is not well adapted for the use to which it is put. The acoustic properties are bad and besides in cold weather the room is not any too warm. I understand, however, that Mr. Coward intends putting all the offices in first-class condition and properly heating the same after this year.

"There is another disadvantage. That is the inability to have a suitable vault in the building for the safe keeping of the city's books, papers and maps. The Council has been informed that such a vault cannot be put in the building safely. If, on the other hand, a change is made, a large vault will be built in the Smalley building on the first floor, where all the city's possessions can be kept handily and safely."

The Councilman said that the difference between $850 and $1,000, the latter sum being asked for the rooms in the Smalley building, was not to be considered providing the advantages in favor of the change are in proportion, and he was inclined to believe that they are.

Someone has hinted that the possibility and talk of a change was due to political reasons and that the Council had practically decided to change. The representative in talking with the member already mentioned was given every assurance that if a change is made it will be purely on a business basis. He said that there is not a member in the Council who would vote away the city's money for political reasons.

"The room in the Smalley building proposed for the Council Chamber is exceptionally well adapted," remarked the Councilman, "and it seems to me to be well suited in every way for such a room. It is light and airy and while it would be cool in summer it would also be warm in winter. Those who have met for any length of time in the present rooms know how very warm they are in summer and how difficult it is to warm them in the winter."

Taking all matters into consideration, the Council will weigh each side well before a final dceision is made. Such a decision will be necessary very soon, in fact, it will probably be definitely known this month just what will be done. Mr. Coward has offered to give the Council the room now occupied by F. A. Dunham if the collector's office is given up. For this consideration a yearly rental of $850 will be charged. If Mr. Coward can by his proposed improvements convince the Council that it is to their advantage to continue in the present place, no doubt, a change will be avoided.

Well Attended.

The special services at the First Baptist church are being well attended and there is much interest. They will be continued this and tomorrow evenings.

—The regular mother's meeting is being held this afternoon at the W. C. T. U. rooms.

TO DELIVER LECTURE ON BOER QUESTION

Hercules D. Viljoen is in Plainfield in the Interest of the Boers.

IS A REMARKABLE MAN.

SOMETHING ABOUT HIS EVENTFUL CAREER IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Captured by British and Sentenced to be Shot, But Was Rescued Just in Time—He Will Speak Here.

One of the most energetic and typical representatives in this country of the Boers still fighting in South Africa, arrived in Plainfield, yesterday, and will make his headquarters at the Hotel Kensington for a week. He is Hercules D. Viljoen, former field cornet of the Boer army, and has been appointed to lecture and collect money for his compatriots. It is for this purpose that he came to this city

Mr. Viljoen was born in Cape Colony and lived there until the beginning of the war, and was, consequently, a British subject, but is now considered a rebel against the British crown. He is the son of Rev. P. J. Viljoen and was educated at Stellenbosch, where he passed his examinations in 1880. He is an experienced farmer and has also been engaged in mining operations.

In 1882 when the Africander Bond was formed he became a member and took an active part in politics. He was once a candidate for Parliament. When General Olivier entered Cape Colony in September 1889, Mr. Viljoen was elected Field Cornet of Aliwal North and fought at the battle of Stormberg Junction and participated in various other engagements against the British.

In the month of March when General Olivier received orders to retreat to Zandriver in the Orange Free State, Mr. Viljoen, while trying to escort his family to a place of safety, was cut off from the Burgher forces and was captured by the British. He was imprisoned for high treason and was sentenced to be shot at a place called Wepener. He was confined for ten weary days in a dungeon, expecting death, when he was rescued by General DeWet and his forces. President Steyn advised him to leave the country in September 1900, as a price was placed on his head by the British, and if captured he would be shot on sight.

He did so and has been touring the United States since. In this way he has been still serving his country, the proceeds from his lectures amounting to a considerable sum. He is over six feet tall, well-built, and speaks with a degree of earnestness that holds close attention.

Mr. Viljoen talks freely on the Boer question and declares he is fully convinced the English can never conquer his people. Day by day, the Cape Colonists are joining the Boer ranks and the great danger to England, he says, is not that she will fail to conquer the Transvaal and the Free State, but that the two republics will annex Cape Colony and a united South Africa will be formed. England, he says, is in a precarious condition in South Africa.

UNION SERVICE.

Tomorrow evening there will be a union Sunday-school service at Monroe Avenue church. After the meeting, last evening, there was a meeting of the official board of the church, when matters pertaining to the affairs of the church for the coming year were discussed.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HELD LARGE BANQUET

Given in Honor of First Anniversary of Watchung Council of This City.

SPEECHES WERE MADE.

MAYOR AND OTHER DISTINGUISHED GUESTS WERE PRESENT.

M. J. Cashin Served as Toastmaster—The Other Speakers—An Elaborate Menu Was Enjoyed by Over a Hundred.

The first anniversary of Watchung Council, No. 552, Knights of Columbus, of this city, was observed in a fitting manner, last evening. A banquet, to which there were many friends bidden, was held in the dining hall of the Hotel Kensington. Over 100 knights and their friends attended the affair, which proved a big success.

The menu was particularly elaborate and everyone did it full justice. As soon as the banqueters had appeased their appetites, formal speechmaking began. Rev. Father P. E. Smyth, rector of St. Joseph's church, Jersey City, the chaplain of the council, invoked the Divine blessing. Grand Knight John A. O'Keefe made a short address of welcome, introducing the toastmaster, Chancellor M. J. Cashin. Mr. Cashin's introduction of the speakers of the evening were all in a happy vein. District Deputy John G. Coyle, of New York, made a ringing address.

Mayor O. L. Jenkins responded to the toast "Our City," and incidently he scored the New Jersey Central Railroad and the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company for the poor service rendered the public. William Holmes sang several songs and Past State Deputy James Byrnes, of East Orange, made a rattling address. A storm of applause greeted City Judge William N. Runyon, who made a speech eulogizing the aims of the order. Supreme Grand Knight Edward L. Hearn, of Boston, Mass., took the crowd by storm with his eloquent remarks. Some witty remarks were made by Charles Ward and Joseph F. O'Keefe. William J. O'Keefe spoke on "The Ladies."

Informal remarks were also made by Rev. Father Andrew M. Egan, rector of St. Mary's church, Rev. Father William Miller, rector of St. Joseph's church, City Clerk James T. MacMurray, Councilman James F. Buckle and John H. Hillman. James Stewart and William N. Runyon sang.

One of the dishes at the banquet was a sixty-eight-pound striped bass, furnished by Foss & Jeter.

Among those present at the affair were Grand Knight William Harkins, of New Brunswick, District Deputy White, of Perth Amboy, District Deputy McNamee, of Atlantic City, President of Common Council B. Frank Coriell, Councilman Frank De W. Randolph, Chas. Dunham, Dr. P. J. Zeglio, Rev. Father McGeary, curate of St. Patrick's church, Jersey City, and Rev. Father Morrison, of New Brunswick.

CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

Attorney J. P. D. Kirch Was Arrested at Elizabeth and Held on Bail.

SAYS HE IS INNOCENT.

Complainant is Milvin H. Cleaves, of North Plainfield—His Story of Alleged Trouble—Kirch Tells His Side of the Story —A General Surprise.

Like a thunder clap from a clear sky the news of the arrest of J. P. D. Kirch, of Somerset street, astonished and shocked his many friends in this city and in the borough. He was arrested at Elizabeth, yesterday afternoon, on a charge of embezzlement preferred against him by Milvin H. Cleaves, of North Plainfield, and was subsequently released on bail after appearing before Justice A. P. Sutphen, of Somerville.

The charge against him is emphatically denied by the defendant, who was interviewed by a Daily Press reporter today. Assistant Prosecutor Fred. Pope, who was also seen by the reporter last night, declines to give out any facts, but expresses the hope that the defendant will be able to prove his innocence.

Substantially the story told by Mr. Cleaves, who made the affidavit, is that in the fall of 1899, he negotiated a loan for the purpose of satisfying a mortgage on his property in the borough. The sum borrowed was $1,075 and Charles G. Ross of Berckman street, was the lender. This sum was placed in the hands of Kirch with the express intention, Mr. Cleaves states, of discharging the obligation on the mortgage.

The mortgage was held by the Citizens' Loan Asociation, of Somerville, and Mr. Cleaves dismissed the matter from his mind. Subsequently he received a notice from the mortgagee of the arrears of dues, and as the story runs, he immediately consulted Kirch. He was told that there must be some mistake. A short time ago he received another notice from the association to the same effect and he became suspicious. Finally the matter was placed in the hands of an attorney, and Kirch's arrest followed.

At the time of his being taken into custody, Mr. Kirch was in the county clerk's office at Elizabeth. Prosecutor's Detective Totten, of Somerville, informed him of the contents of the warrant, and the two went immediately before Police Justice Mahon, who had indorsed the warrant, and subsequently left for Somerville. Mr. Kirch was taken at once before Justice Sutphen and after a consultation with Assistant Prosecutor Pope, who could not be present, bail was fixed at $2,000. Later he was released, John D. Kirch, his father, who resides on Duer street, going on the bond.

The arrest caused much surprise in this vicintiy. Mr. Kirch, while much broken up over the proceedings, is sanguine that he can explain everything satisfactorily. When seen by The Daily Press reporter, he was averse to making any statement, saying that the affair would take a different shape when he explained his side.

"Checks, properly endorsed and sent through the bank, don't lie," said he. "I have them all and as soon as I can go over them will be in a position to show that the charge is utterly false. You see, it was this way. In the fall of 1899, I got this money, $1,075, and it was given for the purpose of satisfying that mortgage. Before that could be done, foreclosure proceedings were threatened on a mortgage against a farm owned by Mr. Cleave, in Warren township. With his consent, I paid $400 to stop the foreclosure. The mortgage on the farm was for $1,500 and it was to be paid in installments of $100 per annum. John Renneman, the mortgagee of the farm property, wanted $500 to settle the proceedings, but I induced him to accept $400. I didn't want to see Mr. Creave lose the farm.

"Subsequently I continued to pay the dues on the mortgage against the borough property. Of course, Mr. Cleaves, knew what I was doing because he was aware that the balance remaining in my hands would not satisfy the mortgage originally intended to be paid. As I say, I can account for all the money and things

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

Plainfield narrowly missed a case of small-pox a few days ago and those acquainted with the facts are very thankful. A woman living in New York expected to come to Plainfield for a time, but at the last minute changed her plans and went to Philadelphia instead. The day after arriving in the Quaker City she was taken down ill with the small-pox.

A short time ago two Plainfielders were discussing the management of the New Jersey Central Railroad. "Why," said one, "you don't take into account that the company sustains heavy losses. For instances just the other day a train ran down and killed a prominent man, who was crossing the track." "Oh," interjected the other, "wonder where they borrowed the engine that traveled that fast?"

A somewhat peculiar coincidence is recalled in connection with the death of John D. Titsworth. He as well as his two daughters, Florence and Edith, all died on Saturday. When Miss Edith Titsworth was taken ill she was at the home of Miss Elsie Smith, on Westervelt avenue, where there was a social gathering of young people. She was taken with a fainting spell and it was Fred Hillmann, who was with Mr. Titsworth when he died, that caught and held her when she fell in a faint.

A woman, who had made a cast-iron rule that she would buy nothing of agents at the door, had an amusing experience a short time ago. A persistent agent had effected his entrance into her parlor and began to draw the small invention he had for sale from his satchel, when the woman, expecting to meet a friend, entered the door. Realizing the situation at once she began, "I never buy anything of agents, but——I want that," she concluded, as the agent held up a small mechanical invention she had made fruitless efforts to buy in the shops. The triumphant agent scored one that time.

There is probably no organization in the city that can claim as many relics as the Exempt Firemen's Association. The rooms in which the members meet is filled with these valuable things from Plainfield's first fire bell to the finest fire trumpet ever made. This trumpet is of silver and handsomely engraved. It was presented to Auguste Saltzman, who in turn presented it to the association. All of the relics have been presented to the association and concerning each there is a history that every old fireman loves to relate. It is the hope of every member of the association that some day a suitable building will be erected for the safe and proper keeping of these valued things.

Child Worth Millions.

"My child is worth millions to me," says Mrs. Mary Bird, of Harrisburg, Pa., "yet I would have lost her by croup had I not purchased a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure." One Minute Cough Cure is sure cure for coughs, croup and throat and lung troubles. An absolutely safe cough cure which acts immediately. The youngest child can take it with entire safety. The little ones like the taste and remember how often it helped them. Every family should have a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure handy. At this season especially it may be needed suddenly. L. W. A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

The finest grades of linen, not the kind you lay upon that you write upon, can be had at Harper's Bazaar, on Park avenue. The line of stationery there is the most complete in the city.

The most attractive cigar store in Union county is Dobbins', on North near Park avenue. It is a museum of rare stuffed birds. It costs you nothing to view the fine specimens there on exhibition.

John G. Bantle, the Watchung avenue tailor, has not received the order of Governor-elect Murphy to make his inaugural suit, but should it be given him it is certain that the Newarker would present even a better appearance than usual.

There are many Plainfielders who, when in their youth, used to enjoy the winters skating on skates made by themselves. They were good skates, but are not to be compared with the excellent line handled by H. E. Gayle, the hardware dealer.

When you want good meats, fresh fish or game of any kind, don't go beyond Fred Endress's West Front street market. There's where you get the best of everything in that line. Low prices, courteous treatment and quick deliveries, are some of his specialties.

M. C. VanArsdale, the East Front street shoeman, wants more men to know how good, how stout, how shapely and how economical are his new shoes. They are sold under his guarantee. Also shoes and rubbers for women and misses, youths and boys.

An excellent opportunity is afforded to carry out that resolution concerning the replenishing of your household goods. I. H. Boehm, of West Front street, is going to enlarge his establishment and to do this he must get the present stock out of the way. Everything below cost.

In the matter of selecting silver or goldware it is quite necessary to be an expert. J. Hervey Doane, is such a person and his goods are as represented, the best for the least possible money. Mr. Doane is also an expert in photography and handles a complete stock of materials.

What a difference between the old days and the present time in the manufacture of clothing. In the olden time it was the homespun cloth that was used and this was expensive. Today modern methods are used and M. Weinberger shows a complete stock of the best goods at low prices.

Hodge, the Y. M. C. A. druggist, is a hustler. He has the happy faculty of being able to see what the people want and how to get it. He compounds his prescriptions from the purest materials and keeps nothing but standard medicines in stock. There are no last season's goods on his shelves.

THEATRICAL.

Mrs. Fiske is in the seventh week of "The Unwelcome Mrs. Hatch" at the Manhattan Theatre, New York, the fiftieth performance of that play taking place today. Mrs. Fiske's engagement at the Manhattan will end with this month, when she will enter upon her annual tour of a few of the larger cities. She has played at the Manhattan continuously since September to a fine patronage, and, during the rest of her engagement will continue in "The Unwelcome Mrs. Hatch," which no lover of the theatre should miss. In an unusual degree it combines comedy and serious interest, and aside from Mrs. Fiske it is interpreted by one of the best companies ever organized, including J. E. Dodson, Robert T. Haines, Max Figman, Jefferson Winter, Miss Annie Irish, Miss Eleanor Moretti, Miss Annie Ward Tiffany, Miss Rose Stuart, and Miss Emily Stevens.

PERSONAL.

James Smith, of Elmwood place, has been visiting his daughter at Orange for a time.

Collector F. H. Smith is detained at his home on Madison avenue by illness. Dr. Jenkins is in attendance.

Miss Laura Burgis, of Bordentown, is spending a week with her friend, Miss Deborah Winn, of the Jackson building.

Mrs. Kate Randolph, of Illinois, who was called to Plainfield several weeks ago by the illness and death of her mother, Mrs. Vander Weg, has returned home.

Don't Live Together.

Constipation and health never go together. DeWitt's Little Early Risers promote easy action of the bowels without distress. "I have been troubled with costiveness nine years," says J. O. Greene, Depauw, Ind. "I have tried many remedies but Little Early Risers give best results." L. W. Randolph.

KILLED IN A TUNNEL

Fifteen Dead and Thirty Hurt In New York.

A REAR END COLLISION HORROR.

The Accident Occurred on the New York Central Tracks Half a Mile From the Grand Central Station.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Latest reports regarding the terrible accident in the Park avenue tunnel of the New York Central in this city yesterday do not materially change the number of killed. Fifteen passengers were found dead in the wreck, and twice that number were seriously hurt, some of whom, it is feared, cannot recover. The death list is as follows: Alexander M. Perrin, New Rochelle; Dr. D. C. Foskett, 9 Field avenue, New Rochelle; A. E. H. Mills, twenty-one years old, New Rochelle; E. F. Walton, New Rochelle; H. G. Diamond, New Rochelle; Oscar W. Meyrowitz, optician, 104 East Twenty-third street, New York; Frank Washburn, fifty-five years old, New Rochelle; William Leys, fifty-four years old, New Rochelle; E. C. Hinsdale, thirty-five years old, New Rochelle; Theodore H. Fogardo, New Rochelle; Walter Forbes, New Rochelle; William Howard, New Rochelle; H. Franklin Crosby, New Rochelle; Charles B. Mras, forty years old, 33 Lafayette place, New Rochelle; Mrs. A. F. Howard, New Rochelle.

It was a rear end collision between a South Norwalk local that ran in over the New York, New Haven and Hartford and was halted by block signal at the southern entrance to the tunnel and a White Plains local that came by the Harlem branch of the New York Central. Most of the death, injury and damage were wrought by the engine of the White Plains train, which plunged into the rear car of the standing train. It swept away the platform and wedged its way through the floor to the middle of the car, smashing the seats and furnishings and splitting the sides as it moved forward. Its many victims were either mangled to death in the mass of wreckage carried at the pilot, crushed between boiler and car sides or scalded to death by steam which came hissing from broken steam pipes and cylinders. The engine in its final plunge of forty feet carried the rear car forward and sent twisted iron, broken timbers and splinters crashing into the coach ahead. Lights were extinguished, and the dead, injured and unharmed were left in darkness that escaping steam and smoke made more confusing. Out from the wreckage came the cries of those who still lived, and within a few minutes the work of rescue, which was marked by heroism and sacrifice, began. The noise of the impact carried warning to the street above, and alarms soon brought every available ambulance in the city, the police reserves of five precincts and the firemen.

Those of the injured in need of immediate attention were given temporary dressing by the ambulance and volunteer surgeons and then hoisted to the street above. Many of the handsome houses which line Park avenue were thrown open to the suffering, but most of the injured were hurried away to hospitals at once. The dead were also carried to the surface and taken to morgues and police stations.

Responsibility for the disaster is unfixed, but Superintendent J. H. Franklin said that as far as he had been able to discover J. M. Wisker, engineer of the White Plains train, was to blame. When the South Norwalk train was stopped, a flagman ran back into the tunnel and besides placing a torpedo on the track endeavored to flag the oncoming train. He hurled his lantern at the cab window, but the big engine never halted until it was buried in wreckage. It is not clear that the torpedo exploded or that Wisker was warned by the lantern signal. There is also a question about the propriety of the signalmen permitting the colliding train to enter the same block section with the halted train. The tunnel was beclouded with steam and smoke, and the snow which fell through the air shafts of the tunnel also aided in obscuring the view. Engineer Wisker and Fireman Christopher Flynn were placed under arrest. A signalman was also detained for a time, but was released. The heavy cost in life and the prominence of some of the persons killed or injured, coupled with the recent agitation for sweeping improvement of the tunnel, claimed general attention and aroused popular feeling.

District Attorney Jerome visited the wreck and personally examined many witnesses. He will act personally in any proceeding commenced in the name of the people. The state railway commission also announced its intention to make an investigation, and similar intent was expressed by the general officers of both the New York Central and Hudson River railroad and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

Residents of New Rochelle contributed the largest number to the casualty list because the rear car of the South Norwalk local was reserved for them and was kept locked until the train reached that place.

William Leys was general manager of B. Altman & Co. and has been prominent in commercial circles here for many years. A. N. Perrin was second vice president of the Union Bag and Paper company and was equally well known. Perrin came here recently from Chicago. H. G. Diamond, who was killed, was assistant general manager of the American Bridge company. Oscar W. Meyrowitz was an optician and secretary of the New Rochelle Yacht club, and E. F. Walton was a well known and popular broker of New York.

NEWCHWANG CLASH.

Particulars of Strife Between Russians and Americans.

SEVERAL FIGHTS, BUT NO CASUALTIES

Blundering Attempt to Arrest a Party of the Vicksburg's Men Started the Row—Minister Conger Is Trying to Settle.

PEKING, Jan. 9.—While the actual casualties during the fighting at Newchwang between American sailors belonging to the United States gunboat Vicksburg, which is wintering there, and Russian soldiers attached to the garrison of that port are trifling up to date, the matter has resulted in unpleasantly strained relations between the American, Russian and British authorities there. The Washington and St. Petersburg governments are now endeavoring to arrange matters so that there may be no further friction on the subject.

The trouble originated in the action of some sailors belonging to the British sloop of war Algerine, also in winter quarters at Newchwang, in carrying ashore six rifles for use in a theatrical performance. The Russian administration sent a force of men to arrest the British sailors. The Russians, however, by mistake, broke into a reading room where a party of the Vicksburg's men were seated and tried to arrest them. The Americans resisted, using chairs in so doing, but they were overpowered after a sharp fight and handed over to the United States consul, who sent them on board the Vicksburg. The bad feeling which arose from this incident resulted in fights whenever the American and British sailors met Russian soldiers, and the latter, not being accustomed to fist fights, were usually badly worsted. This state of affairs culminated on New Year's day in a more serious affray, and the Russian minister here, M. Paul Lessar, complained to the United States minister at this capital, Edwin H. Conger, that two members of the Vicksburg's crew had fired a revolver at an unoffending Russian soldier, wounding him in the arm.

The relations between the American and British consuls and naval commanders and the Russian administrator at Newchwang are strained, which makes a friendly settlement of the affair difficult. The administrator attempted to enforce a social code which the foreign officials refused to recognize, and consequently their relations have been limited to strictly official interviews, which have not been amiable, consisting mostly in protests against the action of the administrator and protests of the administrator against the conduct of the sailors.

The memorandum presented by the Russian minister to the United States minister liere relates to various alleged assaults committed by Americans. On one occasion three sailors attacked a sentry and owe their lives to the sentry's forbearance in not exercising his right to shoot. The administrator demanded that the United States consul try the offenders, but the commander of the Vicksburg, E. B. Barry, wrote a curt refusal.

Mr. Conger is endeavoring to restore friendly relations at Newchwang.

Actor Robson Honored.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—President Roosevelt and party occupied a box at the Columbia theater last night to witness Stuart Robson in "The Henrietta." A feature of the performance was the presentation to Mr. Robson of an exquisite floral offering from the pages of the United States senate, Mr. Robson in his youth having been a page in the senate, and the presentation of a loving cup to the veteran actor by his company in commemoration of the fact that this week was the fiftieth anniversary of the beginning of his stage career.

The farmers will not sell their wheat at any price and are determined to keep it for six weeks longer or until the prospects of the growing crop shall be better determined. Offers of 77 cents per bushel were made in vain.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 9.—The legislative committee of the good roads convention, which will be held in this city on Jan. 28 and 29, will recommend to the convention that the legislature be requested to appropriate $100,000 for good roads improvement and pass a wide tire bill.

GORMAN FOR SENATOR.

Unanimously Chosen by Maryland Senatorial Caucus.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 9.—The Hon. Arthur P. Gorman and Chairman Murray Vandiver of the Democratic state central committee were elected as the Democratic nominees for United States senator and state treasurer respectively at the Democratic caucus held last night. Senator Gorman's selection was unanimous and enthusiastic. He was nominated by Senafor Rohrback of Frederick county and seconded by Senators Bryan of Baltimore city, Peter of Howard county and Louis of Allegany county in eulogistic speeches.

Three members, Messrs. Linthicum and Shepherd of Dorchester and Shipley of Anne Arundel county, declined to vote for Mr. Vandiver. Isaac Lobe Straus of Baltimore city refused to enter the caucus. There were sixty-four members present, and as sixty-one were sufficient to elect on joint ballot the question of the next United States senator and state treasurer is regarded as settled. No other names were mentioned in the caucus.

The Republicans held their caucus in the afternoon and nominated Congressman William H. Jackson of Wicomico county for United States senator and General Thomas J. Shryock of Baltimore city for state treasurer.

LIBERTY BELL WELCOMED.

The Old Philadelphia Relic Reaches Charleston In Safety.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Jan. 9.—Charlestonians gave the Liberty bell as warm a welcome today as it has ever received in the south.

The Philadelphia escort and the bell were met at the station by the president of the exposition and the directors, Mayor Smyth and the members of the city council, the soldiers from the garrison on Sullivans island, naval reserves, United States marines from Camp Heywood at the exposition grounds, the military companies of the city, the Citadel and Porter Military academy cadets. Mayor Ashbridge and the escort of the bell from Philadelphia, in carriages, were followed by the military in the march to the exposition grounds, where the formal ceremonies of welcome took place.

Among those who spoke were Mayor Ashbridge of Philadelphia, Captain F. W. Wagner, president of the exposition; Mayor Smyth and F. G. Ravenel, a descendant of one of the South Carolina signers of the Declaration of Independence. All of the schools in the city were closed.

The Germans Delighted.

BERLIN, Jan. 9.—The German foreign office is delighted with the excellent effect produced in the United States by Emperor William's request that Miss Alice Roosevelt, daughter of President Roosevelt, christen his new yacht, now being built on Staten Island. The German people are equally pleased at the result of this request. The illustrated papers published this week certain portraits of Miss Roosevelt, and the social columns of the aristocratic journals give considerable space to a description of the Twelfth night ball given Jan. 6 in Washington by the Misses Kean of New Jersey in honor of Miss Roosevelt.

Fatal Dynamite Explosion.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 9.—The explosion of a big charge of dynamite brought death and destruction to bluestone quarries in the mountains a mile from here last evening. Three quarrymen were killed and buried deep in the great avalanche of earth that followed the explosion. Another man was hurled 150 feet through the air down the steep cliff of the quarry. He still lives. Late at night the bodies of two of the men were recovered. Search for the other will be continued.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Chairman Hopkins of the house census committee has presented the report favoring a permanent census bureau. CREDITORS LENIENT.

Seventy Per Cent Favor Time Extension For Everett-Moore Syndicate.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 9.—Seventy per cent of all the creditors of the Everett-Moore syndicate have now given their consent to the asked for extension of time. This includes both traction and telephone interests and is regarded as very encouraging. The main committee of seven has decided to divide itself into subcommittees, each of which will be allotted certain portions of the interests to investigate thoroughly, and when the work is completed the several subcommittees will then report as a committee of the whole. This work will take at least one week, perhaps two. At the completion of the investigation a general statement will be issued to the press.

Henry A. Everett will go to New York city to confer with creditors of the syndicate in that city. He hopes to secure their consent to the desired extension of time.

A statement from the bankers' committee may be given out today covering the work already done and which will include the seven or eight traction companies. Reports have also been made concerning seven of the constituent telephone companies out of the twenty forming the Federal company's system. Six of these show a surplus over fixed charges and operating expenses, the seventh being the only one not showing a surplus, and this is accounted for because of its being a new company and but recently having begun operation.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS

Private Pension Legislation Considered by Senate.

HOUSE DEBATES THE CANAL BILL.

A Strong Sentiment Develops In Favor of Considering the Recent Offer of Panama Company to Sell For $40,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—During consideration by the senate yesterday of private pension legislation some important statements were made by Mr. Gallinger, chairman of the committee on pensions, in respect to regulations adopted by the committee to govern it in consideration of private pension bills. He announced that none but absolutely meritorious cases would be presented to the senate for its consideration and the closest scrutiny would be given by the committee to every bill introduced. He said that no pension exceeding $50 a month would be recommended by the committee for the widow of a general officer and that pensions for the widows of other officers would be scaled down proportionately.

The interesting case of Dr. Lazeare, who at the instance of Johns Hopkins university and of the government went to Cuba and submitted himself to inoculation with yellow fever through mosquito bites and died from the disease thus contracted, was brought to the senate's attention by Mr. McComas, who inquired whether Dr. Lazeare's widow would be entitled to a pension. No decision was reached, but it was the opinion of Senators Gallinger and Cockrell that the case had no pensionable status.

The debate on the Nicaraguan canal bill in the house developed sentiment in favor of giving consideration to the recent offer of the Panama company to sell its franchises and property for $40,000,000, this sentiment taking the form of advocating the Morris amendment to empower the president to select the latter route if the canal commission, upon considering the company's offer, recommends it and the required concessions can be obtained from Colombia. Of sixteen members who spoke during the day nine favored the Morris amendment. It was agreed that general debate should close today at 2 o'clock, after which the bill will be open to amendment under the five minute rule. The final vote probably will be taken late today.

Gas Found Instead of Salt.

PORT HURON, Mich., Jan. 9.—Gas was struck in a well which was being bored for salt at the Cleveland and Sarnia Sawmill company's plant in Sarnia, Ont., just across the St. Clair river. It was immediately ignited by a stove in a building adjoining the well, and the company's plant and surrounding buildings are now in great danger from the flames. The machinery in the well, which was destroyed, was worth $40,000. The gas is coming from the solid rock and may burn for several weeks. The flames are shooting up fifty feet into the air.

One Too Much For Seven.

LAREDO, Tex., Jan. 9.—News reached this city of a desperate fight between Jose Garcia, a hide merchant, and several policemen at Villa Garcia, Mex. Garcia barricaded himself in his house, and when the officers attempted to arrest him he attacked them with a sword, fatally injuring three of them and making his escape by a rear entrance. Garcia is still at large.

AN EXAMPLE.

There are some who have characterized our advocacy of the general introduction of water meters as the senseless support of an impractical theory. There is evidence to be found on every side, however, that it is far from impractical. An excellent example of the efficacy of the water meters is to be found in the city of Camden.

Camden, which has a population of 78,000, controls its own water works. Water meters were installed and there was an immediate reduction in the amount of water used while the receipts to the city were increased. The burden came off those who were using but little water and went where it belonged, on the shoulders of the largest consumers. The situation there is summed up in the Camden Courier, as follows:

"Under the present management the city Water Department has improved greatly and during the past year, despite the fact that the daily pumpage has fallen off, the receipts have greatly increase, and at same time there are fewer delinquents than ever.

"The receipts for 1900 were $160,652.21. The receipts for last year were $170,375.03, making an increase in the collections last year of $9,722.82.

"The delinquents for 1900 amounted to $1,042; while last year it was only $696.

Chief Toms gives out the following fiugres showing the average daily pumpage each month during the past year:

January, 13,487,506; February, 12,465,667; March, 12,455,020; April, 12,693,526; May, 13,350,972; June, 13,349,326; July, 12,698,301; August, 12,385,691; September, 10,824,457; October, 10,807,731; November, 10,574,633; December, 11,254,135.

"For the year this is an average daily pumpage of 12,195,580 gallons compared with 14,110,915 gallons each day during 1900.

Clerk Fithian credits the increase in receipts and the decrease in pumpage to the meters that have recently been introduced."

If the reports of the Trenton newspaper correspondents are to be credited, the choice of New Jersey's next United States Senator to succeed the late William J. Sewell will be one of three men, John W. Griggs, John F. Dryden or Edward C. Stokes. There are five other candidates in line for the place but the reports are that there is little show of any of them landing the prize. All are men of large capabilities who have made successes in their particular lines of work. As to their comparative abilities for the place, opinions seem to differ. It is generally understood, however, that any of the three will make an honest and capable official. There is always the possibility of a "dark horse" in the race and there is no telling who will get the place until the ballotting is over and the Legislature has announced its choice.

The Borough Board of Education has determined to take warning from a mistake which was recently made by a Elizabeth physician. He diagnosed a case of small pox as another disease and sent the patient to the hospital. The result was that the hospital patients, attendants and all, had to be quarantined for two weeks. Small pox and chicken pox seem to be the most easily mistaken for each other and so to prevent any possible contagion, children from families where there are cases of chicken pox will have to stay from the borough public schools at present.

The Plainfield Board of Health has formally called the attention of the people of this city to the need of vaccination. While the dreaded small pox has not yet made its appearance here, there is no telling when it may come. The board is desirous of taking time by the forelock and being prepared for it. As the board includes several of Plainfield's foremost physicians in its membership, this action undoubtedly has the sanction of most if not all of the city's medical attendants.

In this day few persons would think of going into a first-class store and attempting to "beat down" prices. In many if not in most newspaper establishments, however, different advertisers pay different prices. The National Advertiser says there is hardly a newspaper in Boston in which rates are not cut and "rake-offs" allowed. The system is unfair, and must go, declares the Philadelphia Record.

School dramatics have taken a decided boom in Plainfield during the last year. The boys of Leal's School were the first to attempt them and since then the young people of the City High School have made quite a success in that direction. Both schools are arranging performances for the spring.

The week of prayer services in the evangelical churches of the city and Plainfield, this week, have been very largely attended and much interest has been shown.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

To Senator Reed, of Somerset county, belongs the credit of having first named Chancellor William J. Magie as an eminently suitable man to succeed William J. Sewell in the United States Senate. "He would be an ideal candidate," said the senator, "entirely independent of factional influences or charges of being connected with political deals. He is the most eminently fitted for the position of any man in the State. With him in the Senate New Jersey would have a representative who would compare favorably with any in that body, both intellectually and in his personality. While I have no knowledge as to whether or not he would accept it, I am sure he would have the unanimous support of the Legislature." It is assuredly true that New Jersey could not name a man more eminently fitted for the position, or one upon whom the members of the Legislature could unite with more credit to themselves and honor to the State. But the first question that arises is: Will Chancellor Magie accept the office? He has said, according to several reports, that he does not know whether he would accept or not, he had not thought of it. In the next place, would the members of the Legislature permit two United States senators to come from one county? It is hardly probable; they have not yet got far enough above sectional sentiments. Senator Reed says the Chancellor would get the unanimous vote of the Legislature, but it is doubtful if he has polled that body. Some papers are unkind enough to suggest that the tall statesman from Somerset would much appreciate an appointment to the empty vice chancellorship, but this is the suggestion of the envious. The chancellor would make an ideal United States senator, beyond all doubt.—Elizabeth Journal.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Demick, Somerville, Ind. "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." You don't live by what you eat, but by what you digest and assimilate. If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food. You don't have to diet. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST CRUELTY

S. P. C. A. HAS BEGUN ACTIVITY IN UNION COUNTY.

The Legal Provisions Under Which the New Jersey Society is Working.

The New Jersey Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals proposes to commence an active campaign against those who abuse the dumb beasts. E. P. Edwards, the president of the Union county branch of the society, intends that there be no violations of the law so far as respects this county. The work will be extended to Plainfield.

It is the aim of the society to "prevent cruelty more by inculcating the necessity and benefit of kindness than by vindictive prosecution." Fox hunting comes under the provisions of the law and a watch will be made to stop any violations in this regard. Another object will be to make an end to the practice of allowing horses to stand uncovered in cold weather. The society believes that "gross abuses should always be prosecuted, and also all cases of wilful or careless neglect of warning."

The act of March 23, 1883, of the laws of New Jersey, has this to say: "Section 13. And be it enacted, that any person or persons who shall overdrive, overload, drive when overloaded, overwork, torture, torment, deprive of necessary sustenance, or cruelly beat or otherwise abuse, or needlessly mutilate or kill, or who shall by their agents, servants, employes, or otherwise, cause or procure to be overdriven, overloaded, driven when overloaded, overworked, tortured, tormented, deprived of necessary sustenance, or to be unnecessarily or cruelly beaten, or otherwise abused or needlessly mutilated and killed, any living animal or creature, and any person having the charge or custody of any living animal or creature either as owner or otherwise, who inflicts unnecessary cruelty upon the same, or unnecessarily fails to provide the same with proper food, drink, shelter or protection from the weather, and any person who shall keep or use, or in any way be connected with or interested in same, shall forfeit and pay such sum, not to exceed $100, together with costs, as the court shall determine."

Neal with J. C. Manning, of Plainfield, repairs and extensions, building east corner of Central avenue and West Front street, Plainfield, $3,080.

Meeting of Trained Nurses.

While it has not been definitely settled, it is quite likely that the next meeting of the New Jersey State Association for Trained Nurses will be held at Camden at a date to be decided upon. The matter is left to the president and she is expected to set a date soon. Already the association is increasing in membership and interest and the prospects are that it will be one of the strongest in the United States.

BOICE, RUNYON & CO.,

About the year 1840 a gentleman at that time prominent in New York society, while at Lake George with his family, was taken sick with an attack of cholera morbus. No doctor was at hand save a sort of half Indian local practitioner, who was sen for. He prescribed a preparation of rhubarb and soda which he mixed himself. Its effect was excellent and so pleased was the tourist with its results that he brought the prescription to New York and used to have it compounded at Delaplaine's drug store at the corner of 14th Street and Sixth Avenue. For many years this mixture was in use in the family, one member of which was a son who afterwards arose to eminence as a physician. This son, as is related by a brother, was: "as well as the rest of us, brought up on this medicine, so to speak." He was, therefore, very familiar with it at the time he caused its introduction at the hospital where it afterwards became so famous. It was from the origin here related that The Ripans Chemical Co. has since made the most successful of modern remedies—Ripans Tabules.

WANTED—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

Dear Sirs—Two years ago I had very bad corns and callouses on my feet, I went to a chiropodist and paid him $5.75 for taking them off. In less than a month they were back again. I consider your HEPBURN'S CORN CURE the best I have ever used.—

LONGER COATS.

Three-Quarter Length Coats and Postilion Backs Popular.

Now that the weather has become more severe the coats belonging to tailor mades are longer. Three-quarter lengths are seen very much at fashionable gatherings, and where the short Eton front is preserved it has added to it a postilion back. The full fledged Russian blouse is very handsome for those whose height will permit them to wear it. These blouses are made of rich velvets and trimmed with bands of fur. The linings are of white satin, and they usually have one large lapel of white lace or embroidery. They are belted in with stitched satin girdles having jeweled buckles or slides.

Broadcloth tailor mades will always be popular on account of the fine figure they give a woman. Black broadcloth suits are relieved with stitched bands of colored cloth or velvet. Persian trimmings figure on the most handsome imported costumes, and a fluffy front of chiffon or lace is a necessity for dressy occasions.

Bias bands of velvet, braid and stitched strappings of peau de soie figure on all the more ordinary suits.

Today's cut shows a black broadcloth tailor made. The jacket has an Eton front and a postilion back. There is a triple collar, the middle one being of Persian panne. The fluffy front and stock are of chiffon, and the vest is of Persian panne. The skirt has a graduated flounce.

SKATING COSTUMES.

They Are Elaborately Trimmed With Braid and Fur.

Skating costumes are of great interest for the moment. Never have they been so chic. It is considered the proper thing to make them of frieze and trim them with bands of fur, velvet or braid. A costume recently made of this material had a short Eton jacket cut very short all the way around in order to show a wide belt of folded panne. From this in the back depended smart little postilion tails of the goods. There was also a tucked blouse front of this velvet, and around the bottom of the ankle length skirt there were three bands of it cut on the bias and stitched. This costume was brown, and its somberness was relieved by buttons of turquoise and silver.

Today's picture shows a child's dress made of old rose cashmere. The little waist is bloused both back and front, and the fullness at the neck is laid in tucks. For trimming there are small strappings running horizontally and two wide straps which reach from the shoulders to the waist. The little bishop sleeves are laid in tucks and the fullness confined into a narrow cuff. The belt is of black velvet. The skirt is short, reaching only to the knees.

My Strangest Case

BY GUY BOOTHBY.

Author of "DR. NIKOLA," "THE BEAUTIFUL WHITE DEVIL," "PHAROS, THE EGYPTIAN," Etc.

[Copyrighted, 1901, by Ward, Lock & Co.]

Two days later they shipped aboard the mailboat as steerage passengers for England. They had been missionaries in China, so it was rumored on board, and their zeal had been repaid by the cruelest torture. On a Sunday in the Indian ocean, Kitwater held a service on deck, which was attended by every class. He preached an eloquent sermon on the labors of the missionaries in the far east, and from that moment became so popular on board that, when the steamer reached English waters, a subscription was taken up on behalf of the sufferers, which resulted in the collection of an amount sufficient to help them well on their way to London as soon as they reached Liverpool.

"Now," said Kitwater, as they stood together at the wharf with the pitiless English rain pouring down upon them, wetting them to the skin, "what we have to do is to find Gideon Hayle as soon as possible."

CHAPTER I.

It has often struck me as being a remarkable circumstance that, in nine cases out of ten, a man's success in life is not found in the career he originally chose for himself, but in another and totally different one. That mysterious power, "force of circumstances," is doubtless responsible for this, and no better illustration for my argument could be found than my own case. I believe my father intended that I should follow the medical profession, while my mother hoped I would enter the church. My worthy uncle, Clutterfield, the eminent solicitor of Lincoln's Inn Fields, offered me my articles, and would possibly have eventually taken me into partnership. But I would have none of these things. My one craving was for the sea. If I could not spend my life upon salt water, existence would have no pleasure for me. My father threatened, my mother wept, Uncle Clutterfield prophesied all sorts of disasters, but I remained firm.

"Very well," said my father, when he realized that further argument was hopeless, "since you must go to sea, go to sea you certainly shall. But you mustn't blame me if you find that the life is not exactly what you anticipate, and that you would prefer yourself on dry land once more."

I willingly gave this promise, and a month later left Liverpool as an apprentice on the clipper ship Maid of Normandy. Appropriately enough the captain's name was Fairweather, and he certainly was a character in his way. In fact the whole ship's company were originals. Had my father searched all England through he could not have discovered a set of men, from the captain to the cook's mate, who would have been better calculated to instil in a young man's heart a distaste for Father Neptune and his oceans. In the number of the various books of the sea I have encountered was one entitled: "A Floating Hell." When reading it I had not expected to have the misfortune to be bound aboard a vessel of this type. It was my lot, however, to undergo the experience. We carried three apprentices, including myself, each of whom had paid a large sum for the privilege. I was the youngest. The eldest was the son of a country parson, a mild, decent lad, who eventually deserted and became a house-painter in the South Island of New Zealand. The next was washed overboard when we were rounding the Horn on our homeward voyage. Poor lad, when all was said and done he could not have been much worse off, for his life on board was a disgrace to what is sometimes erroneously called "human nature." In due course, as we cleared for San Francisco, and long before we crossed the line, I was heartily tired of the sea. In those days, few years ago as it is, sailors were not so well protected even as they are now, and on a long voyage aboard a sailing ship it was possible for a good deal to happen that was not logged, and much of which was forgotten before the vessel reached its home-port again. When I returned from my first voyage my family inquired how I liked my profession, and with all truth, I informed them that I did not like it at all, and that I would be willing to have my indentures canceled and to return to shore life once more, if I might be so permitted. My father smiled grimly, and seemed to derive considerable satisfaction from the fact that he had prophesied disaster from the outset.

"No," he said, "you have made your bed, my lad, and now you must lie upon it. There is still a considerable portion of your apprenticeship to be served, and it will be quite soon enough for us at the end of that time to decide what you are to do."

A month later I was at sea again, bound this time for Sydney. We reached that port on my nineteenth birthday, and by that time I had made up my mind. Articles or no articles, I was determined to spend no more of my life on board that hateful ship. Accordingly, one day having obtained shore leave, I purchased a new rig-out and, leaving my sea-togs with the Jewish shopman, I made tracks, as the saying goes, into the bush with all speed. Happen what might, I was resolved that Capt. Fairweather should not set eyes on George Fairfax again.

From that time onward my career was a strange one. I became a veritable Jack-of-all-trades. A station-hand, a roustabout, shearer, assistant to a traveling hawker, a gold miner, and at last a trooper in one of the finest bodies of men in the world, the Queensland mounted police. It was in this curious fashion that I arrived at my real vocation. After a considerable period spent at headquarters, I was drafted to a station in the far west. There was a good deal of horse and sheep stealing going on in that particular locality, and a large amount of tact and ingenuity was necessary to discover the criminals. I soon found that this was a business at which I was likely to be successful. More than once I had the good fortune to be able to bring to book men who had carried on their trade for years, and who had been entirely unsuspected. Eventually my reputation in this particular line of business became noised abroad, until it came to the ears of the commissioner himself. Then news reached us that a dastardly murder had been committed in the suburbs of Brisbane, and that the police were unable to obtain any clew as to the identity of the person accountable for it. Two or three men were arrested on suspicion, but were immediately discharged on being in a position to give a satisfactory account of their actions on the night of the murder. It struck me that I should like to take up the case, and with the confidence of youth I applied to the commissioner for permission to be allowed to try my hand at unraveling the mystery. What they thought of my impudence I cannot say, but the fact remains that my request, after being backed up by my inspector, was granted. The case was a particularly complicated one, and at one time I was beginning to think that I should prove no more successful than the others had been. In the end, however, I came upon the murderer, who, seeing himself very neatly trapped, placed a revolver to his right temple and, before I could prevent him, pulled the trigger.

At the conclusion of this case I resigned my position in the police of the northern colony, and joined the detective staff in Melbourne, seeing in their service a good deal of queer life and ferreting out not a small number of extraordinary cases. The experience gained there was invaluable, and led me, after one particularly interesting piece of business in which I had the good fortune to be most successful, to entertain the notion of quitting government employ altogether, and setting up for myself. I did so, and soon had more work upon my hand than I could very well accomplish. But I was too ambitious to be content with small things, and eventually came to the conclusion that there was not enough scope in the colonies for me. After 15 years' absence, therefore, I returned to England, spending a year in the further east en route in order to enlarge my experience, and to qualify myself for any work that might come to me from that quarter.

Cure all distressing, dangerous kidney ills.

Plenty of evidence to prove this.

Mrs. Margaret Reville, of 752 West Third street, says: "For a long time I was troubled with a lame and weak back and I never found anything which gave me any relief until I obtained Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store and began to use them according to directions. It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that time on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back pained me and was so weak and sore that I dreaded to bend and when I had a cold or over-exerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies, but got little if any relief. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back."

NINE ENTOMBED.

Negaunee Mine Cavein Not as Serious as at First Feared.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 9.—Word from Negaunee, Mich., says: "There have been few developments at the Negaunee mines, the scene of Tuesday's cave-in. The work of rescue continues. Though the work is greatly retarded by quicksand and water, this difficulty is being overcome by the aid of extra pumps, and from now on the work of rescue will proceed more favorably.

"Hopes of finding the men alive are about abandoned.

"President Cole and leading officials of the Oliver Mining company arrived here from Duluth and have been at the scene of the disaster, directing the work of rescue. President Cole himself aided in the work and penetrated the most dangerous parts of the mine in the attempt to locate the men.

"It is now thought that three of the men, supposed to be located near the cage level, will be reported within a few hours, while days may be consumed in the search for the others.

"The officials of the Negaunee min announce that only nine of the work men met their fate as a result of th caveln.

"The drift in which the men lost their lives is filled with water, and there is a large mass of ore and rock to remove before the bodies can be reached.

"The large mass of dirt that went down loosened the timbers in the shaft and the drifts adjoining the closed one. Two extra pumps have been put in, and one or two more will be added."

Increased Aid For Common Schools.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 9.—The assembly ways and means committee, after conferring with the governor, has decided to increase the appropriation for the support of the common schools by $250,000. The scheme of distribution of the gross appropriation of $3,750,000 will be that the weak districts whose assessed valuation is $40,000 or under are to receive $150 per district instead of $100 as heretofore. There are upward of 4,000 of such districts in the state. Every district in the rural section of the state raised for the maintenance of its schools last year over 5 mills on the dollar, or over $5 upon each $1,000 of assessed valuation. In a great number of the school districts whose assessed valuation was $40,000 or under the tax was between $10 and $20 upon each $1,000 of assessed valuation.

Gun Shield Test Postponed.

BETHLEHEM, P., Jan. 9.—All of the members of the bureau of ordnance and fortifications of the United States army except General Nelson A. Miles were at the Bethlehem Steel company's proving grounds yesterday afternoon to see a test of newly designed gun shields. It snowed very fast, and as no photographs could be taken the guns were not fired. General Miles telegraphed from Washington to postpone the test, which was done. The shields are of nickel face hardened steel, three inches thick. They are made according to designs of the company's experts. While protecting gun and gunner, they present as little front as possible for attack and are shaped so that projectiles instead of penetrating will glance off their sides.

Still Under the Dowager's Control.

PEKING, Jan. 9.—All the evidences indicate that the emperor of China is now more completely under the domination of the dowager empress than he was before the Chinese court went into exile. Several high officials were granted audiences yesterday, during which the emperor filled the role of a figurehead. The empress dowager sat on his majesty's left and conducted the conversations. According to the accounts of two of the officials who were received, the dowager empress ignored the emperor, and the latter did not attempt to take any part in the affair. These officials say his majesty appeared melancholy and listless.

BETTER SERVICE IS COMING

Mr. Warren was certainly diplomatic in handling the committee. As soon as a question would be put to him the official would turn the subject and fire a counter-question at the committee. Mr. Burt would sit quietly by and only smile occasionally.

Both Mr. Woolston and Mr. Eoff addressed the General Passenger Agent in regard to the change of the tickets. They asked why the company practically charged ninety cents for a round trip ticket. They explained that the new ten trip ticket sells for $4.50, which is at the rate of ninety cents a round trip, while the regular fifty trip ticket sells for $18, or in other words seventy-two cents for the round trip. The excursion ticket is $1.

Mr. Burt explained that really no change had been made but that a new inducement had been made for families to buy the ten trip ticket. Mr. Eoff declared that it meant a raise of at least ten cents, and that in his opinion the road should sell the ten trip ticket for $3.60, being at the rate of seventy-two cents for the round trip.

"The people of Plainfield think the officials have no sympathy for them," declared Mr. Eoff, with force, at this juncture.

"That is false," said Mr. Warren with no little amount of vehemence. "I won't permit you to repeat that statement again."

"Well that's the impression," retorted Mr. Eoff.

The official repeated his declaration, whereupon Mr. Eoff said that probably his statement was a trifle broad, but anyway the people think the company is against them. This Mr. Warren disclaimed, and said that the company is not responsible for impressions. No satisfaction was given the committee in this matter, Mr. Warren explaining that he was not there to discuss the merits of that controversy.

Mr. Woolston called the official's attention to the fact that some people wanted to move out of Plainfield because of the bad service. He recalled to Mr. Warren's attention the fact that he had expressed the desire two years ago that people would be able to set their watches by the arrival of trains. In this connection he referred to a former conversation in which Mr. Warren had told him of a western road where the people kept account of time by the trains.

The official explained that there was a reason for not being able to have the trains on time and that he would state the reason. He then reviewed his connection with the road, from 1897 down to the present date. At that time the company was not in a position to improve its rolling stock, but that in 1899 it commenced to do so. In the spring of 1901 there was a strike, which commenced in May and lasted for eleven weeks. It was confined to the machine shops and the road was tied up for repairs. Not a repair was made to the engines and when the strike ended it was impossible to get the engines repaired at once or to buy or hire new engines.

As soon as possible orders were placed, but some delay was caused since the type of the engine was new and the steps taken were taken with caution. Sixty locomotives were ordered. The whole trouble is with the engines so far as delays of trains were concerned. Forty-five of these new engines are for passenger use and the remainder for freight. Fifty new passenger cars were ordered. The passenger cars now being given over to the use of Plainfielders are the best the company has and the people who use the local trains are protesting. On this ground there has been no protest by people of this city.

The first engine of those ordered will be ready in the spring, probably in May, and the others will be put in service at various intervals thereafter. When these new engines are in use, the company hopes that the service will be as it was of yore and no one will have reason to complain. Mr. Warren explained that this trouble was not confined to the New Jersey Central Railroad. The strike was the direct cause and since then the road has been handicapped. The officials are all anxious to do their best to straighten out matters.

As for the delay caused by the ferries leaving before the train arrives at Jersey City, Mr. Warren declared that he had to suffer this inconvenience himself but was compelled to put up with it. Instructions were given the engineers, as well as all others in charge of the ferries, to leave precisely on time and to make the best possible speed across the water. Those in charge of the boats are the best men in the business. The only reason they leave precisely on time is that there are other passengers on the other side waiting to come in the other direction to meet trains. Sometimes, in his own opinion, he thought that the boats should wait a few seconds but the men know their business and are responsible for the results.

Reference was made to the protests of the people of Plainfield. The Vice President declared that a woman friend of his had said after a visit to Plainfield that she would not live there where there is so much agitation. According to his statement she was utterly disgusted with the way people "kick" in this city. Fault finding here, according to his statements, is chronic. He also declared that business men had signified their intention of removing from Plainfield on this account.

He decried the agitation of the newspapers and deplored the notoriety given the road by the daily papers. The action of the committee in taking up this matter, he said, only had the effect of stirring up the newspapers, which he seemed to dread. Vice President Warren appeared to have no love for the way the newspapers act in championing this matter.

Before the talk ended, Mr. Woolston made mention of the dangerous condition presented at night by the fence between the tracks. He suggested that it be painted a light color so as to be easily distinguished. The Vice President seemed to be favorably impressed with the idea. He declared he had no knowledge about the fence, but that had he known it at the time the fence was painted he would have seen that it was coated with a light colored paint.

The total result of the ninety-minutes talk which the committee had with the officials is that in the near future Plainfield will receive better service and the commuters, especially, may live in hope that "before the robins nest again" the trials and tribulations of the daily passengers will be at an end.

COMMENTS ON PRESENT POLICY OF CENTRAL

Isaac L. Miller Sums Up the Situation According to His Way of Thinking.

WHAT WILL RESULT.

COMFORT OF PATRONS HAS BEEN SACRIFICED TO MAKE DIVIDENDS.

That is the Cause, He Believes, of the Present Troubles—Criticizes the Present Methods and Rolling Stock.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The New York Evening Post of January 7 contains a carefully written article entitled "Jersey Central Dividends", and after commenting at length on the increase thereof from 5 to 8 per cent. closes as follows:

"While, therefore, Jersey Central's present splendid prosperity is due to its position in the coal trade, prudent regard for the stability of its revenues in the future demands that the Jersey Central's general business should be developed by every possible means This will require heavy expenditures for improvements. The increase of only $258,000 in expenses for the eleven months of 1901, with a gain of $1,646,000 in revenues, does not indicate development of this policy. Before declaring 8 per cent. dividends the Jersey Central directors might well have given assurances that income had been drawn upon for betterments in sufficient amounts."

It seems to me that this paragraph correctly describes the present situation. The late Commodore Vanderbilt is said to have remarked to a committee appointed to remonstrate with him concerning the grievances from which a suburban town was supposed to be suffering. "Gentlemen: We look at this matter from different points of view. You think a railroad is run for the benefit of the public. I think it is for the good of stockholders." This seems to be the theory of the present management of our road and Plainfield daily suffers therefrom. Those of us who have resided for any considerable period of time in our city know that for many years the trains were run with such regularity that it was safe to make an appointment with an assurance of being able to keep the same. In fact the train service was one of the chief attractions of our place.

Now the schedule time has not only been increased thus rendering Plainfield less desirable as a place for residence, but even with this addition the trains are almost invariably late in reaching their destination. This is well known that it would be superfluous to recite instances of detention and the excuses that are assigned thereof are really ludicrous. One day we are told that the engine was broken down, the next that she will not steam. These reasons are undoubtedly true, but they afford little comfort to the commuter who has made an early start for the purpose of reaching New York in due season or who after hard day's work is anxious to get home in something approximating to the schedule time. One is tempted to inquire why should the engines so frequently break down and why should inferior coal be used, thus causing innability to properly generate steam?

Most of the passenger cars are old, dirty, badly ventilated, insufficiently lighted and the motive power is inadequate. The rate of commutation has been increased, the amount being trifling in each case, but quite considerable in the aggregate. A new and annoying system of commutation tickets has been substituted for that employed for many years with entire satisfaction and, generally speaking, the road has greatly deteriorated. Of course, I am not unmindful of the improvements at our station and of the two new boats, but these betterments were forced on the company, and it is submitted that the figures furnished by the Post justifies the remark that the comfort of the passengers has been sacrificed by the present adminstration in the desire to make large diivdends.

It is somewhat difficult under the circumstances to suggest a remedy, but it seems fair to assure that if the attention of the proper officials is called to these matters and the present conditon of affairs they will if only from motives of self interest duly attended to same; but if not we must as Wendell Phillips said then asked what should be done in the interest of the anti-slavery movement "agitate, agitate, agitate," until the wrongs are righted. Isaac L. Miller.

THE TUNNEL SOUNDINGS MADE

DID NOT DEVELOPE ANY FACTS NOT RECKONED ON.

Work Completed in North River —Then Will Follow Soundings in East River.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New York, Jan. 10—The work of making soundings in the North river for the Pennsylvania-New York Extension Railroad Company, which is to construct the tunnel connecting New Jersey and Manhattan Island, is practically completed. No unexpected obstacles were met by the engineers in the task of learning the condition of the bed of the river, nor was anything discovered by them which had not been reckoned on by Charles M. Jacobs, chief engineer of the company, when he announced that tunnelling under the North River was an entirely feasible engineering feat.

J. Vipond Davies, of the engineering firm of Jacobs & Davies, corroborates the report that his men have about completed the soundings in the North River for the tunnels.

"They have a little work to do yet on the New Jersey side of the river," said Mr. Davies. "It will not take them long to finish there, and then they will make soundings in the East River. It is true that they have found nothing that they were not expected to discover."

It was announced by President Baldwin, of the Long Island Railroad Company, at the time the tentative plans of the big tunnel project were made known, that electrical locomotives would be coupled to the trains at the mouths of the tubes and draw the trains through. The power plant, he now asserts, will probably be somewhere in New Jersey, where fuel is cheaper. Just where the power plant and the mouths of the tunnels on the New Jersey side will be has not yet been made public, and the exact route of the tunnel system in New Jersey is still unknown.

CHARGED WITH THEFT.

"Jerry" Washington Had a Chance to Return Cash, But Let It Slip By.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Jan. 10—"Jerry" Washington, colored, whose reputation in the vicinity of East Millstone is not an enviable one, is lodged in jail here. The prisoner is charged with having stolen $295 in cash from Mrs. William E. Mettler, of East Millstone. He is held for the next Grand Jury.

Mrs. Mettler is a daughter of the late Lewis T. Howell, formerly President of the New Brunswick National Bank, and she frequently had large sums of money in the house. Washington was in her employ. The money was kept in a bureau and he took it from there. He admitted the theft, which happened before Christmas, and Mrs. Mettler gave him a week in which to return the money. His not complying with her demand resulted in his arrest.

This is no the first time Washington has been accused criminally. He was in jail about three years ago on a charge of having been one of a party who gagged and robbed Night Watchman Stout, of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Millstone. He escaped then with a light punishment.

EXPECT TO CONTINUE.

Week of Prayer Meetings at Trinity Church Were So Successful.

There has been an unusual interest in the special services of prayer held this week at Trinity Reformed church and the attendance has been large every evening. There has been a spiritual awakening that has been a source of great help and comfort to both pastor and people. This spirit has pervaded all those attending the services and has led all to a deeper consecration to the Master's work. The service last evening was in charge of Elder Robert Clark, Jr., and the subject "The Home" was ably treated by the leader. Many beautiful and helpful prayers were offered by the brethren.

This evening the service will be in charge of G. L. VanEmburgh and the subject will be "The Coming of the Kingdom." In view of the great interest in the services the large attendance and their helpfulness, it is quite likely that they will be continued during next week. A most cordial invitation is extended to all to join the services.

McKinley Club Going.

The McKinley Club, of Union county, is arranging to attend the inauguration of Governor-elect Murphy at Trenton, January 21. A special train will be run from Elizabeth to Trenton. LIQUOR OPENLY SOLD TO THOSE UNDER AGE Fact Brought Out in Court at Trial of Young George Gardner This Morning.

POLICE WILL NOW ACT.

BOY CHARGED WITH TRYING TO BEAT HIS FATHER.

Mrs. Gardner Complained That Saloon-keepers Continued to Sell Drinks to Minors—Sentence Suspended.

Through the arrest of George Gardner, an eighteen-year-old boy, for drunkenness, yesterday afternoon, Chief Kiely learned this morning that the city ordinance in regard to selling liquor to minors is openly disregarded by a number of local saloon keepers.

The young man, who works only at odd times, secured a little money yesterday and spent it all for drink. He went to his home on West Third street very intoxicated and began abusing his father. The latter has but recently passed through a severe illness and when the boy approached to strike him he was unable to defend himself. The interference of Mrs. Gardner was all that saved him from a beating at the hands of the intoxicated youth.

The mother then sent for Patrolman Watson and preferred a charge of disorderly conduct against her son who, at the time the officer arrived, was in the hall daring his father to come out and be "licked."

When he was arraigned in the city court, this morning, Mrs. Gardner stated that the main object in having the boy arrested was to make him tell where he procured the liquor. It was a frequent thing for him to come home intoxicated, she said, and she had tried to prevent it by personally calling on the saloon keepers and asking them to refrain from giving the boy liquor.

When questioned by City Judge Runyon the young men unhesitatingly said that he could buy drink at any place in town.

Yesterday's drunk, he said, was secured at a saloon on Park avenue, where his age was not questioned.

The boy was given a reprimand by the court after which a heavy sentence was placed over his head. If he is arrested on a similar charge within the near future it will drop in the shape of $100 and fifty-nine days, the heaviest that can be imposed by the City Judge.

On the completion of Gardner's case, Chief Kiely sent for the accused saloon keeper. When the patrolman depatched entered the place he discovered a well known young man, also below twenty-one, standing at the bar and drinking. The proprietor was informed of both cases but pleaded ignorance of the young men's ages. He promised his bartender would be instructed to watch for minors and that no young men below twenty-one would be served wtih drink. Other saloon men who have also been selling to boys will be brought to account and, if the practice is not abated, arrests will follow.

The second and last "at home," attendant upon the debut of Miss Helen Sprague Martin, daughter of Mrs. Frank Sprague Martin, was given yesterday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock at the home on Hillside avenue. Like the previous events it was a charming one and was very largely attended by society folks of the city and borough.

The prevailing color scheme was pink, there being pink carnations in the library and pink roses in the dining room. The decorations in the latter room made especially attractive through the use of broad bands of pink satin ribbon.

The debutante was assisted in receiving by her mother and her sister, Miss Martin and Mrs. William Myers, Mrs. Lemuel W. Serrell, Mrs. W. L. C. Glenney, Miss Mary E. Wilson, Mrs. Craig A. WHO CAN USE NEW TICKETS

OFFICIAL EXPLANATION BY GENERAL PASSENGER AGENT BURT.

Vice President Warren Says Report of Interview With Bayonne's Mayor Was False.

An official explanation of the use of the new ten trip tickets was made by Vice President Warren, of the New Jersey Central Railroad, Wednesday afternoon, during the course of the talk with the Board of Trade committee. It is intended for the use to the person to whom it is issued and for his family, servants and visitors. It is not intended to be for the benefit of the members of a business firm nor for the firm's employes.

As concerns the distinction between a servant and an employe no definite statement was made, except that it was intimated that a servant meant a domestic in the household and an employe one who is regularly hired in a business concern. General Passenger Agent Burt dcelared that in issuing these tickets at the rate of ninety cents per round trip, no advance in price was made, because the excursion ticket is still $1. It was also pointed out that the opportunity given to obtain a fifty trip ticket for a round trip, from the holder, was an abuse of the rights of the owner of the ticket and that the company is not responsible therefor.

During the conversation, Mr. Warren, in speaking in condemnation of newspaper notoriety given the road, declared that the published account of an interview between himself and Mayor Seymour, of Bayonne, as contained in a Bayonne paper, was utterly false. The great majority of the statements published were never uttered. He said with much emphasis that the outline of the talk was purely imaginary.

It has been definitely determined that the entire National Guard of the State will participate in the ceremonies attending the inauguration of Gov.-elect Franklin Murphy at Trenton. Orders to this effect have been issued by Gen. P. Farmer Wanser, of Jersey City, the present division commander.

The First Troop, of Essex, Mr. Murphy's own county, will act as his personal escort upon that occasion. The troops are expected to arrive at Trenton not later than 11 o'clock on the morning of the inauguration, and will be fed before the parade, which follows the ceremonies in the Opera House.

The probable route of the parade will include a march of about two and one-half miles, of which all but half a mile will be over vitrified brick pavement. The route of the parade and manner of formation is proposed as follows:

The National Guard will form on Clinton avenue, with the right resting at the Swamp Angel, while the civic part will form on East State street, with the right resting upon Clinton avenue and facing west. The civic part will also rest upon Southard, Ewing and Carroll streets, facing Perry.

The line of march as proposed is down Perry to Broad street, to the Battle Monument, to Pennington avenue, to Willow street, to Spring, out Spring to Prospect street, down Prospect to West State street, and back to the City Hall.

THEATRICAL.

The success achieved by Otis Skinner in his revival of "Francesca da Rimini" in other cities was more than duplicated by the signal triumph of himself, his company and his elaborate production at the Victoria Theatre, New York. Both critics and public unite in pronouncing the production one of the marked successes of the present season. Mr. Skinner's Lanciotto is universally pronounced the high water mark of his professional career, while the marked excellence of his company and the beauty of the scenic investiture which he has given to Roker's famous play, have won unstinted praise. William Norris, the brilliant young character actor, has the most important part that has ever fallen to his lot, and his Pepe, the Jester, is an undeniable success; while by both in appearance and warmth in sympathy of acting, Marcia VanDresser and Aubrey Boucicault are pronounced an ideal Francesca and Paolo.

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

The finest and largest lot of ducks in Plainfield are on sale at Smalley Brothers' North avenue market. 'Phone your order and it will be sent in time to have them on the dinner table.

A metropolitan market on a small scale is to be found at W. W. Dunn's model grocery, Duer street and Lincoln place. All the choice vegetables and fruit can be obtained at the lowest prices.

"The Little Church Around the Corner," is known the world over and so are the shoes that are sold by A. Willett & Son at their store around the corner. You make no mistake when you purchase at this store.

Manly persons frown on the individual who wears a boss's "collar" and they feel like giving him a "cuff." However, they look with favor on the well dressed man who wears the cuffs and collars sold by J. R. Blair, of Park avenue. Drop in and examine his assortment.

There is no decrease in the value of gold. This is also true of the goods sold by Putnam & DeGraw, of West Front street, yet the prices asked are reasonable. A more complete stock of dry goods is not to be found in the city, besides there are notions and novelties that are always useful.

W. W. Warnock, the West Front street confectioner, is at present making a specialty of fine pastry, delicious angel cake and the best charlotte russe to be had in the city. Call 'phone 1134 and leave an order for some of his surpassing coffee cake to be delivered early tomorrow. He sells ice cream, too.

The proverbial bull in the china shop would make greater havoc than ever if he was let loose in Gavett's establishment. It is filled with the finest assortment of china and cut glassware ever seen in the city. But no mistake is made in selection and the only havoc that has been wrought so far is with the prices.

Callahan & Son, of Richmond street, have supplied a long felt want in the East End. They not only have a first-class and up-to-date grocery store but also a well stocked sea food and meat store. Everything of the best and the prices compete with those of the downtown stores. Mail and telephone orders receive prompt attention.

Despite the fact that L. W. Randolph, the West Front street druggist, placed a large order for Huyler's confection for the holiday trade, he has been obliged to order twice since then. This confection is unexcelled and the assortment complete. Pure drugs and carefully compounded prescriptions are features at this drug store.

The Prudential Girl of 1902.

Among the many beautiful calendars issued for this year, one of the most artistic in richness of color and simplicity of design is that which bears the imprint of The Prudential Insurance Company of America. The calendar proper is on one side of a cardboard leaving the other side free for a striking portrait picture in colors. The picture is that of a young woman, blue-eyed and golden-haired, in a gown of white with green leaves and scarlet flowers, and set off with a dark purple hat of the Gainsborough style, encircled by a black ostrich plume. The Prudential has arranged to distribute these calendars, and if you desire one, write to the Home Office of The Prudential, in Newark, N. J., mentioning this paper, and a copy will be sent you by the company, free of cost.

TRUSTEES ELECTED.

Men Who Will Take Charge of Carnegie Institution.

BROAD AND LIBERAL PLAN OUTLINED

Great School at Washington to Aid Universities, Promote Original Research and Increase Educational Facilities Generally.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Official announcement has been made of the board of trustees of the Carnegie institution, which has been incorporated here under the ten million dollar gift of Andrew Carnegie. The only indication as to the form of the gift is that it will be in "5 per cent bonds." This is referred to in a single sentence, as follows:

"It is the purpose of Mr. Carnegie to transfer $10,000,000 in 5 per cent bonds to the board of trustees for the purposes above mentioned."

The board of trustees elected by the incorporators to carry out the purposes of the institution as indicated are as follows:

The president of the United States, the president of the United States senate, the speaker of the house of representatives, the secretary of the Smithsonian institution, the president of the National Academy of Sciences, Grover Cleveland of New Jersey, John S. Billings of New York, William N. Frew of Pennsylvania, Lyman J. Gage of Illinois, Daniel C. Gilman of Maryland, John Hay of the District of Columbia, Abram S. Hewitt of New York, Henry L. Higginson of Massachusetts, Henry Hitchcock of Missouri, Charles L. Hutchinson of Illinois, William Lindsay of Kentucky, Seth Low of New York, Wayne MacVeagh of Pennsylvania, D. O. Mills of California, S. Weir Mitchell of Pennsylvania, W. W. Morrow of California, Elihu Root of New York, John C. Spooner of Wisconsin, Andrew D. White of New York, Edward D. White of Louisiana, Charles D. Walcott of the District of Columbia and Carroll D. Wright of the District of Columbia.

The board of trustees will meet to organize and elect officers in the office of the secretary of state on Jan. 29.

Mr. Carnegie's purpose, as stated by himself in requesting the various trustees to become members of the board, is as follows:

"It is proposed to found in the city of Washington, in the spirit of Washington, an institution which, with the co-operation of institutions now or hereafter established there or elsewhere, shall in the broadest and most liberal manner encourage investigation, research and discovery, encourage the application of knowledge to the improvement of mankind, provide such buildings, laboratories, books and apparatus as may be needed and afford instruction of an advanced character to students whenever and wherever found, inside or outside of schools, properly qualified to profit thereby.

"Among its aims are these:

"First.—To increase the efficiency of the universities and other institutions of learning throughout the country by utilizing and adding to their existing facilities and by aiding teachers in the various institutions for experimental and other work on these institutions as far as may be advisable.

"Second.—To discover the exceptional man in every department of study, whenever and wherever found, and enable him by financial aid to make the work for which he seems specially designed his life work.

"Third.—To promote original research, paying great attention thereto, as being one of the chief purposes of this institution.

"Fourth.—To increase facilities for higher education.

"Fifth.—To enable such students as may find Washington the best point for their special studies to avail themselves of such advantages as may be open to them in the museums, libraries, laboratories, observatory, meteorological, piscicultural and forestry schools and kindred institutions of the several departments of the government.

"Sixth.—To insure the prompt publication and distribution of the results of scientific investigation, a field considered to be highly important.

"These and kindred objects may be attained by providing the necessary apparatus for experimental work, by employing able teachers from the various institutions in Washington or elsewhere and by enabling men fitted for special work to devote themselves to it through salaried fellowships or scholarships or through salaries, with or without pensions in old age, or through aid in other forms to such men as continue their special work at seats of learning throughout the world."

Coal Miners Strike.

DUBOIS, Pa., Jan. 10.—Eight hundred men employed at Adrian and 600 men employed at the Florence mines of the Rochester and Pittsburg Coal and Iron company are on strike. The grievance of the men is that they are required to push cars left on the main track at the headings to and from the rooms in which they work. They claim this work should be done by mules, and it is on this account that they have struck.

HALL IS PROFANED.

Dowager Empress Violates Rules of Chinese Dynasty.

EMPEROR IS ONLY A FIGUREHEAD.

It Is Thought He Will Not Be Allowed to Communicate With Diplomats Except in the Dowager's Presence.

PEKING, Jan. 10.—The dowager empress of China has asserted her complete supremacy by giving an audience in the most sacred hall in the Forbidden City. The rules of the dynasty forbid women to enter this hall, and the dowager empress has never before violated its sanctity.

The emperor will receive the foreign diplomats in this hall. Officials believe the dowager empress to be paving the way to be present upon this occasion in order to prevent any communications between the diplomats and the emperor except under her censorship.

The dowager empress is preparing to send letters to the ministers of the foreign powers here expressing her desire for the maintenance of friendly relations and her willingness to receive advice in audience.

Progressive Chinese officials explain that the dowager empress disapproved of "Boxerism;" that her wishes in this matter were overruled and her edicts garbled.

It is possible that General Tung Fuh Siang, the notorious antiforeigner, whose decapitation has been ordered by the dowager empress in an edict, has already been beheaded.

The Tartar general in Kansu province who was ordered to carry out this sentence has telegraphed that he has imprisoned Tung Fuh Siang in his yamen and asks for instructions. To this message the dowager empress replied, ordering the Tartar general to carry out her edict.

Dr. Poole, who was attached to the American legation here as surgeon, is dead of typhoid fever.

Connecticut Editor In Trouble.

NEW CANAAN, Conn., Jan. 10.—G. Duff Nichols, one of the most prominent men in the town, and his son George, aged seventeen, are at the town lockup, charged with attempted murder. Upon returning home Wednesday night Nichols ejected his family, with the exception of the son, from the house, accusing his wife of being too friendly with a man named Clark employed by Nichols and who boarded at the Nichols home. Upon entering a hotel last evening Nichols saw Clark and immediately proceeded to assault him with the butt end of a revolver. He then called upon his son to shoot Clark, and the boy complied. The bullet entered Clark's skull, but it is thought he will recover. Nichols is a justice of the peace, editor of the New Canaan Republican and proprietor of a number of industries.

McCune and Henry Hudson, veteran Pennsylvania railroad engineers of this city who were retired on pensions some time ago, have received checks for $20 each from Andrew Carnegie. Mr. Carnegie used to be the superintendent of the Pittsburg division, where these veterans worked, and it is understood to be Mr. Carnegie's purpose to pension all the trainmen who are yet alive who worked during his superintendency of that part of the road. Messrs. Wike, McCune and Hudson are to receive $20 each month for life.

DINNER TO DIPLOMATS.

President Breaks Record For Numbers at White House Function.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—A dinner to the diplomatic corps was given by President and Mrs. Roosevelt last night. The table was set in the east room, used for the first time for a purpose of this kind, and covers were laid for eighty-five persons, the largest number ever entertained at dinner at one time in the White House. The immense double-T shaped table was set off with immense plaques of pink begonias in maidenhair fern and towering bunches of white roses in crystal vases. The silver candelabra with pink shades lent a tinge of rich coloring to the scene. The president sat at the center of the table, with Lady Pauncefote on his right and Senora de Azpiroz on his left. Directly opposite the president sat Mrs. Roosevelt, with the British embassador on her right and the German embassador on her left.

Especial attention had been paid to the decoration and illumination of the east room. In addition to the myriads of electric lights from the chandeliers there were sprays of green lights scattered through the smilax which wreathed the large pillars, while the immense mirrors were veiled with laurel through which shone a profusion of red and white electric lights. Music was furnished by the Marine band.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

Hearing at Kansas City Disappointing to the Commission.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 10.—The interstate commerce commissioners examined seven witnesses here regarding grain rates from western points to the Atlantic seaboard and other eastern destinations. They returned to Chicago at night after announcing that the investigation would be resumed in that city Jan. 24, when, it is believed, several big railway officials will be called.

The expected rush of railroad officials and grain shippers to confess they had made and received freight rebates or cut rates did not occur. In fact, what information was elicited was obtained only after persistent questioning on the part of the commissioners.

Wireless Ocean Messages In June.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 10.—Signor Marconi has left for New York. The plans for his new station at Glace bay, Cape Breton, will be prepared at once, and his expectation is that the station will be ready for communication across the Atlantic by the beginning of June. The contractor may be sent over from England, but Nova Scotia labor will be employed in the actual building. On his return to England Mr. Marconi will have the electric power at his Cornwall station greatly increased, so that by the time the Cape Breton station is finished he will be ready to resume transatlantic tests of his wireless telegraphic system on a practical scale. He expects to return to Canada in about a month.

Governor Shaw Honored.

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 10.—Governor Leslie M. Shaw was given a public reception last evening by the Grant club in honor of his elevation to the secretaryship of the United States treasury. The reception was followed by a banquet at which covers were laid for 350 guests, who included nearly all the leading Republicans in the state and city. Governor Elect A. B. Cummins presided and delivered an eloquent address in honor of his distinguished predecessor. Senators Allison and Dolliver were unable to be present.

Dinner For Embassador Choate.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Embassador Joseph H. Choate, who is in this country on leave of absence, was given a reception and luncheon yesterday by the New York chamber of commerce. Embassador Choate will return to his post at London by the steamer St. Louis, sailing on Wednesday next.

The horses were killed and the wagon demolished.

VIENNA, Jan. 10.—A riotous anti-British demonstration was provoked at the town of Sal, in Hungary, on the occasion of the presentation of Wilson Barrett's play, "The Sign of the Cross." THE TUNNEL ACCIDENT.

District Attorney Jerome Says the Wreck Was Avoidable.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—After completing the examination of witnesses in the investigation into the New York Central tunnel wreck District Attorney Jerome declared that the accident was avoidable.

"If John M. Wiskar, the engine driver of the White Plains train, had placed his engine under control between the red and green lights the accident could not have happened," the district attorney said. "I am not prepared to say, however, that the engine driver was responsible.

"Before deciding upon that I want to go over the evidence carefully. The engine driver seems to have had a good record and to have been a reputable citizen. There is no reason to believe that he was under the influence of liquor."

District Attorney Jerome admitted that Edward C. Fyler, fireman on the White Plains train, had testified that he had seen the danger signals and when passing the green one had called out "Green!" to the engine driver. Fyler then leaped back into the cab.

The injured in the several city hospitals are reported doing well.

CANAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Governor Odell's Plans Call For Expenditure of $28,800,000.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 10.—Governor Odell has been informed by the attorney general that it would be unconstitutional to submit two distinct propositions relative to canal improvement to the people at the next general election As a result he intimates that the two propositions—one for deepening the canals and the other for lengthening the locks—will probably be combined. It is expected that a bill will be prepared at once and introduced on next Monday night calling for the submission to the people of a proposition to expend $28,800,000 on canal improvement.

The measure will contain all of the salient points of the governor's recommendations, and it is believed that it will meet with the approval of nearly all of the conservative canal men. The number of locks on the canal are to be reduced from seventy-two to forty-four, all of which are to be made longer than the present ones. A nine foot level will also be secured by this plan.

Why Mayor Gener Was Suspended.

HAVANA, Jan. 10.—General Wood's reasons for suspending Miguel Gener, the mayor of Havana, were his alleged incompetency and his inattention to business. The petition for the mayor's removal, signed by twenty-three of the councilmen of Havana, was seconded by Senor Nunez, the civil governor of Havana, and Diego Tamayo, the Cuban secretary of state. The second assistant mayor is now acting as mayor of this city. Civil Governor Nunez is conducting the investigation of Mayor Gener. Gener has been the leader of the Maso faction in Havana and is one of the officials who came out openly for General Bartolome Maso, the recent candidate of the Democratic party for the presidency of Cuba.

Another Suit Against Dowie.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Benjamin F. Williams, formerly a schoolteacher in Mansfield, O., and once a follower of "Dr." John Alexander Dowie, has begun suit in the circuit court of Cook county for damages in the sum of $50,000 against "Dr." Dowie and Elders John G. Speicher and Cyrus B. Fockler of the Christian Catholic Church of America for alleged conspiracy to alienate his wife's affections. Williams alleges that through the teachings of Dowie and his followers Edith R. Williams was influenced to treat him as a stranger. He avers that the cause of this influence was that he did not contribute to Dowie's numerous business enterprises.

CANAL BILL PASSED

House Almost Unanimous For Hepburn Measure.

ONLY TWO NEGATIVE VOTES CAST.

Opposition Tried In Vain to Secure Amendments Favoring Panama Company's Forty Million Offer.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The Hepburn Nicaraguan canal bill passed the house late yesterday afternoon by practically a unanimous vote. Only two members out of 310 voted against it Messrs. Fletcher (Rep., Minn.) and Lassiter (Dem., Va.) were the two voting in the negative. The opposition to committing the government to the Nicaraguan route attempted to secure amendments to lodge with the president the discretionary power to purchase and complete the Panama canal if it could be purchased for $40,000,000. The test came on the first vote, when the advocates of an alternative route polled 102 against 170 votes. At each succeeding vote their strength dwindled until Mr. Cannon (Ill.), under whose leadership the fight was made, was unable to get the yeas and nays on a motion to recommit. All other amendments failed, and the bill passed exactly as it came from the committee. None of the votes except that on the final passage of the bill was a record vote.

The debate which preceeded the taking of the final vote was made memorable by a clash between Mr. Hepburn, the author of the bill, and Mr. Cannon, chairman of the appropriations committee. On several previous occasions they have measured swords over canal legislation. Two years ago a similar bill was passed by a vote of 224 to 36.

The bill as passed authorizes the president to secure from the states of Costa Rica and Nicaragua in behalf of the United States control of such a portion of the territory belonging to said states as may be desirable and necessary on which to excavate, construct and protect a canal suitable to the wants of modern navigation and commerce and appropriates such a sum as may be necessary to secure the control of said territory.

Section 2 authorizes the president, after securing control of the needed territory, to direct the secretary of war to construct such canal from the Caribbean sea at a point near Greytown, in Nicaragua, by way of Lake Nicaragua, to a point on the Pacific ocean near Brito and also to construct proper harbors at the termini of said canal and to make necessary provisions for the defense of the canal and harbors.

Sections 3 and 4 authorize the president to make such surveys as may be necessary and to employ such persons in constructing the canal as may to him seem wise and directs that in the construction of the canal the river San Juan and Lake Nicaragua shall be used as far as they are available.

Section 5 authorizes the president to guarantee to the governments of Costa Rica and Nicaragua the use of the canal and harbors upon terms to be agreed upon for all vessels owned by said states and by citizens thereof.

The last section makes a present appropriation of $10,000,000 to carry on this work and authorizes the secretary of war to enter into proper contracts for material and work as may be deemed necessary therefor, such work and material to be paid for as appropriations may be made from time to time. The section fixes the aggregate cost at $180,000,000, to be drawn from the treasury on warrants of the president.

The open session of the senate was devoted to routine business. After an executive session the senate at 1:50 adjourned until Monday.

The senate in executive session confirmed the nominations of Hon. L. M. Shaw to be secretary of the treasury and of Hon. Henry C. Payne to be postmaster general. The confirmation of Mr. Shaw was accomplished without comment, but there was some controversy over the action of the committee on postoffices in reporting Mr. Payne's nomination without going through the formality of a meeting.

THE CITY OFFICES.

It is not surprising that a report should gain credence that the contemplated change of the city offices is the result of politics. There are many who believe that public officials never act unless they have some political reason for so doing. In this case, however, the persons concerned would tend to strengthen the belief.

J. B. Coward, in whose building the offices are now located, has been a member of the faction in the First ward which has fought that of which City Clerk J. T. MacMurray is the dominant spirit. David C. Smalley, one of the owners of the Smalley building, has been a firm adherant of Mr. MacMurray. In many cities, there would be nothing strange in the faction in power taking patronage from the opposition and conferring it on its friends.

It so happens that the members of the Common Council are men who can be trusted not to injure the city's interests for their own gain. By their past acts, they have proved that they have conducted the city affairs on business principles. If they find that they can favor their friends and protect the city at the same time, they will probably do so. One member of the Common Council has said that the decision which the Common Council will reach will be strictly on business lines and there is no reason to believe differently.

Both sites for the city offices have their advantages and disadvantages. The question seems to have settled down as to whether or not the gain to the city coming from a change to the Smalley building will be equal to the increase in the cost. While the new offer made by Mr. Coward has put a different phase on the situation and may possibly result in a continuation of the city offices in their present quarters, the impression prevails generally that the decision of the Council is likely to be in favor of the Smalley building.

There has been so much said about the unsatisfactory service of the New Jersey Central Railroad of late that it was interesting to know something of the company's side of the controversy. The remarkably complete account of the conference between the railroad officials and the delegation from the Board of Trade was read with great interest by every Daily Press reader. It made public, for the first time, the reasons for some of the troubles of the Jersey Central and the possibilities of their being remedied in the near future.

A story has eminated from Jersey City to the effect that the Democratic members of the State Legislature would have no honorary candidate for United States Senator but would combine with certain Republican legislators to bring about the defeat of John W. Griggs for the place. While such a combination is possible, it is by no means probable. It is likely that the Democrats will have a candidate of their own and will take no part in the contest which is, at present, interesting the Republican politicians all over the State.

No matter how one may feel reagrding the rights and wrongs of the troubles in South Africa, we cannot but feel the highest respect for those men who are using every possible effort to win aid and sympathy for the fighting burghers. Those who have met the representative of that sturdy race who is now stopping in this city have found him a very courteous gentleman. His career has been a remarkable one and his story will probably be listened to with interest if he decides to appear in public here.

According to the Philadelphia Record the publisher of the Ladies' Home Journal and the Saturday Evening Post affirms that the success of these periodicals "was built up by advertising at a cost of from $200,000 to $300,000 a year." Of all the theories of business success, he asserts that "there is only one thing that is absolutely sure, and that is: Good advertising, if persisted in, surely pays."

It is now only a question of time before the fence separating the tracks at the North Avenue station will be painted a light color. Even Vice President Warren has seen the wisdom of painting it as we have before suggested and that will probably be the means of bringing about the desired result in time.

This evening will end the week of prayer services in most of the local evangelical churches. The services have, throughout the week, been generally well attended despite the fact that the weather has not always been of the most desirable kind.

There is no doubt as to the healthy and prosperous condition of the Knights of Columbus. The evidence displayed at the first anniversary of Watchung Council of that order, the other evening, was very convincing.

While there were no Plainfielders killed or injured in the terrible disaster in the Harlem tunnel, there was one of the victims who was on his way to this city when the accident occurred.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Somerset taxpayers will not be saddened by the report that the Union Freeholders will not spend any more money for new bridges until the appropriations are made in April.—Somerset Messenger.

When a Somerset county jury declared that three toes from a woman's foot were worth $1,666 apiece after being amputated by a railroad train, it must be taken for granted that they were all great toes.—Newark News.

The Democrats talk of giving the complimentary nominations for United States Senator to Judge Howard Carrow, of Camden; Alvah Clark, of Somerset; James Smith, Jr., Allan L. McDermott or Mayor Seymour, of Newark. The signs are that McDermott will be the man.—Paterson Press.

A good deal of embezzlement and financial dishonesty has been brought to light in the past year, but, happily, not so much as in some former years. This proves that the standard of financial honesty is being slowly raised. The record of the last four years is as follows: 1898, $5,851,263; 1899, $2,218,373; 1900, $4,660,134; 1901, $4,085,659. The banks suffered most during the last year, their total losses aggregating $1,513,496. These figures are undoubtedly large, but not nearly so great as the totals of former years.—Elizabeth Journal.

The contest for United States Senator is, of course, the most absorbing political topic in New Jersey. But there are momentary lulls in the discussion of favorites, when possible changes in the offices of Secretary of State and Attorney-General are briefly discussed. It is generally known that Col. S. D. Dickinson, of Hudson county, would like to succeed Secretary George Wurts, of Paterson, and that Senator Thomas N. McCarter, of Essex county, would accept the office of Attorney-General. The friends of Mr. Wurts will make an earnest effort to have him retained, basing their support upon his efficient discharge of the office.—New York Tribune.

Two Brick Stores.

Frank Neal will erect two brick store buildings as an addition to his property at the corner of West Front street and Central avenue in the near future. J. C. Manning will do the work. The estimated cost of the improvements is $3,000.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Demick, Somerville, Ind. "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." You don't live by what you eat, but by what you digest and assimilate. If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food. You don't have to diet. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

In a Debate at North Plainfield High School This Morning.

The tariff question was the subject of a debate held by the government classes of the North Plainfield High School this morning. The debaters in favor of the continuation of the Republican poilcy won.

The subject was: "Resolved, that the time has now come when the policy known as protection should be abolished." Miss Sadie Winckler and Miss Stella Vermeule presented the affirmative side, while Miss Harriet Messersmith and Miss Agnes LaBoyteaux argued against the policy now in force.

The judges were James R. Joy, of the borough Board of Education, Mrs. Frank French, a former teacher, and Miss Mertie Montague, one of the present teachers. In form and delivery the judges decided that the two contesting sides were about equal, and the decision was given on the arguments made. In this the negative side excelled.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

The thrifty housewife is only too well acquainted with the fact that during the past weeks hens have been taking a vacation and eggs in consequence are daily becoming scarcer. There is one flock of fowls, however, which is still keeping up its reputation and doing its utmost to prevent the rise in price of the, at present, luxury. It belongs to Frank Hedden, of West Fourth street, and numbers forty-three members. From this number Mr. Hedden receives daily no less than twenty-five eggs. This is considered remarkable by chicken fanciers.

At the entertainment of the Exempt Firemen's Association, Monday evening, B Frank Coriell, president of the Common Council, took occasion to say, regarding the expenditures for the fire deparmtment, that the fire committee of the Council stood between Chief Doane and the taxpayers. He added that it was through Chief Doane's indomitable pluck and perseverance that the city has such an excellent department. Chief Doane has a faculty of asking for a good deal more than is absolutely needed and out of such a large request he is sure to get a good share of what he asks for.

Two Residences.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane has granted two permits to Mrs. Ethel R. Lloyd, of North Plainfield. One is for the erection of a frame dwelling on the north side of Thornton avenue, east of Park avenue, and the other is for the erection of a similar dwelling on the south side of Thornton avenue, east of Park avenue. William H. Kirch is the architect and carpenter and J. W. Mnndy is the mason. The estimated cost of each dwelling is $3,500.

Miss Edna Cain, of Bound Brook, who has been visiting friends in this city, has returned home.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 12. "Pledged For Service." Text. II Chron. xv.

"They entered into a covenant to seek the Lord God of their fathers."

The highest and best work of the individual is not done in separation from others, but in society and often in co-operation. Team work calls out peculiar qualities of our nature not otherwise exercised. But in this united action there must be first a common understanding and agreement. Here is the value of pledges or covenants. The desirable course is clearly pointed out, and those interested wish to go ahead. Then comes the open promise, "we will work together." This is just what workers of every variety have to do.

It is the same in religious affairs as in matters of business, we pledge to each other, and especially to God, that we will do certain things which will be helpful to ourselves and others in the church and in Christian work.

Of course there is danger in this—that some may pledge simply because others do and have no deep appreciation of the principles involved and no real heart enthusiasm in the service performed. But even with these serious defects who will not say it is better to do so than not to do at all?

The pledge in the League is of great value to those whose habits of life are not matured and fixed. It settles the course of action to be followed and avoids useless debate each time a duty presents itself and gives a fixed purpose in place of vacillation. A company of young people agree to attend the week evening prayer meeting of the church regularly and take part in the exercises. Is that of any value? Watch and see. If they keep the pledge six months, it will greatly change many things. The attendance and interest in the service will increase surprisingly. No other engagements will be made for those evenings, and soon other people will fall into the same plan of making no other engagements for those times. When the night comes, there will be no hesitation as to what to do. All has been settled in advance. No lectures, concerts or anything else is allowed to interfere.

In the meeting itself things will alter. We are Christians and are pledged to support this service. We have an experience and a desire to grow in grace. To advance we must use the present power. So at the very first of the meeting we pray and speak as we have opportunity. After a little while we come prepared and find ourselves no longer dreading the duty, but glad of the privilege.

Our enjoyment increases and our ability also. Others are encouraged and stimulated by our words and example. We also receive help from them. The burden grows light, and the pledge remains not as a hard and fast rule which binds us close, but as a custom which is cherished and enjoyed.

Many of the great revivals of history have had much of their success based on the covenants made by the people to be true to God and each other. The more closely we study the great reform in Asa's time the more we are impressed with the value of the vows of fidelity made by the people of Israel. "All Judah rejoiced at the oath."

Much of the success of early Methodism was due to the faithfulness of the people to their covenants of Christian service.

The Image of True Self.

Every man who came to Jesus saw in Him the image of his own true self, the thing that he might be and ought to be. Hundreds of them were not ready for the sight and went away to be not what they might be nor what they ought to be, but what they basely chose to be. But none the less the pattern has been shown to them in the mount. Cannot you go to Christ today and find the idea of yourself in him? In Christ's thought of you at this moment there is a picture of you which is perfectly distinct and separate and clear. It is not a vague, blurred picture, with all the special colors washed away. If you give up your life to serving and loving Christ, one of the blessings of your consecration of yourself to Him will be that in Him will open up to you this pattern of yourself. You will see your possible self as He sees it, and then life will have but one purpose and wish for you, which will be that you may realize that idea of yourself which you have seen in Him.—Phillips Brooks.

It Must Be Always Right.

We cannot do right today and wrong tomorrow! It must be always right today, tomorrow and every day, for only by constant care and watchfulness can we keep our lives near the right, when so many stand ready to dim our light and blight our hopes with temptation on all sides. No life can be so beautiful as to give light to others without having its brightness reflected on the Giver. So, not for one reason, but for many, should our examples be of the best. If we will be faithful, we shall be blessed and give joy to those about us. And thus we may look forward hopefully to the evening of life.

And the night shall be filled with music,
And the cares that infest the day
Shall fold their tents like the Arabs
And silently pass away.

—Universalist.

The Angels Near.

Not only in the olden time
A ladder stretched from earth to sky,
A weary pilgrim at the foot
And angels issuing from on high.

Forever where a yearning heart,
Bewildered, far from love and home,
Seeks God and will not be denied
With messages the angels come.

Invisible, the spirit rounds
Join earth to heaven everywhere.
So tell thine utmost need and know
There is a passage for thy prayer.

The Destructive Boy

By JANE STORY

Half a dozen boys were on their way home from school along a city street. They were from six to fourteen years old. A few blocks away from the schoolhouse was an empty shop. The sign "To Let" was pasted inside the show window. It was very handsome plate glass; could not have cost less than $50.

"Let's smash that sign," said one of them. They looked up and down the street. Then one of the large boys hurled a stone with all his might through that beautiful plate glass, crashing it into a hundred fragments. Then the young savages took to their heels and ran away out of sight lest a policeman catch them. And all the boys laughed as at a good joke.

Boys the world over are untamed young cubs, with the savage instinct of destruction fierce and rampant within them. It is the instinct of the naked barbarian to pound a watch to pieces to see what makes it tick. It is sometimes hard to believe there is not considerable pure deviltry in boys and barbarians. What else, for instance, could make a little boy take his hat, brand new, hurl it in the air, wallow it in the dust and then use it as a football for himself and his comrades? Why should it be impossible to keep the glass in street lamps in the vicinity of schoolhouses unless there is an element of original sin in the untamed boy nature? In country places the instinct of destruction displays itself more openly than in cities because there is less restraint. Boy marauders, every one of whom can probably say the multiplication table backward and draw from memory an outline map of his own county, roam through farmers' fields, taking a hatchet along to chop and pry apart wire fences that are in their way, destroying fruit and vegetables, burning down trees and sometimes farm buildings as though there were no such thing as law or moral sentiment in this life. If there be an empty house in their track of destruction, there will be not a window left in it or scarcely a whole board in its fence.

The hoodlums who thus leave ruin in their path are as often as not the sons of the most respectable citizens of a community.

Now, mothers and teachers are the ones responsible for this savagery, and we are to recall that three out of four public school teachers are women. There is a great cry at present for the teaching of manners in public schools. It is said we are turning out a lot of boy boors on the world in respect to politeness and common courtesy, especially toward women. But there is a matter far more vital than that a boy should take his hat off when addressing a lady or entering a room, and that is the inculcation of the respect due to property and to the useful and handsome things.

A higher ethical sentiment and increased refinement are what the growing influence of woman in modern times means, if it means anything, and this must show itself first in the betterment of the rising generation. Let the teacher assemble her boys and show them the hideousness of wanton waste and destruction and let her put it good and strong. Let her tell them stories of how, for instance, window glass is made, the interesting and really wonderful transformation the crude materials go through to become the crystal clear substance which lets light into houses. Let her tell them of all the labor required to perfect the farmer's products and the boards and wire used in fencemaking. Stories will always be at hand to chain the attention of her pupils. Mothers and teachers can lay it before boys how they themselves must one day be workers and employers of labor and that serious loss will be entailed on them through wanton destruction of their property.

JANE STORY.

My Strangest Case

BY GUY BOOTHBY.

Author of "DR. NIKOLA," "THE BEAUTIFUL WHITE DEVIL," "PHAROS, THE EGYPTIAN," Etc.

[Copyrighted, 1901, by Ward, Lock & Co.]

On a certain bitterly cold day in January I reached Liverpool from the United States, and took the train for my old home. My father and mother had long since died, and now all that remained to me of them was the stone slab that covered their resting place in the quiet little churchyard at the foot of the hill.

"Well, here I am," I said to myself, "33 years old and alone in the world. Nobody knows me in England, but it won't be my fault if they don't hear of George Fairfax before very long. I'll be off to London and try my fortune there."

Next day I made my way to the great metropolis, and installed myself at a small private hotel, while I looked about me preparatory to commencing business. To talk of gaining a footing in London is all very well in its way, but it is by no means so easy a task to accomplish as it might appear. Doubtless it can be done fairly quickly if one is prepared to spend large sums of money in advertising, and is not afraid to blow one's own trumpet on every possible occasion, but that is not my line, and besides, even had I so wished, I had not the money to do it. For a multitude of reasons I did not feel inclined to embark my hard-earned savings on such a risky enterprise. I preferred to make my way by my own diligence, and with that end in view I rented an office in a convenient quarter, furnished it, put a small advertisement in a few of the papers, and then awaited the coming of my clients.

As I have a long and curious story to tell, and this book is only intended to be the narration of a certain episode in my life, a detailed description of my first three years in London would not only be superfluous, but in every way a waste of time. Let it suffice that my first case was that of the now notorious Pilchard street diamond robbery, my success in which brought me business from a well-known firm in Hatton Gardens. As the public will doubtless remember, they had been robbed of some valuable gems between London and Amsterdam in a singularly audacious manner. My second was the case of the celebrated Russian swindler, who called herself Countess Demikoff. This case alone took me nearly six months to unravel, but I did not grudge the time, seeing that I was well paid for my labors, and that I managed to succeed where the police had failed. From that time forward I think I may say without boasting that I have been as successful as any man of my age has a right to expect to be. What is better still, I am now in the happy position of being able to accept or decline business as I choose. It is in many respects a hard life, and at all times is attended with a fair amount of risk, but you cannot make omelettes without breaking eggs, and if anyone chooses to spend his life running to earth men who are waging war against society, well, he must not grumble if he receives some hard knocks in return.

After these preliminaries I will proceed to show how I came to be mixed up in the most curious case it has ever been my good, or evil, fortune to encounter. It showed me a side of human nature I had not met before, and it brought me the greatest happiness a man can ever hope to find.

CHAPTER II.

All business London, and a good many other people besides, must remember the famous United States Empire bank fraud. Bonds had been stolen and negotiated, vast sums of money were discovered to be missing, and the manager and one of the directors were absent also. So cleverly had the affair been worked, and so flaring were the defalcations, that had it not been for the public-spirited behavior and generosity of two of the directors, the position of the bank would have been most seriously compromised, if not shattered altogether. How the culprits had managed to slip through the fingers of the law in the first place no one could say, but the fact remains that they were able to get out of England, without, apparently, leaving a trace of their intentions or their whereabouts behind them. Scotland Yard took the matter up with its usual promptness, and at first were confident of success. They set their cleverest detectives to work upon it, and it was not until more than a month had elapsed that the men engaged were compelled most reluctantly to admit their defeat. They had done their best; it was the system under which they worked that was to blame. In the detection of crime, or in the tracing of a criminal, it is best, as in every other walk of life, to be original.

One morning on arriving at my office I found a letter awaiting me from the remaining directors of the bank, in which they inquired if I could make it convenient to call upon them at the head-office that day. To tell the truth, I had been expecting this summons for nearly a week, and was far from being displeased when it came. The work I had expected them to offer me was after my own heart, and if they would only trust the business to me and give me a free hand, I was prepared on my part to bring the missing gentlemen to justice.

Needless to say, I called upon them at the hour specified, and after a brief wait was conducted to the board room, where the directors sat in solemn conclave.

The chairman, Sir Walter Bracebridge, received me on behalf of his colleagues.

"We wrote to you, Mr. Fairfax," he said, "in order to find out whether you could help us concerning the difficulty in which we find ourselves placed. You of course are aware of the serious trouble the bank has experienced, and of the terrible consequences which have resulted therefrom?"

I admitted that I was quite conversant with it, and waited to hear what he would have to say next.

"As a matter of fact," he continued, "we have sent for you to know whether you can offer us any assistance in our hour of difficulty? Pray take a chair, and let us talk the matter over and see what conclusion we can arrive at."

I seated myself, and we discussed the affair to such good purpose that, when I left the board room, it was on the understanding that I was to take up the case at once, and that my expenses and a very large sum of money should be paid me, provided I could manage to bring the affair to a successful termination. I spent the remainder of that day at the bank, carefully studying the various memoranda. A great deal of what I had read and heard had been mere hearsay, and this it was necessary to discard in order that the real facts of the case might be taken up, and the proper conclusions drawn therefrom. For three days I weighed the case carefully in my mind, and at the end of that time was in a position to give the board a definite answer to their inquiries. Thereupon I left England, with the result that exactly 12 weeks later the two men, so much wanted, were at Bow street, and I had the proud knowledge of knowing that I had succeeded where the men who had tried before me had so distinctly failed.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For Week Beginning Jan. 12. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Entering the kingdom. John iii, 1-8; John v, 24.

1. The kingdom. A kingdom is the territory or country over which a king bears rule. The kingdom of God is therefore the sphere in which God is the supreme ruler. The heart of a Christian is a kingdom of God. The whole realm of Christian believers is the kingdom of God in this life. Heaven is also the kingdom of God, for He is sovereign ruler there. God's kingdom in this world, the kingdom meant in the topic, is not a temporal but a spiritual kingdom. The Jews were looking for a temporal king and a temporal kingdom. But in these things they were in error. God's kingdom is not made up of temporal things, but of spiritual things. He rules the life through the heart. There is no physical territory in this world over which He rules particularly. His kingdom in this world embraces the hearts and lives of all those who have come into the position where the will of God is supreme in their lives.

2. Entering the kingdom. How may we enter it? How may we come into this spiritual relation to God? How may we enter the realm where God's will is supreme? In answer to this question Christ says, "Ye must be born again or from above," and, further, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he cannot enter the kingdom of God." What did He mean? He meant that the spirit of God must change our dispositions, give us new hearts, new motives and new principles before we can come into the kingdom. This is the baptism of the Spirit. That which signifies it is the baptism of water. The two together embrace the external form and the internal reality.

A foreigner to become an American citizen must go through certain external forms. He must be naturalized. But this does not make him an American. This is the external act. But it is only when by association and study he has imbibed the American spirit that he is really an American. Thus the sinner, who is a foreigner to the kingdom of God, can only enter it by being naturalized (born of water) and by receiving a new spirit, which is the work of the Holy Ghost. How the Holy Ghost gives us this new spirit we do not know. God says He will in answer to desire and to prayer. A foreigner must desire and ask (pray) for American citizenship before it can be his. In his ignorance he may not know what naturalization means, but he does know its results. Whereas he could not exercise the prerogatives of a citizen, now he can. He could not vote at elections, but now he can. The philosophy of the new birth is inexplicable, but the fact is a glorious reality. A new heart is manifested in a new life. Entrance into the kingdom of God in this life, which assures us of citizenship in His heavenly kingdom, is possible for all who want it and will ask God for it.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. lv, 1-7; Eccl. xii, 1; Matt. vi, 33; Mark ii, 14; Luke xv, 11-24; John xiv, 1-9; xx, 31; Acts ix, 1-8; viii, 26-40; xvi, 25-34.

The Worth of the Scriptures.

Nowhere are there more noble prayers and more exalted praise, nowhere are the varied phases of human life and of spiritual feeling more divinely expressed, nowhere are the high motives of life so loftily thrown into form, nowhere are more splendid examples given of the beautiful and holy way of life, nowhere is there such a character revealed as that of Jesus Christ, and with Him are a host of men and women who have well earned the admiration and imitation of all those who wish to live in heaven while they move on earth. To read, mark, learn and inwardly digest them is one of our highest duties—a guard, a strength in life and an impelling power. Let them be a daily companion and friend, whose voice, in a hundred recollected texts, comes to you in hours of temptation, in the days of desperate crisis, in trials that seem too much for human weakness, to inspire patience, to give you an immortal strength, to comfort you with hope of eternal joy. God speaks through them to your soul, and mighty as His love is the power of His spirit in them.—Stopford A. Brooke.

Rules to Live From.

The longer I live the more I feel the importance of adhering to the rules which I have laid down for myself in relation to such matters:

First.—To hear as little as possible whatever is to the prejudice of others.

Second.—To believe nothing of the kind till I am absolutely forced to it.

Third.—Never to drink in the spirit of one who circulates an evil report.

Fourth.—Always to moderate as far as I can the unkindness which is expressed toward others.

Fifth.—Always to believe that if the other side were heard a very different account would be given of the matter.—Simeon.

The Noble Life.

If we will not let the world—either the aggregate of material things or society, with its maxims and ways—hinder us from the noble life, if we will not allow it to prevent, but use it to aid, us in seeing God, in loving Him, in doing our duty for His dear sake, then, however solitary or sad or unsuccessful my life may otherwise have been, I have conquered, and all else is defeat.—Alexander Maclaren.

Practice What You Pray For.

Pray modestly as to the things of this life, earnestly for what may be helps to your salvation, intensely for salvation itself, that you may ever behold God, love God. Practice in life whatever you pray for, and God will give it you more abundantly.—E. B. Pusey.

THREE GAMES ROLLED IN DAILY PRESS BOWLING LEAGUE.

No Phenominal Scores Were Made But the Bowling Was Very Steady.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Jan. 10.—The Westfield Club bowling team carried off the honors, last evening, when three games were rolled with the Cranford Casino team in The Daily Press Bowling League tournament. While the home team did not make phenomenal scores, the bowling throughout was steady. On the other hand the visitors were not up to their usual form. They would start off well, but when the fourth or fifth frame was reached they would fall down. In consequence the home team won all three games. The first were won by excellent scores, being above 800, while the score of the third game was 776.

There were several individual high scores as a glance at the following will show:

BROKE THROUGH ICE.

Small Boy Had Narrow Escape From Drowning in Pool in Green Brook Yesterday.

John Coffey, Jr., the six-year-old son of John Coffey, of West Front street, had a thrilling experience, yesterday afternoon, which nearly resulted in his being drowned.

The little fellow was playing on the ice covering a small pond in Green brook in the rear of his home, near Cadmus's dam, when it broke and threw him in the water. It was quite deep at the place but with rare presence of mind he clung to the edge of the ice and lustily called for help. His cries were heard by his mother and Mrs. Harry Busby, who hurried to his assistance. He was rescued from his perilous predicament none too soon as his little fingers were fast being numbed from the cold and to release their hold meant certain death.

He was taken home and at once put through the course generally adapted to head off a possible cold. It is thought he will suffer no ill effects from his impromptu bath.

STREET SPRINKLING.

Considered at First Meeting of the New Councilmanic Street Committee Held Last Night.

The first meeting of the new councilmanic street committee for this year was held last evening. There were present Chairman R. I. Tolles, Leslie M. Daniel, Edward E. Pray, Robert L. Lee, and President B. Frank Coriell, the latter taking the place of Mr. vanHerwerden.

The only matter discussed was that in reference to the proposed plan of street sprinkling by the city. This matter was introduced at the first meeting of the Council and it is the desire of the committee to consider it early in the year. If the macadamized streets can be sprinkled for eight months of the year without increasing the tax rate too much the committee will make such a recommendation to the Council. The committee will also consider the advisability of sprinkling the outlying streets and letting the rest be done as at present.

LOG FELL ON HIM.

J. D. Loizeaux Injured at Highland Park This Morning While Loading Timber.

Mrs. J. D. Loizeaux, of East Second street, received word from New Brunswick by telehpone, this noon, informing her that her husband, the East End lumber dealer, had met with a severe accident shortly before 12 o'clock at Highland Park.

As near as could be learned, Mr. Loizeaux, in company with a number of workmen, was loading heavy timbers on a wagon when a large log slipped and knocked him down. One leg was broken and he suffered contusions.

As soon as possible, he was removed to the hotel at Highland Park and a New Brunswick physician attended him. He will be brought to his home in the New Brunswick ambulance this afternoon.

SAVED HIS LEG.

Thomas Hendry Had Narrow Escape From Having it Crushed.

Thomas Hendry, of Stebbins place, is confined to his bed with a severely injured knee, the result of an accident at the Pond Tool Works a few days ago. He was engaged in working about a planer when in some way a foot became wedged in the machinery. Before it could be extracted, the planer bed forced his knee against an upright and came very near crushing it. It was only through his presence of mind in bending as far back as possible that the member was saved.

LARGEST ATTENDANCE.

At the Methodist Week of Prayer Meeting in Vincent Chapel.

The attendance at the meeting in Vincent chapel, last evening, was one of the largest of the week. The service was led by Rev. John MacMurray, of the Monroe Avenue church. He gave a lengthly discourse on the reconciliation between God and man.

Tonight's service will be at the Monroe Avenue church and will be lead by James R. Joy. It will be in the form of a Sunday-school meeting.

Plaintiff Couldn't Appear.

The contract case brought by Cuyler & Mohler against William W. Mills, of Summit avenue, was postponed in Justice Mattison's court yesterday. The representative of the plaintiff firm, whose house is in Baltimore, Md., was unable to be present. The case will be tried Thursday, January 24

Thirteen Came Forward.

The evangelistic meeting at Mount Olive Baptist church, last evening, resulted in thirteen people confessing Christ. The church was filled to its capacity. The meetings will continue all next week and in the afternoons, Pastor Jackson will preach fifteen minute sermons to the children.

A little daughter of Christopher Stahl, of Manning avenue, is suffering with scarlet fever. The house has been quarantined.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER.

Rev. G. N. Karner Has Resigned His Charge at Albany.

Many Plainfielders will be interested in the following which appeared in a recent issue of the Albany Journal, concerning a former resident of this city. He is Rev. George N. Karner, son of A. B. Karner, of Bradford avenue and son-in-law of Abram Cadmus, of Plainfield avenue.

"The Rev. George N. Karner, pastor of the West End Presbyterian church, has resigned. In his letter of resignation, which he read to his congregation yesterday he asks that the matter be considered at a congregational meeting to be called for that purpose on Monday, January 20, at 8 p. m. It is understood that the meeting will be presided over by the Rev. David O. Mears, D. D., of the Fourth Presbyterian church. In all probability the resignation will be accepted, as it is said by intimate acquaintances of the pastor that he has received a call to a church in one of the New England States and has practically decided to go.

"The West End Presbyterian church under Mr. Karner's charge has steadily grown in membership and church influence, and today is one of the best institutions of its kind in the city. Mr. Karner was installed as pastor of this church on November 18, 1890, and in the eleven years of his pastorate he has seen the church membership grow from 230 to 450, or nearly double. It is today free from debt and in good financial condition.

"In an interview this morning with a Journal reporter Mr. Karner said that his plans for the future were not yet matured. He said that his pastorial relations with his people were satisfactory but he felt that a change once in eleven years was perhaps the best thing for the church."

SECOND LECTURE.

Dr. J. H. Buchanan Will Give Illustrated Talk on Bacteriology.

The second in the series of free lectures given at the Somerset street school building under the auspices of the borough Board of Education takes place Friday evening, Jan. 17.

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, the school physician, will give an illustrated talk on "Bacteriology." F. E. Kinsman, who was to have taken this date for a lecture on "Electricity," will not deliver his address until a fortnight after Dr. Buchanan's talk.

This postponement is due to the fact that Mr. Kinsman is busily engaged advancing the interests of a patent automatic train stopper, which prevents two trains colliding. He is endeavoring to have the arrangement adopted by the New York Central Railroad.

WAGON OVERTURNED.

Crowded into Ditch, Linke's Wagon Was Thrown Over and Wrecked.

While returning from New Brunswick, early last evening, James McElvoy, driver for Frank Linke, had his horse forced into a ditch on the Stelton road, beyond New Market, by a teamster going in the opposite direction.

The wagon was overturned and partially wrecked and McElvoy was badly cut. A large number of bottles were also broken. McElvoy clung to the reins and prevented the horses from running away.

Birthday Dinner Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Wiliams, of Plainfield avenue, celebrated the twelfth anniversary of their marriage by giving a dinner party to twelve of their friends, last evening. They received many handsome presents on the occasion.

Mrs. W. L. Stryker, of Bound Brook, has been spending a few days with friends in Plainfield.

FOUND MAN'S TONGUE.

Discovered in Coal Yard Near Railroad—Supposed to Have Been the Man's Killed by Cars.

While a workman in the employ of Hetfield & Company, who have coal chutes adjoining Cadmus's mill on South Second street, was clearing the snow from the car platforms, yesterday afternoon, he noticed a peculiar red object around which the snow had melted. He picked it up and was startled to find it was a human tongue.

The police were notified and, on investigating, decided it was the tongue of the unknown man killed in the rear of the mill last Sunday noon. It was subsequently cremated. The dismembered portion was evidently thrown high in the air as the coal chutes are a good distance from the railroad tracks and are separated by a ten foot fence.

CITY WAGED WAR ON UNCLEANED SIDEWALKS

Street Commissioner Gavett's Men Cleaned Off Walks at the Owner's Expense.

MANY HAD FORGOTTEN.

POLICE TOOK NOTES OF THE OFFENDING ONES AND REPORTED.

Gavett's Men Started Out Yesterday Morning and Cleaned Off Walks—The Cost Will be Added to Owner's Taxes.

A large number of local property owners will have occasion when they receive their next tax bills to regret Wednesday's snow storm. It didn't amount to a great deal, but still three inches of snow on the sidewalks, allowed to remain until the sun can get in its best work, doesn't make the best walking to be found. A goodly number of citizens didn't think of this or didn't care and allowed their walks to remain uncleaned.

But while they slept the vigilant police took notes and the result of their investigations became apparent yetserday morning. A gang of Street Commissioner Gavett's men swooped down on unsuspecting West Enders and began cleaning the walks in front of the places named by the police. They were seen by many on the black list who immediately sallied out with brooms and shovels and thwarted the city men.

They caught a good many napping, however. In the afternoon they changed their base of operations to the north of the city. Here the same plan was gone through with and the weary shovellers quit work, last evening, they had cleared the slush from in front of scores of homes, the owners of which will pay for the work, at full union rates with interest added.

This morning the gang resumed work in the eastern part of the city and still found lots to do. Aristocratic residents were found to be as negligent in this respect as humbler citizens, if not more so. They will continue in this section all day.

There are only two courses left open to Street Commissioner Gavett in regard to the non-sidewalk cleaning habit, and the one mentioned has always been chosen by him as bringing the most satisfactory results. The other is to wait four hours after the snow has ceased to fall and then have the offenders haled before the city judge who can impose a fine of $5. This is done only where the property owner is intentionally negligent.

REPAIRING RAILROAD.

Richards Brothers & Gaston, of Somerville, Will Repair Tracks of Central Along Lehigh River.

The damage of the New Jersey Central tracks and other railroad property by water in the vicinity of Mauch Chunk will amount to several million dollars. The work of restoring the property to its former condition will soon be started by the contractors, Richards Brothers & Gaston, of Somerville. So thoroughly was the roadbed wrecked that trains have been running through the streets of the town on the trolley tracks in order to get through at all.

Of late the superintendents of the road have been spending much time with all their engineering force trying to make proper repairs. The contract is a very large one and the firm securing it were given the work be cause of the satisfactory manner in which it completed the work on Vanderveer's cut above Raritan, last summer.

HORACE DOTY WAS ACQUITTED

HIS CASE WAS CONSIDERED BY THE ESSEX COUNTY GRAND JURY.

Wm. McCulloch, of Bound Brook, Charged Him With Selling Hay and Keeping the Money.

Horace Doty, of this city, familiarly known as "Doc," who was arrested here a few weeks ago on a charge of larceny, was honorably acquitted by the Essex county Grand Jury, Wednesday. The complainant in the case was Willliam McCulloch, of Bound Brook.

The crime, of which Doty was accused, was alleged to have taken place at Newark thirteen months ago. McCulloch alleged that Doty sold a load of hay belonging to him and had failed to return the money. He failed to substantiate the charge and Doty was at once ordered released.

The defendant had been at Syracuse, N. Y., for a year previous to his arrest and visited Newark to attend the funeral of a sister, Miss Lily Doty, who had been killed by the cars. The Newark police shadowed him to this city after the funeral and arrested him on West Front street.

RECEIVED NEW CARS.

Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company Has Received Six New Ones of an Improved Pattern.

The Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company has just received from the J. G. Brill Company, of Philadelphia, six new trolley cars of the latest improved type. They are substantially built throughout and the interior and exterior finish is handsome.

They are constructed on the general plan of Mr. Radel's palace on wheels, the "Annie R."

The seats are covered with woven fibre material, and run lengthwise. The cars will hold about forty passengers. In the centre of one side is an improved coal heater. The cars are designated as solid vestibuled ends, both outer platforms having double hinged doors that can be instantly closed, protecting the motorman and conductor from the cold as well as storms.

It is the purpose to run two or three of the new cars on the suburban lines, while the others will be operated in New Brunswick. The cars are now being adjusted at the carhouse at Milltown and will be put into service this week.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Jan. 11.—The citizens of this place are very indignant at the way the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company is treating them.

After 8 o'clock nights cars are run hourly and after 11 none are run at all. This is contrary to the ordinance, which requires cars as late as midnight and to run half hourly.

The matter will come before the meeting of the Board of Commissioners Monday night.

MEETING CLOSED WITH SUNDAY-SCHOOL RALLY

Last of the Methodist Union Week of Prayer Services Held Last Night.

A LARGE ATTENDANCE.

MEETING WAS HELD IN THE MONROE AVENUE M. E. CHTRCH.

James R. Joy Told of the Difference Between the Original Sunday-School and That of the Present Day.

The last of the series of prayer meetings which have been held in the local Methodist churches during the past week, took place in Monroe Avenue church, last evening. It was in the nature of a Sunday-school rally and was attended by many Sunday-school workers from various parts of the city.

James R. Joy, of the First M. E. church, was in charge of the meeting and spoke at some length on the Sunday-school of today in contrast with its beginning 100 years ago. At that time, he said, it was merely a place made attractive enough to keep boys from the streets and where they were taught letters or recited the catechism. It had no other mission. Today it has many and is an indespensable part of the church.

The speaker pointed out the difference between the Sabbath-school and the public school, dwelling on the difficulties to be overcome by teachers in the former. But they are always successful, he said, because it is a God given task and in the Bible, the instructors have the greatest text book in the world.

At the close of Mr. Joy's remarks, the meeting was thrown open and many availed themselves of the opportunity to testify in behalf of the Sunday-school. Among them were Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, of the First M. E. church, Rev. G. W. Gardner, of Grace M. E. church and Walter Mc Gee, superintendent of the Monroe Avenue church school.

Dr. Snodgrass's remarks were especially interesing. He made strong the point that the Sunday-school is but too often looked upon merely as the nursery of the church and not given all the credit it deserves. Its influence on young men and women, he said, who have never joined the church, has been such that the impression made upon them has remained all through life.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Hoty, of Cincinnati, O., who is visiting relatives in this city.

Mrs. Martin Keiderling, of West Second street, who has been suffering from nervous trouble the past few weeks, was removed to the State hospital at Morris Plains this morning.

ASSAULTED HIM WITH WORDS

SUCH IS THE CHARGE MADE AGAINST VITELLO IN CITY COURT.

All Came Out of the Old Trouble Over the Sewing Machine Bought of Laturette.

Another phase of the Latourette-Vitello $2.50 sewing machine controversy came to the surface in the city court, this morning, but was not aired thoroughly owing to the absence of the plaintiff's lawyer.

The trouble, it will be remembered, originated in a row over an antiquated sewing machine which Vitello, known better as "Lucy Shoestrings," was to purchase on the installment plan. He claims he was euchred out of the machine and the first payment. He brought suit in Justice Hand's court and received judgment for $2 and costs. Latourette appealed.

In going to Latourette's store to discuss the question on one occasion, Vitello, it is said, forgot himself to such an extent, that he hurled a number of imprecations in mixed English and Italian at both the machine dealer and his daughter. Latourette immediately engaged a lawyer and made complaint against Vitello by his counsel, Assemblyman Newcorn was unable to be present this morning and the case was adjourned for one week.

TOWNSHIP KICKS.

Republicans of North Plainfield Township Want to Choose Their Own Representative.

A meeting of the Repvblicans of North Plainfield township was held Thursday evening for the purpose of advancing their interests so far as representation at the county convention is concerned. At present there are five delegates elected, four from the borough, which also chooses another for the township. This method is considered unfair by the township people, who wish at least to elect their own representative.

George A. Schmidt acted as chairman and Dr. Richard Moldenke as secretary. Among the other Republicans who lent their presence to the meeting were Henry L. Kline, H. Texier, A. B. Voorhees, John J. Clark, J. Worth Coddington and Stevens Beeching.

FAIR GROUNDS DISMANTLED.

Last of a Once Successful County Agricultural Society.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Jan. 11.—Yesterday the different people who purchased the buildings and fences on the old fair grounds, near this place, were busy moving them. The sale was made the day before by the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company, into whose possession the property came when the Somerset County Agricultural Society failed. The whole outfit sold for $925.

It was the last remnant of what was years ago one of the most successful county fairs. The State exhibitions, however, came into such prominence that the erstwhile famous Somerville fair went the way of the majority of the county fairs that were once largely looked forward to by country and city people alike.

GYPSIES HERE.

Encamped Out Somerset Street in Two "Prairie Schooners."

A band of gypsies are camping at the terminal of the trolley line on Somerset street. The members claim to be Turks and they are a jovial lot. They are three men and two women in the party. They live in two "prairie schooners."

The attractions they carry with them consist of a baboon and two bears. These animals give performances and their owners reap profits by taking up collections. The gypsies are journeying southward.

SUING TROLLEY.

David Mierowitz Has Started Action Against Trolley Co.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Jan. 11.—A suit for $2,000 damages was commenced yesterday in the Union county circuit court by David Mierowitz, of Plainfield, against the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central New Jersey Railway Company for injuries received September 15, while crossing the company's tracks at West Fourth street, Plainfield.

The Forty Hours Devotion begins at St. Joseph's church, at 10:30 o'clock mass tomorrow morning. It will end with the 8 o'clock mass, Tuesday morning. Both of these will be high masses, and Rev. Father Diettrich, of Bound Brook, will assist Rev. Father Miller, the rector.

FREE VACCINATION.

Board of Health Will Vaccinate All Without Charge on Stated Days Next Week.

In order that every known precaution to ward off small pox may be taken the Board of Health has decided to supervise the vaccination of all persons in the city, who are financially unable to bear the expense. The emergency hospital is in readiness should an epidemic appear at any time, but it is hoped that such a condition may be averted.

Due announcement of this privilege has been made by the Board of Health. Arrangements have been made for the vaccination of any person who may apply at the office of the health authorities in the Smalley building, on North avenue. The time set is Monday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons, of next week, at 4 o'clock.

All who urged to call at the office mentioned in order that they may be speadily vaccinated.

CAME IN FANCY COSTUMES

SURPRISE PARTY GIVEN FOR MISS HARRIET MESSERSMITH LAST NIGHT.

Affair Was Given in Honor of the Young Woman's Eighteenth Birthday.

A delightful surprise party was given in honor of Miss Harriet Messersmith by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Messersmith, of Westervelt avenue, last evening. The occasion was intended to mark the young woman's eighteenth birthday.

A merry time was enjoyed by the sixteen guests, most of whom appeared in masquerade costume. Many of the disguises were elaborate and all were striking. Dancing was the principal feature of the evening although parlor games came in as an additional attraction.

Among those costumed were: Miss Clyde Slater, night; Miss Mabel Stevens, Liberty; Miss Lulu Fuller, domino; Miss Winifred Carroll, gipsy; Miss Harriet Messersmith, flower girl; Miss Isabella Williams, highlander, and Miss Carrie Fuller, American girl, and Ray Stevens, coon; Harry Messersmith, naval cadet; Kendall Mason, dude; Fred Lounsbury, Filipino; Edgar Adams, Santa Claus; Graham Adams, young America, Wesley Messersmith, business man.

During the evening refreshments were served. An enjoyable feature of the affair was the distribution of presents by Santa Claus, impersonated by Edgar Adams. Each of the guests received a gift and some of the presents provoked considerable laughter. Miss Messersmith received a number of handsome remembrances of her birthday. It was long after midnight when the festivities ended.

DISPUTE OVER RENT.

City Judge Runyon Did Not Think the Complainant, Mrs. Kenyon, Had Been Assaulted.

Mrs. Lydia K. Kenyon was complainant in the city court this morning, against Mrs. Margaret Bullock, colored, whom she charged with assault and battery.

In her complaint, Mrs. Kenyon alleged she was struck twice by Mrs. Bullock while in quest of rent owed her by the defendant's daughter. The blows, she said, were not painful, but they hurt her dignity. In rebuttal, Mrs. Bullock proved she had nothing to do with the rent, was on her own proprety and that Mrs. Kenyon had advanced threateningly toward her after being ordered away. She also stated that Mrs. Kenyon had remarked to a daughter that if she was paid the rent, the complaint would be withdrawn.

City Judge Runyon dismissed the complaint.

OUT FOR BLOOD.

Much Interest Shown in This Evening's Match at Park Club.

Interest in the bowling match between the Benedicts and Bachelors is increasing at the Park Club. This evening the second—and perhaps final—game in the "cocked-hat" series takes place.

In the regular ten pin contest the Bachelors proved to be much superior to their married brethern, winning the first two games and carrying off the banner. They were somewhat surprised, when the tables were turned on them in the first game of the second series. This was played last Saturday evening, and the Benedicts won out handily.

For this evening the second game is scheduled and a big crowd of the members will be present to witness the contest.

Don't Live Together.

Constipation and health never go together. DeWitt's Little Early Risers promote easy action of the bowels without distress. "I have been troubled with costiveness nine years," says J. O. Greene, Depauw, Ind. "I have tried many remedies but Little Early Risers give best results." L. W. Randolph.

THEATRICAL.

Proctor's Newark Theatre has started upon what gives every evidence of being a highly successful career. Opened on Jan. 6 with two audiences which packed the house in every part, standing room only has ruled every afternoon and evening during the past week. The high character of the vaudeville presented, the brightness and cleanliness of the interior, the careful management and the many carefully observed points which go to the making of a well conducted theatre are in evidence. Canfield and Carleton, operatic duettist, head the native talent and Francesca Redding will provide a dramatic factor in the presentation of her little comedy "The Man From Texas." The sensational Cycle-Whirl remains the feature of the bill at Proctor's Twenty-third Street. Sam, Kittie and Clara Morton head the vaudeville delegation in their clever act and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Milton-Royle are secondary features in one of their best dramatic sketches. "A Temperance Town," one of the late Charley Hoyt's best comedy dramas, will be the offering at the Proctor Stock at the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street. Broadhurst's rousing comedy, "Why Smith Left Home," moves up to the Fifty-eighth Street for this week. General Stage Director Frederic Bond, of the Proctor Stock Company, returns to active stage duties again next week at the Fifth Avenue in the role in "At the White Horse Tavern," in which he at one time starred. Sydney Rosenfeld's adaptation from the German, as originally acted in New York, will serve also to introduce several other players who were in the road company.

Child Worth Millons.

"My child is worth millions to me," says Mrs. Mary Bird, of Harrisburg, Pa., "yet I would have lost her by croup had I not purchased a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure." One Minute Cough Cure is sure cure for coughs, croup and throat and lung troubles. An absolutely safe cough cure which acts immediately. The youngest child can take it with entire safety. The little ones like the taste and remember how often it helped them. Every family should have a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure handy. At this season especially it may be needed suddenly. L. W. A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

There is no particular season for buying a watch. You need one every hour. L. Moraller & Son, of Park avenue, have established a reputation for handling high grade timepieces at low prices.

There is scarcely a point in New Jersey that is not reached by S. Schener & Son, the grocers. With so many stores they are able to buy in large quantities. That they sell the best goods at low prices is well-known.

There is no time like the winter to appreciate beautiful flowers. If you want to see and purchase some of nature's fairest flowers call on Mrs. L. J. Denton, of West Front. She supplies flowers for all occasions, either sad or joyous.

The doctors grow rich and the general public poor by curing colds contracted from getting the feet cold and wet these days. Why not buy warm, comfortable and shapely shoes at Flynn Brothers, on West Front srteet, and save the doctor's bill?

You cannot drink too much pure milk. It's the greatest thing known for building up the run down system. Leave your order with the Plainefild Milk and Cream Co., of Watchung avenue, and you will be served regularly and there will be no worrying on your part over the quality of the milk.

The pies bought at John Wirth's bakery are just "like the kind that mother used to make." And the pastry, too, is the most delicious you ever tasted. The reason is made plain when it is known that only the best of goods is used in their making and only experienced men are employed.

The Plainfield Art Gallery has recently placed some very handsome reproductions of famous paintings in its store in the Y. M. C. A. building. They have been marked down to prices that will admit of no hesitancy in buying, when once they are seen. They have 150 styles of framing to select from.

The announcement that R. J. Shaw will remove to a new location on West Front street in the spring, does not in any way mean that there will be any change in policy at the present stand. Dr. Shaw has for years and still intends to make his pharmacy headquarters for the purest drugs and toilet articles in the city. He makes prescription compounding a specialty.

The well-known McPhail piano is at present enjoying a popularity that is almost unprecedented. It deserves the highest praise, as is shown by the confidence and admiration of the American people. The piano has always been an instrument of the highest standard. Of recent years the piano has been made more desirable than ever. With the combination of a beautiful case in which is to be found a beautiful tone, the height of perfection has been secured. This piano is sold by G. H. Kenyon, of West Front street.

ELECTRICITY FOR TUNNEL.

Dense Smoke and Steam Obscure Signals—Investigation Made.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The Herald today says:

"The New York Central railroad will change its motive power in the Park avenue tunnel within a year. Electricity will be substituted for steam on all local trains, and as soon as possible trunk line trains will be hauled into and out of the Grand Central station by less dangerous methods.

"An extra force of experts has been added to the large force of electricians, and these have been at work within the tunnel since Wednesday's accident, trying to devise satisfactory plans for a speedy change."

That an engine driver when running through the Central tunnel in which Wednesday's terrible accident occurred might easily find it impossible to see the danger signals because of steam and smoke from passing locomotives was demonstrated yesterday, when a trip of inspection was made from the Grand Central station to the North White Plains roundhouse by members of the state railroad commission, Assistant District Attorney Garvan and several railroad officials. More than this, it was demonstrated that the signal apparatus itself is not infallible, for six attempts were made to explode the torpedo which is automatically put on the track when the tunnel signals are at danger, and each attempt failed.

This failure was found to be due to the fact that the torpedo machine was out of order.

FOREIGNERS THANKED.

Empress Dowager Expresses Gratitude to Ministers For Care.

PEKING, Jan. 11.—The dowager empress yesterday followed up her friendly advances by verbal messages to several of the ministers, thanking them for the care they had taken of the palaces and expressing pleasure at the reception accorded by the foreigners on the occasion of their majesties' re-entry into Peking.

The report of the arrest of General Tung Fuh Siang, whose decapitation has been ordered by the dowager empress, is incorrect. The Tartar general who is governor of Kansu was afraid to execute the orders he received owing to Tung Fuh Siang's influence among the Mohammedans, who dominate the province.

The governor fears that the arrest of Tung Fuh Siang would incite the Mohammedans to rebellion.

The French minister, M. Beau, refused to present his credentials until China fulfills certain demands of the French government.

The joint audience of the foreign and new Chinese ministers which had been arranged has been postponed because of M. Beau's action. His colleagues are discussing whether to support him.

A repetition of the Turkish incident is considered possible.

Cold Blooded Murder.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 11.—A cold blooded murder was committed at the New Sharon Steel company's mines, eight miles west of here. Henry Grant almost instantly killed William Jenkins. Jenkins was shift boss on the gang sinking the shaft, and Grant had been in charge of the drilling machine. He proved unsuitable and was reduced to helper, while Jenkins put his brother in Grant's place. Grant became jealous and vengeful, and just as the men quit work at evening he slipped up behind Jenkins, plunged a big knife through his body and ran, escaping in the confusion.

Extra Session In Minnesota.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 11.—Governor Van Sant announces that he will call an extra session of the legislature for the middle of February, probably about the 18th. While the session is called specifically to consider the report of the tax commission just made, it is considered likely that the recent developments in railway affairs will come in for consideration. In response to the action taken by Governor Nash and the McKinley memorial commission Governor Van Sant has issued a proclamation setting aside Jan. 29 as children's McKinley day.

A Large Wheat Yield.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The statistician of the department of agriculture estimates the average yield per acre of wheat in the United States in 1901 at 14.8 bushels as compared with 12.3 bushels in 1900, 12.3 bushels in 1899, 15.3 bushels in 1898 and 13.8 bushels the mean of the averages of the last ten years. The newly seeded area of winter wheat is provisionally estimated at 32,000,000 acres, an increase of 6 per cent upon the area estimated to have been sown in the fall of 1900.

Colonel Washington Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11.—Colonel William Lewis Washington, a descendant of the family of George Washington, is dead at his home here, having succumbed to heart disease. He was fifty-seven years old. Colonel Washington was born in Nashville, where he will be buried. He was a soldier in the Confederate army.

A Brave Man's Sad Plight.

SYRACUSE, Jan. 11.—W. H. Crozier, a former deputy sheriff of Onondaga county, a veteran of the civil war and who wears a medal given to him by congress for bravery, has been committed to the state hospital at Ogdensburg. He left alone for the institution, taking his commitment papers.

THE DEAL EXPLAINED

President Hill Tells of Great Northern's Plans.

PRODUCERS ADDRESSED AT FARGO

The Aim of the Consolidation Is to Increase Freight Traffic to the End That Lower Rates May Be Established.

FARGO, N. D., Jan. 11.—The features of the tristate grain and cattle growers' convention here were the address of President James J. Hill and the practically unanimous adoption of resolutions commending him for his work in behalf of the northwest. These resolutions, after declaring the most natural line of transportation for the products of the northwestern states and for the trade of the orient destined for the north, middle and eastern states is along the route followed by the Northern Pacific railroad, proceed as follows:

"It is the sense of this meeting, therefore, that in resisting the attempts of the Union Pacific railroad and its allies on the one hand and the Canadian Pacific railroad and its feeders on the other to secure control of the Northern Pacific railroad James J. Hill has performed a notable public service and once more displayed the farsighted and businesslike policy that has characterized his long career as the great developer of northwestern resources and the most watchful guardian of northwestern interests."

Mr. Hill said in part:

Twenty-five years ago it was supposed that competition was necessary to reduce rates. I think that we have shown in the northwest that without competition rates have been reduced faster than anywhere else in the country.

There has recently been an attempt to show that we have no interest in the building up of the prosperity of the people of your state and of the northwest. If we did not do everything in our power to build you up, we would be false to our best interests. Our object in acquiring the Burlington jointly with the Northern Pacific railway was to insure an outlet to the best markets for the grain, live stock and lumber for the northern states and to increase the volume of our traffic to the end that we might at all times be able to establish the lowest rates and most favorable conditions under which the traffic must be carried.

Assuming that the line of the Burlington had not been constructed and that the Great Northern and Northern Pacific jointly had raised the money and were engaged in the construction of it, would there be anything to meet the disapproval of the state traversed by the line of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific? On the contrary, would not such a course have been hailed with approval as a means of opening up markets for northwestern produce, and of reaching markets in the south and southwest, and of securing business, increasing the volume of the traffic of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, thus making reduction of rates and adding to the general prosperity of the northwest? Instead of building the Burlington system or a line of railway alongside of it the Great Northern and Northern Pacific purchased the capital stock of a line already constructed. Instead of issuing stock or bonds for the purpose of raising moneys for building a line right through the same country bonds were issued to purchase the stock of a constructed line.

The capital stock of railway companies, as of other corporations, will be held by somebody and somewhere. Railway companies as carriers are subject to supervision and control by the public for the purpose of insuring the performance of their obligations to the public. The capital employed in railway construction is made public.

Railroads make public through published rates the price charged for transportation, the only thing they have to sell, and must report the amount they receive for what they sell and what has been done with it. Courts are open for the purpose of determining whether railway companies as carriers observe their obligations to the public.

The question of the reasonableness of rates and service does not depend upon whether one man owns the capital stock of a railway or whether the capital stock is owned by ten men or a thousand or by persons or corporations. The capital stock of a railway company is personal property to be sold, transferred from one man to another, and any one may purchase and hold all that he has means to buy and pay for. The capital stock of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern will be held by somebody, persons or corporations, if not by the present owners by other owners.

How is it that the lines have been extended and improved? What brought about the present condition of prosperity of the two companies? What has enabled them to serve the people along the lines as they have been served? Plainly the willingness and the ability of those controlling large interests of the stock of the company who found it to their advantage to build up the lines and promote the settlement of the territory tributary to them and who will continue it.

I hope in the future that with better methods of cultivation and more knowledge of what is required your condition may be constantly improved, and if your condition is improved ours will certainly share it with you. As the volume of traffic increases our rates will be reduced. Remember that whatever helps you helps the railroad, and whatever hurts you or restricts your growth restricts the growth of the railroad serving you. We will always prosper together or be poor together.

FOR CENSUS BUREAU

House Favors a Permanent Establishment.

FREE MAILS FOR MRS. M'KINLEY.

Pacific Cable Considered by House Committee on Commerce—Proposed Rates Per Word to Manila and Honolulu.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The house spent yesterday considering the Hopkins bill to create a permanent census bureau. While the general sentiment was in favor of a permanent bureau, there was a strong opposition to the bill as drawn on the ground that it was not well matured.

There also was an overwhelming demand for a provision to place the present employees of the census bureau under the protection of the civil service law, and the bill was finally recommitted, with instructions to report back a bill containing a plan for a detailed organization of a permanent census bureau, to include also a provision to place the present employees under the civil service. The fight to recommit was made under the leadership of Mr. Burkett (Neb.), the new member of the appropriations committee.

A bill was passed unanimously to give Mrs. McKinley the free mailing privilege during the remainder of her life. The house then adjourned until Monday.

The house committee on commerce has taken up the subject of a Pacific cable. The main question is whether the cable shall be constructed by the government or by private parties.

The hearing was devoted to an explanation by George G. Ward, vice president of the Commercial Pacific Cable company, of the plans of that organization. He stated that contracts had been made for the manufacture and laying of a cable to Honolulu by Nov. 1 next, and the company intended to extend the cable to Manila within two years from next November.

The manufacture of the cable was now proceeding, he stated, at the rate of 240 miles per month, and this rate would be increased to 630 miles per month. He gave the cost of the project as between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000.

The cross questioning by Chairman Hepburn and Messrs. Corliss and Mann tended to develop the question whether or not the company, by having an exclusive field, would maintain high rates. Mr. Ward gave the expected rate to Manila at $1 and Honolulu 35 to 50 cents a word.

Hadley Jones Cast Out.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 11.—Donald B. McLennan of Syracuse, the referee appointed to take the testimony in the proceedings instituted by the New York State Bar association to disbar Attorney Hadley Jones of Little Falls, has filed his report. He found that Jones was guilty of the acts of deceit, malpractice and grand larceny as alleged in the charges made by the association. On motion of Frederick E. Wadhams Jones was disbarred from the courts.

Northwestern Road Improvements.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—Improvements have been planned by the management of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road for the coming year which will cost between $5,000,000 and $8,000,000. The most important improvement which was announced by President Earling is the double tracking of the Lacrosse division, which extends from Milwaukee to Lacrosse, a distance of 197 miles. Work will be begun upon this as soon as ground can be broken in the spring and will be finished inside of two years. The cost of this betterment will be a little under $5,000,000.

Jackson Meets Small Game.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 11.—Jim Austin of New York quit in the fourth round of what was to have been a twenty round fight with "Young Peter Jackson" here last night. Austin was simply outclassed. He went down repeatedly for the limit, and after he had been knocked through the ropes in the middle of the fourth round he indicated that he had enough.

Cleveland Plans Hunting Trip.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Former President Grover Cleveland has so far recovered from the effects of his recent attack of pneumonia as to have arranged for a hunting trip in the south. He will leave his home at Princeton, N. J., Jan. 22 for an island off Georgetown, S. C., where, with a party of friends, he will remain several days.

Postoffice Burned and One Robbed.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 11.—Postal Inspector Williams of the Chattanooga division has been notified of the burning of the postoffice and contents at Chickamauga, Ga. He was also informed of the robbery of the postoffice at New Brooklyn, S. C., where about $300 is believed to have been stolen.

Salary For Ex-Presidents.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Representative Lovering of Massachusetts has introduced a bill providing a salary for ex-presidents of the United States at the rate of $25,000 annually from the date of retirement from the presidency. The bill is to apply to any ex-president living at the time the law is enacted.

Laborers to Be Under Civil Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The laborers employed in the government departments will be brought into the civil service under presidential orders, the first of which will be issued in the very near future. The inclusions will be made separately by departments instead of in bulk.

CLEVER BOND ROBBERY.

How a Boston Firm Lost $15,000 in Government Securities.

BOSTON, Jan. 11.—In spite of the silence of the police it has become known that the government bonds valued at $15,000 stolen here last Monday were obtained from N. W. Harris & Co., bankers, on a forged certified check on the National Shawmut bank. Other bankers had been asked to buy $25,000 worth of bonds and to accept in payment a certified check on another firm. Such a proceeding called for an inquiry, and the result was that the check mentioned by the stranger in his telephonic communication was declared to be bogus by the firm which was supposed to have given it.

It is understood that Harris & Co. were called up on Monday by a man giving his name as Bruce, who presented a check certified by the National Shawmut bank and asked that there be laid aside for him quickly in bonds ten $1,000 government 4 per cent coupons due in 1925 and five $1,000 Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern 3½ per cent coupons due July 1, 1925. The check offered was accepted without question and the bonds delivered.

At the bank both the signature and certification were declared to be forgeries, and not clever ones at that.

RELEASE AT HAND.

Freedom For Miss Stone Only Question of Few Hours.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The release of Miss Ellen M. Stone by the brigands who have held her in captivity since Sept. 3 is believed to be a question of hours.

An official telegram received in London and which was dispatched from Constantinople says the release of Miss Stone is imminent.

The Echo de Paris prints a dispatch from its Constantipople correspondent to the effect that Spencer Eddy, first secretary of the American legation at Constantinople, has left that city on four months' leave.

As Mr. Eddy has been devoting his time of late to securing the release of Miss Stone, this report of his taking leave of absence would tend to confirm the rumor that she has been or is about to be set at liberty.

Germany's Richest Man.

BERLIN, Jan. 11.—The richest man in Germany is Herr Krupp. According to the income tax returns, he has an income of between 20,000,000 and 21,000,000 marks a year. No one approaches him in wealth. He stands in a class alone, and there are over a dozen classes between Herr Krupp and the next richest man in Germany. The income tax returns show sixty-five other incomes of more than 1,000,000 marks per year. Ten of these incomes are under 3,000,000, two are under 4,000,000 and three are under 5,000,000 marks a year. The returns also show 2,774 persons to have a yearly income of upward of 100,000 marks.

Wide Open Window Glass Market.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 11.—A wide open market in the window glass trade will continue to prevail, and in all probability the conflict will not be stopped before the end of the present fire. The manufacturers met here yesterday, having in view the stoppage of the prevalent price war and making a new agreement to include the independents and co-operative concerns which are joined in interest in the new selling agency called the Federation of Co-operative Window Glass company. Representatives of the independents who last week declared an open market could not be induced to enter the new agreement.

Threatened Strike Averted.

BOSTON, Jan. 11.—A basis of settlement of the threatened strike of the teamsters of this city has been agreed upon at a conference held at the rooms of the state board of arbitration at the statehouse which is almost identical with the original demands made upon the master teamsters by their men. There will be no strike, and the new agreement, which is for one year, was signed today by the Master Teamsters' association, representing 283 master teamsters, who employ 4,500 men, and by the Team Drivers' union.

Prominent Methodist Dead.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—John Longking, ninety-six years of age, is dead at his home at Yonkers. For fifty years he was connected with the Methodist Book concern. He also wrote many books on Methodism, and some of his writings are used as textbooks in the Bible class and seminaries of the denomination.

A Short Coffee Crop.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Consul General McNally, at Guatemala, reports to the state department that the coffee crop of Guatemala for this season will fall about 40 per cent short of that of last year. It is estimated that this season's yield will amount to 48,000,000 pounds.

EVERETT-MOORE PLANS.

Banker's Committee Will Try to Pay Off Small Creditors.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 11.—Regarding the situation in the affairs of the Everett-Moore syndicate, the bankers committee state that word has been received from Cincinnati assuring the committee of confidence in the outcome of the syndicate's affairs. The committee is in communication with the large number of miscellaneous creditors, many of whom are yet to be heard from.

A subcommittee has gone to look over the condition of a couple of the syndicate's traction companies. Which these were would not be disclosed. The main desire of the committee is to dispose of sufficient bonds to enable it to pay off a number of the smaller creditors who are unnecessarily anxious.

Mr. Newcomb, chairman of the bankers' committee, is authority for the statement that the Sandusky division of the Detroit and Toledo Shore line had $40,000 on deposit in the Euclid Avenue Trust and Savings company which went into the hands of a receiver yesterday and said that unless some other way of obtaining money was devised that the employees of that division, for whom the money was to be paid for labor, would have to wait.

PLOT THAT FAILED.

Montana Prisoner Sends Governor Petition With Forged Signers.

HELENA, Mon., Jan. 11.—A plot to secure the release from the penitentiary of L. C. Livingston, sent from Silver Bow county in April, 1900, for five years for forgery, has failed. The names of several prominent New York people were forged to the petition that was presented, which represented that Livingston came from the distinguished New York family of that name and had served as a rough rider in Cuba.

Among the names signed to the petition were those of Theodore Roosevelt, August Belmont, Hugh J. Grant, Thomas A. Edison, Jerome W. Astor, E. D. Morgan and others in New York.

Governor Toole's suspicions were aroused by receiving a letter from President Roosevelt last June stating that he had learned of a clumsy attempt to forge his name to a petition for Livingston's pardon, and he therefore warned the governor. When the petition was received by the governor a few days ago, he looked up the letter and decided to write to Dr. Parkhurst, August Belmont, Hugh Grant and others as to the genuineness of their signatures. All have replied denying having signed the petition.

To Examine West Point's Needs.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The members of the congressional committees on military affairs have gone to West Point for the purpose of making a thorough inspection of conditions at the Military academy with a view to making provision for enlarging the establishment on modern lines. The academy opened originally with only ten cadets under instruction. The corps increased gradually until it numbered 240 cadets in 1843. It numbers 482 at the present time and will comprise 511 cadets in March, 1903. The buildings have not kept pace with this steady increase and are said to be totally inadequate to the needs of the institution. It is stated that it has become necessary to assign three cadets to a room originally intended for only one occupant.

Convict Released and Arrested.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 11.—Timothy, alias "Kid," Hogan, a notorious mail-box robber and forger, was released from the penitentiary yesterday and was arrested at the door. Hogan was received at the prison on June 9, 1898, from the United States court in this city to serve two sentences of five years each, to run concurrently. At the time Hogan was arrested he was wanted in nearly every city of importance in the United States, and rewards had been offered for his arrest amounting to over $4,000. He was also an escaped prisoner from Blackwell's island, New York.

Scene In the Virginia Convention.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 11.—The feature of yesterday's session of the constitutional convention was an incident which bordered on the sensational, being the unqualified resignation of Senator Carter Glass of Lynchburg from the committee on public education and the flat refusal of the convention to accept it. The incident grew out of the controversy between Senator Glass and Chairman McElwaine of the education committee on the floor of the convention, when the latter used language to which the Lynchburg leader took exception.

DAVIS CALLED HOME

Head of Delegation to Pan-American Congress.

PRAISE FOR WORK OF CONFERENCE.

A Plan of Arbitration Agreed Upon That Will Be of Great Benefit to All of the American Republics.

CITY OF MEXICO, Jan. 11.—Senator H. G. Davis, chairman of the United States delegation to the international American conference, who left for Washington last night, took leave of the conference at the morning's session in a brief speech, saying in part:

"Circumstances require me to leave for my home. Enough has been accomplished to assure us that much good will come to the American republics as a result of the second pan-American conference.

"Among the achievements of this conference a plan of arbitration has been substantially agreed upon that will be of great value to all of the republics. This, I feel sure, is a long step toward preserving peace and settling disputes between American republics.

"Permit me to say to my colleagues of the southern republics, where questions so often arise and particularly about boundary lines, if you accept the opportunity to adopt The Hague articles it will be the greatest and best move you can make toward a peaceful settlement of all disputed questions, thus following the enlightened, civilized nations of the world.

"By the construction of the pan-American railway it is believed commercial and friendly relations will be increased.

"The government of the United States appreciates the many courtesies extended to its delegates and is pleased with the results accomplished."

Senor Carbon of Ecuador presented a motion to the effect that the conference recognizes the services of Mr. Davis and regrets his departure. This motion was seconded by Senor Chavero of Mexico, Blest Gana of Chile and General Reyes of Colombia and was carried unanimously by acclamation.

In company with United States Embassador Clayton, Mr. Davis had a long and cordial interview with President Diaz.

Nothing has yet been decided in the matter of arbitration.

Bankruptcy Laws Condemned.

BOSTON, Jan. 11.—In the opinion of the members of the Boston chamber of commerce at a special meeting the present bankruptcy laws are "corrupt and vicious." A resolution was unanimously adopted urging upon congress the passage of a national bankruptcy law which will provide that partial payments on accounts when made in the ordinary course of business without any knowledge on the part of the creditor of the debtor's insolvency shall not be considered a preference so as to preclude a creditor from proving the balance of his account against the estate of the debtor without returning to the estate the amount already received on account.

Increased Postal Receipts.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—A general increase of almost 15 per cent in the postal receipts at the fifty principal postoffices of the United States during December last is shown in an official statement just issued which compares the receipts with those for December, 1900. Chicago, with almost 23 per cent, reports the greatest proportionate advance, the total for the last month being $783,994. New York advanced almost 14 per cent, to $1,120,900. Jersey City, New Haven, Conn., and Dayton, O., are the only cities reporting decreases.

The Latest Combine.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—The Record-Herald today says that a combination of gas, gasoline and oil stove factories is the latest. The American Stove company, with a capital of $5,000,000, is the name the corporation bears. Nine companies, covering practically all the important manufacturers of gasoline and oil stoves and gas stoves and appliances, figure in the new combine. The new combination will have offices in St. Louis, Chicago and Cleveland.

Electrical Chief at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 11.—W. Elwell Goldsborough, professor of electrical engineering at Purdue university, Lafayette, Ind., probably will be chief of the department of electrical exhibits of the St. Louis World's fair. The appointment has been recommended by the committee on electricity and electrical appliances to the executive committee, and it is generally believed that the recommendation will be approved.

MUST OBEY THE LAW.

The fact has been brought out in police court that some of the local saloon keepers have been singularly forgetful of the provisions of the city ordinances which prohibit the sale of liquor to minors. In some cases, the mistake is somewhat excusable as the young men have looked much older than they really are. In others, however, the slightest glance would tell that the would-be purchaser was under age.

One of the acts of the Common Council at the regular February meeting will be to consider the applications for licenses for saloons in this city. Considering the fact that the voters of Plainfield have, by their ballots, only recently testified to their belief that licenses should be granted, it is not to be supposed that the members of the Common Council will do otherwise than obey those instructions. It will be perfectly in order, however, for the Council to refuse to renew any licenses when it can be shown that the proprietor of the establishment has been neglectful in his observation of the city ordinances.

When the subject of licenses comes up, the Common Council should not fail to look into this subject of selling to minors and close up any saloon where there is evidence that the law is being repeatedly broken. While it may be extremely difficult to secure conviction for offending that part of the city law, the Common Council has the right to refuse any application and is not compelled to give any reason therefor. If the city officials are convinced the law is being violated, the time to act will be when the licenses are before the Common Council.

While a quasi-public concern, like the New Jersey Central Railroad, has the undeniable right to run its affairs as it desires as long as the laws of the State are obeyed, it must expect, however, to hear complaints when its service is not satisfactory. And if the railroad company has any consideration for the public at large, it will not fail to heed any united kick. The Daily Press yesterday printed a communication from one of Plainfield's prominent citizens who spoke his mind regarding the present course of events on the Central. Another communication, prepared by a well-known Plainfielder, whose identity is not made public for good reasons, appears in these columns tonight. While alll communications will be received, we would greatly prefer if the writers would give the added strength which comes from a real signature. No communications will be considered, however, unless the writer's name is made known to us.

Again the members of the Republican county executive committee have seen fit to honor City Judge William N. Runyon by making him vice chairman of that committee. While the duties of the position really amount to nothing, except in the absence of the chairman which is very seldom, it is a pleasant honor and is worthily bestowed on one of Plainfield's rising young men. The most significient part of it all is that the Kean faction controls the committee and several of its strongest adherants in this city tried to bring about the defeat of Judge Runyon to membership in the county committee at the last Republican primary.

Hardly a day passes that the hack ordinance is not openly violated. Of course, the presence of a policeman has the desired effect but his departure is a signal for a general change of tactics. Either the city ought to find some means to enforce that ordinance without keeping a policeman on duty at the station constantly or else repeal the law. This problem of controlling the hackmen at the station has long been a vexatious one and it is time that something was done. If the present ordinance is not satisfactory, let the Common Council pass a new one which will accomplish the desired object.

While there are, of course, a number of ecxeptions, the general feeling of the New Jersey press seems to be in favor of John W. Griggs as the man to succeed the late General William J. Sewell in the United States Senate. For some reason, the politicians seem to think otherwise.

Harmony apparently reigned at the first meeting of the new Republican county executive committee. It was probably owing to the fact that certain members realized the fact that there was no use fighting against a sure thing.

When so many of the neighboring cities are struggling with the problem of elevating the tracks of the railroads which pass through them, Plainfield can be happy that its troubles in that direction were cured long ago.

It will be welcome news to most of the members of Company K, of this city, that the entire National Guard of the State is to participate in the parade at the inaugural ceremonies at Trenton, January 21.

It will be a good thing when the day comes that patrons of the Plainfield Water Supply Company are allowed to pay for the water they use according to the amount.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

A curious postal card is on exhibition at the local postoffice. It is there awaiting the sender, who failed to properly address it. Written on the back of the card is:- "Dear Clara, Please let us know how much chicken gizits and whiskey Mamma takes. Send the prescription as soon as possible as we want it. Your loving sister, Joe." Many persons have enjoyed a hearty laugh on seeing the card, but no one is able to furnish the information desired by the writer.

Took Wrong Hat.

Thomas Carty, of Orchard place, would like to know who has his brand new derby hat. He attended the entertainment given by the Exempt Firemen's Association this week, and when he left for home he found someone had left a Dunlap hat, size 7 1-8, and taken his hat, size 7. No doubt the fellow who has his hat would be pleased to get his own back, so would Mr. Carty.

Justice Huff's Court.

The following contract cases will be tried before Justice Huff, Wednesday, Jan. 16: Fenno against Johns, Sebring against Lynn, Sebring against H. G. Adams. The case of Stevens against Burtis, for the consideration of a promissory note, has been settled in full and discontinued.

To Consider Resignation.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Jan. 11.—The meeting of the members of the Baptist church, at which time the resignation of the pastor, Rev. George A. Francis, will be considered, will be held Wednesday evening, January 15.

Miss Stryker, of Somerville, is the guest of Mrs. John A. Goodwin, of Manning avenue.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Demick, Somerville, Ind. "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." You don't live by what you eat, but by what you digest and assimilate. If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food. You don't have to diet. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

DEFENDS VERDICT.

Constable Pangborn Says Damages for Mrs. O'Brien Were Reasonable.

To the Editor of The Daily Press—The press generally of the State of New Jersey and New York has criticised the verdict of $5,000 in the case of Mrs. Norah O'Brien against the Central Railroad of New Jersey. Mrs. O'Brien is sixty-seven years old and appeared to be eighty. She is mentally and physically a wreck, a mere child. The counsel for the Central Railroad Company A. A. Clark, asked the jury in summing up to bring in a reasonable verdict and he would advise the company to pay it. Certainly the counsel knew they were liable as no notice of appeal was made to the court at that time. The jury has done its full duty and counsel and jury should not be criticised.

Wm. N. Pangborn.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Semerset's two representatives are still set down in the Gummere column in making up the tally sheets on the Senatorial question. We rather doubt the correctness of this arrangement. Senator Reed has declared himself in favor of Chancellor Magie, but as he is not a candidate it leaves the Senator free to make another selection. Mr. Hoagland has expressed no opinion so far as we know, and he may be wise in his silence. It is well for our representatives to keep aloof from entanglements, until they learn the sentiment of their constiuents. We find all sentiment, so far as we can reach it, in favor of John W. Griggs. The people of Somerset have always had an admiration for this great statesman. — Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

The plan of reducing the number of members of Boards of Freeholders, which has been before the Legislature a number of times, will be again tried at this year's session, according to Senator Strong, who says he will urge its passage among other bills that were pigeon-holed last winter. The bill reduces the number of Freeholders to five in second-class counties. Their terms are to be for two years, and they are to be paid a salary of $1,200 a year each. The terms of all now holding office under the present Boards of Freeholders will be made to expire at the time the new boards come into existence, on December following the meeting of the Legislature, and the positions thus made vacant will be filled by the new board. The act would apply to the counties of Passaic, Camden, Mercer, Union, Monmouth, Middlesex, Bergen, Morris and Burlington.—Rahway Union Democrat.

The Union county delegation, consisting of one senator and three assemblymen, seems to be split up on the question of United States senator; that is, if current newspaper reports are to be believed. For example, a New York paper, a Trenton paper and a Philadelphia paper divide up the Union county delegation as follows: For Dryden one, for Stokes one, for Griggs two. Just how and why this division has been made is not clear, nor does there appear to be any warrant for it. One of the delegation states emphatically that he has as yet declared for no candidate, and certainly this would prove the current reports incorrect. What the Union county delegation will do the Journal does not know, but it would seem to the interests to hold together and throw their strength as a unit to whichever candidate they favor. To split up on the candidates cannot fail to weaken the delegation's strength in the Legislature as well as to minimize its force in the final election of United States senator. It is not improper to assume that the Union county delegation would listen with great respect to the senator from this county who already occupies a seat in the higher body, not necessarily implying that they shall thereby abandon their own convictions. The Union county delegation is too small in number to gain anything through division. Their best policy is to act unitedly.—Elizabeth Journal.

Two Favorites.

At the concert given under the auspices of the Congregational church at the Casino Monday evening, Chas. Kaiser, solo tenor of St. Patrick's cathedral, New York, will sing. Miss Aimee G. Emmons, a favorite of Plainfield audiences, will read several of Lanier's poems to Miss Ware's music.

Doing the Right Thing.

The trouble begins with a tickling in the throat and a nagging little cough. Soreness in the chest follows and the patient wonders if he is going to have an all winter cold. Probably, if he does the wrong thing or nothing. Certainly not if he uses Perry Davis' Painkiller, the staunch old remedy that cures a cold in twenty-four hours. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'.

SHAW TO MOVE.

Veteran Druggist Will Take Quarters on West Front Street.

On of the most important business changes to be made next spring will be the removal of R. J. Shaw, who is now located on Front street at the head of Park avenue. Mr. Shaw will take the store on West Front street now occupied by the Star Clothing Company. Mr. Shaw has occupied his present place of business for thirty-three years, and prior to that Dr. Sutphen had a drug store there. After Mr. Shaw's removal the new owners of the building will remodel the same.

Will Remain in Present Quarters.

A small want ad, placed in the daily papers by mistake a few days ago, has given the impression that Mrs. L. J. Denton, the West Front street florist, will give up her present quarters in the Stillman building. There is no truth in the report as she has a lease on the premises for some time yet and entertained no thought of removal.

Fractured His Skull.

HOPI FLUTE DANCE.

Beautiful Ceremony of a Purely Religious Character.

More Attractive Than the Better Known Snake Dance—Meaning of the Sacred Rites Is Quite Poetical.

[Special Arizona Letter.]

THE wonderful Snake dance of the Hopi Indians of Arizona has often been described, and such is its thrilling attraction that hundreds of people from all parts of the world have witnessed it. But many of those even who have been present at the Snake dance ceremonials are not aware that at other villages of the Hopi (there are seven of them altogether), another series of ceremonies occur, equally imposing, far more beautiful and attractive, and, to the religious Hopi, equal in importance to the better known and more exciting dance with the snakes.

It must not be forgotten that to the Indian in his normal condition a dance is never anything less than a religious ceremony. He may get pleasure and enjoyment from its exercise, but, primarily and chiefly, it is purely a religious act, and is always associated with worship in one or another of its aspects. The Snake dance, for instance, is a prayer for rain and all the consequent fertility of crops, etc., that come from the beneficent showers that water a thirsty desert land. The Flute dance is closely allied to the Snake dance. It is performed every alternate year with it. This year the Snake dance ceremonies were performed at the two villages of Walpi and Washonganavi. The Flute ceremonies were at Oraibi, Shipaulwi and Shongopavi. Next year the Snake dance will be performed at the three latter villages, while the Flute dance will be given at Walpi and Washonganavi.

CIRCLING AROUND THE SPRING AT FLUTE DANCE.

Now, while at Walpi, this year, there were, perhaps, 200 to 300 spectators at the Snake dance, but five persons saw the chief portions of the Lelentu or Flute dance at Oraibi. Of these, three were of the family of that Mormonite missionary, Rev. H. R. Voth, who has already made himself famous by his wonderful reproduction of Hopi altars and groups in the Field Columbian museum at Chicago. The other was a Denver gentleman, and the fifth the writer. To see the ceremonies cost me 13 miles of weary, hot walking over the Painted desert, carrying a heavy camera and my provisions. But its beauty, grace and charm far more than repaid me for the weariness of body.

After the secret Kiva ceremonies (rites in the underground chambers of the fraternity of the Flute) the first public rites of the day took place at a spring near the home of Lololami, the chief of the Oraibi pueblo, and about five miles west of the town. Here is one of the pitiful springs upon which the people depend for their meager supply of water. Just before noon men, women and girls might have been seen wending their way from the village on the mesa height, down the steep trails, over the sandy way trodden for centuries by their forefathers, towards the location of the spring.

Every face was as serious and wore as grave and earnest an expression as that of a novice about to be confirmed in her holiest vows. Arrived at the spring, an eminence just above it to the southwest was the chosen site for the preliminaries. Here an hour or more was spent in prayers, sprinkling of meal before and upon the altar and the painting of the symbols of the clan upon the participants.

Other priests during the whole time were on their knees or in other postures of reverence, praying, singing or chanting, and sprinkling the sacred meal on or before the altar. A large number of bahos or prayer sticks and plumes were used. These are a feature of all Hopi and cognate peoples' ritual.

At this time the chief priest left the hillside and solemnly marched down to the spring. It is circular in shape, and with a rude wall built around it. At the opening in the circle three small guard vessels were placed, two of which held sacred water from some far away spring, and the other was full of honey. A singular thing occurred about the filling of this honey jar. A nest of bees had located in the wall of the spring, and the chief priest, taking it for granted that this was a good sign, had the nest dug out and the honey extracted from the comb, for his sacred purposes. After he had prayed for awhile the priests and women from above all marched down, except the flute players. As they stood around the spring they sang and prayed, while the chief priest stepped into the water, bowing his face down over it, and waving his tiponi (the sacred palladium of these ceremonies) in and through it. Upon it was a filthy, muddy mess, instead of a water spring, and when it seemed mixed up enough he began to dip his face deep into it while the men and women around contianed their singing and worship.

Then he came forth, and now began a most beautiful processional march around the spring, in time to the weird playing of the priests above. After three times circling around, the group stood facing the west, and at certain signals sprinkled large handfuls of sacred meal in the direction of the water. This was followed by a most profuse scattering of bahos in the same manner. Literally hundreds of them were thus thrown, and I gathered (after the celebrants were gone) scores of them for my collection. The bahos used on this occasion were mere downy feathers to which cotton strings were attached. The effect as the meal and the feathers were thrown was remarkably beautiful, and the scene was most impressive; none the less so for its strangeness and peculiarity.

These concluded the ceremonies at this spring. In the meantime the chief priest had gone to his house over the hill, and from there had started out a group of young men who were to race to the spring near the mesa—four miles away. It was a scorching hot day—as I had found out in my own walk—and yet these young men bounded over the sandy trail like hunted deer. It was a glorious sight to witness them. Ten or a dozen athletic youths, clad scantily, their bronzed figures in perfect proportion, revealing their strength and power, their long black hair waving out behind them, darting off like strings from a bow across the desert.

Slowly we followed them, and when we arrived at the other spring found they had long ago passed it, and the victor received his reward. Racing constitutes a large part of the sacred ceremonies, for it is a religion to them that each man shall develop his physical powers to the utmost.

Similar ceremonies were gone through at the near-by spring as at the one further away, and when they were completed the whole party formed in procession, and as solemnly as if it were a funeral march, proceeded up the steep trail to the village and there repeated some of the ceremonies already described.

The purport of all this it is comparatively easy to understand. The Snake dance is a prayer for rain, which, according to the Hopi's ideas, is stored in vast reservoirs in the heavens. He also believes that there are vast water supplies under the earth, and so, every other year, he petitions the powers that govern and control these subterranean reservoirs to loosen the waters and let them flow forth into the springs. In one of the dances they symbolize the water from above and the water from below by linking the first fingers together. This gives us the Greek fret, and when this symbol is copied in their basketry, we see this classic design, purely the result of imitation, and having as clear a meaning to the Hopi mind as the cross has to the Christian. This is an interesting fact that writers on the origin of this symbol have not yet noticed.

BOICE, RUNYON & CO.,
Park Avenue and Railroad.

For about two years now I have been taking Ripans Tabules, which I claim have been the sole relief and cure of an awful headache which bothered me a great deal. I am twenty-four years of age and a stenographer. When operating the typewriter I would often have an awful headache, and I would wake up in the morning with a dull sensation and a thumping as if some one was hitting me on top of the head. I had no ambition, and to eat anything in the morning was a trouble. I became white looking and haggard. One day I met a friend, who asked what was the matter with me. I stated to him just how I felt. He said: "Take one of these things (a Ripans Tabule) and see how they'll knock it out of you." Well, that is just what they did. I used to feel as if there was a big ball of wind or something like a hard lump in my stomach. When I took the Ripans Tabule it seemed to act at once, and in a week or two I had an appetite and could sleep, and the pain both in my head and stomach had left. I recommend Ripans Tabules to all persons suffering from cramps brought on by drinking ice water on hot days. On Sunday, July 3d, I was out visiting the sick for the Odd Fellows, of which I am a member, and took violent pains in my stomach, which almost doubled me up, while I was on a street car. I managed to get home the best way I could, and after taking whisky, ginger, blackberry brandy, etc., which really did no good, I thought of Ripans Tabules and took one. When it had a little time it gave me relief and I then took another in the course of half an hour, and before dinner I was out on the street again visiting the sick nearer home. On the 4th of July one of my brothers was taken with cramps and I wanted him to take one of the Tabules, but he did not want to take them. When the other medicines he tried failed he wanted to try them, and was in a different state in five minutes.

WANTED—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and produce life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. At 1ns 5, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

NEW THINGS TO WEAR.

Remarkable Wraps For Evening and Carriage Wear—The Latest Hats.

Just now there are few new things to note except those that are made up, and I think that even they could be numbered on one's fingers as far as novelty is concerned. The principal novelties are seen in the trimming of the ball gowns and the remarkable wraps for evening and carriage wear. The automobile coats are rarely long and are usually in modified box shape. Naturally they are made to be warm, and where the outside is not of fur the lining is. Not infrequently there is fur on both sides. But they are made for use and less for ornament. The long evening and carriage cloaks are fearfully and wonderfully made, looking as though the wearer had got into some other person's coat, and that one three sizes larger. The sleeves are long and entirely cover the hands, and the length and amplitude of the garment hide all the rest of the costume.

In one sense of the word it is well that these wraps are so very ample, for the evening dresses make them necessary. But some of them are almost ridiculous. One, for instance, has a dark prune velvet cloak, formed with a deep shoulder cape of superb old point de venise. This cape reaches quite to the elbows, and above that is a wide shawl collar of rich dark fur. The wrap is draped across the front to the left side, and there is a long cord and tassel arrangement of gold thread. The sleeves are long and gathered at the cuff, from which they fall in a bell shape, with a row of black silk netting over white satin. At the edge there is a band of fur, with a little animal's head on the sleeve. The garment reminded one of some picture, but it must be very uncomfortable to wear.

There is much that one might say about hats. First and foremost there are soft felt hats in exactly the same shapes as those the men wear, and they are simply pinned on with a plain stickpin. Dark gray and smoke pearl are the two shades most affected. The shape is not unlike the fedora, only it is not accentuated quite so much. They are very becoming to young faces. Derbys are still proper for horseback, though a few conservatives think they look better in the stovepipe hats and in consequence put them on. Next comes the short backed flat shape, and, all things considered, these are oftenest seen. They can be trimmed in so many ways and made to conform to all faces so well that it is no wonder they are so popular. I saw one white woolly felt yesterday without any crown, and it was held on the head by having a rouleau of violet velvet. On the outside was a basketful of velvet parma violets, with scarcely any foliage, and these were piled up high on the front and left side. Along the right side there were several flat bows and ends of violet velvet ribbon. The bow at the back had several loops, and they hung down quite to the neck.

I should mention a novelty, and that is the new style of embroidering some of the homespun cloths. The material in appearance is much like the common woolen stuffs made by the women in Bulgaria, and the embroidery is done in colored Berlin wools, the stitch being rather more like the showy satin stitch done by the Italians. The colors are rather bright, and the whole is more curious than artistic; still it is seen quite often on walking suits. As a general rule, the design is not more than two inches wide and is set along the top of a shaped flounce.

The change in the way of dressing the hair is very decided, and few are now seen with the hair in a pompadour. There are so many ways of arranging the tresses that all may be suited, but the general style is to have the front waved and curled and the back brought down low on the neck. Some wear catogan braids, but more are in favor of a few short and large curls starting from each side of the braid. Others have the hair in a series of soft puffs. A flower at the side is frequently worn.

My Strangest Case

BY GUY BOOTHBY.

Author of "DR. NIKOLA," "THE BEAUTIFUL WHITE DEVIL," "PHAROS, THE EGYPTIAN," Etc.

[Copyrighted, 1901, by Ward, Lock & Co.]

As will be remembered, it was a case that interested every class of society, and press and public were alike united in the interest they showed in it. It is not, however, the trial itself as much as another curious circumstance connected with it that has induced me to refer to it here. The case had passed from the magistrate's court to the Old Bailey, and was hourly increasing in interest. Day after day the court was crowded to overflowing, and, when the time came for me to take my place in the witness-box and describe the manner in which I had led up to and effected the capture of the offenders, the excitement rose to fever heat. I can see the whole scene now as if it had occurred but yesterday; the learned judge upon the bench, the jury in their box, the rows of counsels, and the benches full of interested spectators. I gave my evidence and was examined by the counsels for the prosecution and for the defense. I described how I had traced the men from England to their hiding-place abroad, and the various attempts that had been made to prevent their extradition, and had just referred to a certain statement one of the prisoners had made to me soon after his arrest when an interruption caused me to look behind at the rows of spectators. At the further end of the bench, nearest me, were two men; one was evidently tall, the other very short. The taller was the possessor of silvery white hair and a long and venerable beard. He was a handsome-looking man of about 40, and my first glance at him told me that he was blind. As I have said, his companion was a much smaller man, with a smooth, almost boyish face, a pair of twinkling eyes, but a mouth rather hard set. Both were evidently following the case closely, and when on the next day I saw that they were in the same place I took an even greater interest in them than before. It was not, however, until the trial had finished and the pair of miserable men had been sent to penal servitude for a lengthy term of years, that I made the acquaintance of the men I have just described. I remember the circumstance quite distinctly. I had left the court and was proceeding down the Old Bailey in the direction of Ludgate Hill, when I heard my name pronounced.

Turning round I discovered to my astonishment the two men I had seen in the court, and who had seemed to take such an interest in the case. The smaller was guiding his friend along the crowded pavement with a dexterity that was plainly the outcome of a long practice. When I stopped, they stopped also, and the blind man addressed me. His voice was deep, and had a note of pathos in it impossible to describe. It may have been that I was a little sad that afternoon, for both the men who had been condemned to penal servitude had wives and children, to whose pitiful condition the learned judge had referred when passing sentence.

"You are Mr. Fairfax, are you not?" inquired the taller of the men.

"That is my name," I admitted. "What can I do for you?"

"If we could persuade you to vouchsafe us an hour of your valuable time we should be more grateful than we could say," the man replied. "We have an important piece of business which it might possibly be to your advantage to take up. At any rate, it would be worthy of your consideration."

"But why have you not come to me before?" I inquired. "You have seen me in court every day. Why do you wait until the case is at an end?"

"Because we wanted to be quite sure of you," he answered. "Our case is so large and of such vital importance to us, that we did not desire to run any risk of losing you. We thought we would wait and familiarize ourselves with all that you have done in this affair before coming to you. Now we are satisfied that we could not place our case in better hands, and what we are anxious to do is to induce you to interest yourself in it and take it up."

"You pay me a very high compliment," I said, "but I cannot give you a decision at once. I must hear what it is that you want me to do and have time to think it over, before I can answer you. That is my invariable rule, and I never depart from it. Do you know my office?"

"We know it perfectly," returned the blind man. "It would be strange if we did not, seeing that we have stood outside it repeatedly, trying to summon up courage to enter. Would it be possible for you to grant us an interview to-night?"

"I fear not," I said. "I am tired, and stand in need of rest. If you care to come to-morrow morning, I shall be very pleased to see you. But you must bear in mind the fact that my time is valuable, and that it is only a certain class of cases that I care to take up personally."

"We are not afraid of our case," the man replied. "I doubt if there has ever been another like it. I fancy you yourself will say so when you hear the evidence I have to offer. It is not as if we were destitute. We are prepared to pay you well for your services, but we must have the very best that England can supply."

My readers must remember that this conversation was being carried on at the corner of Ludgate Hill and the Old Bailey. Curious glances were being thrown at my companions by passers-by, and so vehement were the tall man's utterances becoming that a small crowd was gradually collecting in our neighborhood.

"Very well," I said, "if you are really desirous of consulting me, I shall be very glad to see you at my office at ten o'clock to-morrow morning. I must ask you, however, not to be late, as I have several other appointments."

"We shall not be late," the man answered, "you may rely upon that. We have too much at stake to run any risks of losing your assistance. We will be with you to-morrow at ten o'clock punctually."

He thereupon bade me good-by, and, raising his hat politely, was led along the street by his companion in an opposite direction to that I was taking. They seemed delighted that I had given them an appointment, but for my part I am afraid I was too absorbed by the memories of the day, and the punishment that had been allotted to the two principal members in the swindle, to think very much of them and their business. Indeed, although I made a note of the appointment, it was not until I had arrived at the office on the following morning that I recollected their promised visit. I had just finished my correspondence, and had directed a few letters to my managing clerk, when a junior entered with two cards, which he placed before me. The first I took up bore the name of Septimus Codd, that of the second, Mr. George Kitwater. When I had finished the letter I was in the act of dictating, I bade the clerk admit them, and a moment later the blind man and his companion whom I had seen on Ludgate Hill the previous evening were ushered into my presence. I cannot remember a more venerable appearance than that presented by the taller man. His was a personality that would have appealed forcibly to any student of humanity. It was decidedly an open countenance, to which the long white beard that descended almost to his waist gave an added reverance. His head was well shaped and well set upon his shoulders, his height was six feet two if an inch, and he carried himself with the erectness of a man accustomed to an outdoor life. He was well dressed, and for that reason I surmised that he was the possessor of good manners. His companion was as much below the middle height as he was above it. His was a peculiar countenance resembling that of a boy when seen at a distance, and that of an old man when one was close to him. His eyes, as I have already said, were small, and they were set deep in his head. This, in itself, was calculated to add to his peculiar appearance. He steered his blind companion into the room and placed him in a seat. Then he perched himself on a chair beside him and waited for me to open the debate.

"Good morning, gentlemen," I said. "Allow me to congratulate you on your punctuality."

"We were afraid of missing you," observed Kitwater. "Our business is so particular that we did not want to run any risk of losing our appointment."

"Perhaps you will now be good enough to tell me what that business is?" I replied, taking my note book out of a drawer, preparatory to writing down what they had to say.

"In the first place, sir," the man began, "we of course understand that everything we have to tell you will be regarded by you as strictly private and confidential?"

"That goes without saying," I replied. "If I were to divulge what my clients tell me, my business would not be worth a day's purchase. You can rest assured that everything you may impart to me will be treated in strictest confidence."

ORIGIN OF ABSINTHE.

It Was First a Harmless Medical Remedy Used by a French Physician.

Temperance people in Europe were recently much surprised at the discovery that the deadly absinthe was originally an extremely harmless medical remedy, says the New York Herald.

It was a French physician who first used it. His name was Ordinaire, and he was living as a refugee at Couvet, in Switzerland, at the close of the eighteenth century. Like many other country doctors at that time, he was also a druggist, and his favorite remedy was a certain elixir of absinthe, of which he alone had the secret.

At his death he bequeathed the formula to his housekeeper, Mlle. Grandpierre, and she sold it to the daughters of Lieut. Henriod. They cultivated in their little garden the herbs necessary for concocting it, and, after they had distilled a certain quantity of the liquid they sold it on commission to itinerant peddlers, who quickly disposed of it in the adjacent towns and villages.

Finally, during the first decade of the nineteenth century, a wealthy distiller purchased the formula, and very soon afterward he placed on the market the modern absinthe, which differs greatly from the old medical remedy, since the latter contained no alcohol and very little absinthe.

New Seasickness Remedy.

Prof. Heinz, of the University of Erlangen, claims to have discovered an infallible and very simple antidote against seasickness. "Draw a long and vigorous breath at frequent intervals," he says, "and you will never suffer from this malady." The reason, he explains, is because the initial cause of seasickness is to be found in a lobe of the brain, the sensitiveness of which reacts on the stomach, and that when fresh air is breathed at frequent intervals the blood becomes charged with oxygen and thus the offending lobe loses its sensitiveness. He adds that he has made several experiments on himself for the purpose of proving the efficacy of this novel remedy, and has also completely cured several persons who used to be seasick whenever they went on the water. Finally, he points out that the antidote costs nothing and can be tested by anyone.

WHO'S IN THE GRAVE?

Oran M. Fletcher Returns to His Home Just One Month After He Had Been Buried.

Oran M. Fletcher startled his parents, who live near Greenville, Pa., by walking into their home when they thought him dead and buried. He had been mourned for almost a month. That he is their son they do not doubt, but they wonder who it was that they buried.

On September 2 William M. Fletcher, who lives about two miles north of town, received a telegram from Cleveland announcing that his son, Oran M. Fletcher, had fallen dead in a restaurant. The telegram was signed by the son's wife.

Upon his arrival in Cleveland he saw the body at the morgue, and, although there was a suspicion in his mind that it might not be his son, the identification by the widow was so positive that he became satisfied. He brought the body here and the funeral was held at the family home.

After the funeral Fletcher's wife and three children came here to live with the parents. This week Mrs. Fletcher received a letter from a sister in Cleveland saying that her husband was alive. She left at once and was not here when her husband arrived.

Fletcher refuses to tell where he had been. He says that the first he knew of the affair was when he received an answer to a letter he had written to his wife's sister asking where his wife was, as she had not answered letters he had sent to her in Cleveland.

The resemblance of the dead man to Fletcher was remarkable. There was a patch on the clothing, neatly sewed, which Mrs. Fletcher said was her work.

CAMEL VERSUS TROLLEY.

A Ship of the Desert More Than Holds Its Own in a Unique Street Race at Cincinnati.

A Cincinnati special says that one of the zoo's big double-turreted camels had a race with a Vine and Clifton car on Vine street early the other morning. The complete discomfiture of the motorman, as the unwieldy "ship of the desert" beat the electric car the length of several camels' necks, was witnessed by a great crowd. The camel appeared before seven o'clock of Erin with an Arabian complexion. The camel went along well enough until the car threatened to knock a few blocks of fat off his slanting roof. Evidently this made the animal angry, for with a carelessly executed shriek of rage he—or she—gave a grotesque four-legged simultaneous kick at the on the thoroughfare in charge of a son vehicle. The keeper mounted the rear platform and the car buzzed down the street. The camel's feet seemed to meet at a common center, fly out four ways at the same time, his tail went up and so did his head, and the car was losing ground. A little more current was met by a little more camel.

The wheels were going like mad, but the old camel lifted his tail still higher and elevated his facial expression of solemn dignity to a one-story height, his twin humps flopped like the curtains of an old string bonnet and his well-padded feet projected 40 feet jumps with absolute ease. When the car stopped at Vine and Seventh this bit of bric-a-brac from the zoo had taken up all the slack in the lead line, he had hopped past the car and was first over the crossing in a race two blocks long.

Kites Fitted with Cameras.

Capt. Berniex, of Quebec, is planning an expedition to the north pole. He will take with him large kites fitted with cameras. These will enable him, even if he fails to get to the pole, to take photographs of many points which he cannot reach.

Constable Gustave Deinlein, of Berkley Heights, who is well known in this city, was presented by his admiring friends in the Union county court, yesterday, with a splendid specimen of the Chinese hairless dog. The animal was brought to this country recently by a Philippine soldier and on the voyage over had been taught many tricks.

The constable at first thought the canine was an ordinary mongrel that had been scalded. On being reassured of the animal's value he accepted it with profuse thanks.

HEARING OF PEARSON CASE

OCCUPIED ATTENTION OF ORPHANS' COURT AT SOMERVILLE YESTERDAY.

A Tangled Affair Which Was Explained With Some Difficulty—Decision Reserved.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Jan. 11—North Plainfield people and matters claimed the attention of Judge Schenck yesterday in the Orphans' court, which session began at 10:15 o'clock, and lasted nearly all day.

A hearing was held on the exceptions filed against the accounts of William J. Pearson, administrator of the estate of the late William Fryer and executor in the estate of Oliver R. Pearson, deceased. Wm. A. Coddington, of Plainfield, appeared for Wm. J. Pearson and Frederick A. Pope, of this place, was counsel for Oliver R. Pearson, Jr., the exceptant.

The affair was in quite a tangle and the case proved a very interesting one, attracting many spectators. Wm. J. Pearson almost admitted on the stand that some of his figures were not right, owing to a muddle he got in with the property, making it very difficult for him to keep his bearings.

Oliver R. Pearson and William Fryer owned a farm together. After the latter died Wm. J. Pearson, his administrator, got an order to sell the property for payment of debts. Pursuant to the order he sold the interest of Fryer to Louis M. VanDyke, of North Plainfield borough. VanDyke then conveyed the property to Wm. J. Pearson, individually. Subsequently to that the property was partitioned by one of the Oliver R. Pearson devisees and the whole farm conveyed to John H. Borman, of Warrenville.

The court reserved decision in the matter of the correctness of the accounts.

MAKE THE TIME-TABLE MATCH

"X" SUGGESTS THAT JERSEY CENTRAL MIGHT FOLLOW THAT COURSE.

If the Trains Cannot be Made to Conform With the Present Time-Table.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I want to add my little word of complaint against the train service on the Central Railroad. It is useless to cite details. Every commuter knows that the trains are almost never on time; that they are usually from ten to thirty minutes late.

It is useless for the officials to say it cannot be helped; that is a confession of their own incompetence. The whole management of the road is marked by looseness and by laxity of discipline, which is best appreciated by comparison with a road like the Pennsylania. That road has learnt one great lesson, that is that the interests of the stockholders and of the public are identical, that good service pays.

The Jersey Central has an exclusive franchise of the greatest value, and yet they seem to feel that they owe nothing whatever to the travelling public and that their patrons ought to be satisfied with whatever may be offered. This policy is suicidal, and the stockholders will realize it before long, but the effect on suburban towns will be disastrous and long continued.

Railroad facilities in New York and Brooklyn are certainly from three to four times more efficient now than fifteen years ago and are constantly improving. It is difficult to find one single improvement on the Jersey Central in that period; fares have not been reduced, the cars are no better, the trains are more numerous, and the schedule time is as slow as ever. We used indeed to have the satisfaction of conforming to the time-table. We had a reasonable chance of arriving at our destinations at the promised time, and as the schedule time of the fastest trains is only a mile in about a minute and a half, this was not an unreasonable gratification.

I now propose one simple improvement; if the officials cannot make their trains conform to the time-table, they can at least give us a time-table conforming to the trains. Let them add, say fifteen minutes, to the schedule time of all trains and then we shall have at least the satisfaction of arriving on time. X.

Owing to repairs to be made at the power house of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railroad Company, which is at the electric light station, no trolley cars will be run between 12 o'clock tonight and 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

FALLING TREE.

Struck J. D. Loizeaux in Falling and Caused Serious Injury—Brought Home Yesterday.

J. D. Loizeaux, the East End lumber dealer, whose leg was broken in an accident at Highland Park, yesterday noon, was brought to his home in a New Brunwick ambulance a few hours after the accident. He passed a very good night and this morning was resting comfortably. The break is in the left leg and is a severe one.

Although it was stated yesterday the accident was caused by sliding logs, it was due to the jumping of a falling tree. Mr. Loizeaux and several assistants had hewn the tree through and stood off to let it drop. A large limb struck the ground first causing the trunk to rebound and strike Mr. Loizeaux sqarely in the leg. It sheered off and then, rebounding a second time, struck him again, inflicting painful bruises, in the upper portions of the body.

A PARISH FOR FIFTY YEARS

Grace Episcopal Church Celebrated Its Semi-Centennial at Yesterday's Services.

BISHOP WAS PRESENT.

Four Services Were Held During the Day—Many Visitors in Attendance—Elaborate Musical Services—Bishop Scarborough Preached at Morning Service.

An epoch in the history of Grace Episcopal church was marked yesterday with services impressive and beautiful. It was in the nature of a jubilee, the occasion being the semi-centennial of the parish. The highest dignitary of the church in the diocese, a large number of priests and the fine vested choir made the celebration a memorable occasion.

Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, the venerable rector, who for over thirty-one years has ministered to the spiritual welfare of the parishioners, had the hearty co-operation of a faithful vestry in planning the jubilee, and it was a crowning effort in the life of the church. There were four distinct services. First there was an early celebration of the Holy Eucharist at 7:30 o'clock. The 10:30 o'clock service consisted of litany, sermon and a second celebration. In the afternoon, at 3 o'clock, the children of the parish had their exercises. The closing service was at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

GRACE P. E. CHURCH.

At each service the body of the edifice was crowded for not only did the congregation of the particular church itself take an interest in the jubilee but all Episcopalians in this vicinity, rejoicing in the achievements of the parish, joined in the jubilee. No little factor in the splendid services was the well rendered church music, under the direction of Mrs. William A. Freeman, the choirmaster and organist. The edifice had been specially adorned for the event. The Christmas greens were still in place and added to these were bright flowers, masses of lilies on the high altar being a striking feature in this connection.

Rev. Mr. Rodman officiated at the plain celebration at 7:30 o'clock in the morning. He was assisted by Rev. J. H. Wilson, the curate. A large number of the members of the parish received communion. At 10:30 o'clock there was a procession preceding the service. The choir, led by the crucifer and acolytes marched down the right aisle, followed by the priests and bishop, Rt. Rev. Dr. Scarborough. Before the clergy was raised the choir banner. As the body moved up the main aisle, a pause was made at the chancel steps where the bishop blessed the new litany desk, given as a memorial by the Pittis family. It is particularly ornate, being of brass and oak, wrought in a rich ecclesiastical design. Rev. Mr. Rodman acted as gospeller and Rev. Mr. Wilson as epistoler. Rev. Dr. W. H. Neilson, of the diocese of West Virginia, was the litaner. The sermon was delivered by the bishop, who chose as his text Leviticus, xxv, 10—"It shall be a jubilee unto you." The prelate mainly dwelt upon the advance of Grace church during the fifty years of its existence, and made reference to the progress of humanity, the State and the Episcopal church at large during this period. Incidently he spoke on the importance of setting apart one day for the worship of God, and emphasized his belief, not in an American nor in a Continental Sunday, but rather in a God's Sunday. In closing he paid a glowing tribute to the work of the rector.

The full vested choir sang magnificiently. In the litany hymn, "Saviour when in dust to Thee," Miss Cornelia Miller, soprano, and William Tallamy, tenor, rendered solos and in the brilliant offertory anthem, "The heavens are telling," there was a trio part taken by Miss Miller, Mr. Tallamy, and Arthur Freeman, bass. Miss Beatrice Miner, alto, Miss Miller and Mr. Tallamy also rendered solos in the Agnus Dei, as arranged by King Hall in C. In the communion office the Bishop was the celebrant. Rev. Mr. Rodman acted as deacon and Rev. Mr. Wilson as sub-deacon, Rev. Dr. Neilson also assisting.

In the afternoon the Sunday-school children assembled in the parish house and marched in a body to the church, where services were held. Both the rector and the bishop made appropriate addresses. The remarks of the bishop were at once eloquent and timely. Assisting in the service were the curate and Rev. Dr. Neilson and Rev. W. Bryce Morrow.

Another procesison marked the commencement of the choral evening service. The wardens and vestries of the Church of the Holy Cross, the Church of the Heavenly Rest, and St. Stephen's, all of Greater Plainfield, and delegations from All Saints', Fanwood, Trinity, Cranford, and St. John's, Somerville, attended the service. In the chancel were the bishop of the diocese, the rector and curate of the parish, and Rev. W. Montgomery Downey, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross; Rev. R. G. Quennell, rector of the Ascension Memorial chapel, New York, now the only surviving former rector of the parish; Rev. W. R. Mulford, rector of All Saints', Fanwood; Rev. J. Edgecumbe, rector of Trinity, Cranford; Rev. H. B. Wright, rector of St. John's, Somerville; Rev. Dr. W. H. Neilson, of the diocese of West Virginia; and Rev. W. Bryce Morrow, of the diocese of Pennsylvania.

The opening of the service was taken by Rev. Mr. Wilson. Rev. Mr. Wright was first lector and Rev. Mr. Downey second. The creed and prayers were intoned by Rev. Mr. Morrow. Mr. Freeman and Miss Miller rendered solos and they together with Miss Beatrice Miner and Mr. Tallamy sang as a quartette, "While All Things Were in Quiet Silence." Rev. Mr. Quennell preached. His text was Romans i, 12—"I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." He impressed his hearers with the fact that their gifts to God should not be limited to gold, but that they should offer themselves unto the Heavenly Father. In the offertory anthem, 'Holy Art Thou," Mr. Tallamy and Miss Miller, took the solo parts. Stainer's sevenfold amen to the benediction said by the bishop, was particularly effective.

The present officers of the church are: Rector, Rev. Erskine M. Rodman; curate, Rev. J. H. Wilson; wardens, DeWitt C. Ivins and Marion S. Ackerman; vestrymen, Edward H. Booth, William T. Goughm, Lewis G. Timpson, Charles E. Brooks, Orville G. Waring, Arthur Masters and Julius E. Erickson; organist and choirmaster, Mrs. William A. Freeman.

The alms basin contained $1,543 as a result of the golden offertory, and it is expected that it will be increased to $2,000 when all the contributions are received.

The history of the parish dates back to Sunday, Jan. 11, 1852, when Rev. Philemon E. Coe, then living at Westfield, ministered to a little flock. At first he became minister-in-charge and subsequently he served as rector for a period of six years. He advanced the money to build a modest church edi-

"LIFE AS IT IS." SUBJECT OF SERMON

LIFE'S POSSIBILITIES.

MOST MEN HAVE MUCH MORE THAN THEY REALLY DESERVE.

God Gives Beneficient Laws and People Suffer Because These Laws are Violated—Life is a Mystery.

"Life as it is," was the subject of an interesting discourse given yesterday morning at All Souls' church by the pastor, Rev. A. C. Nickerson. His text was "Your life is hid with Christ in the Lord." The pastor in beginning his sermon referred to this being a strenuous time of the year, but that all were glad for the bright days. He spoke of sickness, reverses, dull skies, of terrible accidents, yet all he said appreciated life's benefits.

"Most men have much more than they deserve," said Mr. Nickerson, "and dividends are coming to us all the time. Thousands of benefits are received by persons during their life that they never raised one finger to obtain. When I think of the possibilities for every babe that comes into the world I am impressed with the fact that I am a great debtor.

"God makes our dependence a source of greater obligation, yet persons who have suffered the loss of a dear one, or reverses in business are prone to say, 'How can I accept life as it is.' God gives us most beneficient laws and we suffer because these laws are violated. It is a law that shields us that also smites us. When we obey the law it is then that everything is pleasant, and the reverse when we disobey. The same wind and waves that have time and again brought the ship into the harbor safely may wreck it all because of digression from the laws of God. The final responsibility in the great tunnel accident must be a personal one. Cannot you trustfully accept life as it is? If God is on our side, you are surer to be right.

"It has been said by someone that it is impossible today to be honest and make money. God help us if this be true. It is important that all should do right. The innocent has often suffered for the guilty and we must strive earnestly to save the guilty. Life will ever be mysterious, but hidden with Christ in God we should be able and willing to accept it as it is."

CHANGES IN DEPARTMENTS.

General Re-Arrangement Made at Woodhull & Martin's.

Several changes have been made at Woodhull & Martin's store in the hope of obtaining more room and a better showing for some goods. Charles Greer, manager of the men's furnishing goods department, has been given the department formerly in charge of Miss Edith Lacey. Miss Lacey has moved her stock of ribbons, laces, etc., to the department formerly in charge of Miss Eva Lance, and the latter has moved her stock of children's bonnets, handkerchiefs, etc., to a place near the hosiery department. By the change Mr. Greer is given more room for his goods, which he needed very much.

TOUR OF INSPECTION.

Councilmen Looked Over Proposed Quarters in the Smalley Building Saturday Afternoon.

The members of the Common Council made a tour of inspection of the Smalley building, Saturday afternoon, examining the rooms proposed as the new offices for the Council and other city offices. The members seemed to be well pleased with the rooms, yet no opinion was expressed in reference to a change. Notes were made of the various things and these will be considered by the Council before a final decision is made.

It is expected that the committee having the matter in charge will meet soon to prepare a report to be submitted to the Council. The committee has talked with J. B. Coward and is fully acquainted with the facts as to what he proposes to do. Thus the members are now in a position to discuss and settle the important question of change intelligently.

DOCTOR BENTON IS GONE

ANOTHER PHYSICIAN IN CHARGE AT DUNELLEN'S SANITARIUM.

His Departure Was Attended By Considerable Mystery It Is Said.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Jan. 13.—A change has been made at the Sterling-Worth Sanitarium at Dunellen. Dr. Benton, of Buffalo, who has been in charge for some months, is no longer connected with the establishment. Another physician, who hails from New York, is now superintending the affairs at the institution.

Dr. Benton left suddenly one day a week ago. It is said that before his departure he gave out the statement that he intended to visit private patients at Atlantic City, N. J., and Allentown, Pa. Since then he has not been heard from. Before leaving he packed up several trunks and had them shipped away to Allentown. In explanation of this act it is said that he declared that his housekeeper intended to leave. She went with him, according to the story afloat.

A discovery was made just after Dr. Benton had gone. The water in the cellar had been turned on and over two feet of water flooded the basement. Dr. Benton's whereabouts are not known. Mrs. Lucy Childs, of Plainfield, is the owner of the establishment.

SALVATION ARMY HELD ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

Yesterday Marked Completion of Eleven Years of Its Labor in Plainfield.

A DECIDED SUCCESS.

LIEUT. COL. GIFFORD AND NATIONAL STAFF BAND WERE HERE.

Band Festival Saturday — Four Services Yesterday—Big Demonstration at Y. M. C. A. Hall in the Evening.

Special services, marking the eleventh anniversary of its establishment, in this city, were held Saturday evening and at intervals throughout yesterday by the local corps of the Salvation Army. The Plainfield corps was assisted by Lietenant-Colonel Gifford and the principal staff and the national staff band, composed of sixteen pieces.

The anniversary was a decided success. The attendance at all the services was very large and many announced their faith in Christ after hearing the impressive discourses given by the leaders.

Saturday evening the attraction was a band festival, taking place in Reform Hall. The musical organization, which consists of skilled players on brass instruments, discoursed familiar hymns, while the members also sang. The band was in charge of Major Gooding, while Major Wilder, division officer, of Newark, assisted.

Yesterday's programme began in the morning at 7 o'clock with a knee drill, another term for an hour of prayer. It was followed at 11 o'clock by a holiness convention conducted by Colonel Gifford. In the afternoon there were two meetings, one in the large hall at the Y. M. C. A. and the other at army headquarters. Major Atkins was in charge at the latter while Colonel Gifford was the other leader. Other speakers at these services ware Majors Gooding and Harris, Staff Captain Pike, Adjutants Black and Durand and Brigadier Reinhardson.

The concluding service was held last evening and was probably the most interesting of the several given. It took place in the large hall of the Y. M. C. A. and was led by Colonel Gifford. He gave a stirring talk which was followed by others from Major Ferris, "the poor man's lawyer" and Major Atkinson, the colonel's secretary. The band was in attendance and accompanied the singing. From a spiritual point of view this meeting was an unqualified success and came as a fitting climax to the only anniversary which the corps has publicly observed.

The Salvation Army first began its beneficent work in this city eleven years ago. Meetings were conducted by Adjutant Leyh and Cadet Grocland in Reform Hall, the building being packed nightly, so great was the interest taken. Since then the corps has assembled in other places and is now located on West Front street, in the quarters formerly occupied by the Y. M. C. A. The corps numbers thirty soldiers in charge of Ensign and Mrs. McLeod and in addition to holding nightly meetings, conducts a Sunday-school which is always well attended. The past year was one of the most successful, financially, that it has enjoyed in some time. The receipts amounted to $1,364.16 with disbursements about the same. The work is still advancing and there are prospects of its branching out more than ever in the years to come.

ALL BACK AGAIN.

Pond Machine Tool Benefit Association is Once More in a Flourishing Condition.

The Pond Machine Benefit Association, which cares for disabled or sick employes of the Pond shop, held its first meeting, Saturday evening, since the machinists' strike took place, last summer. At that time all the members, with the exception of three and the officers, withdrew by reason of a fancied grievance. It was found Saturday that all had returned and the association now has a membership closely approaching 500.

The election of officers was held and resulted as follows: President, Charles Schuchoez; vice president, William Spencer; treasurer, Patrick Nugent; secretary, Samuel Robinson; trustee, Robert Dorman. A committee was appointed to revise the by-laws and the president was empowered to appoint one member of the sick committe from the foundry.

MARRIED MEN WON AGAIN

VICTORIOUS IN SECOND OF SERIES AT "COCKED HAT."

Rolled on Park Club Alleys With the Bachelors Saturday Evening.

The Benedicts downed the Bachelors Saturday evening in the second of the series of "cocked hat," arranged to take place on the bowling alleys of the Park Club. They won by a margin of thirty-three pins, but the victory put the married bowlers in high feather for they had won the series.

In the straight game the Bachelors had outbowled the Benedicts and the excitement ran high on that account in this match. Many of the members of the club gathered Saturday evening and they made lots of noise in urging on their favorite team.

This was the cry of the unmarried men as they tried to put enthusiasm into the play:

Bachelors, Bachelors,
Hear us yell.
Bachelors, Bachelors,
We bowl like ——

Suffice it to say the last line was not finished and the silence was made more impressive than the missing word. The Benedicts also made constant use of a call like this:

One, two, three,
Who are we?
We are the Benedicts,
Hully Gee.

AFTER BARBERS.

One Arrest Was Made Yesterday for Doing Business Seven Days in the Week.

At the request of the law abiding local boss and journeymen barbers, the police have commenced to wage warfare against tonsorial artists who apply the lather and wield the razor seven days a week. The first victim to get caught in the dragnet is David Thompson, of Richmond street, who was found by Patrolman McCarthy at 10 o'clock, yesterday morning, tending a customer. He admitted keeping open Saturday but said his Sunday business was only a side issue and was done as an accommodation to his patrons.

In the city court, this morning, he told City Judge Runyon he might have shaved twenty men out of hours since he has been in business. At ten cents each this would make his unlawful profits $2 so that amount was taken away from him in the shape of a fine.

A NEW PRESIDENT.

John O'Keefe Elected as Head of Beneficial Society.

At a meeting of the Aluminum Press Company's Beneficial Society, held Saturday evenng, John O'Keeffe was elected president in the place made vacant by the resignation of Alex. Muir. OPENED FIRE AT BROTHER

Then the Police Gathered in All Three of the Jenkins and Locked Them Up.

NOBODY WAS HURT.

Oscar Jenkins Says He Shot to Frighten His Brother, Sherman, Who Was Too Handy With His Fists—Oscar Sent to Jail—Others Released.

The Jenkins brothers, three of them, Sherman, Charles and Oscar, colored men, had a little misunderstanding early Saturday evening, which came near resulting in one of them being shot and ended in the arrest of all. Oscar began a little shooting practice with a 44-calibre revolver which threw Charles and Sherman into spasms and caused a hurried scurrying into hallway of a score of pedestrians who were attarcted by the noise of the dispute. The shooter went to jail, this morning, for twenty days to meditate over the danger of carrying concealed weapons.

From the testimony offered by the trio in the city court, this morning it appeared that Sherman failed to keep an appointment with Oscar, Saturday afternoon. The meeting place was to have been a street corner and Oscar didn't relish waiting in the cold. He still felt miffed later in evening when he met Sherman and Charles at the corner of Park avenue and Second street and threw out some hints that Sherman was a pretty good fabricator. This didn't phase Sherman any, but when Oscar followed him to Somerset street and made a "pass" at him, he swung around with stunning effect.

Oscar went to earth but was immediately up and sang out that he had a gun and was going to shoot. Sherman told him to go ahead and, before Charles could interfere, Oscar obeyed orders. He only intended to frighten his brother, so he says, so when opposite French's mill the revolver went off but when the smoke cleared away Sherman was still among the living. Oscar found out he was very much alive for he was thrown down and held by both brothers until Patrolman Lunger arrived.

All three agreed in court that Oscar was to blame. Charles had acted as peacemaker and complaint in his case was dismissed. Sherman, so City Judge Runyon ruled, had committed a breach of the peace but acted on the spur of the moment with just provocation. He was released with a suspended sentence. Oscar was given his preference of $10 or twenty days. Sherman was about to pay the fine but, at the request of the police, he acquiesced to Oscar's going to jail.

An Invaluable Reference Book.

The Tribune Almanac for 1902 has made its appearance and it is a very curt statement of palpable fact to say that this year's issue surpasses all its predecessors in variety and accuracy. This almanac is not filled up with a mass of dead and undigested statistics. But those looking for live, up-to-date facts will find them here. If you are interested in questions of population—cities, States, Territories or nations—the information is here, easily found. If you want to know anything about our wars turn to The Tribune Almanac. Do the game laws interest you? The almanac covers the subject. Do you care to know the names of our Ambassadors, Ministers and Consuls? They are in the almanac. Maybe you are a member of some patriotic secret or benefit society? Statistics about the organizations are in the almanac. About sportiug records and best performances? They are all here. Pension laws? Just look in the almanac. In fact, you will find here statistics about nearly everything of current interest. It is in handy, compact shape, and is altogether the best publication of the kind that brains, money and hard work could make. Only twenty-five cents a copy.

Child Worth Millons.

"My child is worth millions to me," says Mrs. Mary Bird, of Harrisburg, Pa., "yet I would have lost her by croup had I not purchased a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure." One Minute Cough Cure is sure cure for coughs, croup and throat and lung troubles. An absolutely safe cough cure which acts immediately. The youngest child can take it with entire safety. The little ones like the taste and remember how often it helped them. Every family should have a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure handy. At this season especially it may be needed suddenly. L. W. Randolph.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

For many years W. H. Sebring, of West Front street, has been furnishing the best clothes for men and boys. He also makes suits to order that fit and wear well. If you buy your clothes of him you are always sure to look well.

There are some opportunities that come to a man but once. This may be true of the bargains now being offered in hats at Woodhull & Martin's. The best quality of hats, derbys and soft hats, are being closed out very low.

One doesn't mind "putting his foot in it" when it comes to the Waldorf shoe. It is the latest thing in footwear. and its low price is not the least among the many attractions of the shoe. Waldorf Shoe Company, 132 North avenue.

As an extra inducement to shoppers Fred Firstbrook, the enterprising grocer of Liberty street, offers double trading stamps on Saturdays. He wants more people to give him a trial, his main inducement being high-grade goods at low prices.

Notwithstanding that the holiday rush is over, Druggist E. S. F. Randolph, of North and Watchung avenues, continues to make big sales in perfumes. He has a large fine assorted stock on hand, which he is disposing of at being reasonable prices.

Some one has deplored the fact that watches can no longer be set by the trains of the New Jersey Central. There's no need of it if the timepiece was bought at Collier's or if it is taken to him for repairs. He is the oldest established jeweller in the city.

The term "you're a lobster" doesn't disturb the equanamity of the crustaceans at the market of the Roger Sea Food Company. They are lobsters and they know it and what's more they are the kind relished by epicureans. And the fish at Rogers' market are "fish," strictly fresh.

The wise and thoughtful woman always plans ahead for the seasons to come. Now is the time to make your selections of pretty laces, embroideries, etc., at Peck's. No prettier designs made than those to be found at his store and you only pay a reasonable price. An attractive assortment of flannels is also to be found.

THEATRICAL.

From the rise to the fall of the curtain the interim of three hours is literally jammed with feature after feature, dramatic, musical and spectacular, superbly novel and original, which appeals to the intelligence, enchants the eye and charms the ear. There is romantic drama, comedy, musical specialties, ballet, processions and a marvelous blending of dazzling color effects in scenery and costumes. A stronger response to the artistic in the American mind was never made than that in the ballet of "The Four Seasons" and in the wonderfully graceful gyrations of the flying Grigolatis. These features are a whole entertainment in themselves. Viola Gillete, who plays Prince Charming, has made a great hit in this character. The management of the Broadway Theatre will promptly respond to all orders for seats sent by mail, accompanied by remittance, directed to Jacob Litt, proprietor.

NORDICA IN A WRECK.

Famous Singer and Her Accompanist Injured In Georgia.

ROME, Ga., Jan. 13.—As a result of a collision between a passenger train and a freight train on the Southern railway at an early morning hour near Reeves Station, twenty miles north of Rome, Mme. Lillian Nordica, the singer, was injured; her accompanist, E. Romaine Simmons, sustained a bruised hand, an engineer was killed, and three other employees of the road were injured.

The train to which Mme. Nordica's private car was attached was a mixed passenger and freight and left Atlanta for Chattanooga. It arrived at Reeves Station at 3:30 o'clock in the morning, where it had orders to meet freight No. 55. A freight train, which proved to be an extra, was on the siding at Reeves when the passenger train arrived, and the engineer of the passenger train, evidently assuming that it was No. 55, did not stop, but continued his run toward Chattanooga.

A mile north of Reeves, while going at a rapid rate, the passenger met the freight on a sharp curve. The two engines crashed into each other, and Engineer Tracey in attempting to jump was caught between the two locomotives and crushed to death.

Mme. Nordica's car was attached to the rear of the passenger train. When the collision occurred, Mme. Nordica was asleep in the private stateroom of the car. The sudden jar threw her from the bed to the floor. It is understood that she sustained a badly bruised shoulder, and the muscles of her neck are said to have been strained. Dr. Garlington, the Southern railway's surgeon here, was immediately summoned and attended the singer. Dr. Garlington stated that Mme. Nordica was not badly hurt, and he thought she would be able to fill her engagement tonight.

Mr. Simmons, her accompanist, sustained injuries to his right hand. The exact condition of the injured member was not ascertained.

WORK BEFORE CONGRESS.

Senate Has Little to Do—House to Pass Pension Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The senate is still without any definite plan of action for the future, and the indications are that the present week will witness a greater display of activity in the committee rooms than in the senate chamber. There are very few matters of importance on the calendar, but enough to engage attention for a few hours each day until Thursday, when the senate probably will adjourn for the week.

Among the measures which there will be an effort made to get out of committee during the week are the Nicaragua canal bill, the Philippine tariff bill and the ship subsidy bill. The indications are that the Nicaragua bill will be reported practically as it passed the house and that the shipping bill will not be materially amended, but the Republican leaders have practically decided to make a material reduction of the tariff on Philippine imports.

The really important work of the house of representatives aside from the Nicaragua canal bill is still in the committee stage, so that there is little of importance to be considered during this week. Today the house is considering bills affecting the District of Columbia. After that the pension appropriation bill will be passed. Although this measure carries about $139,000,000, it follows the department estimates and does not involve any serious issues, so that after a brief explanation its passage usually follows promptly.

Human Sacrifice Prevented.

BAKER CITY, Or., Jan. 13.—A human sacrifice was prevented by the timely arrival of some Sisters of Charity upon the scene in this city. Hy Wong, a paralytic Chinaman, who has been a county charge, was returned to the care of his countrymen in Chinatown. While he was an inmate of the county hospital his cue had been cut off. On this account the Chinese made preparations to offer him as a sacrifice to Joss. Hy Wong managed to get a message to the sisters at the hospital, and they rescued him before his life was taken. It is asserted that all preparations for Hy Wong's execution had been completed when the sisters arrived at the josshouse.

Gift For McKinley Monument.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 13.—Ten thousand dollars was contributed to the national fund for a McKinley memorial by the workingmen of Homestead. It was one of the largest amounts for this purpose that has been raised in western Pennsylvania, and the amount, together with the names of those who donated to the cause, will be forwarded to the headquarters of the McKinley memorial commission in Washington early this week. The majority of the workingmen gave a half day's pay, from the lowest laborer to the heads of departments. There were a few, however, who gave nothing.

Canada Ought Not to Complain.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 13.—With regard to the complaint of Canadian manufacturers that the new tariff of the commonwealth of Australia is injuring Canadian trade, the prime minister of the commonwealth, the Right Hon. E. Barton, says that Canada has benefited by thirty-five years of protection and that he thinks the Canadians should appreciate the desire of Australia to place her manufactures upon a sound basis like that of Canada.

Russia Invades Korea.

YOKOHAMA, Jan. 13.—A report has been received here from Seoul, Korea, to the effect that Russia, without waiting for Korea's permission, has pushed its telegraph line across the Toomen river into Korean territory.

STORY OF SANTIAGO

Eyewitness of Great Naval Fight Tells It.

SCHLEY WAS IGNORED BY SAMPSON

Forthcoming Work Likely to Create a Sensation—Request For Honor of the Colon's Surrender Unanswered.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—A book entitled "Schley and Santiago" is in press in this city and will be issued within ten days. The author is George E. Graham, a war correspondent, who had exceptional facilities for gathering materials, as he was on board the Brooklyn during the fight with the Spanish fleet and was thus in a position to tell the story of Santiago "without fear or favor."

The book is said to have the unqualified indorsement of Rear Admiral Schley, who read and corrected the proof sheets.

In connection with the arrival of the New York Mr. Graham says:

"The commodore reached over to me, took my glasses and looked searchingly to the east, saying slowly as he did so:

"'There is the Texas, and there's the Vixen, but I don't see the New York,' and then, as he kept the glasses up, in an instant he evidently had found her, for he remarked: 'Yes, there she is. I can tell her by her smoke.'

"This was at 1:45 o'clock, and the Colon had gone ashore at 1:15, while Captain Cook had received the surrender at 1:43. At 2 o'clock, just as the New York got where we considered her in signal distance, Commodore Schley ordered the signal raised: 'A glorious victory has been achieved. Details later.' This signal replaced the one which we had been flying for nearly three-quarters of an hour, 'The enemy has surrendered,' and which the New York had not answered. Vainly the signal officers on the bridge watched the New York for even the courtesy of an answering pennant showing that she understood our signal. None was displayed, and then it apparently dawned upon Commodore Schley's mind that Sampson's flag captain on the New York was probably intent upon ignoring him. Picking up the megaphone, Commodore Schley did the one thing that day for which I have always criticised him—lowered his dignity sufficiently to plead with the commander of the fleet that he might have the surrender of the ship whose escape had been frustrated by the Brooklyn and the Oregon, thus making complete the day's victory.

"'I request the honor of the surrender of the Cristobal Colon,' he said in a clear, distinct voice, and from the commander in chief's flagship came wafted back the insolent answer from a cadet, 'What?'

"'I request the honor of the surrender of the Cristobal Colon,' again called the commodore, and this time his voice trembled slightly. We watched the bridge of the New York closely, waiting intently for an answer, but none came. And that message, as had all the others preceding it since the destruction of the Spanish fleet which had been addressed by Schley to the New York, remained unanswered.

"Somebody raised a broom at our masthead on one of the pennant halyards, and the crew of the Oregon followed suit and then gave three cheers for Commodore Schley. On the Texas the men all lined up on the forward deck and at the request of somebody aboard—I presume of Philip himself—gave three cheers for Commodore Schley. The little Vixen circled around three or four times, her crew yelling themselves hoarse for the Brooklyn, for Schley and for the victory. But from the New York there came never a sound of joyfulness and never a cheer."

Seven Burned to Death.

BUFFALO, Jan. 13.—Henry Pearlstein, his wife and five children, ranging in age from one and a half to twelve years, were burned to death at an early hour in the morning in a fire that destroyed a two story frame building at 1047 Broadway. Joseph Supowski, who owned the building and kept a shoe store on the ground floor, has been placed under arrest pending an investigation. Karl Bracki, Supowski's brother-in-law, is also detained by the police. Supowski carried an insurance of $9,000 on the building and its contents, which, the police say, is a very liberal valuation.

Officials here cannot confirm the rumor. The Fox plant has been idle since last summer, owing to labor troubles. The mill has the latest improved machinery, employs several hundred men and makes steel cars and trucks.

CAMPAIGN IS OPENED

French Premier Makes an Address at St. Etienne.

THE GOVERNMENT POLICY REVIEWED

Under the Present Ministry France Claimed to Have Acquired Security Hitherto Unknown—Law of Associations Upheld.

ST. ETIENNE, France, Jan. 13.—Favored by cold and fine weather, the opening of the ministerial electoral campaign here proved an unqualified success.

Since Saturday morning the capital of the Loire has been filled with the population of the surrounding districts and numerous visitors from Paris and the rest of France. Besides M. Waldeck-Rousseau, the French premier, the ministers of war, marine, the colonies and commerce were in attendance, as were the principal military and civil officials of the department. The ceremonies included visits to the hospital and other local institutions of St. Etienne. The town was lavishly decorated with flags in every direction, and M. Waldeck-Rousseau and the other ministers were greeted with cheers and cries of "Vive la republique!" "Vive la gouvernement!" and "Vive Loubet!"

After lunch at the Hotel de Ville, at which M. Waldeck-Rousseau's speech was confined to local topics, came the unveiling of the statue to Marie Joseph Francois Garnier, a captain of the French navy and an explorer, born here in 1839, and whose efforts contributed largely to obtaining for France her colonial possessions of Annam and Tonquin, where Captain Garnier was assassinated in 1873 by the "Black Flags." The unveiling of this statue was the occasion of a great ovation in favor of the French premier and the other ministers.

M. WALDECK-ROUSSEAU.

A reception of the delegates to the labor and commercial organizations followed.

In the evening at the prefecture, on the occasion of the banquet offered the French premier by the Republicans of the department of Loire, M. Waldeck-Rousseau, replying to a toast of his health, made his great speech, in which he set forth the position of the government in view of the coming general elections.

The speech of the premier took the form of a review of the policy of the government and the work of the present legislature. The speaker concluded with expressing his firm conviction that the elections would result in a striking victory for the republic and finally overthrow all the forces of reaction.

M. Waldeck-Rousseau began by declaring that since the formation of his ministry the country had acquired a security unknown for a long time previous. He recalled the sweeping Republican victory in the municipal elections and said that the hour for action instead of defense had seemed to have arrived and that the government submitted a programme of reforms. He said the adoption of the law of associations had marked a decisive step forward from the point of view of economic development and the guarantees of society. Notwithstanding a prediction of agitation, the speaker said, the law of associations had begun to be executed, and it would be carried out in the spirit in which it was conceived, without passion and without weakness.

Referring to the liquor legislation, which had resulted in a loss to the treasury, the premier said that the transitory deceptions attributed to this law were not too heavy a price to pay for the suppression of the scourge of alcoholism, which threatens the very existence of the race.

A New Railway Danger Signal.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 13.—An instrument has been perfected by F. P. Cobham of this city for signaling between trains on the same railway track. It is based on the wireless telegraph principle and signals automatically when two trains are within 2,000 feet of each other. It also indicates in which direction each of the two trains is running, or if one of them is standing on the track that fact is indicated.

Railway Clerk Missing.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 13.—A warrant has been sworn out for F. H. Fitzgerald, clerk in the supply department of the Southern railway, charging him with the embezzlement of some $1,800 worth of stamps and other property of the company. Fitzgerald cannot be found. His home is in Manchester. It is claimed that the amount specified in the warrant does not fully cover the loss.

SUCCESSFUL OPERATIONS.

Expedition to Loboo Wrought Havoc. A Luzon Town Destroyed.

MANILA, Jan. 13.—News received from Batangas province is cheerful. The expedition to Loboo, in Batangas, has been a complete success. The columns under Colonels Wint and Wells have destroyed a large number of barracks and hamlets and enough rations to keep 20,000 Filipinos for six months. There was not a single American casualty during the entire expedition. The enemy fled from before the Americans. Many of them were killed, and several surrendered.

Major Henry Allen, formerly governor of the island of Leyte and now chief of the insular constabulary, who has been making a tour of inspection through the islands of Leyte and Mindanao, has returned to Manila and reports that the native constabulary is fully able to control the situation in the province of Misamis, in northern Mindanao, where Major Allen thinks the situation has been much exaggerated.

Previous reports concerning this province caused Generals Davis and Wade to request that it be returned from civil to military control.

With the exception of the church, the entire town of Quingua, in Bulacan province, Luzon, was burned to the ground, and thousands of Filipinos have been rendered homeless.

Commissioner Bernard Moses, head of the department of public instruction for the islands, has delivered an address to the teachers of Manila, in which he particularly urged the continued instruction of Filipino children in English.

BRISK CANAL BUSINESS.

Annual Report on New York Waterways Shows Prosperous Year.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 13.—The annual report of Colonel John M. Partridge, former superintendent of public works, will be submitted to the legislature tonight by his successor, Charles S. Boyd. Colonel Partridge says:

"The Erie, Champlain, Oswego and Cayuga and Seneca canals opened to navigation on May 7 and the Black River canal June 1. The dates set for their closing was Nov. 30. The opening date was more than two weeks later than the previous season, and yet a comparison of the figures representing the amount of business actually done on the canals this year with last will show that there was an increase in tons of 74,672. A comparison of the figures week by week this year with the previous year will show that the increase which started at the very opening of the season was maintained to the last.

"The total tonnage on all canals was 3,420,613 tons as against 3,345,941 tons the previous year, the increase in tons being 74,672. Of the total freight carried 2,276,199 tons went eastward and 1,144,414 tons westward.

"The expenditures for the maintenance and ordinary repair of the canals and the collection and compiling of statistics for the year ended Sept. 30, 1901, were $972,633."

Canadian Minister Killed.

FOLKESTONE, Jan. 13.—The Hon. Richard Reid Dobell, Canadian minister without portfolio, was thrown from his horse near here and is dead. Mr. and Mrs. Dobell arrived here a week ago, where they were joined by Major Hull, their son-in-law, and his family. Mr. Dobell and Major Hull rode together to Hythe, attended by a groom. They were returning in the afternoon and had reached the foot of Shorncliffe camp when Mr. Dobell's horse was startled by a motor car, going at an ordinary pace, and threw its rider, who fell heavily upon his head. Mr. Dobell was picked up unconscious and never revived.

Death of President Pidcock.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—J. F. Pidcock, president of the Georgia Northern railway, died at the family homestead at Whitehouse, N. J., yesterday afternoon. He came north several months ago to submit to an operation and was married just before the operation was performed. Since then he has been extremely ill, and when dropsy set in a few weeks ago his physicians feared the worst. Mr. Pidcock was the son of the late Congressman James Nelson Pidcock of New Jersey.

Woman Roasted to Death.

MARINETTE, Wis., Jan. 13.—Mrs. Lena Christel, aged seventy, was literally roasted to death here. Her charred and lifeless body was found in her room by a policeman who had seen smoke issuing from the place. The woman's death was a mysterious one, and Martin Christel, her son, is in jail awaiting an investigation.

DISPUTE UNSETTLED.

Question of Arbitration a Hard One For Pan-Americans.

CITY OF MEXICO, Jan. 13.—The meetings fixed for yesterday morning between the representatives of the American, Mexican, Argentine and Peruvian delegation to the pan-American conference for the purpose of definitely settling the arbitration dispute did not take place, as the Mexican representatives asked for a further postponement on account of not having been able to consult with President Diaz.

In the meantime the Argentines and their friends are getting tired of delays and say that if they shall be prolonged beyond a reasonable point they will take them as equivalent to a definite rejection of their claims to have the compulsory plan pass through the conference, and they will withdraw.

The Chileans, on the other hand, have not abated their demand that the compulsory plan shall not be reported to the conference and drop all sorts of mysterious hints about what they will do if it shall be. The Chileans base their claims not only on the general understanding that nothing disagreeable to Chile was to be discussed by the conference, but upon the alleged verbal and specific promise that the subject of compulsory arbitration should not be brought up. The Mexicans say the Chileans misunderstand the real import of this interview. Nevertheless at the present moment it looks very much as if the Chileans would have their way, though it is impossible to make any certain forecast.

The committee on general welfare has adopted the resolutions of Volney Foster of the United States and Senor Chavero of Mexico looking to the preservation of archæological documents in the countries of America.

The presidents of the other republics or their representatives are reported as going to Corinto later. The meetings will occur Jan. 15 and 17. The object of these meetings is declared to be the preservation of peace.

Marconi In New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Signor William Marconi, the inventor of the wireless telegraph, has arrived here from Canada, where he has been the guest of the Dominion government. This evening he will be the guest of honor at the annual banquet of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. On Wednesday he will sail for Europe. Signor Marconi described his recent experiments in wireless telegraphy between Newfoundland and Cornwall, England, and said the test letters were received exactly according to prearranged plans both as to number and speed. "As soon as I reach the other side," he said, "I shall start to work to get stations in readiness for the transmission of messages, commercial and otherwise, across the Atlantic. There will be two stations on each side, those in Europe being located at Cornwall and Belgium. Those on the American side will be at Nova Scotia and Cape Cod."

Burglars Shot and Captured.

SAYBROOK, Conn., Jan. 13.—Six burglars broke into the village grocery store early Sunday morning and were discovered by a passerby. He went for help and the owner, Daniel Holmes, and, returning to the store, a fight ensued in which several shots were fired. After two of the burglars were injured they surrendered and were locked up. The burglars had already loaded a team with merchandise, and there was enough on the sidewalk to fill another. They refused to give their names, but from notebooks and cards found in their clothes it is believed that they came from Providence. A man was arrested at the depot who is believed to be a confederate. The condition of the injured men is not serious.

THE KAISER'S LATEST

Will Send Prince Henry to This Country.

FRIENDLY MESSAGES ARE EXCHANGED

Royal Yacht Hohenzollern and the Emperor's Brother to Attend the Christening of Vessel Building Here.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The latest evidence of the friendliness of Emperor William of Germany has come in the form of a message to President Roosevelt announcing that he would send his brother, Prince Henry, to this country to attend the launching of the kaiser's yacht now building at the shipyards of Townsend & Downey, New York. The following is the text of the emperor's message, which was in English:

"I am most gratified by your kind permission for Miss Roosevelt's performing the christening ceremony of my yacht. It gives me great pleasure to announce to you that I have ordered my yacht, the Hohenzollern, to cross over and be present at the ceremony. My brother, Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia, will appear as my representative and will be able to express to you once more my sincere feelings and friendship for the United States and their illustrious head."

President Roosevelt replied as follows in German:

"Your majesty's intention to send over your yacht, the Hohenzollern, to attend the christening by my daughter of your new yacht is the source of great pleasure and satisfaction to me. I can assure you a hearty welcome for your brother, Admiral Prince Henry, to whom I shall personally express my sincere feelings of esteem for your majesty as well as my best wishes for the welfare of the German people."

A dispatch from Berlin says that the length of Prince Henry's stay in the United States is undetermined and will depend in part upon the wishes of President Roosevelt and the programme for his entertainment. The sending of Prince Henry to America is regarded by the court as another evidence of the emperor's desire to win the good will of the American people and government for Germany. In the last few weeks the emperor has shown to Embassador White and to Mrs. White various marks of his consideration and has sent to President Roosevelt a personal letter expressing his esteem and later requested that the president's daughter christen his majesty's new yacht.

Date of Prince's Sailing.

BERLIN, Jan. 13.—The Hohenzollern has been placed in drydock at Kiel to have her bottom scraped and painted. She is under orders to be fitted out for a ten weeks' cruise and will sail for New York on Jan. 22, according to present plans, arriving there about Feb. 3. Prince Henry will sail early in February on one of the North German Lloyd steamers. He will be attended by several officers of high rank whose names have not yet been announced. The date of the launching of the emperor's yacht is understood to have been fixed for Feb. 26.

General Alban Seizes a Ship.

COLON, Colombia, Jan. 13.—The South American Steamship company having refused to charter their steamer Lantaro to the Colombian government to be used by the latter as a gunboat General Alban, the military commander of this district, has issued a decree appropriating the Lantaro. He has taken possession of this vessel and has deposited a sum of money equal to her value with Senor Ehrman, a banker of Panama. The captain and crew of the Lantaro will remain in the service of the Colombian government. Cannon are now being mounted upon her, and she will probably sail from Panama today to attack the fleet of the Colombian Liberals.

Well Known Churchman Dead.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 13.—Rev. Dr. Edwin Harwood, D. D., pastor emeritus of Trinity church and one of the best known Episcopal clergymen in the country, is dead at his home in this city after an illness of over a year. Dr. Harwood was born in Philadelphia eighty years ago. He graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1839 and later from the General Theological seminary in New York. Dr. Harwood was pastor of Trinity church from 1859 until 1899, when he was compelled to retire owing to poor health.

Correcting Mason and Dixon's Line.

HANOVER, Pa., Jan. 13.—The surveyors employed jointly by the states of Pennsylvania and Maryland to correct the boundary line as first established by Mason and Dixon have proceeded with their work as far as Germany township, Adams county, Pa. They report that many of the stones are displaced. The surveyors found one used as a doorsill in a dwelling, another in a church, others lying down and some at a considerable distance from the original places. All these stones will be secured and reset in their proper places.

Howard's Second Trial.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 13.—The second trial of James Howard on the charge of killing William Goebel two years ago is proceeding rapidly, but so far no new testimony has been introduced. The commonwealth will conclude early this week, and the defense claims it will present evidence that was not available at the former trial.

Twelve Persons Cremated.

YOKOHAMA, Jan. 13.—A fire in a wooden house here has resulted in the death of twelve persons and the severe burning of twenty more.

FREE VACCINATION.

While the great majority of people, professional men and others, believe that vaccination is a sure preventive against small pox, there is a small proportion which opposes it and probably will continue to do so. There are, however, hundreds who believe in the efficacy of the operation, who have neglected so far to be vaccinated. The reasons for this neglect are various.

There are some who do not feel that they can afford to pay the charges made by the family physician for the operation. For the benefit of these people, the Plainfield Board of Health is going to see that they have the opportunity of being vaccinated without cost. As several of the most prominent physicians of the city are members of the board, there need be no fear that this operation, although done gratuitously, will not be done according to the most improved methods and with all proper care.

Four afternoons this week, the Board of Health offices in the Smalley building will be open for this purpose and physicians will be ready to care for all those who appear. This afternoon is the first time set. The other days are Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Official notice of this fact appeared in Saturday's Daily Press.

It has been proven that wholesale vaccination has stopped the spread of the small pox and all modern medical authorities are now using that means to check the spread of the disease. The fact that lock-jaw has developed after vaccination in a few cases has tended to prevent many from submitting to the operation. The prominent medical authorities, who have looked into the cases, declare that such trouble only follows improper care of the place where the operation was performed. They say that no one need fear vaccination if even ordinary care be taken to protect it.

Plainfield is not the only place which has its troubles with its trolley service. Hardly a city in the State but has some complaint to make. Of the immediate neighbors, Somerville appears to figure quite prominently in its continual warfare with its street railway. The trolley cars there are not run with any regard for the terms of the ordinance and the Town Commissioners are determined to know the reason why.

The hack ordinance provides a schedule of rates which the local licensed hackmen are allowed to charge. It is provided that each hack shall contain a schedule of these rates posted in some conspicuous place. If the hack ordinance is to be obeyed at all, by all means let all of its provisions be remembered. It is time that somebody saw to it that the existing ordinance was fixed so that it can be properly enforced.

Yesterday was an important day in the history of the Grace Episcopal church. It marked the fiftieth anniversary of that parish and was observed with exercises of unusual elaborateness. Bishop Scarborough lent his presence to the occasion. The church is one of the most important in the local diocese and has also played a prominent part in the church history of this city.

Mayor Smalley has announced that owners of good horses may utilize Mountain avenue hereafter as a speedway when the sleighing is good. This will be welcome news to those who like to see good horses in a test of speed on the snow. It is delightful sport and there are many in both city and borough who enjoy it.

North Plainfield township declares that it is going to figure in the Republican county affairs hereafter.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

One of the two excellent daily newspapers published in Plainfield rather insists that Bound Brook was visited by flood about two weeks ago, although the papers here made light of it. For the sake of an argument let us admit that it was an appropriate season for wearing overshoes, but we want to remind our Plainfield contemporary that we had no arks here, vessels usually supposed to be accompaniments of floods. The ark market is cornered in Plainfield, where they run 'em up and down the streets in place of trolley cars.—Bound Brook Chronicle.

In Trenton on Tuesday articles of incorporation were filed for the Delaware Valley Traction Company, of which W. F. Sadler is the head, and $25,000 were deposited with the Secretary of State. The company proposes to build a direct line from Trenton to Pennington, a distance of seven miles, and "eventually to Hopewell and Bound Brook." It has been observed that of the several roads talked of as coming from the Capital City, nearly all of them are planned to strike Bound Brook. The field is still open to the north of us for a road to Morristown by way of the Washington Camp Ground, Chimney Rock and Martinville, and in a few years Bound Brook will be a greater centre for electric lines than it is now for steam roads. Such being the case, all talk of building a new court house at Somerville is idle. Bound Brook is the proper place for the county seat.—Bound Brook Chronicle.

Hamilton Fish Kean was last night reelected chairman of the Union County Republican Committee. This time there was no opposition. Charles N. Codding nominated Mr. Kean, whose selection was by unanimous vote. Mr. Kean has richly deserved this renewed honor. He has been one of the most active chairmen the Union County Republican Committee has had, and his advice and judgment have been excellent. Such reversals as were suffered at the last election were not due to anything that Mr. Kean neglected or overlooked; they would, indeed, have been greater in this city but for his foresight and energetic work. The unanimity of his re-election is very good evidence that the members of the county committee appreciate his excellent work and leadership, and may also be taken as a sign that the factional spirit is abating under his judicious political guidance and counsel.—Elizabeth Journal.

After the Delinquents.

Among the Plainfielders who are enjoying life these days is W. R. Mattox, the well-known constable. He has been given a great number of tax warrants to serve and he has lots of fun hunting delinquents. "Bob" has the best of the game, however, for if the delinquents do not pay he will place them under arrest, and hold them untill they settle. Mr. Mattox can be found at Justice Nash's by delinquents.

Fell in the Tunnel.

A few days ago while H. P. Scott, of West Front street, was going through the railroad tunnel from North avenue, he stumbled down the stairs leading from the avenue to the tunnel. He received a severe shaking up and sustained a slight sprain of the ankle. It being very dark at the point of the accident, Mr. Scott was unable to prevent falling.

Mid-Week Prayer Meetiug.

The subject for the mid-week prayer meeting at the Congregational church Wednesday evening will be: "For Christ's Sake". Members are also expected to respond to the query: "Report the best Christian deed you have known in the new year." Written reports of acts done for Christ are to be handed in.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Demick, Somerville, Ind. "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." You don't live by what you eat, but by what you digest and assimilate. If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food. You don't have to diet. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

SUBURBAN NEWS

A Department Devoted to the Minor Events in Greater Plainfield's Suburbs by Our Own Correspondents.

DUNELLEN.

Charles Tilton, of this place, who is a foreman in the Jersey Central machine shops at Elizabethport, met with an unfortunate accident Saturday. He was about to start off in a hurry when he slipped and fell, striking squarely on the chest. He was stunned but recovered and was taken to a doctor, and was then sent home. Dr. Brakeley was called and found the man had severely sprained his right shoulder. The accident is the more unfortunate as Mr. Tilton has but one arm, the left one having been cut off in an accident on the railroad a long time ago.

The Borough Council held its postponed meeting Saturday evening. But little important business was done, most of the time being taken up with reading reports and the ordering of bills paid. A new Board of Health was appointed as follows: Wilson Fredericks, W. S. Campbell, Dr. P. W. Brakeley, George Underhill and Wesley Blaine. The board has already met and elected the following officers: President, W. S. Campbell; secretary, Wilson Fredericks; inspector, Wesley Blaine.

A meeting of the young men's class was held at the Presbyterian church and steps were taken to revive interest in the class which has not been in activity for some time. A number of young men have signified their willingness to pay monthly dues, and the rooms in the Presbyterian church will be supplied with furniture, light and heat. A janitor will be secured to look after the rooms and to keep them open five nights out of the week.

Madame E. Cottrelly, of this place, who has a women's tailoring establishment in Plainfield, expects to remove her business here during March. She will be located in a house owned by her on Front street, and will receive customers there.

The last services during the week of prayer were held in the Presbyterian church last evening. Rev. L. R. Doolittle, of the Methodist church, was in charge and selections were rendered by the Methodist choir.

Handsome vestibuled cars have been placed on the trolley line between here and Somerville. They are the first of the kind in this section of the country.

Miss Margaret Mohan has been attacked with typhoid fever, from which her sister Kate is also suffering.

An installation and collation is billed for Court Dunellen, I. O. F., this evening in Apgar's Hall.

A number of residents are getting vaccinated because of the smallpox scare in neighboring towns.

The next meeting of the Card Club will be held with the Misses Marlow, of Dunellen avenue.

Rev. J. B. Lane, of Westfield, visited friends in town Saturday.

Mrs. Edward Book entertained out-of-town relatives yesterday.

Rev. A. F. Todd is able to be out after several days' illness.

J. C. Tinsman spent Sunday with friends in Somerville.

NEW MARKET.

A large congregation gathered in the Seventh-Day Baptist church Saturday morning and listened to an excellent lecture by Joseph Booth, a missionary from Nyassaland, east central Africa. He spoke mainly on the missionary work in the country from which he came.

Letters for this month are advertised at the postoffice for Walter Clark, Antonio Dolistrontro, M. L. Gerberger, B. M. MacDonnell and Archie Venuto.

The week of prayer in the Baptist churches ended last week but it was practically decided to hold a series of revival meetings during the coming week.

Henry Ross spent Sunday with out of town friends.

The G. E. Club will meet this evening.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Funeral services of the late Mrs. George Lyons, who died at her home Wednesday, were held from the house Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Mulford, rector of All Saints' Episcopal church, of which the deceased was a member, had charge of the obsequies. The sorrowing home was filled with neighbors and friends who had gathered to pay their last sad homage to the one they had loved in life for her sterling worth as a friend, a mother and a wife. Rev. Mr. Mulford, during his remarks, tendered words of consolation and loving sympathy to the bereaved family and sorrowing friends assembled. Several very handsome set pieces of flowers expressed the sympathy of friends and relatives. Interment was made in the family plot in the Baptist cemetery.

The people in general in town did not know that the trolley company was to go out of commission from 12 o'clock Saturday night until 8:30 a.m. at the earliest Sunday. The stop was an enforced one, as the company was obliged to make some necessary repairs to the dynamos. Moral—read The Daily Press.

The week of prayer services which was held every evening last week in the Baptist church have awakened such an interest in the members and the public in general that it has been decided to continue the meetings during this week. The subject of tonight's meeting will be: "Indications of a Revival."

C. H. Coe, of New York City, was the lucky winner in the drawing for a gold watch for the benefit of the baseball club, Saturday night. Chas. Layton was appointed to be the one to draw. 316 was the winning number. The club will net $25 as a result of their efforts.

Rev. Mr. Elliott, of the Roselle Methodist church, occupied Rev. Mr. Beacom's pulpit Sunday morning. Mr. Elliott's sermon was enjoyed by a large audience. At the close of the service the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed.

Mrs. Shott led the weekly meeting of the Baptist Young People's Society, held in the church parlors last night. The subject was "Entering the Kingdom."

R. S. Fisher, of Dunellen, was the guest yesterday of friends in town. Mr. Fisner was formerly agent at the depot, but is now located at Dunellen.

John Wade led a large and interesting meeting of the Epworth League Society held in the Methodist church Sunday evening.

A cocking main between North Plainfield and Elizabeth birds was held near New Providence, Saturday night.

A number of young people in town attended the dance held in Lord's Hall, Stony Hill, Saturday night.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The prospects for a polling place, at South Plainfield are good. The township at the last election registered about 675 voters and received but 589 ballots. It is evident that many voters were unable or unwilling to go to New Market to cast their ballot. There are also a number of men employed by the Lehigh Valley Railroad who cannot stop work long enough to make that trip. Therefore, local politicians say a polling place should be located in this vicinity.

A Brooklyn syndicate, which proposed to lay out a cemetery on the vacant property opposite the depot, has abandoned the project. Objections were made to the proposal by local residents who feared a consequent damage to good health.

A pool match at Morris Higgins' pool parlors between Thomas Linaberry and Morris Higgins as one team, and Thomas Brantingham and William Hoag as the other, took place Friday evening. The latter team was victorious.

Mannawah Tribe, of the Independent Order of Red Men, is making an efffort to reorganize the local branch. The primary movers are Harry Weaver and William Hamilton.

MORE SAFETY; LESS SPEED

A COMMUTER FOR TWENTY YEARS WRITES ABOUT CENTRAL.

Thankful There is No Tunnel—He Would Like to Have Every Care Taken.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The recent appalling accident in a railroad tunnel filled with commuters going to New York gives rise to a feeling of thankfulness and congratulation that the many inhabitants of this beautiful suburb, Plainfield, who daily travel to the great city, have at no part of their journey to pass and possibly, through delay, spend a considerable time underground, breathing bad air and running special risks incident to darkness, viz. thick smoke and steam, and the possible danger of signals not being clearly discerned. At no time of travel and on no road are we entirely free from danger, but the horrors of accident are increased in the limited space and intense darkness of a tunnel.

This leads the writer to venture the remark that, although the recently expressed desire of many of our citizens to have the passenger service improved is praiseworthy, yet the first and great object to be desired and aimed at is safety and all other considerations are far subordinate. I fear, however, that many of your readers will scarcely agree with me when I go so far as to say that I am personally willing to spend five minutes extra in travelling each way so that all trains may have time to come to a dead stop before crossing the draw bridge, go slower round curves and the boats take no unnecessary risks in order to cross the river quickly. You have only to think what an accident, say to a train like the 7:55, going through the open draw bridge, would mean to Plainfield men, their wives and children, to understand my meaning.

I feel sure that everything that intelligent foresight and great railroad experience has proved wise is being done, but as long as those in charge are hampered by the public demand for almost unreasonably swift travel, and have as employes men not over paid and liable, as all of us are, to the many errors and failings common to humanity, it is difficult for such officials to have in all cases that degree of safety they themselves would prefer. Let us, however, be extremely thankful that we have on our usual daily travel the pure air, the clear light and the freedom of space, which are not obtained in a tunnel. I beg to sign this as "A Commuter for twenty-five years."

Will be Heard With Pleasure.

At the concert this evening at the Casino, Miss Harriet Ware, whom this paper has had occasion to mention before, will render the first part of the programme. Her interpretations of the poems and songs of the modern poets, Sidney Lanier and Edwin Markham, will be heard with pleasure.

Children Especially Liable.

Burns, bruises and cuts are extremely painful and if neglected often result in blood poisoning. Children are especially liable to such mishaps because not so careful. As a remedy DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is unequalled. Draws out the fire, stops the pain, soon heals the wound. Beware of counterfeits. Sure cure for piles. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured my baby of eczema after two physicians gave her up," writes James Mock, N. Webster, Ind. "The sores were so bad she soiled two to five dresses a day." L. W. EATING RAW MEAT.

Nearly All Cases of Trichinosis Are Due to This Practice by Germans.

That uncooked meat should be eaten by civilized people, and to such an extent as to make it a matter of the highest national and economic concern between two of the most progressive of nations, would, at first sight, seem absurd, and yet the habit of the German people of eating raw pork brings about tariff disputes and economic wars with America, says the American Medicine. Thousands of microscopists are employed in Germany to prevent trichinosis. A tithe of the expense and trouble expended in preventing foolish people from eating raw meat would accomplish the result much more perfectly. And this under a government both grandmotherly and great-grandmotherly! Dr. Stiles finds that in 274 cases of trichinosis in America, 208 were in Germans. The fact is of significance also as an illustration of the slowness of the acceptance of science by the people, and of how indifferent we may become in the matter. Among the most scientific people, and with a most perfectly organized profession, the simple and effective method of preventing the disease in question is ignored and interest devoted to silly tariff and ineffective protective devices. Science has in many things outrun practical realization. There is needed a more determined effort on the part of the profession and of the government to bring home to the people the knowledge as yet entirely too theoretic.

THE EARTH'S INTERIOR HEAT.

Immense Stored Energy Which May Some Day Be Transformed Into Power and Utilized.

The stored energy of the heat of the earth's interior is beyond power of calculation and some not entirely unsuccessful attempts to utilize this have already been made, says Cassier's Magazine. From a short distance below the surface the temperature increases downward at an average rate which indicates that at a depth of 50 miles it is not less than 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit, and there is abundant reason for believing that the earth is an intensely hot body with only a thin layer of poorly conducting, cold surface matter. These are the essential conditions of a heat engine of enormous capacity, and as in many parts of the world comparatively high temperatures are found very near the surface, while in all parts considerable ranges are possible within reasonable differences of level, the interior heat of the earth, which has an origin more remote in time than the sun or its own axial rotation, is worthy of more serious consideration as a possible and reasonable source of power. Its importance will be greatly enhanced when we are able to transform heat energy directly into electricity on a large scale and with economy, avoiding the great waste which necessarily accompanies the use of the steam engine; and this must soon come about.

Use of Revolvers.

I was present at the trial where a man with a split-second watch timed a very ordinary denizen of the border, who drew his six-shooter and emptied it in a second and a quarter, says Munsey's Magazine. It takes a tyro that long to pull the trigger once when he is all ready. The experts do not pull the trigger at all. Long ago it was demonstrated that it was vastly quicker to file off the pawl that locks a gun and trust to "fanning" the hammer, than it was to shoot even the easiest of double-action revolvers in the ordinary way. This explains how it was possible for the famous man-killers to accomplish marvels against other and equally desperate men as well armed as themselves.

Sec. Root Would Create a National Reserve

Strength of the National Guard and Its Need of Uniformity in Administration and Equipment

PRACTICALLY every president since the days of Washington has had some ideas for the utilization of the militia of the country. The president's message, with each succeeding year, carries with it to the halls of congress some recommendation for a change in the organization and armament, or both, for the national guard. Throughout each session of congress for the past third of a century the officers and men of the national guard have watched eagerly for the hoped for change that would render more efficient, and give a national standing to, the great body of citizen soldiers.

But up to the present time their hopes have been vain, and to-day, so far as national legislation is concerned, the citizen soldiery of the various states are operating under the antiquated laws passed by congress in 1792. Since that time, and under that law, congress has passed appropriations for the equipment of the guard of the various states, but the appropriations have been inadequate, amounting in recent years to some $400,000 per annum.

While congress has taken no steps for the organization of a national reserve the several states of the union have organized state forces as a reserve for the suppression of organized lawlessness. For years we have looked upon this state reserve force as a sort of national reserve, though the men comprising it were bound in no way by their enlistment oath to serve the national government. It was this force that comprised the greater part of the first volunteer army called upon in the war with Spain in 1898, and it was at that time that its possibilities and its short-comings as a national reserve were first fully realized.

In his recent annual report Secretary Root adds another to the long list of recommendations for the improvement and nationalizing of this reserve force. He says:

"It is very desirable that congress should now exercise the power conferred upon it by the constitution to provide for organizing, arming and disciplining the militia. The organization and armament of the national guards of the several states, which are treated as militia in the appropriations made by congress, should be made the same as those provided by congress for the regular and volunteer forces. The relations of the national guard organizations to the national forces, and the obligations and duties of those organizations in time of war, should be clearly defined, so that the confusion and distress regarding their action which accompanied the outbreak of the war with Spain may not again occur."

The constitution grants to congress the right "to provide for organizing, arming and disciplining the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the states the appointment of the officers, and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by congress."

THE FULLY CLAD, WELL ARMED REGULAR.

This extract from the constitution gives an idea of what Secretary Root would have congress do at this time. In this connection it is interesting to investigate the present condition and strength of the force which he would create into a national reserve, and in connection with which he recommends:

"That the war department be authorized to arm the national guard with the present service small arms used by the regular army, navy and marine corps; that the national guard of the several states be treated as a first reserve, to be called into the service of the United States to execute the laws of the union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions, the term of service under any call to be limited to nine months; that the president be authorized, on the request of the governor of any state, to detail officers of the regular army for instruction, staff, and inspection duties with the national guard of such state; that the war department be authorized to furnish transportation, rations, and tentage to officers and men of national guard organizations, who shall take part with the forces of the regular army in annual encampment and manuevers at national military camps; that the department be authorized to allow travel pay, commutation of rations and quarters, or commutation of quarters, to officers of the national guard attending and regularly taking part in the courses of instruction at the general service and staff college at Fort Leavenworth. Both of these provisions should be within reasonable limits, proportional to the numbers of national guard organizations in the several states."

The total strength of the state forces generally known as the national guard varies from 112,000 to 115,000. Under the various state laws upon the subject there is an authorized strength of more than 185,000. This difference between the enlisted strength and the authorized strength shows the difficulties encountered in securing desirable recruits for the service as at present administered. These difficulties are encountered in every state. Nor are the difficulties confined to either the larger or smaller cities. In practically every place where a state military organization is maintained the commanding officers find it a hard matter to keep the strength of the organization up to the authorized maximum. True, there are a few instances where social prestige makes enlistment desirable that the maximum strength is maintained without any great trouble, but these cases are the exception rather than the rule.

This state of affairs is accounted for, not so much because of a lack of military enthusiasm on the part of the young men of the nation, as because they are averse to entering a service where the necessary equipment for an efficient organization is not provided; they are averse to entering a service that is not necessarily a part of the national defense force, but is generally accepted as a state police to be used on occasions of labor or other local trouble. In point of equipment they compare the well-clothed, well-armed regular with the half-clothed, poorly-armed guardsman. Practically two-thirds of the state in the union do not provide their state troops with many of the essentials to a complete equipment for active service. Overcoats blankets, mess equipments and many of the minor details, such as leggings campaign hats, haversacks and canteens are either not provided at all or furnished in insufficient quantities. Regimental organizations in many of the larger cities of the country provide these details of equipment at the expense of the organization treasuries in order to make recruiting among desirable classes easier.

In point of armament the guard is seriously defective for war purposes. The national government provides the antiquated Springfield, breech-loading, single-shot rifles, while to the army is goven a modern repeating weapon of small caliber and using smokeless powder. The folly of expecting two forces armed so differently to act together in time of war is amply illustrated by experiences in Cuba in 1898. The majority of the invading force consisted of regulars and the rough riders, equipped like the regulars, but with these were a few of the state volunteers equipped with Springfield rifles. These troops were forced to lie in the trenches under fire, to accept the dangers of exposed positions, but were not permitted to reply to the fire of the Spanish force, as the use of their antiquated armament would betray the position of the besieging force to the Spaniards. In other words these poorly-equipped troops were of the invading force, but of but little value to it.

At the present time there are no less than four different varieties of rifles in use by the national guard of the different states. Different varieties of rifles are found in the hands of the different organizations in one state, as is the case in New York where the Seventh regiment is equipped with repeating rifles while the remainder of the state force are using the Springfields. With this variety of armament it is easy to imagine the confusion that would result in the attempt to supply ammunition in the event of war.

The differences in administration and the paper work of the various forces created another difficulty that it was hard to overcome during 1898. In many states there are practically no property returns made at all. In scarcely any two states are the forms provided for requisitions for supplies, for returns of property accountability or for any kind of official returns the same. Nor do they conform to those in use in the army. For this reason there was the utmost confusion among the volunteer organizations. I know personally of one regiment, in one of the great camps in the south, whose enlisted men went without fresh meat for the first six weeks they were there because the commissary officer did not know how to draw it.

For years the dream of the national guardsmen has been of an organization that should be national in more than name. He has asked for no financial remuneration for his services, but for government recognition and government equipment that would put him upon the same plane as the regular soldier in time of war. A general officer in the New York guard outlines the wishes of practically the whole organization not only in his state, but in all states as follows:

"We want a form of enlistment that will make us subject to the direct call of the president in time of war; we want an armament and equipment identical with that of the regular army; we want a form of administration and discipline identical with that of the army so far as that is practical with a reserve force of unpaid troops; we want an annual appropriation from the state and national government that will make it unnecessary to continually solicit financial aid from the business interests of our respective communities. We do not want to be relieved of our duty to the state, but we do want to be relieved of the stigma of being "tin soldiers" which is attached to us by the unthinking class because we are not a national government reserve. This can be done by making such a reserve of the guard, and it will at the same time give to the national government a valuable force, fully and perfectly equipped, and subject at all times to the call of the president without the formalities, delay and confusion attendant upon a reorganization. National recognition along these lines would mean greater enthusiasm, greater ease in recruiting and greater efficiency in time of need."

In these words this officer expresses practically the views of general and regimental officers of more than a dozen states whom I have interviewed, or with whom I have had correspondence upon the subject, and at the same time he expresses the views of the broad-minded element among the officers of the army.

MAX OWEN.

THE BEAR WAS AT HOME.

But It Was the Wrong Spot on Which to Interview the Animal.

A woman traveling abroad narrates the following experience, says London Truth:

She had occasion to go to the British embassy at a certain spot, which shall be nameless, to see the ambassador, who, however, proved to be away with his wife at a neighboring health resort. The visitor asked for the first secretary, who, unfortunately, was on leave in England. The woman said that the second secretary would do as well, but he happened to be in attendance upon his wife, who was in a hospital. Was the third secretary there? No, he was on leave, too. The bottle washer might be in, perchance? No, he was shooting in England. The second bottle washer? He, unfortunately, was an invalid, and rarely came to the embassy. The military attache? He was on leave. The archivist? He was fishing in Scotland. The visitor had heard of two junior secretaries, whose custom it was to transact their duties in company with a pet bear. Did they happen to be in? Unfortunately, they were away playing polo. And the bear? Yes, the bear was at home. The visitor, however, did not feel equal to interviewing the bear single handed and left. Not for any consideration would I reveal the name of the embassy where this incident is stated to have occurred. I may remark, however, that a bear is quite the last animal to which British interests ought to be confided at this particular spot.

At the Bath.

To the Romans the public baths were a necessity of daily life, and the baths of Pompeii stood in no way behind those of greater cities in the tumultuous variety of the scenes enacted there. A quotation from Seneca gives a vivid illustration of what went on in such places.

I am living near a bath, writes the philosopher. Sounds are heard on all sides. Just imagine for yourself every conceivable kind of noise that can offend the ear. The men of more sturdy muscles go through their exercises, and swing their hands heavily weighted with lead. I hear their groans when they restrain themselves, or the whistling of labored breath.

If one is rather lazy, he has himself rubbed with ointment, and I hear the blows of the hands slapping his shoulders the sounds varying as the massagist strikes with flat or hollow palm. Meanwhile there is a sudden brawl, as a thief is caught, or there is some one in the bath who loves to hear the sound of his own voice, and the bathers plunge into the swimming-bath with loud splashing.

Over all the din you hear the cry of those who are selling cakes, sausages and sweetmeats.—Youth's Companion.

My little boy of eight years was troubled for the last three years with getting up out of bed every night and talking about what happened during the day. At last he got so bad that he opened the windows and went out of the door. I was greatly alarmed about it, tried several remedies and my physician also prescribed for him, but everything failed. At last I tried Ripans Tabules and have found them the best remedy for my boy. Since he has taken the Tabules he never gets out of bed, sleeps all night and I can't thank anything for it but Ripans Tabules, and I will always keep them on hand.

NEW STYLES IN BLOUSES.

Peau de Soie and Satin Are Taking the Place of Taffeta.

The blouse waist of 1902 promises to eclipse its predecessors in daintiness and chic. It is made of every material conceivable, taffeta, satin, Persian panne, corduroy and peau de soie. Most stylish among these is peau de soie. This comes in a soft, lustrous quality and in all the evening and day shades. A lighter variety is called peau de cygne, and this has even more luster than the peau de soie. Both peau de soie and peau de cygne cleanse well and can be worn for more than one season. For this reason they are usurping to a large extent the place of taffeta.

Many of the peau de soie and satin blouses are made without linings and blouse both back and front.

Persian liberty satins in all the eastern colorings are very fashionable and are made up with fronts of chiffon and bits of hand embroidery.

The thoroughly French waist in the illustration is made of chiffon and rich yellow lace. Over a blouse of accordion plaited chiffon is appliqued a jacket effect of the lace having two medallions of painted mousseline set into the front pieces. The jacket effect is cut away at the sides to allow a glimpse of the under chiffon to be seen, and this is banded with velvet ribbons. The sleeves are marvels of grace. They are made of the lace inset with three medallions of the mousseline. There is a deep cuff of lace and black velvet. The collar has an odd trimming contrived with two straps of velvet. In the front where the lace jacket opens over the chiffon blouse there is a full rosette of the chiffon with long lace tipped ends.

Evening gowns are, many of them, of the gauzy semitransparent type worn over satin orientale or bright glace, and gowns composed solely of velvet and satin are rarely seen. Many dresses are finished wth deep accordion plaited flounces. A deep border formed of tiny frills also makes an exceedingly pretty finish to an evening skirt and is made in crepe de chine, mousseline de soie, net, chiffon and many types of net.

Jeweled lace is effective, and, although sequins are generally introduced, the leading designs are carried out in jewels. Silver sequins of the small type are charming with pearls, and two or three sizes are used on the same gown with good effect.

A French evening gown is the subject of the cut. It is made of two shades of heliotrope chiffon and is trimmed with perpendicular bands of medallion appliqué, with which are inset velvet disks. The waist is composed of a short bolero over an accordion plaited chiffon blouse. The novel sleeves reach half way between the shoulder and elbow and are trimmed with several tiny ruffles.

My Strangest Case

BY GUY BOOTHBY.

Author of "DR. NIKOLA," "THE BEAUTIFUL WHITE DEVIL," "PHAROS, THE EGYPTIAN," Etc.

[Copyrighted, 1901, by Ward, Lock & Co.]

"We thank you," said Kitwater. "The story I have to tell you is perhaps the strangest that has ever been told to mortal man. To begin with, you must understand that my companion and myself have but lately arrived in England. We have been for many years missionaries in China, sowing the good seed in the western provinces. I do not know whether you have ever visited that country, but, even if you have not, you must be aware to some extent of the dangers to which our calling is subjected. We carry our lives in our hands from the moment we leave civilization until we enter it again. There are times, however, that compensate one for all the trials that have to be undergone."

"You must excuse me," I said, "if I remind you that my time is valuable, and that, however interested I may be in the missionary work of China, I cannot allow it to interfere with my business. The sooner you tell me in what way you want me to help you, the sooner I shall be able to give you the answer you are seeking."

"I must implore your pardon," the man continued, humbly enough. "I am afraid our calling, however, is apt to make us a trifle verbose. If you will allow me I will put what I have to say in as few words as possible."

I bowed and signed to him to proceed.

"Our case is as follows," he began. "As I have told you, we have been in China for several years, and during that time we have had the good fortune to enroll not a few well-known names among our converts. To make a long story short, we were so successful as to be able to persuade even the mandarin of the province to listen to our message. He was an enormously rich man, one of the richest, perhaps, in China, and was so impressed by the good news we brought to him that, on his death-bed, he left to us for the benefit of the mission all his wealth, in gold, silver and precious stones. It was a princely legacy, and one that would have enabled us to carry on our mission with such success as we had never dreamed of."

"But if you were so lucky and so much in love with your profession, how does it come about that you are in England now?" I inquired.

"I will tell you why," he answered leaning toward me and tapping with his fingers upon the edge of the writing-table. "It is a sad story, and the mere telling of it causes me more pain than you would believe. You must understand that at the time of the mandarin's death an English traveler, who had been passing through the western provinces, reached our city and took up his abode with us. Needless to say, we were overwhelmed with grief at the loss of our patron. The treasure he had presented us with we took to the mission and deposited it in a safe place. We had no suspicion of any sort of treachery. I fear my companion and I are not men of the world, that is to say we do not go about suspecting evil of our neighbors."

"I think I understand," I said. "You brought the treasure home, put it in what you considered a safe place, and one day awoke to find your estimable guest missing and the treasure gone with him. Have I guessed correctly?"

"You have hit the mark exactly," Kitwater replied. "We woke one day not only to find the treasure gone, but also ourselves and our mission seriously compromised. The relations of the dead man not only accused us of having alienated him from the faith of his forefathers, but also of having robbed him of his ancestral treasure. We could not but admit that we had been presented with the wealth in question, and when it was demanded of us we could only explain that we had lost it in our turn. You can imagine the position for yourself. At the best of times the foreigner is not popular in China, and our situation was particularly unpleasant. Situated as we were in one of the wildest portions of the empire, and accused of the basest sacrilege, that is to say of violating the home of a dead man, we could hope for but small mercy. The man who had robbed us had entirely disappeared, and no trace of him could be discovered. To attempt to offer any explanation, or to incriminate him, was out of the question. We could only suffer in silence."

He paused and heaved a heavy sigh.

"And what form did your punishment take?" I inquired, for I was beginning to be interested in their story.

"Can you not see for yourself?" the man answered. "Can you not see that I am blind, while my companion is dumb? That was what they condemned us to. By that man's villainy I am destined never to look upon God's earth again, while my companion will never be able to converse with his fellow-men, except by signs. We are in the world, yet out of it."

I looked at them both in amazement. Their tale seemed too terrible to be true. And yet I had the best of evidence to show that it was correct.

"And why have you come to me? What do you want me to do? I cannot give you back your sight, nor your friend his power of speech."

"But you can help us to find the man who brought this misery upon us," Kitwater replied. "That is what we have come to ask of you. He must not be permitted to enjoy the wealth he stole from us. It is sacred to a special duty, and that duty it must perform. We are not overburdened with riches, in fact, we are dependent upon the bounty of another, but if you can help us to recover the sum that was stolen from us, we will gladly pay whatever you may ask! We cannot say more than that."

"But this is a most unheard-of request," I said. "How do you know where the man may be at this moment?"

"We do not know, or we should scarcely have asked your assistance," Kitwater replied, with some show of reason. "It is because we have heard of your wonderful powers in tracing people that we have come to you. Our only cause for attending the trial at which you saw us was to hear the evidence you gave and to draw our own conclusions from it. That those conclusions were complimentary to you, our presence here is evidence of. We know that we could not put our case in better hands, and we will leave it with you to say whether or not you will help us. As I said just now, my companion is dumb, while I am blind; we cannot do much ourselves. Will you not take pity upon us and help us to find the man who betrayed and ruined us?"

"But he may be at the other end of the world at this moment?" I said.

"That does not matter," he returned. "We know that, wherever he may be, you will find him. All we ask you to do is to bring us face to face with him. We will manage the rest. It will be strange then if we are not able to get him to a proper way of thinking."

This was the most unusual case I had had to do with, and for the moment I scarcely knew what to say. I turned to the blind man once more.

"Have you any idea where the man went after he robbed you?"

"He crossed the province of Yunnan into Burmah," he replied. "After that he made his way through Rangoon, and shipped on board the steamer Jemadar for London."

"When did the Jemadar reach London?"

"On the 23d of June," he answered. "We have made inquiries upon that point."

I made a note of this, and then continued my inquiries.

"One other question," I said. "While we are on the subject, what do you suppose would be the total value of the treasure of which he robbed you?"

"That is very difficult to say," Kitwater replied, and then turned to his companion and held out his hand. The other took it and tapped upon the palm with the tips of his fingers in a sort of dot-and-telegraph fashion that I had never seen used before.

"My friend says that there were 93 stones, all rubies and sapphires; they were of exquisite luster and extraordinary size. Possibly they might have been worth anything from £170,000 to £250,000."

I opened my eyes on hearing this. Were the men telling me the truth, I asked myself, or were they trying to interest me in the case by exaggerating the value of the treasure?

"What you say is almost incomprehensible," I continued. "I trust you will forgive me, but can you substantiate what you say?"

"When we say that we are willing to pay your expenses in advance if you will try to find the man, I think we are giving you very good proof of our bona fides," he remarked. "I am afraid we cannot give you any other, seeing, as I have said, that we are both poor men. If you are prepared to take up our case, we shall be under a lifelong gratitude to you, but if you cannot, we must endeavor to find some one else who will undertake the task."

"It is impossible for me to decide now whether I can take it up or not," I said, leaning back in my chair and looking at them both as I spoke. "I must have time to think it over; there are a hundred and one things to be considered before I can give you a direct reply."

There was silence for a few moments, and then Kitwater, who had been holding his usual mysterious communications with his friend, said:

"When do you think you will be able to let us have an answer?"

"That depends upon a variety of circumstances," I replied. "It is a matter difficult to average. In the first place there is no knowing where the man is at present; he may be in London; he may be in America; he may be in any other portion of the globe. It might cost £500 to find him, it might cost £5,000. You must see for yourselves how uncertain it all is."

"In that case we should be prepared to give security for the first-named amount, or pay you half in advance," Kitwater replied. "I hope you do not think, Mr. Fairfax, that we are endeavoring to play you false? You can see for yourself that our injuries are permanent, and, as far as they go, are at least evidence concerning the truth of our story. You can also see for yourself how this man has behaved towards us. He has robbed us of all we hold valuable, and to his act of treachery we owe the mutilations we have suffered. Can you wonder that we are anxious to find him?"

"I do not wonder at that at all," I said. "My only feeling is that I must regard it as an entirely business matter."

CHEATS A BLIZZARD.

Man Works as a Horse to Save His Wife and Children.

Hitches Himself to a Sleigh and Draws Loved Ones to Shelter in the Face of a Blinding and Cruel Snowstorm.

From Goshen, N. Y., comes the report that, to save his wife and two children from certain death by freezing, Elgin MacLaren harnessed himself to a sleigh and drew them over desolate roads through the darkness and in the face of a blinding blizzard of wind and snow to a place of shelter.

MacLaren, with his wife, their little boy, Tom, aged six, and Agnes, the baby, started late in the afternoon to drive from Smithfields to Haverstraw.

The journey was in the teeth of the wind, the weather was far down toward the zero mark, and it was snowing hard. The road was hardly distinguishable in the gray darkness of the storm, and when night fell MacLaren discovered, too late, that he had made a wrong turning and that he was lost.

MacLaren, in his desperation, urged his horse to renewed efforts, but the animal, exhausted at last, fell, and, in falling, broke its leg.

There was not a house in sight—nothing but the darkness and the broad sheeted expanse of snow. Mrs. MacLaren and the children, in spite of heavy robes and blankets, were freezing.

MacLaren stripped himself of overcoat and muffler, wrapped them around his wife and children, arranged parts of the horse's harness over his shoulders and around his waist, placed himself between the shafts of the sleigh, and, with a cheery shout, started along the road.

He made good progress at first, but was soon compelled to stop and restore his wife and boy to consciousness. Fortunately he had a bottle of cordial in his pocket, and the stimulant did much toward saving the lives of his loved ones. Then he took up the part of horse again, and the sleigh went forward for another hundred yards. But every few minutes he was forced to stop and give more of the cordial to Mrs. MacLaren and little Thomas.

He didn't know it then, and now he says he must have been delirious, but in his wild dash for liberty he passed several houses where he might have found succor.

Whenever a down grade was reached in the road rapid time was made by the sturdy Scotchman, who whistled and sang to cheer the drooping spirits of his half-frozen wife. Once, in descending a hill, he fell and the sleigh ran upon him. If it had not been so the chances are that all the occupants would have been killed in the dash down the steep decline, but it was the fall served to rouse MacLaren.

He was met near Bradley Mines, four miles from his starting point, by Charles Carson, who stopped him and tried to ascertain what was wrong.

MacLaren's statements were not altogether clear, and Carson took the almost frozen party to the home of Mr. Cooper, farmer, where they were resuscitated. They did not learn for some time how far MacLaren had dragged his family, and could scarcely believe it when they found out.

All of the party were more or less frost bitten, especially the little boy. Mrs. MacLaren's ears, unprotected except for her hair, were badly frozen. Her husband's hands and feet were in the same condition. He may lose a finger or two, and his nose, ears and chin were frostbitten.

House Built of Buttons.

A house built of buttons is the latest thing in architecture, and a certain French musical celebrity is building it. The walls, the ceilings, the doors, the exterior, and the interior are all ornamented with buttons of every description, from the very origin of their invention up to those of the present day. Those dating from the lower Greek empire are of the most curious manufacture, but every country has been ransacked and some very curious specimens are reported to have been brought to light.

The Rain and the Dust.

A Boston schoolteacher had been reading to her pupils about the rain. Asking one of them to write a little story about the rain he, after declaring his inability to do so, upon the teacher's insistence, produced the following: "What does the rain say to the dust? 'I am on to you, and your name is mud.'"

HONORS FOR JESSE LAWSON

FORMER PLAINFIELDER STANDS VERY HIGH AT WASHINGTON.

The Colored American Speaks in Glowing Terms of the Work He Has Done.

The current number of The Colored American, published in Washington, D. C., contains the following:

Among the colored men of prominence in Jersey politics may be mentioned: Hon. Charles N. Robinson, of Camden, member of the Republican State Committee; Hon. William F Powell, of the same city, who makes an excellent representative of the United States Government to Port-au-Prince, Haiti; R. Henri Herbert, of Trenton, also connected with the State Central Committee; Lawyers Douglass and Cosey, of Newark; and Mr. William A. Kline, of Plainfield.

Prof. Jesse Lawson, well known to the readers of The Colored American as an orator, scholar and statesman, was the first man elected by the Republicans of New Jersey, to represent his race at a Republican National Convention. He is a fearless defender of the rights of his people and has done more than any other man in the United States to test before the courts of the constitutionality of Southern election laws aiming to nullify the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Federal Constitution. Prof. Lawson stands well with the leading men of the Nation, and is the most useful man about Washington. Only a few days ago, the solid Republican delegation in Congress from New Jersey, under the leadership of Senator Kean, who has known Mr. Lawson from his boyhood days, presented his name to President Roosevelt, for appointment as Recorder of Deeds for the District of Columbia.

Mr. Lawson is the life, and brains of the Afro-American Council, and whatsoever the Council has accomplished in a practical way is due to his efforts. He is truly a representative man of the people, and if merit, devotion to principal, energy and honesty count for anything, Prof. Lawson should be recognized by the powers that be, and we believe that he will be.

READY FOR HACKMEN.

Hereafter Conviction of Violating Hack Ordinance Will Mean a Fine of $2 Straight.

A new rule was established this morning, in the city court, in regard to the disposition of violations of the hack ordinance. Heretofore it has been the custom to place a $5 fine over the hackmen's heads to be imposed on the second offense. Now it will be $2 straight each and every time.

Con Guinee paid the iniital $2 today. He was arrested by Patrolman Lunger Saturday afternoon who saw him solicit several passengers from a train, one of them being Councilman Lee. Guinee said he was brought up to be polite and that he was only saluting his friends.

LATOUROTTE'S SIDE.

Explains His Acts in Suit of a Sewing Machine.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I will say to the readers of The Daily Press that I never refused "Lucy Shoestrings" the sewing machine which he bought for $2 and paid $1 deposit. He never came to me with the other dollar but came back and refused to take the machine and demanded his dollar deposit. I told him I never paid back any deposits but he should give me the other dollar and take the machine. This he refused to do and told me to sell it which I did after keeping it a reasonable time. I want nothing but what is just and right. I don't have to keep things forever but "Lucy" will find out he cannot run my business, as I am able to run it myself. The items last week were untrue. P. H. Latourette.

The church was consecrated March 21, 1870, by Bishop Odenheimer, the corner stone having been laid July 12, 1854 by Bishop George W. Doane. Shortly after the date of consecration, the edifice was enlarged and while the addition was being made, the congregation held services in Laing's hall. Upon the resignation of Rev. Mr. Coe, in 1858, Rev. W. W. Sever was chosen rector. After a short rectorate, he was succeeded by Rev. J. Le Grand Finney. Rev. R. G. Quennell came to the parish in 1863 and was followed by Rev. S. C. Thrall. Three years later he was succeeded by Rev. Charles M. Fox, who remained unitl 1870. Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, the present rector, entered upon his duties November 1, 1870.

The original church edifice occupied a site on East Front street, near Richmond street. In 1875, it was decided that the needs of the parish called for a more central location of the church property. On May 18, 1876, the last services were held in the old building and it was taken down and removed to the corner of Sixth and Sycamore streets.

Plans were perfected for an imposing church building to be erected at the corner of Seventh and Sycamore streets. The corner stone of this structure was laid by Bishop Scarborough July 12, 1876. The old building is now used as a parish house. It served the purpose of a house of worship again from October 15, 1876, until the new church was ready for use in 1892.

On Easter day, 1892, the first service was held in the present edifice. On that occasion Bishop Scarborough was present and he acted as celebrant at the Holy Communion office as he did yesterday morning.

From a struggling band of thirty members the parish was grown until now it is a congregation of wealth and influence for good in the community. In the diocese it occupies an important position. In the church councils it is prominent and has always contributed largely to the various funds of the diocese.

DON'T BE AN OLD FOGY!

Keep pace with your day and generation.

The man who does not avail himself of modern methods is right at the outset giving himself a handicap that scarcely the wit of a Mark Twain or a genius of an Edison can overcome,

He who writes his correspondence with a pen instead of using a New Century Typewriter is "behind the times." He is making himself a plodder when he might be a leader. If you are using another typewriter—one of the slow, nerve racking kind, get rid of it quick.

The New Century economizes time and does PERFECT WORK.

It does more work and BETTER WORK than any other typewriter. It wears longer and is a better investment. It is the twentieth century method of handling correspondence.

LEGISLATURE MEETS TODAY

Both Houses Will Convene For Organization at 3 o'Clock This Afternoon.

MESSAGE OF GOVERNOR.

Will be Presented to the Legislature Immediately After Organization — Committees Will be Announced — To Arrange for Inauguration.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Jan. 14—The State Legislature will meet for its one hundred and twenty-sixth session here this afternoon. A caucus of the Republican members of Assembly to arrange the final details for organization will be held at 2 o'clock, and the two houses will convene at 3 o'clock, and proceed with the election of officers and the other routine of organizing for the session.

The officers in both Houses will be decided upon by the respective caucuses of the majority members. Speaker Bradley, in the House, and President Francis, in the Senate, will announce their standing committees and committees will be appointed to arrange for the inauguration of Governor-elect Franklin Murphy on the following Tuesday. It is also probable that action will be taken at once to provide for suitable memorializing the death of General Wililam J. Sewell.

Gov. Voorhees's last message to the Legislature has been completed and will probably be presented to the two Houses immediately after their organization. It is not expected that the incoming Governor will present any extended message but may outline his intended policy in his inaugural address and send to the Legislature at a later date any supplementary message he may consider of importance.

It is said to be improbable that much in the way of legislation will be attempted by the Legislature before the election of a United State Senator which is expected to take place in joint session on January 28. The time for the election of Senator is regulated by an act of Congress providing that each House shall assemble to ballot separately on the election on the second Tuesday following the organization of the Legislature and that the two Houses shall meet to complete the election by a vote taken in joint session on the following day.

A question the party leaders will have to determine early in the session is whether the failure to advertise the proposed judiciary and biennial session amendments to the Constitution as prescribed by the Constitution has made thier passage last year ineffective. If this question is determined in the affirmative the amendments will have to be started over again and their reference to a vote will be delayed another year even if they are passed by the Legislature.

General Sewell is said to have been responsible for the biennial session proposition and without his influence it is not considered at all sure that the amendment can secure approval from the two Houses as at present constituted. This question is likely to be the subject of a conference of Senators and Republican leaders early in the session.

A Benefit Planned.

A number of friends of Robert Wood, of South Second street, who has been ill for some time past, are arranging to give a dance for his benefit. He had only recovered from many weeks sickness when his wife was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, where she is now undergoing treatment. A committee has been appointed to arrange details consisting of John Dixon, Thomas Kane, Fred Beekman and George Babcock.

Sold Lincoln Store.

The New Jersey Building Loan and Investment Company, through Silas D. Drake, has sold, to parties in Trenton, the large store property at Lincoln, belonging to Daniel Whitlock, and also the large dwelling at the corner of Mountain and Voorhees avenue.

STATE Y. M. C. A. CONTEST

ASSOCIATIONS FROM NORTH PART OF STATE WILL GIVE IT.

Plainfield is to be Represented by a Team—Includes Athletics, Gymnastics and Calisthenics.

At an adjourned meeting of the physical directors belonging to Y. M. C. A.'s in the northern part of the State, held in the Central Association building, Newark, yesterday afternoon, arrangements were completed for a combined athletic, gymnastic and calisthenic contest. Associations from Newark, Jersey City, Passaic, New Brunswick, Orange and Plainfield will take part.

It was decided to hold the contest in the gymnasium of the Central Association, Newark, on March 8. The apparatus to be used will be as follows: Gymnastics, horse, parallel bars, high bar; athletic, running high jump, running high dive, three standing broad jumps, putting twelve-pound shot; calisthenics, Roberts home dumb-bell drill. The winner on each piece of apparatus will have thirty points placed to the credit of the association he represents. A banner will be presented to the one securing the largest number.

The members of the local association will at once go into training and, by means of a contest, decide which of them are to represent Plainfield. The selection will be made as soon as possible. The contest will be held under the auspices of the Athletic League of North America and it is hoped Secretary George T. Hepbron can be secured as referee.

The physical directors at the conference were H. H. Buxton, of Orange; Paul Fay, of New Brunswick; John Downey, of Jersey City; George Yates, of Passaic, and C. E. A. Heywood, of this city.

PARK CLUB'S ENTERTAINMENT

A MONOLOGUE, A SYMPHONY AND A ONE ACT SKETCH.

The Entertainment Committee Has Arranged It For Friday Evening.

That heretofore the Park Club has been very liberal in its provision of free entertainment is well known. Some of the members think that the management has been too free in this respect and to change this programme a little, the entertainment committee, of which Mrs. Charles A. Reed is the able chairman, has arranged for a symphony concert, together with a dramatic entertainment and other attractions. This will be given Friday evening, January 17, at the Park Club.

The entertainment will open with a monologue by that well-known resident of the borough, William L. Saunders. The former Mayor is equal to the occasion and his introduction will be a source of pleasure to all. Following this part the symphony will be given by twenty members of the club. Mrs. Reed will have charge of this and Mr. Guilford will be the leader. The symphony will depict a sleighing party and there will be no end to the fun.

After the symphony there will be a one-act play given by Miss Grace E. Overton, Miss Edith L. Burt and Morgan T. Townsend. Those who have enjoyed similar performances by these young women, are assured of a pleasing production. It is proposed to charge an admission fee and the entertainment committee has no doubt whatever that the clubhouse will be too small to accomodate all who will want to attend. This need not deter persons from purchasing tickets, however, for all who attend will be made comfortable.

LADIES' NIGHT.

An Eventful Time at the Westfield Club Last Evening.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Jan. 14—One of the social events of the season was that of last evening at the Westfield Club, when the women were in charge. It was ladies' night and they arranged a most enjoyable programme. The feature of the evening was progressive euchre. Mrs. J. Connolly and Mrs. F. A. Kinch won the first and second prizes for the women, while W. Woodcock and A. S. Clark won the first and second prizes for the men. After the games refreshments were served. Dancing was then enjoyed until a late hour.

ROSELLE TEAM LEADS FOR PRESS TROPHY

That Club Has An Excellent Show of Permanently Winning That Trophy.

WESTFIELD IS SECOND.

PARK CLUB AND CRANFORD CASINO FIGHTING OVER LAST PLACE.

Season is Half Over and Roselle is in the Lead With Westfield a Close Second — The Park's Showing.

The season's tournament in The Daily Press Bowling League is now half over and there is every reason to believe that the Roselle Casino is going to repeat its performance of the last two years and win out in the season's play. If Roselle does manage to win, this year, it will mean that the handsome silver trophy, offered by The Daily Press, will become the permanent property of that club.

While the Westfield Club has today won one more than Roselle, it has also lost two more which brings its general average below that of Roselle. It is close enough, however, to make the finish decidedly exciting. The final result largely depends on what happens when those two clubs meet again on the Roselle alleys, Thursday, January 21. Roselle is almost invincible on its own alleys. If Westfield can manage to win the series, then there is an excellent chance of Westfield coming out on top of the heap after all.

There is no chance now of the Park Club, of this city, finishing at the top or even second. It looks like a close race between the Parks and Cranford to keep out of the last place. The next games are to be rolled between those two clubs Thursday. If the Parks win at least two of the games, then they will be practically assured of third place. Cranford has been rolling a really good game at times, but the rolling has been too variable to make a strong showing.

The Park Club is still handicapped by the difficulty in getting a regular team together. Captain W. R. Faber has worked hard to get the players out for practice regularly but he has had much trouble in doing so. F. O. Ball and H. D. Hibbard have both rolled a strong game in most instances as has Mr. Faber himself. W. A. Townsend and Morris J. Dumont have both been tried and will undoubtedly prove valuable acquisitions as soon as they have had a little more practice in match games. As it was, however, their showings were good ones even without considering they are new at the game.

The standing in the league at present is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	Ave.
Roselle Casino	7	2	.777
Westfield Club	8	4	.666
Park Club	3	6	.333
Cranford Casino	3	9	.250

RIGHT-OF-WAY TAX.

The Court of Appeals Reached Conclusion in Case of City of Newark Yesterday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Jan. 14—The Court of Errors and Appeals yesterday reached a decision in the appeal of the North Jersey Street Railway Company from the decision of the Supreme Court, which, in the case of the city of Newark, decided against the North Jersey Street Railway Company. The judges positively refuse to talk of the result.

The Supreme Court had held that the company is liable to a tax on the realty over which its roadbed runs. This decision established the right of Newark, Jersey City and other municipalities to tax trolley companies for their right of way and was the result of an appeal taken by the city of Newark from a decision of the State Board of Taxation, reducing an assessment for taxes made against the company from $3,100,000 to $2,265,000.

SUDDEN ENDING.

Complaint was Withdrawn at Last Moment in Interesting Case.

Counsellor Francis J. Blatz represented the defendant in an interesting case which was withdrawn at the last moment at Morristown, yesterday. It was that of the township of Passaic against Leonard Dunlap, of New Vernon, for non-support of his wife. The case had attracted considerable attention throughout the township and the court-room was crowded. It was called before Justice Hyer but after a jury had been secured, the complaint was withdrawn.

HEALTH BOARD NOTICE.

The Board of Health would again call the attention of the public to the fact that in order to prevent the spread of small-pox, in the city, every one who has not been successfully vaccinated should attend to the matter promptly. Three cases of small-pox were reported yesterday, one new case today.

The Board of Health has arranged to vaccinate at the rooms of the board in the Smalley building, North avenue, free of charge all who apply, on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week at 3 p. m.

Chas. J. Fisk,
President of the Board of Health.

NO OCCASION FOR ANY ALARM

BOARD OF HEALTH HAS SMALL POX CASES UNDER CONTROL.

Three Cases Were Discovered Yesterday and Removed to Isolation Hospital—Precautions Taken.

As was to be expected, Plainfield has not been fortunate enough to escape a visitation of small-pox. Three cases of this disease were discovered yesterday afternoon at the home of Alexander Campbell on West Second street, near Johnston avenue. Mr. Campbell and his two sons, Alexander Campbell, Jr., aged six years, and Arthur Campbell, aged four years, are the ones ill. The father has a light case of it, while with the children it is more severe. All were removed to the isolattion hospital last night and are now receiving the best possible care. The Campbell home is quarantined and being guarded by policemen.

This morning another case making four in all developed. Mrs. Maggie Patterson, who lives opposite the Campbell home on East Second street and who has been a visitor to the latter home, was suspected yesterday of having the disease. This morning the physicians decided that Mrs. Patterson has small-pox. She will be removed to the isolation hospital tonight. In the meantime a strict quarantine will be maintained at her home.

The Board of Health held a special meeting last evening and ordered that all persons who had been exposed be placed under quarantine until they have been vaccinated. The board does not consider that there is any occasion for the public to be alarmed in any way, but it is urged and advised that everyone be vaccinated, as this is believed to be the only known way to prevent a spread of the disease. There is no place better prepared or equipped to take care of the disease than Plainfield and neither pains or expense will be spared in protecting the people of the city. The board will have unlimited means and assistance in its work.

As regards the appearance of the disease in this city the board, so far as can be learned, it was brought here by a man who lived in East Orange About a week ago he was a visitor at the Campbell home and it is believed that he brought the disease with him. Mrs. Campbell had a very light case of small-pox and is now nearly well. It is believed with a reasonable amount of assurity that Mr. Campbell and the children contracted the disease in this way.

Mr. Campbell is a machinist, and works at the Scott Press Works. C. J. Fisk, the president of the Board of Health, called at the works this morning and conferred with Mr. Scott. As a result it is quite likely that all employes there will be vaccinated, at least those who have not been so treated recently.

The isolation hospital is in charge of Miss Stryker, a trained nurse, and she has several assistants. Miss Stryker has had small-pox and is in every way competent to take charge of the cases that may come under her care.

As neither of the Campbell children have attended the public school this term, there is no danger of infection there. The school physicians are watching the children closely, however, to discover any signs of the disease which may come from other quarters.

Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, of the Board of Health, visited the neighborhood in the vicinity of the Campbell home and vaccinated a number of children who have been in contact with the Campbell children. Dr. T. S. Davis, also of the board, has been busy visiting several families, the members of which have been more or less associated with the Campbells. He also vaccinated several persons.

A notice was also posted at the Scott Press Works this morning informing the men that all who have not recently been vaccinated will be treated this afternoon.

MUSICAL EVENING AT CASINO A SUCCESS

Fine Array of Vocal and Instrumental Artists Gave a Delightful Programme.

MISS WARE'S FINE WORK

POEMS OF LANIER AND MARKHAM WERE SUNG AND RECITED.

Affair Given for Benefit of Congregational Church Choir Under Direction of Alfred E. Holmes.

For the benefit of the Congregational church choir, its "First Musical Evening" was given at the Casino, last evening, and it was greatly enjoyed by a large audience. The affair was given under the direction of Alfred E. Holmes and to him is due the credit for a successful evening's entertainment.

A number of vocal and instrumental artists appeared and took their parts exceptionally well. The programme was divided into two parts. At the outset of part one, Miss Cora E. Guild, a soprano of rare ability, rendered a number of original compositions from the songs of Sidney Lanier. She was followed by Miss Aimee Gertrude Emmons who recited several selections from the same source. Miss Edith Roberts, a violinist of much merit, varied the programme by playing Romance from the second Concerto of Wienawiski and Serenade Andalusia by Godard. Some compositions, written for Edwin Markham's poems by Miss Ware, were rendered in a fine tenor voice by Charles Kaiser.

The second part opened with Verdi's Rigoletto Quartette sung by Miss Guild, Mrs. Worcester, Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Holmes. Miss Edith Roberts then again favored the audience with Mendelssohn's Andante and Finale Concerto. Mrs. Worcester, of Westfield, who was formerly Miss Katherine Krymer and well known here, gave a contralto selection from Mignon. Decidedly popular with the audience was Miss Emmons who appeared as a reciter in a clever little selection. She was followed by a baritone solo, "The Serenade," by Alfred E. Holmes. Miss Harriet Ware appeared and gave as a piano selection an original waltz. Closing the programme was Faning's "Song of the Vikings," arranged as a quartette selection and sung by Miss Guild, Mrs. Worcester, Mr. Kaiser and Mr Holmes.

Miss Ware acted as accompanist in all instances where the poems of Lanier and Markham were sung or recited, the settings being of her own composition. She demonstrated that she is an artist of a high standard and her work was fully appreciated.

In all other selections Miss Rosetta Wiener acted as accompanist and she achieved much success.

MURPHY IS FOR DRYDEN

GOVERNOR-ELECT ANNOUNCED HIS PERSONAL CHOICE FOR SENATOR.

He Announced It in An Interview Given Out at Newark Yesterday.

Governor-elect Franklin Murphy yesterday announced that his personal choice for United States Senator was John F. Dryden, of Newark. Until yesterday Mr. Murphy refrained from saying anything to indicate a preference in the matter.

In speaking of his choice Mr. Murphy said:

"The election of a Senator is of course a legislative matter, and one in which I can officially take no active part. I supposed it was generally known throughout the State that I would be pleased to see Mr. Dryden elected. My interest in his campaign is not due solely to the fact that he is my neighbor and friend, but I consider him a man qualified by natural ability and wide experience to fill that important position with credit to the State and nation.

"It has become common in these days when a man has prospered in business to charge that he has only his wealth to commend him. As a rule that statement is not true, and it is emphatically not true in Mr. Dryden's case. He not only is a man broadened by the management of large affairs, but is a scholarly and cultivated gentleman qualified to grace any position, and is an engaging and convincing public speaker.

"His interest in the politics of the State and nation has always been active, and he is abreast of the times on all the important questions of the day. He is the type of a man by nature and training that in these days the country needs in the Senate."

THE UNITARIAN SOCIETY MET

ELECTED OFFICERS AND LISTENED TO THE ANNUAL REPORTS.

That Denomination Has Been Successful During Past Year—S. Huntington Made President.

The annual meeting of the First Unitarian Society was held last evening, in All Souls' church in Park avenue. Edgar B. Smith, as secretary, called the meetiing to order. Samuel Huntington was re-elected president of the society, as was also Mr. Smith re-elected secretary. George Patten and L. B. Woolston, whose terms expired as trustees, were re-elected for a term of three years.

The reports of the various committees were presented and showed the society to be in a very healthy condition, financially and otherwise. The society has been self-sustaining for over a year and there is an increase in members and interest with good prospects for the future. The various committees will be selected by the trustees at a meeting to be held Saturday, January 25.

Samuel Huntington, as chariman of the music committee, reported that the new organ, recently installed, is very satisfactory. This report was supplemented with one by the entertainment committee which reported that as soon as the electric motor for the operation of the organ is installed, a musical entertainment will be given at the church. The motor was contracted for several weeks ago, but the work of placing it in position has been delayed.

PUBLIC RECEPTION BY GRACE CHURCH'S RECTOR

Closing Event of the Jubilee Celebration Marking Semi-Centennial of That Parish.

AT THE PARISH HOUSE.

DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR GIVEN BY REV. AND MRS. RODMAN LAST NIGHT.

Musical Selections Were Rendered During the Evening—Members of Parish Assisted in Receiving the Guests.

As a fitting climax to the jubilee celebration commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of Grace Episcopal church, a public reception was held by the rector and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Erskine M. Rodman, in the parish building last evening. In many respects it was a brilliant affair and served to tighten the bond of unity existing in what is one of the foremost parishes of the diocese of New Jersey.

The guild room and the Sunday-school room as well were elaborately decorated, much good taste being shown in the pleasing arrangements. Herbert Harold's orchestra rendered a fine programme of a varied nature throughout the reception, which lasted from 8 until 11 o'clock. All evening long a steady stream of parishioners and friends in general passed by the reception committee, offering congratulations and wishes for the future success of the church.

The reception committee consisted of Rev. and Mrs. Rodman, Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins, Mr. and Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Booth, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Gough, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis G. Timpson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Masters, Mr. and Mrs. Julius E. Erickson, and Orville G. Waring.

Various refreshment tables were scattered about the rooms. Those at the ice cream table were Mrs. Hugh Hastings, Mrs. Thomas Minford, Mrs. Electa S. Craft, and Mrs. Louis Borsum; those at the lemonade table were Mrs. R. H. Depew, Mrs. Charles King, Mrs. William Pelletier and Miss Jennie Hariett. Pouring tea were Mrs. O. T. Waring, Mrs. J. W. Rinehart, Mrs. C. I. Ames, Mrs. E. M. Erickson, Mrs. E. L. Finch and Mrs. Burrage.

Valuable to all philanthropic workers especially, and to all students of sociology is the set of the Proceedings of the National Conference of Charities and Correction, recently added to the Public Library, the gift of Col. Mason W. Tyler. These volumes are made up of contributions of specialists in all lines of social work and there is nothing better to which to refer students of these subjects. Dr. Canfield, librarian of Columbia University, says of them that they "constitute the very best source of information on charitable subjects which we possess in this (Conlumbia University) Library." In order that they may be of the greatest help, they have been placed in the circulating department.

Not As Bad as Pictured.

John S. Johnston, of Norwood avenue, who recently received a letter from a friend in Hackettstown, says that the small-pox at the latter place is not near as bad as pictured in the New York papers. His friend informed him that most cases were very light and that there has not been any spread of the disease for some time past.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

You can get your choice of cameras at Frank VanWinkle's on North avenue. He handles both the Eastman and the Rochester makes and they are both high grade instruments.

You don't need to give a kingdom for a horse. Love, the East Second street liveryman, has a stable full of fast steeds and a large number of stylish rubbed tired rigs all for hire.

Only a few days, and the opportunities for bargains at the Star Clothing Company's store on West Front street, will be past. If you need clothing now is the time to make your selection.

The business man that always keeps up with the times is the one sure to get the business. The Paris Cloak Company can always be depended upon for the right styles, good goods and reasonable prices.

What is more stylish than a pretty waist, an attractive hat or a well-fitting skirt? Bonn, of West Front street, makes a specialty of all these and he has hundreds of satisfied customers. The latest styles at prices that are attractive are to be found at his store.

There's a story afloat that hair grows on one of the famous collection of death masks on exhibition at Princeton University. Druggist T. S. Armstrong does not claim that Reynold's Petroleum Hair Tonic is responsible for this curious condition, but he does declare that the preparation will produce a healthy natural growth of hair.

"Solid comfort" is what the Union Furniture Company claims can be gotten from those artistic Morris chairs it is selling at prices unheard of before. They are strongly constructed, finished in the best of material and guaranteed to be an ornament to any parlor. They also have a complete line of everything in the furniture world.

Every man likes to see his efforts appreciated. It may be shown in many ways but to the merchant it is demonstrated by liberal patronage. Neuman Brothers, the Watchung avenue grocers, have endeavored to supply only the best of goods at fair prices for many years and they are securing the deserved support. It always pays to sell good goods.

LITERARY.

Scribner's Magazine has seldom a better union of a great subject with the right man to treat it than in the series which begins in the January number on "The American 'Commercial Invasion' of Europe." Frank A. Vanderlip on resigning his position as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury last Spring went to Europe with letters from the highest American officials to the Ministers of Finance and other leaders in industry and commerce in all the great nations. Fresh from an intimate association with the industrial and financial problems in this country he was peculiarly fitted by aptitude and training to appreciate the bearings of this problem abroad. The key-note of his article is that "The industrial world is as yet by no means prostrate at our feet. We have before us a long campaign of hard work." It is the aim of Mr. Vanderlip's articles to point out the directions in which this hard work must be done. They have been written with unusual clearness and vivacity so that the general reader will find them as entertaining as the capitalist and manufacturer will find them instructive. Illustrated short fiction has a prominent place in this number. The story of the return of an artist from Paris to the "Pennyrile" district of Kentucky is most amusingly and even pathetically described by Ewan Macpherson. The illustrations by Keller are reproduced in color. F. Hopkinson Smith's serial gives "Oliver Horn's" experiences while looking for a job in New York. The amusing Bohemians who are to figure in the story make their first appearance. Artists of distinction furnish illustrations for many of the articles. Among them are Walter Appleton Clark, Otto Bacher, Rene Lelong and Will H. Low. Peixotto furnishes beautiful illustrations accompanying the first of Mrs. Edith Wharton's charming articles on Art Impressions of Italy. This one is about Parma.

Don't Live Together.

Constipation and health never go together. DeWitt's Little Early Risers promote easy action of the bowels without distress. "I have been troubled with costiveness nine years," says J. O. Greene, Depauw, Ind. "I have tried many remedies but Little Early Risers give best results." L. W. Randolph.

Mince Meat Comparison

NONE SUCH MINCE MEAT

(1) Clean. Sold in air-tight, water-proof cardboard cartons. Tempts the appetite.

(2) Economical. 10 cents a package, making 2 large pies. It equals 2½ pounds of "wet" mince meat. Add the water yourself—don't pay for it.

(3) Convenient. Being "compressed" it takes up very little room on the shelf, and is put up in exact pie proportions.

(4) Reputation. Our name and 30 years' business standing is a guarantee.

SO-CALLED "WET" MINCE MEAT

(1) Unclean. Sold from open pails and sloppy tubs. Think of it!

(2) Expensive. Costs 8 cents to 15 cents a pound—½ the weight is water. At this rate "None Such" should cost 20 cents to 40 cents a package instead of only 10 cents.

(3) Clumsy. Has to be dished out in pans—takes up lots of room and you seldom have it on hand when wanted.

(4) Unknown. Do you know who makes "wet" mince meat? Is it guaranteed?

Moral: Always buy "None Such"

Any good grocer will supply you. Don't be deceived or over-persuaded by "wet-goods." We can tell you a dealer that will supply you if yours will not. Write us. Valuable premium list of "1847 Rogers Bros." silverware in packages. Beware of packages imitating "None Such."

NIXON IN CONTROL.

Croker's Successor Begins Work at Tammany Hall.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Lewis Nixon, the new leader of Tammany Hall, assumed control of the organization yesterday in his characteristic business-like way and at once announced that hereafter there would be no secrecy in regard to the doings of the political machine of which Richard Croker has relinquished control. Publicity, he said, would be the watchword from now on, and everything would be done to inspire confidence in the young men of the city and induce them to join the organization, following out the lines laid down by Mr. Croker.

Mr. Nixon has very pronounced views himself on all questions, but he said he was not yet prepared to state what they were.

An incident of Mr. Nixon's first day as leader of Tammany caused some talk around the wigwam. It was a conference lasting nearly an hour that he had with former Police Commissioner Michael C. Murphy.

William Jennings Bryan, who spent Sunday at the home of John W. Cox, a political and personal friend, at 11 East Thirty-eighth street, left the city yesterday for Naugatuck, Conn., where he will remain several days. Before leaving the home of Mr. Cox Mr. Bryan made the following statement regarding the change in Tammany as he views it:

"Mr. Croker showed good sense as well as devotion to the party's interests when he threw his influence to so excellent a man as Mr. Nixon and caused him to be selected as leader of Tammany."

NEW YORK BILLS.

Amendment to Give Scratchers a Chance—Mortgage Tax.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 14.—An amendment to the general election law providing that voters scratch their ballot by running a pencil mark through the names of the candidate they do not desire to vote for has been introduced by Assemblyman Barrett. It provides that a void ballot shall be one upon which there shall be found any mark other than a black pencil mark drawn through the name of a candidate or candidates on the ticket at the top of which the elector shall have placed a cross mark in the circle or a single cross made for the purpose of voting, which mark must be made only in the circles at the top of the tickets or in the voting space to the left of the names of the candidates.

A new mortgage tax bill has made its appearance in the assembly. It is sweeping in character, and its author estimates that $20,000,000 will be raised under its provisions. It provides that all existing mortgages and all to be drawn in the future shall pay a tax of 1 per cent. The money thus raised is to be distributed as follows: One-third to the state, one-third to the county and one-third to the city or town, excepting in Greater New York, where all of the tax is to be paid to the city chamberlain.

Defenses For Guam and Hawaii.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Secretary Root has sent to congress estimates of $307,000 for the defenses of the island of Guam and $526,000 for the defenses of Hawaii. The defenses of Guam are to include a seacoast battery, $142,000; defensive sites, $45,000, and torpedo batteries, mines, etc., $125,000. The defenses of Hawaii are to include those about Honolulu and Pearl harbor. General Gillespie, chief of engineers, states in the estimates that these defenses are urgently needed to protect the newly acquired territory of the United States and to prevent the interruption of cable communication, these islands being in the line of the projected cable.

Chicago Inter Ocean Sold.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—George W. Hinman, editor of the Chicago Inter Ocean, who is in this city, announces that he and several other gentlemen whom he declined to name have just acquired full control of that paper. In speaking of the transaction Mr. Hinman said: "Three or four New York men and myself have acquired Mr. Yerkes' interest in The Inter Ocean, also the interest of Mr. William Penn Nixon. The corporation has been reorganized as The Inter Ocean Newspaper company, it having been The Inter Ocean Publishing company.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Archbishop Corrigan has started on his journey to the Bahama islands upon his regular canonical visitation for the administration of the sacrament of confirmation, the Bahamas being included in the archdiocese of New York. New West Virginia Coal Line.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 14.—It is announced here that Senator Elkins and ex-Senator Davis, the principal owners of the West Virginia Central railroad, will build a coal line from near Fairmont, W. Va., to Arnettsville, W. Va., to develop 11,000 acres of coal land recently acquired and that the line be extended farther to reach another tract of 2,000 acres.

RAILROAD IS BLAMED

Citizens of New Rochelle Adopt Resolutions.

PARK AVENUE TUNNEL A NUISANCE.

The Central Railway Managers Held Morally Responsible For Dreadful Carnage and Destruction. Quick Action Demanded.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Samuel W. Marvin, chairman of the committee appointed by the mass meeting held at New Rochelle Saturday night to consider the New York Central tunnel disaster, has given out the following resolutions which the committee had formulated:

"Whereas, The citizens of New Rochelle, gathered en masse on the 11th day of January, 1902, to consult together as to their duty in the face of the awful catastrophe, nearly overwhelming, which three days before had fallen upon our fair city, bringing bereavement and mourning to many homes; and,

"Whereas, They, after duly and deliberately considering the facts and circumstances surrounding that horror and recalling the grewsome history of the Park avenue tunnel, including the previous slaughters of Sept. 22, 1882, and of Feb. 20, 1891, and taking into consideration its present condition, did unanimously resolve that the Park avenue tunnel as it now exists is a nuisance, unhealthful and unsafe; a nuisance which can be abated and must be abated; and,

"Whereas, They unanimously resolved that the moral responsibility for that dreadful carnage and destruction rests upon the railroad managers because of indifference and false economy and therefore placed upon the said railroad managers their condemnation.

"Now, therefore, we, a committee appointed by that meeting and by it authorized and empowered to do all and whatever is possible to remedy the wrong, abate said nuisance and bring those found to be responsible for these conditions and that catastrophe to a just sense of same and to prosecute the rights of our citizens before the board of health, the railroad commissioners, the district attorney of New York county, the legislature and governor and such other constituted authorities as have any power in the premises, do hereby call upon the governor, the railroad commission, the board of health and the legislature to take immediate action to abate this nuisance and remove this menace.

"We invite neighboring municipalities to co-operate with us to this end."

President Newman of the New York Central railroad and H. McK. Twombly of the board of directors held a conference lasting two hours in the Grand Central station yesterday.

At the conclusion of the conference President Newman said that it had simply been a preliminary discussion.

The state board of railroad commissioners will begin an investigation of the tunnel wreck on Jan. 20. It will be held at the Fifth Avenue hotel in this city.

Mayor Low has asked the corporation counsel to investigate the right of the city to name the motive power that shall be used in the tunnel.

The inquest will be begun on Thursday if all the wounded are out of danger. Coroner Scholer will secure a jury of business men of high standing, and the investigation will be searching.

Big Gas Strike In Michigan.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 14.—A big gas strike has been made by South Bend men near Niles, Mich., Perry Fry and Walker of the Berrien Springs Coal, Gas and Oil company having shot the old Lardner well, which is located in the bed of the St. Joseph river. The well was shot yesterday, and the result was a jet of flame thirty feet high. The well is 600 feet deep and is ten years old. The company holds leases on several thousand acres of land in southern Michigan and will sink additional wells for gas and oil.

Newchwang Shooting Denied.

PEKING, Jan. 14.—The United States consul at Newchwang, Henry B. Miller, has replied to the Russian administrator's charge that sailors belonging to the United States gunboat Vicksburg shot a Russian soldier during the recent disturbances at Newchwang, saying that he, the consul, and the commander of the Vicksburg, Commander E. B. Barry, investigated the affair thoroughly and found there was no evidence whatever connecting Americans with the shooting.

Fierce Snowstorm In Hoosick Valley

HOOSICK FALLS, N. Y., Jan. 14.—One of the fiercest snowstorms of the season has been raging in this vicinity. The fall of snow is very heavy, but traffic is not impeded to any great extent. The storm assumed blizzard proportions at times, the high wind forming great drifts. The weather has turned intensely cold, adding greatly to the satisfaction of the Hoosick valley ice harvesters.

Indians Favor Territorial Rule.

GUTHRIE, Okla., Jan. 14.—The Cherokee, Choctaw and Chickasaw nations, through their councils, have passed resolutions asking congress to do away with tribal government and that territorial government be instituted. They say the two governments cannot well exist at the same time.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Postmaster General and Mrs. Emory Smith, who soon return to their home in Philadelphia, gave their last official dinner last night at the Arlington, when they entertained the president and Mrs. Roosevelt and a large company.

A NEW DEPARTMENT

Bill to Establish Commerce Secretaryship Considered.

HOUSE DISCUSSES PENSION BILL.

Bixey of Virginia Causes a Sensation by Proposing to Open National Soldiers' Homes to Ex-Confederates.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—In the senate yesterday Mr. Nelson of Minnesota called up the bill providing for the establishment of a department of commerce. He explained the necessity which, he said, existed for the passage of such a measure and was plied with questions by several senators, who said that sufficient time had not been allowed for looking into the merits of the measure.

Mr. Teller criticised that feature relating to the transfer of the geological survey, while Mr. Hale said that the bill provided for a department which ultimately would be one of the largest in the government. The bill finally went over, subject to call by Mr. Nelson. The senate was in executive session for an hour and a half.

The house of representatives spent the day in general discussion of the pension appropriation bill, the first of the annual budgets. The debate took a wide range. Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio and Mr. Hepburn of Iowa denounced a report presented to the last G. A. R. encampment criticising the course of themselves and other members of congress on the veteran "preference" bill, which was defeated at the last session.

They explained that their opposition to the bill was due to the incorporation in the bill of a clause which had not been indorsed by the G. A. R. placing veterans of the Spanish war in the preferential class. Mr. Rixey of Virginia caused something of a stir on the Democratic side by advancing a proposition to open the doors of national soldiers' homes to ex-Confederates and to furnish government aid to state Confederate homes.

Mr. Richardson of Alabama was the only Democrat who joined Mr. Rixey in support of it.

Hearings on the anti-oleomargarine bills were begun by the house committee on agriculture. The bills under consideration are similar to the so called Grout bill and place a tax of 10 cents per pound on substances colored to imitate butter.

The Hepburn Nicaragua canal bill was received by the senate from the house and referred to the committee on interoceanic canals.

Verdict Against Railway.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—A verdict of peculiar interest in view of the many pending suits on account of the tunnel disaster has been rendered in the supreme court by a jury before Justice McLean. The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad appealed from a verdict of $9,000 damages for the death of John Frounfelker, and the case was retried. Frounfelker was a conductor. On Oct. 3, 1896, he was killed in a rear end collision like that of last Wednesday. His widow sued. A nine thousand dollar verdict was given. The company appealed. The jury before Justice McLean reversed the nine thousand dollar verdict and found a new one for $17,500.

Tutuila Heard From.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Commander Sebree, commandant of the United States naval station at Tutuila, under date of Pago Pago, Samoa, has made a report to the navy department in regard to that station, saying that matters generally are quiet. Since he assumed command in November last he has visited the islands of Manua and Olesaga and the village of Leone, in Tutuila, as well as some of the villages on Pago Pago bay. He says most of the natives are suffering from influenza. Good progress is making in road building by the natives, men, women and children being employed.

Mexican Minister Dead at Vienna.

VIENNA, Jan. 14.—Senor Jose Teresa y Miranda, the Mexican minister to Austria-Hungary, who has just died here after undergoing a surgical operation, had suffered for three weeks past with gastritis, which rendered this operation imperative. The operation was performed by Professor Baron Eiselberg. An attack of heart failure before Senor Teresa y Miranda rallied resulted in his death.

Want Schley Case Reopened.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Resolutions calling upon congress to reopen the Schley case and make its own decision as to who was in command at the battle of Santiago were passed by the board of trade at its annual meeting. The vote was not unanimous, but the roar of the "yeas" was three times as loud as the roar of the "nays," and the vocal vote went unchallenged as expressing the feeling of the board.

Boats For Emperor's Yacht.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Three davit boats for the emperor of Germany's yacht, now being built near New York city, were ordered yesterday from an Ogdensburg boatbuilding company. The boats are a twenty-five foot gig, a nineteen foot cutter and a sixteen foot dingey, constructed of mahogany, elaborately trimmed and finished in the highest possible manner.

Officer Shot Two.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 14.—Lon and Alex Nelson were shot here by Policeman Cruse, who claims they first fired on him. Alex died several hours later, and Lon is probably fatally wounded. Cruse declares an attempt to assassinate him was made several months ago.

NEW JERSEY POLITICS.

Legislature Opens Today—Hot Fight For Senatorship.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 14.—This is one of the biggest opening days of the legislature that has been experienced in Trenton for some time. The several candidates for the Republican nomination to succeed General Sewell in the United States senate have opened headquarters at the different hotels, and their rooms are the scene of a moving crowd of callers, many of whom go from one headquarters to another. Five of the candidates—Messrs. Griggs, Dryden, Baird, Herbert and Gardner—have headquarters at the Trenton House. Senator Stokes has headquarters at the Hotel Windsor.

There is nothing on the surface to indicate that the contest is any nearer a settlement than it has been for the past two weeks.

The Republican state committee held a meeting here last night, but took no action on the United States senatorship. Governor Elect Murphy tendered his resignation as chairman of the committee. The election of his successor was deferred until some subsequent time. Senator Stokes, the vice chairman of the committee, will in the meantime act as chairman. A subcommittee was appointed for the purpose of drafting suitable resolutions expressive of the committee's regret over the death of Senator Sewell.

The caucus for the selection of a candidate for United States senator will not be held until next week, probably Thursday.

The selection of a candidate to be supported by the Republicans for state treasurer is overshadowed by the United States senatorship contest. Ex-Mayor Briggs of Trenton, whom Governor Voorhees recently appointed state treasurer ad interim, is at the Trenton House and is a candidate for the full term.

Father Marquette's Crucifix.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 14.—Evidence has been found that proves almost beyond a doubt that the crucifix found at Frankfort, Mich., last summer by workmen excavating for the foundation for the Ann Arbor summer hotel there was the property of Father Marquette, the famous Indian missionary. Its possession has been disputed since its finding, but it has now been turned over to the Ann Arbor Railroad company. The rust has been cleaned from its pedestal, and the date 1664 was found on one side, while on the opposite side was found the inscription, "M. and C., Quebec." Marquette left Quebec for upper Michigan in 1668 and was buried at Frankfort.

Arbitration Gains a Point.

CITY OF MEXICO, Jan. 14.—Yesterday's session of the pan-American conference closed in a ripple of excitement which began with an amendment looking to the suppression of the final protocol in order, as formerly explained, to enable the compulsory plan of arbitration to be reported to the conference. This amendment was carried by thirty votes. Chile abstained from voting. The vote excited great interest, as it was a forecast that the advocates of compulsory arbitration would have their way in insisting that the plan be reported to the conference. The suppressing of the final protocol was the removal of an obstacle.

Railway Tangle Straightened Out.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 14.—As the result of a conference between the interested parties to the Detroit and Toledo Shore line receivership held in this city all differences are practically settled, and the tangle has been straightened out. Contractor Strang's claim will be paid, the road will be financed and completed, and in a short time the state court litigation will be dismissed. Such was in substance the agreement reached, and all that remains to close up the terms of settlement is for all parties to affix their signatures to the papers.

Many Bogus Drafts.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—Through the announcement of one Boston bank it appears that some person is industriously flooding several western states with bad drafts of $25 each drawn on a fictitious concern, the New England Directory company of Boston. A score of these drafts have been received for collection by Boston banks from their correspondents in a number of western cities, and all have been returned.

A Fatal Syracuse Fire.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 14.—A. C. Soule, a well known Mason, and another man are dead and a dozen others seriously injured as a result of the collapse of three walls during the fire in the "Boston" store. The loss is $75,000.

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

A SMALL STRIKE.

Staten Island Light and Power Plant Closed.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Thirty-three men comprising the day force at the power house on Staten Island of the New York and Staten Island Electric company quit work without warning last night. They shut down the engines, drew the fires, took the plugs from the switchboards and left the power house "dead." This action cut off all power on the various lines of the company's trolley system besides crippling the street and commercial lighting circuits which were shortly to be turned on. The street lines tied up were the lines from South Beach to Mariner's Harbor, the Castleton Heights line and the Bulls Head division. All the cars on the various divisions stopped just where they were, and the motormen and conductors sat down to wait for power.

Superintendent Swinarton at once made arrangements to have power switched into the Staten Island company's wires from the Midland Electric company's plant. The delay of the cars was for a space of sixty-one minutes.

It is understood the strikers were aggrieved at the employment of an alleged nonunion man to oversee them. The plant is in full operation again.

UNITED STATES THANKED.

Empress Dowager of China Appreciates Our Work at Peking.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Mr. Wu, the Chinese minister, handed Secretary Hay the following edict transmitted to him by Wei Wu Pu, at Peking, in a cablegram dated Jan. 11:

"By order of her imperial majesty the empress dowager we issue the following edict: During the disturbances caused by the Boxers last year the American commanding officers issued strict orders to their troops to use strenuous efforts to protect the buildings within the Forbidden City. This was an act of friendship worthy of imitation for which we feel extremely gratified and grateful.

"We therefore instruct Wu Ting Fang to convey our expression of thanks through the secretary of state to his excellency the president of the United States. Respect this."

Rice Heirs Agree.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The Herald asserts that the Rice heirs have signed an agreement and that they will unite with the officials of the Rice institute of Houston, Tex., the principal beneficiary of the Rice will of Sept. 26, 1896, in the effort to have that will probated and to fight the probate of the will of June 30, 1900, which makes Albert T. Patrick his residuary legatee. By this agreement it is understood that about $500,000 of the estate of more than $9,000,000 will eventually be given to the heirs, some of whom are not mentioned in the will of 1896, in addition to the amounts received by others in that document.

Fatal Wreck In Kansas.

WICHITA, Kan., Jan. 14.—A freight train running twenty miles an hour on the O'Keene (Okla.) branch of the Rock Island road crashed into a work train standing on a siding at O'Keene and killed Bridge Foreman H. K. Bear of this city and Carpenter E. A. Coleby of Galva, Kan. The men in the work car were still asleep and were buried under the debris, which caught fire and threatened to roast every one of them. The crew of the freight train and some citizens by strong efforts saved them.

Well Known Musical Leader Dead.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—The death of William I. Perkins here removes from the musical world a figure of prominence a generation ago. He was born in 1831 and organized the first male quartet for concert singing in America, the Mendelssohn vocal quartet, which was a remarkable success. He conducted many musical festivals and won fame as a leader. His published works number sixty volumes.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 14.—A Siamese paper just received in this city states that the king of Siam in person on Nov. 27 last bestowed upon Dr. T. Edward Hayes, a former resident of Baltimore, the royal order of the White Elephant. This is the highest of the Siamese orders and is rarely conferred upon a foreigner. Dr. Hayes has been surgeon major of the Siamese navy for the past thirteen years.

CUBAN FRAUD CASES

Rathbone Unexpectedly Called by Government.

WITNESS MAKES GOOD IMPRESSION.

Head of Island Posts Says Orders Were Given For Monthly Statements by Deputies, but Could Not Be Enforced.

HAVANA, Jan. 14.—Upon the resumption of the hearings growing out of the Cuban postoffice frauds Rathbone, was unexpectedly called by the government. The court told Rathbone he had the right to refuse to testify if he so desired, to which Rathbone replied that he was glad of this opportunity to testify. It was evident that Rathbone's frank and honest manner in answering questions impressed the court and the judges, who listened attentively to what he said when, explaining the details of the working of the department of posts, Rathbone asked the privilege of making his statements more clear.

The court questioned Rathbone concerning the appointments of Neely and Reeves. To this question Rathbone replied that both men had been sent him by the department at Washington. Rathbone said that when Assistant Auditor J. D. Lawshe turned over the office and the postal accounts he highly recommended Reeves.

Much time was taken up by discussing the question as to whether or not Rathbone had issued an order to the effect that the Cuban postmasters render monthly accounts. It was due to the fact that the postmasters had not rendered accounts that Reeves was enabled to issue many duplicate warrants, most of which Reeves now says Neely cashed and kept the money.

Rathbone claims that orders for the Cuban postmasters to render monthly accounts were issued in June, 1899, and that these orders were in the form of recommendations from special agents that monthly accounts be carried. On these recommendations Rathbone says he wrote the word "ordered," signing his name below it.

The government contends that the word "ordered" was not written on these recommendations when the irregularities in the postoffice were discovered. Rathbone produced letters written to his chief clerk in May, 1900, calling the latter's attention to the fact that the order for monthly inspection had not been carried out and asking an explanation. The fiscal asked Rathbone if it was not his place to see that his orders were carried out as well as to issue them. To this the latter replied that with all the details of the office it was impossible for him to see that everything was done.

Prince Henry's Reception.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—While the subject of the reception to be accorded to Prince Henry has not yet been fully discussed by the cabinet, it is believed that the necessary arrangements will be placed in the hands of a joint committee composed of a representative of the state department and an officer each of the army and navy. There is no present disposition to bring the north Atlantic squadron all the way back from the Caribbean sea to form the advance reception line. The navy still has some fine ships left at the northern yards which may be used for this purpose.

The Hohenzollern's Atlantic Voyage.

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—The southern course of the Hohenzollern on her trip to America, on which the imperial yacht will touch at so many points, is because her coal bunkers are not constructed to carry coal for a long voyage. She will therefore proceed at a moderate speed across the Atlantic. According to the present arrangements, Prince Henry will live on the Hohenzollern while at New York and will use the imperial yacht for entertaining.

Gorman For Senator.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 14.—Former United States Senator Gorman arrived here last night and was the guest of Governor Smith at the executive mansion. At noon today he witnessed his re-election to the United States senate to succeed Senator George L. Wellington, whose term will expire in March, 1903. No other name than that of Mr. Gorman was even thought of in this connection, and not a single Democrat in either branch voted against him.

Dr. Krause Indicted.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The grand jury has found a true bill against Dr. Krause, the former governor of Johannesburg, on the charge of inciting Cornelius Broecksman, the ex-public prosecutor of Johannesburg, who was executed Sept. 30 last, to murder John Douglas Foster, an English lawyer who was attached to Lord Roberts' staff.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Before the death of General Sewell, there was every appearance that this winter's session of the Legislature would be a very uneventful one. By his death, however, a very important duty has fallen upon the members of that body which was totally unexpected. On the occasion of previous elections of United States Senators from this State, it was known even before the legislators were nominated that they would be called upon to vote on the subject. The result was that pledges were frequently made and it was not difficult to tell who would be the favored candidate when the time came for a choice. This time, however, the election comes unexpectedly and it is an open race for the office.

While the election of the United States Senator is the most important act of the present Legislature, there are some other things which are likely to interest the people throughout the State. The Legislature has to decide whether or not the constitutional amendments were properly advertised. A negative decison on this subject will postpone action on them for a twelve-month. Then the Stokes School law will have to be amended so as to conform with the State constitution. The legislation to prevent the continuaton of the Passaic river pollution, while it does not affect but a small portion of the State, is very important.

The State Senate and the Assembly will both convene this afternoon at the State House, Trenton. The organization, settled upon at the caucus of the Republican members, will go through and committees will be appointed. There also may be action taken to prepare a memorial in honor of the memory of Gen. Sewell. Adjournment will follow.

According to the statement of those who are supposed to know, no business of importance will be transacted until after the election of the U. S. Senator which comes two weeks following the beginning of the session. Then, it is expected, the law-makers will begin to settle down to work in earnest.

THE SMALL POX.

It was inevitable in these days of constant communication, with small-pox cn every side, that the disease should find its way to this city. This fact need not, however, occasion any unusual alarm for the people of Plainfield are in far more danger of infection in places like New York and Newark than they are here where the Board of Health has taken such excellent precautions to prevent any spread of the malady. There are, at present, four cases in town. They have all been transferred to the isolation hospital and are receiving the best of treatment. The Board of Health has acted promptly and will undoubtedly succeed in preventing any spread of the disease.

Of course, it is not pleasant to know the disease is here but there is really no cause for alarm. The Board of Health officials make the statement that they will keep the public fully informed as to the exact progress of the disease. There will be no concealment. The policy of The Daily Press will be to tell the exact facts concerning the subject so that, when there is cause for alarm, the public will be informed of the fact. There will be no concealment of the facts, they will be stated plainly and truthfully so that the public may depend on knowing just what progress has been made.

Of the fifty years which have gone to make up the career of the parish of Grace Episcopal church, thirty-one of them have seen Rev. Erskine M. Rodman as rector. He has spent the best years of his life laboring for the spiritual and material welfare of the people of the parish. He has brought it from a small and unimportant parish to be one of the most influential, if not the most influential parish in the diocese. During those thirty-one years, the people have learned to love and to admire the man who has worked so well in their behalf. Outside of his parish, Rev. Mr. Rodman has a host of friends who know his worth.

Eleven yeras ago, the Salvation Army first made its appearance in Plainfield streets. Since that time it has kept steadily at its work, slowly but surely overcoming the various obstacles in its path. It met a severe set-back when the division in that organization, led by Gen. Ballington Booth, took away nearly every local worker. The Army has gradually recovered the lost ground and is today as strong as it ever was in this vicinity. The public celebration of its anniversary, which took place Sunday, is likely to further increase its strength and efficiency.

The Common Council passed an ordinance permitting local barbers to keep open only six days in the week. It was done at the request of the barbers themselves who feared that merely a mutual agreement would not be sufficiently binding. The fisrt arrest under the provisions of that ordinance was made Sunday at the request of the other barbers. The only excuse given was that the offending barber did it for the accommodation of his customers.

City Judge Runyon is going to try a new scheme to keep the offending hackmen in line. While arrests among the hackmen are frequent, there are countless violations which the police do not see. If the present ordinance does not serve the purpose for which it was intended, let the Common Council provide one that will.

There was one unexpected result of the temporary shutting down of the electric light plant Sunday. Several of the local churches have installed electric motors to pump their organs. The current was not turned on in time and several of the organists were placed in unpleasant predicaments.

While the Common Council has not taken any decisive action as yet concerning the location of the city offices, it is generally understood that the sentiment among the members of the Common Council is in favor of concentrating the city offices in the Smalley building.

Never has a winter season seen so many musical treats in Plainfield as this one. Their frequency was noted early in the season and there appears to be no lack of them as the weeks pass by.

FIRE IN A GREENHOUSE.

Firemen Had More Trouble From Ice Than in Extinguisning the Flames—Trifling Damages.

Intense heat from a chimney set fire to a portion of the framework at Peterson's greenhouse, on Watchung avenue, shortly before 6 o'clock this morning. An alarm was sent in from box 21 by George Sanders and the department responding, put the flames out in very short order. The damage is trifling, only a section of the sash and a few panes of glass being destroyed.

The firemen experienced considerable difficulty in getting around owing to the icy condition of the street. One of them, Charles Smith, sustained a severe fall while attaching a hose at Watchung avenue and East Second street. He was assisted to headquarters by his companions, where it was found he had sustained a number of severe bruises.

In Justice Hand's Court.

Adjournment was made for one week, yesterday, in Justice Hand's court in the contract case of Rockfellow Grocery Company against Ida Demarest.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Demick, Somerville, Ind. "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." You don't live by what you eat, but by what you digest and assimilate. If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food. You don't have to diet. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

Local coal dealers are experiencing considerable difficulty in securing an adequate supply of coal for the immediate wants of their customers. The Lehigh Valley is still far behind in its shipments to tide water and the small dealers are forced to worry along as best they may. At present the large amount of coal sent over the road is being used to help out the New Jersey Central's patrons, the latter road still being handicapped by the recent floods near Manch Chunk.

McDonough Brothers have not yet commenced cutting ice on the pond, as was stated, but expect to do so Thursday morning. They are advertising for fifty men to do the work.

The Camp was instituted several weeks ago and two meetings were held prior to last evening. At present there are thirty-three applicants for membership and the charter list numbers about twenty.

Wentrick; banker, Dr. Arthur H. Dundon; clerk, William H. Callahan; escort, William H. Hepburn; watchman, James M. Morrison; sentry, O. F. Pearson; physician, Dr. A. H. Dundon; manager, Charles E. Hepburn.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Dr. Carpenter, Harvey G. Wentrick and Frank Scheuerlein. After the installation, which was public, there was dancing. Music was furnished by A. G. Carpenter's orchestra. Later in the evening refreshments were served.

ONLY CHILDREN.

Took Advantage of the Chance of Free Vaccination at Health Board Rooms Yesterday.

Yesterday afternoon was the time designated by the Board of Health when those desiring it could have the virus introduced into their systems without cost to themselves. The board made ready for a good sized delegation and had three physicians in waiting, Drs. Carman, Hedges and Davis.

At 4 o'clock, the time when the arm scraping was to begin, nine small boys and three little girls were ready to submit to the operation. The list was swelled later to fifteen, all juveniles, but that was all. Evidently the adults deemed themselves secure from contagion and preferred to go about without holding arms akimbo.

Last evening the engineer's condition was considered quite serious.

Children Especially Liable.

Burns, bruises and cuts are extremely painful and if neglected often result in blood poisoning. Children are especially liable to such mishaps because not so careful. As a remedy DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is unequalled. Draws out the fire, stops the pain, soon heals the wound. Beware of counterfeits. Sure cure for piles. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured my baby of eczema after two physicians gave her up," writes James Mock, N. Webster, Ind. "The sores were so bad she soiled two to five dresses a day." L. W. Randolph.

STABBED A POLICEMAN.

Exciting Time Which Followed Attempt to Arrest a Colored Man at Somerville.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Jan. 14.—George Vandervoort, a desperate negro, attempted to kill Policeman Robert Henderson here last night.

Henderson was about to put the negro, who is an old offender, under arrest, when the latter drew a knife and plunged it into the policeman's breast. The blade penetrated three heavy coats worn by Henderson and inflicted a slight flesh wound. The negro made a second thrust with his knife at Henderson's neck, when he was felled to the ground by the policeman's club. A desperate struggle ensued. The negro was overpowered by Henderson, who finally landed him in the county jail.

Vandervoort is known as one of the most desperate criminals in Somerset county. He was recently arrested on suspicion of robbing the home of Judge Lewis Schenck, of the Somerset county court, but was released owing to lack of evidence.

Ann Odelia Diss de Bar

A MODERN FEMALE CAGLIOSTRO

The Number of Her Victims in All Parts of America and Europe Is Legion

Now Under Arrest in London, England

WHILE it is true that mankind is so constituted that a religious belief is a necessity of his nature, and it may be possible to determine a person's character conversing with him upon religious topics, the fact that he is professedly a believer in the doctrines of some particular religious sect proves nothing regarding him, as early training, possible material advantages or the easy accessibility of some church edifice may have shaped his choice. In a large percentage of instances, a man's religion is merely a matter of course, causing hardly a ripple on the surface of his thoughts. On the other hand, among the very worst classes, so-called, those who have no outward connection with any church or creed, reflections of a deeply spiritual nature may be heaving up great tidal waves of discontent with self and its attitude toward things of a higher nature and, flowing back, carry out with them the wreckage of better perceptions and aspirations, submerging them in the gulf of the lowest forms of selfhood and wickedness. Between these two are found the average people, those who ponder over and try to live out their convictions, and this class may be subdivided almost indefinitely. The present tendency seems to be toward investigation. This has led many to go beyond the teachings of the old theologies. Some have found subject for life-long study in the light on the meaning of the Word shown in the writings of various philosophers. Others find satisfaction in Christian Science and other suggestive cults; while a still larger number drift from one sect to another, mental butterflies, lighting here and there for a moment and soon away. Many of the latter are caught and impaled on one of the many dangerous "I am it" societies, where they whirl around a belief in their own divinity, most fatal to spiritual life. Thousands are caught in the toils of some of the numerous money catchers who manufacture religions calculated to prey upon the weaknesses and vanity of their fellows for the purpose of robbery.

DISS DE BAR IN A LONDON POLICE COURT.

During the last few years deep sorrow has existed in her old Kentucky home, caused by one of the most infamous of the latter class, the notorious Ann Odelia Diss de Barr. Many stories are told concerning the origin of the woman, among which is her claim to be the daughter of King Ludwig of Bavaria and Lola Montez, a dancer. Her respectable parents are named Salomen, and at one time the New York police received a sad and earnest request from her mother to place her in an asylum for the insane. A few years ago, as Countess Landsfeldt, the woman penetrated the most exclusive circles of Baltimore. Leaving behind her a trail of unpaid bills,

ANN ODELIA DISS DE BAR.

she then went to New York, where she met and hypnotized (the word is used for lack of a better which the language seems to need at the present time) the noted lawyer, Luther R. Marsh, who had just lost his wife and, feeling desirous of obtaining messages from the other world, fell easily into the hands of the adventuress, who was masquerading as Princess Editha. The ascendancy which she gained over Mr. Marsh led to one of the strangest cases ever told before the New York courts. The lawyer had one of the most extensive practices in the country, and as attorney for large corporations and individuals of great wealth, transacted millions of dollars' worth of business. His reputation for keenness in legal matters was great. Diss de Barr delivered a series of lectures on Spiritualism, and she and her "family" became installed in the house of Mr. Marsh, which she referred to as the "Temple of Youth," where costly bric-a-brac, old marbles and fine paintings were manufactured by the hands of old masters, long since departed this life. With her at this time was a fine-looking personage called Gen. Diss de Bar and their two children. When it became known that Mr. Marsh had deeded his house and other property to this woman, his friends, without his knowledge, instituted suit and the Diss de Bars were lodged in the Tombs. The trial and later developments proved how her great personal power had been exercised on all classes of people, from those of great wealth and intelligence, to the poorest and most ignorant. Her greed and love of power would allow her to pass no one by. She has been enabled to drive fine horses and live sumptuously. In court she boasted that she had realized $150,000 per year by her performances in occultism. She served a term on Blackwell's island on a minor charge, also in an Illinois penitentiary for obtaining money on fraudulent checks.

In Chicago, as Vera Ava, she married an old man named Smith, from whom she obtained large sums and then a divorce. About this time, it is said, she was desirous of obtaining admission to Prophet Teed's Chicago community, but it is probable that the prospect of material gain was so small that she gave up the project, Koresh having a well-established reputation for a tight grasp on any dollars which happened to fall within the grasp of his fingers. Before meeting Mr. Marsh, Diss de Bar had a period of dissipation in New York. Drinking and cigarette smoking landed her in Bellevue hospital, where she attempted to kill a physician and stabbed an attendant. After spending a season in Ward's Island insane asylum, she married a young Italian, who soon died. It would be hard to keep track of the matrimonial adventures of this enterprising personage. After the Marsh episode her vanity led her on to the comic opera stage, where she is said to have worn the largest tights ever manufactured. The roars and laughter of the audience caused her to retire in tears. And yet —a refined, educated young man, who met her soon after, refers to her as a beautiful, grand woman with noble characteristics, of the finest nature and great capacity for good. Another says that she is one of the coarsest, fattest women living, with hard features and bright red hair. She had probably not exerted her magnetic power on the latter. About two years ago, with her present husband, Frank Jackson, she was given 24 hours in which to leave New Orleans. It is claimed that the police had proofs of crimes committed in the name of religion, as revolting as those for which the couple are now being tried in London, but the names of so many prominent society people were involved that the matter was hushed up. In nearly all her masquerading she has "been making a religious racket," has posed as some great spiritual helper or prophet and by her personal magnetism appealed to her morbid, dissatisfied victims in a manner which a person with a healthy religious belief can hardly comprehend. She has degraded the highest in their natures to the lowest opposite extreme, a correspondence of Heaven and hell.

Her latest exploit has so disquieted London as to cause the arrest of the Jacksons, now known as Laura and Theodore Horos. They founded a religious order known as the Theocratic Unity and Purity league, one of the most outrageous and indecent societies ever known. Advertisements similar to the following appeared: "American gentleman of good character, aged 35, of refined tastes, wishes to correspond with a good woman, 18 to 25 years of age, with a view to matrimony. Money no object." From among those who replied, one was each time selected. Laura, who posed as Theo's mother, fondled the neophyte lovingly. Theo called her his dear little wife. She was induced to subscribe to the most dreadful oaths, to the breaking of which fearful penalties were supposed to be attached, owing to the "blast of will" set against her by remaining members of the community. She was also cajoled into parting with whatever jewelry or property she possessed One of the witnesses in the present sensational trial testified that she was led to believe that Theo was the "Son of God." It is to be hoped that the English law will prove more efficient than our own in secluding from the outer world these beasts of prey who travel under the cloak of so-called religion.

HARKEN YE.

To the Voice of Plainfield People.

If you will but listen to your friends and neighbors, they will tell how the pains of a bad back, the nervousness, the restlessness that come from kidney ills can be relieved and cured. Read what one Plainfield citizen says.

Mrs. R. Wortman, living with her daughter, Mrs. S. E. Cook, of 204 Somerset street, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results for severe pains across my back and hips, which no doubt was caused by the kidneys being out of order. It was painful for me to stoop or bend forward and I could not sit ten minutes in one position, but had to be continually changing about. I used many different kinds of medicine recommended for kidney trouble, but I could not see that any of them benefitted me. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured for me at L. W. Randolph's drug store and it is the only remedy I ever used that gave me any relief. I always keep a supply of them on hand and would not think of being without them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Dear Sirs—Two years ago I had very bad corns and callouses on my feet, I went to a chiropodist and paid him $5.75 for taking them off. In less than a month they were back again. I then tried your CORN CURE and used only three bottles, costing 45c, and am happy to say it has taken them off completely. They have not troubled me now for over a year. I consider your HEPBURN'S CORN CURE the best I have ever used.—Yours truly, R. O. RUNYON, 629 LaGrande Ave.

BOICE, RUNYON & CO.,
Park Avenue and Railroad.

A middle-aged gentleman who lives pretty constantly at home and is very regular in his habits relates that he is occasionally compelled to make a railway journey for a night or two, and these used to upset his usual condition of health, resulting pretty uniformly in a cold or an attack of constipation. He has found a remedy for all that, however, and now says before starting off he places in his vest pocket a five-cent carton of Ripans Tabules. One of these Tabules, taken as he goes to rest in the sleeper, not only induces sleep, but keeps the bowels in a healthy state and prevents the opposite result formerly so apt to be engendered by the shaking up due to an all-night ride in a railroad car. He used to know that the change of diet on such occasions, and the taking of food at untimely hours, would upset his stomach for a certainty and cause a sick headache, but to his surprise he finds that all this is obviated by the precaution of swallowing a Ripans Tabule after each meal

WANTED—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

Negligees of China Silk and Wadded Dressing Gowns.

Dressing jackets, negligees and tea gowns are, if possible, more luxurious than ever, and at the present moment nothing is more comfortable than a quilted silk dressing gown. It looks handsome also if trimmed with good lace and rich embroideries, and with care it will last longer than any other dressing gown. For tea gowns china silk still holds its own and is trimmed with soft, delicate lace and pretty satin ribbons. They are made in empire style and accordion plaited, the yoke being of delicate embroidery. The sleeves are once more made in bishop shape for negligees.

In the illustration we have a dress of black velvet trimmed with black chantilly. It is made over a lining of white taffeta. The velvet is cut out beneath the bands to show the white lining. At one side of the skirt the velvet is slashed to show an accordion plaited fall of chiffon. The waist is made to open bolero fashion over an accordion plaited front of white chiffon. There is a wide collar edged with the black lace. The sleeves have full puffs of the chantilly at the elbow, and the undersleeves are very cunningly contrived with narrow black velvet bands on a sheer lining of white chiffon. The dress is collarless. The belt is of white satin, heavily embroidered in black.

How the Hair Should Be Dressed and Ornamented.

The wreaths of tiny roses which have been so popular as hair ornaments have given way to garlands of leaves, and quite the most fashionable ornament is a wreath of green leaves. As this color is not invariably becoming, the wreath is copied in black sequined tulle or in black and steel or jet. Graceful bows of ribbon with osprey and a jeweled buckle are meant to be worn with the high type of coiffure, while the simple wisp or chou of tulle still has its admirers.

The fashionable coil for evening wear is in the nature of a figure 8 or else it is arranged in a series of puffs, ornamented at one side with an irregular bow of velvet.

A party frock for a little girl is shown in the cut. It is made of ecru lace and net over pink silk. The skirt is composed of three wide ruffles of the lace. The waist is of net, made full, blouse fashion, both back and front. It is cut with a V shaped neck and has a frilled fichu of the mull. There are no sleeves, but a dainty effect is given by three bands of narrow pink ribbon. The sash is of pink peau de soie, and it is tied in a short bow with two long ends.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

My Strangest Case

BY GUY BOOTHBY.

Author of "DR. NIKOLA," "THE BEAUTIFUL WHITE DEVIL," "PHAROS, THE EGYPTIAN," Etc.

[Copyrighted, 1901, by Ward, Lock & Co.]

"We cannot blame you," Kitwater replied. "Yet you must surely understand our anxiety for a definite and immediate answer. The man has had a considerable start of us already, and he has doubtless disposed of the jewels ere this. At whatever price he sold them, he must now be in possession of a considerable fortune, which rightly belongs to us. We are not vindictive men; all we ask is for our own."

"I quite agree with you there," I replied. "The only question in my mind is, who shall get it for you? Let me explain matters a little more clearly. In the first place I have no desire to offend you, but how am I to know that the story you tell me is a true one?"

"I have already told you that you will have to take our word for that," he said. "It will be a great disappointment to us if you cannot take the matter up, but we must bear it as we have borne our other misfortunes. When we realized the way you managed those bank people we said to each other: 'That's the man for us! If anyone can catch Hayle he's that person.' It naturally comes to us as a disappointment to find that you are not willing to take up the case."

"I have not said that I am not willing," I answered; "I only said that I am not going to commit myself until I have given the matter due consideration. If you will call here at four o'clock to-morrow afternoon, I shall be able to give you a definite answer."

"I suppose we must be content with that," said Kitwater, lugubriously.

They thereupon thanked me and rose to go.

"By the way," I said, "does this man Hayle know that you are in England?"

The blind man shook his head.

"He thinks we are lying dead in the jungle," he said, "and it is not his fault that we are not. Did he suspect for a moment that we were alive and in the same country as himself, he'd be out of it like a rat driven by a ferret from his hole. But if you will give us your assistance, sir, we will make him aware of our presence before very long."

Though he tried to speak unconcernedly, there was an expression upon the man's face that startled me. I felt that, blind though he was, I should not care to be in Mr. Hayle's place when they should meet.

After they had left me I lit a cigar and began to think the matter over. I had had a number of strange cases presented to me in my time, but never one that had opened in such a fashion as this. A man robs his friends in the center of China; the latter are tortured and maimed for life, and come to me in London to seek out their betrayer for them, in whatever part of the globe he might be. The whole thing seemed so preposterous as to be scarcely worth consideration, and yet, try how I would to put it out of my mind, I found myself thinking of it continually. The recollection of the blind man's face and that of his dumb companion haunted me awake and asleep. More than once I determined to have nothing to do with them, only later to change my mind, and vow that I would see the matter through at any cost to myself.
